DETENUS PROBLEM

TREATMENT OF DETENUS SECURITY PRISONERS

Non-officials Condemn Govt. Policy

SIR REGINALD MAXWELL'S OUTBURST

New Delhi, Feb. 12
Sir Reginald Maxwell made an outspoken declaration on Jan. 21 replying to a debate concluded in the Central Assembly this morning on Mr. Joshi's resolution moved November Session recommending the appointment of a committee to examine and report on the conditions in which Security prisoners are held and what provisions should be made for the improvement of these detenus.

Grave Emergency
Sir Reginald said: "Where the Government have tremendous facilities of maintaining in grave emergency they divert themselves of it, but deal with the matter from the point of view of needed to win the war."

Nothing to Apologise
He added that the Government had nothing to apologise for in the action which was taken in the urgent interests of the country.

"These prisoners are not decent persons deserving of sympathy. A great majority of these persons who are in the hands of the Government are plotting the downfall of the Government."

He hoped that members would join him in feeling that persons capable of such treachery did not deserve the sympathy of the House.

Security Prisoners

In his speech Sir Reginald said that the figures of Security prisoners detained in India according to the Defence of India Act were about 102 persons were in connection with the movements of the Government.

A further 18 months of war would see excessive readiness of the Government to use powers under the Defence of India Act. He detailed the treatment of all prisoners of war, and the medical attendance given to them where there was a large number of prisoners. He mentioned the arrangements for them with a selection of the best newspapers from the East.

Family Allowances

He mentioned that the Government were not allowing family allowances to the families of Security prisoners.

to detenus said the principle followed was that Provincial Governments might, in exceptional cases, grant allowances to the dependents of Security prisoners when it was necessary on the ground that the detention had deprived the family of its income and left it in such destitute condition as to make assistance necessary. The number of applications received was comparatively small and all cases were carefully investigated. He added: "The House must remember that if a person engages in revolutionary activities it is he who lets his family down and not the general taxpayer who is expected to pay allowances. In most cases persons detained did not earn anything much by honest work of which they are now deprived. They were paid agitators. Let them go to their masters, to persons who paid them for carrying on subversive activities."

Communists or Revolutionaries

Sir Reginald continued that a great majority of persons detained were not the class that committed symbolic offences. Excluding satyagrahis almost all persons detained were either communists or revolutionaries. About 94 were revolutionaries arrested in Bengal and were persons known to be plotting acts of terrorism. There were also a certain number of ex-military prisoners and a few suspects detained for miscellaneous reasons connected with enemy activities. The remaining number of about 80 were almost without exception either acknowledged communists or else active supporters of communist propaganda and violent mass revolution.

No Comparison To War Prisoners

Sir Reginald proceeded to refer to Communist activities of Detenus. He quoted extracts from a pamphlet entitled "Proletarian path" published by the Communist party and distributed at Ramgarh Congress. The pamphlet urged India to make revolutionary use of war crisis and advocated political and general strike, countrywide no-tax campaign, National movement, pamphlet declared entered into a new and higher phase of armed insurrection. Programme of that kind was not a programme of any legitimate political party in the country.

Persons concerned however were given privileges far more than they deserved or that would be given by other belligerent countries to traitors. He added comparison between the treatment of security prisoners with that of German and Italian detenus was not a valid one because although civilian internees were not prisoners of war, they were by international agreement being treated in accordance with principles of Geneva Convention of 1929. It must be remembered treatment of British subjects similarly interned in enemy countries was on reciprocal basis.

Preference To Enemy Internees

Sir Reginald concluded, I would in any case give preference to enemy internees who have nothing against them except that they owe allegiance to enemy countries rather than persons who, of their own, deprived their liberty for plotting against their own country and against those who fight for it.

Sardar Sant Singh

Sardar Sant Singh who spoke before the Home member supported the resolution.

Mr. A. C. Dutta

Mr. A. C. Dutta pointed out that although the rules for the treatment of detenus might be good on paper they were not adhered to in practice.

Lalchand Navalrai

Lalchand Navalrai did not think there was any need for a Committee. Details regarding hardships had been furnished by the speaker and it was now only a question of recommending to the Governor General to take action on that information.

Sir Raza Ali

Sir Raza Ali wished to support the demand for enquiry into cases of injustice and undue hardships. He was told of the case of an inhabitant in Delhi under restraint who was being prosecuted for having accompanied the funeral of his brother in violation of the restraint order. He hoped the appointment of the Committee would strengthen the hands of the Government.

The Central Assembly by 40 votes to 23 rejected Mr. Joshi's resolution regarding detenus.

The Muslim League and the Congress Nationalist and some unattached members voted for the resolution.

Mr. Azhar Ali ridiculed the suggestion that detenus were bad characters.

Mr. N. M. Joshi intervening said: "Ask what they (Government members) all say of M. N. Roy now." (laughter).

Mr. A. N. Chattopadhyaya said he never heard a more unworthy speech than that made by the Home Member.

Nawab of Dera opposed the resolution on the ground that it was against the object for which the Defence of India Act was framed.

Mr. Kazmi

Mr. Kazmi (Congress) challenged the Home Member's declaration that the restriction of order was being carefully used. He instanced a case wherein an internee was prosecuted for having attended the obsequies of his sister in violation of the order. He asked in what way such restrictions were useful in defending India.

Mr. Govind Deshmukh emphasised the necessity of appointing a committee of enquiry immediately.

Mr. Joshi

Mr. N. M. Joshi replying to the Home Member observed: "The Home Member's remarks are not only uncalled for, but unjust, unfair and undignified. There were among detenus men of whom any father would be proud. He instanced the case of a young man with a brilliant University career who, he assured the Home Member, was a paid agitator and whose father was as wealthy as the Home Member himself. Mr. Joshi added: "I am sorry he should have called these people also traitors. They may be mistaken, but that a Britisher who engaged himself for the sake of pay in holding a foreign country in bondage should call an Indian who fights for the freedom of his country a traitor is thoroughly unjust."

Enemy Internees

Dealing with the Home Member's reference to enemy internees Mr. Joshi said: "His Government has been telling the whole world that they are fighting Nazism and Fascism and he from his place says that there is no fault in a Nazi or Fascist. He urged the necessity for the appointment of a Committee to ascertain whether assistance to families was needed in particular cases."

The resolution was thrown out.

FIRST DIVISION OF THE SESSION

MORAL VICTORY FOR NON-OFFICIALS

Uncalled For Remarks Of Home Member

From Our Correspondent

(By Wire) New Delhi Feb. 12

The first division of the session of the Central Assembly revealed a moral victory for non-officials. Mr. Joshi's resolution regarding the appointment of a committee to examine and report on the conditions in which Security prisoners are held and what provisions should be made for the improvement of these detenus, was supported by a large majority of non-officials. The resolution was rejected by the Government members, but the non-officials' vote was a significant one. The Home Member's remarks were widely condemned by the non-officials, who felt that the Government was treating the detenus unfairly and that the resolution was a necessary step to improve their conditions. The non-officials' vote was a clear statement of their opposition to the Government's policy towards the detenus.

As Mr. Chattopadhyaya pointed out against these attacks and called on the Home Member to withdraw them. Mr. Joshi's plain tones depicted the indignity used by the Home Member and described the detenus as unjust, undignified, very "unpleasant". All the speakers pointed out that these detenus had not been convicted of any offence and deserved the most humane treatment. Mr. Joshi's Home Member pleaded that they were treated well and his enthusiastic description of Deoli which brought exclamation from Sardar Sant Singh "is this another paradise" retort from non-official benches was "why then oppose the Committee of enquiry".

A PUFF OF SMOKE

From our correspondent)
New Delhi, Feb 6

The Indian Delegation pointed out that the scheme was entirely voluntary in character and because there in South Africa were a number of Indians who did not wish to accommodate themselves to Western standards of life and hence there was no imlogy.

Thus one could see that the struggles from which the two delegations approached the vital question were so divergent that there was no basis for continuing the exploratory talks. The Indian delegation was unable to agree to any method which involved discrimination against Indians resident in Ceylon or involved pressure on them who could claim legitimately full equality of citizenship.

The point of view of Ceylon delegation was also such that it required some consideration at the hands of India, but the Indian delegation felt that Ceylon ought not to look at Indians as absolute aliens.

The Ceylon Delegation's report explaining its case says that Ceylon has already reached a point where she cannot support a reasonable standard of living for her people, her population rapidly increasing with all attendant economic problems and difficulties. Indian proposals not only place the category of those entitled to full citizenship but also grant an opportunity to acquire an opportunity to Indians of choice to become resident in Ceylon who have not completed five years in Ceylon. Ceylon must be free to take such steps necessary to overcome the disadvantage of Indians to create wider opportunities for Ceylonese and the Ceylon Government would be prepared for this purpose to negotiate with India regarding repatriation scheme whereby Indians might voluntarily return to India with suitable monetary inducement. Ceylon is not prepared to extend franchise to those resident Indians who have not exercised their right of choice of Indian domicile by the fixed life.

India is as much interested in the economic welfare of the indigenous inhabitants of Ceylon as the Ceylon delegation is. There can be no clash of interests in the matter. We feel that when the question is reconsidered it would not be difficult to arrive at a workable understanding. We hope the Ceylon representatives would tackle the question manfully with a view to arriving at a friendly understanding in the matter.

His Holiness Sri Shivananda Rajendra Shrivacharya Jagadguru Balehalli Rambapur Math arrived in Balehonnur on Monday evening from Kollegal via Nanjangud in view of His Highness the Maharaja's visit to the Math on Sunday morning enroute to Chickmagalur from Chaldravathi. The Malnad landlords are making arrangements to submit a dutiful response to His Holiness in Koppa on the night of Saturday. Meanwhile T. P. N. New Delhi, Feb 6

Let me again voice an old complaint which I have repeatedly made in these columns. The selection of Mr Hydan for the Indian seat in the Eastern Council, has been generally welcomed, for Mr Hydan has proved to be an outstanding success as Labour Secretary, and one cannot help reminding oneself that after the departure of Mr Hydan there will be only one Indian as permanent Secretary in the whole of the Government of India—a sad spectacle indeed showing that from the point of view of Indianisation the position today is far worse than what it was even ten years ago. This is a matter which deserves the immediate attention of the Ministry. There is little meaning in promises of Dominion status or anything else after the war if today Indian claims are not respected as they should be, if filling high appointments in the Government of India. In most Departments the highest place occupied by an Indian is that of a Deputy Secretary or Under Secretary. Even the number of Indian Joint Secretaries is scandalously low though senior Indians in the I.C.S. and other Services are available in fairly large number.

It was only this afternoon that official information was available regarding the Government of India's plans for the summer months. As anticipated by me in an earlier letter, those who had raised expectations of the move have altogether been falsified. The Government of India's move to Simla is to continue, but the actual number going is expected to be less than last year. It appears that one of the first things done by the new Commander in Chief was to direct his staff to find out how many could be conveniently be left in New Delhi for the summer months—in other words it is proposed by the Commander in Chief to take to Simla only the minimum number necessary for carrying on the work. The proposal is that like the civil departments of the Government of India the hands of Army offices should take only a skeleton staff with them and leave the rest behind in New Delhi. As the move will take place only in the first week of May, it does not seem probable that the original idea announced last year of curtailing the Simla stay to three or four months and returning to New Delhi in August will be followed even this year. The intention appears to be to stay for the usual period in Simla and return only in October. According to talks in official circles one reason for not giving up the Simla move altogether is that the present accommodation in New Delhi, though adequate for winter, is not sufficient for summer requirements owing to the large increase in the official establishments of the Government of India to cope with additional war work.

When the Central Assembly opened on Tuesday morning Mr. Subash Chandra Bose's name was the first to be called. My readers would remember that he was recently elected to the Assembly from Calcutta City constituency. There was no response in the Assembly for the call. Naturally the mysterious disappearance of Mr. Subash Bose had a silent but telling effect on the Assembly.

Many have been the rumours spread about him. Speculation is rife. But my editor does not permit me to write here all that I have heard. The Defence of India Rules are so comprehensive that recording of any speculation in these columns might imperil the paper. And so I would refrain.

The Thana Municipality has sprung a surprise on the world by issuing a distress warrant on Mahatma Gandhi. As to what would be the fate of this warrant, there need be no doubt. Mahatma Gandhi has no property of his own and has no money of his own. Anyhow the newspapers would watch with interest further developments in the matter.

The Associated Press has been giving us the news of the arrival of several Governors of Provinces in Delhi. It cannot all be a social visit. There may be a political purpose behind it. The newspaper correspondents have been closely observing the situation and one fine morning we may hear something very surprising.

There is a good deal of comment regarding the election contest held in connection with the University contest. Specially the Legislative Council must say, it is a record test, of two Ex-Heroes. Judges contesting. There are 10 members of the Legislature (10) also contested. One came from Mysore was quite new to the field. Regarding the final candidate it must be said it was sheer good luck, that the name was drawn in the final result was a matter with keen expectation is that a election. I really sympathized with those candidates who were obliged to forfeit their deposit amount.

There is another consideration, namely, the Chamber of Commerce at which there was keen contest to the Legislative Council. The last hour withdrawal of Mr. H. C. Suryanarayana Rao from the contest upsets all the previous expectations. All the same, my congratulations to the successful candidate and my sympathy to the defeated.

What wonderful things happen during elections we can imagine. It is sometimes unwise to record what all we see and what all we hear.

I conclude today's note with the following news item from Trichinopoly dated February 10.

Yesterday night a cobra was found in Mr. C. Rajachari's yard in the Prison Central Jail. Messrs. P. L. Raju and Bipu Reddi, who luckily discovered it, promptly killed it. The dead snake has been hung up in the yard to be shown to the authorities.

Thank God, there was no untoward incident.

ITALIAN PRISONERS AND PRISON CONTROL

(To The Editor "Daily News")

Dear Sir,

I trust you will allow me the hope of your columns in ventilating what is a great hardship on the citizen of Bangalore. Since the war started, Bangalore has been made a training centre and large numbers of Indian troops are undergoing training in addition to about 150 Officers who are also here for the same purpose. This has naturally resulted in enhanced prices for all types of goods and groceries and has considerably increased the cost of living in addition to the normal increase due to the war. Further accommodation is almost impossible to obtain at present and rates

The establishment of Hindustan Aeronautics has further accentuated these concerns. Now we hear to our intense consternation that Bangalore is to be saddled with 20000 Italian prisoners and that 20000 Italian prisoners and that 20000 Italian prisoners will have to come from Bangalore City Cantonment. The whole of Africa African India has agreed to take 20000 prisoners and it is difficult to believe that the same number is to be found in small City like Bangalore. As long as the citizens have cheerfully put up with hardships imposed as a result of Bangalore being made a training centre, it is rather much to expect that local businessmen and citizens should be made to bear the brack of prisoners of a "stad in the back of the country. If the Government does not take these prisoners here, surely, surely, there must be made for supplies and for food. Already prices are soaring and are going to our young Maharaja, to our Maharaja and to the British Ruler of Dewana and to the British Ruler of Dewana that some sort of price control is introduced to avoid the poor citizens being led to the verge of starvation.

ment of India is in the hands of Sir Rama-swami Mudaliar, the Commerce Member. There is really no ground for taking a pessimistic view of the outcome of these negotiations. It is not likely that the export of Ceylon will be repeated in this case. It is to Burma's interest to be on friendly terms with India. As nearly three-fifths of its exports go to India, it cannot afford to alienate the people of this country by taking any steps which are likely to harm Indian trade. The desire of the Burmese Government to realise some additional revenue by imposing import duties on goods coming from India, has led to some apprehension, but some way will have to be found for adjusting these differences and securing an amicable settlement which is fair and equitable to both. India's exports to Burma are rapidly increasing in the month of December alone the increase is nearly fifty per cent more compared with the corresponding month in the previous year. It is to the advantage of both the countries that this steadily expanding market should be further developed. Both the delegations are now engaged in studying the memoranda prepared by their respective Governments. It is therefore too early to say how the negotiations will proceed, but the spirit of friendliness and good will in which the talks have begun may be regarded as a good augury for the future. It should be remembered that the initiative for these trade talks came from the Burma Government itself. So far as the commercial community in India is concerned, it is quite prepared as its representations show, to let the status quo continue. Even the trade figures for the current year the figures for the first months, April to December show that the balance of trade is heavily to Burma's advantage Burma's exports to India are just twice India's exports to Burma.

It is announced Admiral Dark will become the Head of the State should Marshal Petain be incapacitated from discharging his functions.

SHIMOGA'S RIGHT ROYAL RECEPTION TO MAHARAJA

Highness Lays Corner-Stone of Intermediate College

VICE-CHANCELLOR'S WELCOME ADDRESS

(Daily News Special Correspondent)
Shimoga, Feb. 12
His Highness the Maharaja arrived here in State coach and is camping at the House. Elaborate arrangements have been made for the reception which is due to take place this evening. People from all near have gathered to get a glimpse of our beloved ruler. Streets have been decorated with flags and lanterns adding to the charm and to this beautiful town of Malnad.

His Highness had the corner stone of the Intermediate College when he was presented with the address of welcome by the Vice-Chancellor Kapkaryan N. S. Subba Rao and members of the University.

THE ADDRESS
The address is as follows:—
We beg to request that your Highness will be graciously pleased to lay the corner stone of the Intermediate College, and in doing so we beg to request permission briefly to state the circumstances in which this institution has been founded and the hopes with which it has been done.

In the closing decades of the last century, Shimoga had a first grade College affiliated to the Madras University, like other legitimate institutions in the district, and this institution was a leader to the first grade schools at Bangalore and other places. But early in the present century the College classes were abolished, the joint institution reduced to the status of a High School.

When the Mysore University was inaugurated in 1916, a new set of High Schools was created and a one-year Collegiate class was added to the High School at Shimoga. This was given the status of a Collegiate High School as they were called.

The University authorities were not a success, and the University instituted a new set of Colleges, as a result of which the High School was reduced to a degree. At the same time, the University authorities located one of these institutions, but for various reasons, the chief of which was the limited choice of optional subjects, the new institution was not able to attract adequate numbers. Though the quality of work was exceedingly good, as evidenced by the success of its students at the University examinations, in 1933 it was decided to merge the Intermediate class with the High School, and here as well as at other places, the people of these districts did not reconcile themselves to this step, and from time to time demands were made for the re-constitution of the University Senate, and the re-constitution of the University for the purpose of re-constituting the Intermediate College at Shimoga. In the year 1935, the Government of Mysore and Bangalore had taken pupils to their utmost capacity, and the University was faced with the choice of either starting additional Intermediate Colleges at these places, or of starting such institutions in other centres in the State. It was decided that it was better from all points of view that the latter alternative should be accepted, and Shimoga and Tumkur had the first claim for consideration when centres were selected.

In conformity with this decision, the Junior Intermediate class was opened at Shimoga last June with provision for teaching Arts as well as Physical Science subjects, but instruction in Natural Science could not be given for want of accommodation in the temporary quarters where, with the cordial cooperation of the Education Department, the University class is now working. More than a hundred students were admitted to the College, and it is believed that in the coming year the demand for admission will be larger.

The new building now under construction makes satisfactory provision for conducting classes in Arts subjects and Physical Sciences next June, both of the senior and the junior grade, and additions will be duly made for opening Natural Science classes in the following June. With provision for teaching practically all the optional subjects at the Intermediate stage and with an adequate supply of hostel facilities, there is every reason to hope that this College will attract students from all the High Schools in the Malnad area, and thus play, with increased resources, the role played by the old second grade College as an ante-chamber to the first grade Colleges at Mysore and Bangalore.

It is the desire of the University Authorities that this institution should also play its part in the extension of knowledge and spread of new ideas among the people of the Malnad area, and thus contribute to the intellectual and cultural amenities in these parts.

The progress of the new institution will be naturally watched with hope and also with some anxiety, and it is a happy augury that your Highness will lay the foundation stone today. We trust that the future of the institution will be in every way worthy of the auspicious start it has the good fortune to receive to day at your Highness's hands.

The address was presented in a beautiful casket prepared by Mr. Narasimha Iyer of the Sri Lalita Jewellery Co., Bangalore.

HIS HIGHNESS'S REPLY

His Highness after receiving the address made a speech through the microphone.

Mr. Vice-Chancellor, Mr. President and Members of the Shimoga Municipal Council,

It gives me very great pleasure that my first formal tour should begin in this picturesque district and that it should be associated with the University where I have recently spent such happy years. This pleasure is enhanced by the fact that, in respect of that very important matter, contributions to the fight for freedom, the War Fund Committee for the district of Shimoga occupies a leading place among the Committees of the State.

Encouraging Account

You, members of the Municipal Council, give me in your address a very encouraging account of the progress of the town and district. Communications have been improved, whether in the shape of roads, railways or bridges. Electric lights have been installed. A great new hospital has been set up. An Intermediate College has been started. And numerous works of industrialisation have been inaugurated. The income of the Municipality has increased in 33 years by no less than 440 per cent. and you have established a new Market and fair grounds, circles and extensions, and parks with radio sets for the information and recreation of the people.

Question of Drainage

You have referred in your address to the question of drainage, which I entirely agree is a very urgent necessity in a town like yours, where fever is rife and stagnant water is apt to accumulate. The scheme to which you refer in this connection has not yet reached my Government, but I can assure you that, when it does so, it will receive the most sympathetic consideration from them. Meanwhile I am glad to be able to announce the grant of a sum of Rs. 10,000 for expenditure on measures of immediate necessity in this connection. You also refer to the efforts you have been making in the direction of slum clearance, and to your desire to improve the housing conditions of the poorest classes. This is a matter in which I take the keenest interest; and I am sure you will agree with me that it is especially desirable to set an example by providing good housing for the Municipal sweepers. In the hope that you will be able to make a start in this direction at once I am very glad to announce to you a grant of Rs. 5,000 for assistance in the erection of these buildings.

Intermediate College

I now come to the matter that has brought me here today, namely, the laying of the foundation stone of the Intermediate College. The Vice-Chancellor has related to you the vicissitudes that have attended on the promotion of higher education in your town, vicissitudes which we all hope are now for ever at an end. He has ended his address on a note of anxiety. My own feeling is very much more one of hope, a hope, not only that the Intermediate College will form an important addition to its Alma Mater, the University of Mysore, but that being as so doubt it will be, led to a considerable extent from your prosperous neighbour, Bhadravathi, which is rapidly developing into the Birmingham of Mysore. It will tend to develop more and more on the lines of the colleges in great industrial cities in Europe. These as you know, all tend towards the development of what India so much needs, the training of the youth of the country, not only in the arts and the pure sciences, but in the application of both to the industrial advancement of their motherland.

In this hope I have much pleasure in proceeding to lay the Corner stone of the Intermediate College building.

AFGHAN COMMERCIAL DELEGATION

A.P. Peshawar, Feb. 11.
The Afghan Commercial Delegation to Japan under the leadership of Mr. Ghulam Ghouse, Vice Minister of National Economy, arrived here from Kabul this evening. The mission has been invited by the Japanese Foreign Trade Promoting Association through the Japanese Government. Then visit which is expected to last six or seven weeks is mainly concerned with the study of Japan's industrial and commercial development as also exploration of various avenues for selling Afghan products in Japanese markets.

THE MORNING DRIVE FROM JOG

Reception To His Highness At Sagar

UNSULLIED AND STEADFAST LOYALTY OF THE PEOPLE

Municipal Address At Sagar

From Daily News Special Correspondent

Sagar, Feb. 12.
Sagar a flourishing town on the left bank of the River Varada was en fête to-day on the occasion of the first visit of our beloved Maharaja. This town lies nearly 50 miles to the west-north-west of Shimoga on the Shimoga Gersoppa road. It is the head quarters of a Revenue Sub Division and also a Municipal. The Town is one of the chief exporting centres of agricultural trade. Pepper, Sandalwood and other products of Malnad exported to distant places.

His Highness the late Maharaja Sri Chamaraja Wadiyar gave a visit to this place long ago on his way to the famous Jog Falls and in his memory the west extension of the town is named.

The whole town of Sagar looked gay with flags and festoons. People wore festive robes and were in a holiday mood. They walked through the decorated streets singing the praise of the Mysore Royal Family to whose beneficence the people owe much. Villagers with their steadfast loyalty and unsullied devotion walked a number of miles to have a glimpse of their young Ruler who has become their only hope in this hour of distress. The kind smile of the Ruler, his acknowledgement with folded hands and the generous look which has pervaded the atmosphere have enlivened the royal population who look to our Sovereign with unsurpassed reverence.

The Morning Drive

The beautiful Cadillac took its morning drive through the gravel road to Sagar which was reached this morning. His Highness wore spotless white apparel suitable to the sultry atmosphere of the day. The diamond necklace which he wore shone with brilliance, adding charm to his beautiful personality. People who gathered on the two sides of the road paid their respectful loyalty by continued cheering. Rajeswaraiah Lt. Col. A. V. Subrahmanyam was seated in front of His Highness.

Reception At Sagar

As soon as the Royal Car was sighted near the Municipal Pandal people rushed forward to have a glimpse. There was perfect discipline among the crowd and each secured his place without any untoward incident.

The President and Members of the Municipal Council were introduced to His Highness and amidst great ovation His Highness took his seat on the decorated platform. Invocations over, Mr. H. Sivalingappa, the Vice-President of the Municipality read an address of welcome which was enclosed in a beautiful sandalwood casket.

His Highness made his speech in Kannada which has already been reported.

After this function His Highness drove in his car through the streets of Sagar. At several Pandals erected for the purpose flowers were offered by merchants and citizens. Thousands of persons young and old lined

INDIAN QUESTION IN CEYLON STATE COUNCIL

Disapproves Governor's Message

A.P. Colombo, Feb. 11

Sir Bateson Jacobson, Home Minister and Leader of the House, moved a resolution in the State Council to-day to express the disapproval of the message of His Excellency the Governor of Ceylon which has been received bearing the House along with other papers relating to the recent Indo-Ceylon explosion. The Governor's message which was read to the house by the Speaker placed on contemporary record in English. The resolution was moved in support of which an amendment was moved by His Majesty's Government and by the Government of Ceylon to the Government of India and added "having regard to the circumstances in which these undertakings have been given by the Government of Ceylon and in view of the fact that the Government of India have not agreed to the effect that it would be to deprive Indians of any undertakings."

Sir Jacobson stated the Board or Ministers considered the publication of the Governor's message as ill timed and whether intended or not, calculated to render the task of the House in dealing with the Indian question very difficult.

After four hours discussion the State Council adopted by 13 votes to 13 Sir Jacobson's amendment motion.

Large stores for Egypt and South Africa and two million yards of hessian for Mid East.

the streets and cheered the young Maharaja as he smiled acknowledging the love of his people. It was an unforgettable sight for historians to record when the vast multitude were enlivened at the sight of our Sovereign on whom our people depend for their happiness and prosperity. Never before in the annals of this city an event of such historic importance has happened. His Highness left Shimoga with pleasant recollections of his visit to Jog and Sagar.

ECHO OF PROF. RANGA'S DETENTION IN CENTRAL ASSEMBLY

Adjournment Motion Ruled Out

New Delhi, Feb. 12

In the Assembly this morning the Chair ruled out the adjournment motion tabled by Dr. Govind Deshmukh to discuss "detention of Prof. Ranga" a member of the Assembly at Trichinopoly Junction station.

The Chair ruled out the adjournment motion on the ground that the session in pursuance of summons received by Prof. Ranga is his constituency.

Dr. Deshmukh said he received a telegram from Prof. Ranga, saying that he was detained under the provisions of the Madras

Emergency Act. The Chair wanted to know if it was a fact.

Dr. Deshmukh said it was a fact. Mr. N. M. Joshi pointed out that the Defence of India Act was passed in 1938 and was not in force. The Government administration under the Defence of India Act was passed in connection with war and war was Central responsibility. The President said he could not accept the contention that any order passed by the local Government under the Defence of India Act became the responsibility of the Central Government. He ruled the motion out of order.

More Empty Benches

THAN THE NUMBER OF ELECTED MEMBERS PRESENT

The Scene of the Central Assembly

(By Wire) New Delhi, Feb. 12

Interesting developments to be noticed in the Central Assembly now in session there are more empty benches than even the number of the members present. The question discussed in the lobby is whether the seat of Sri Subhas Bose will also be declared vacant? It is understood the Governor General will wait for some time before taking action.

The lone figure of Mr. Karmarshi while member of the Congress party is to be seen in the back seat of unattached benches sitting more or less as a watchdog for his absent party.

Muham League in Opposition

But the most interesting development is that the Muslim League has taken on the mantle of opposition and is giving a challenge to the Treasury Bench opposite. The vehemence with which the Knights and Moslems of the Muslim League are attacking the Government policy has thrown even the National party into shade.

Sir Ziauddin has all along against the Government's interference in pay between European Officers given to emergency commissions and Indians. He had a series of castic questions against certain officers in Contract. Directors who within a few months have risen from the rank of Captain to Lieut. Colonel and also amidst laughter "does he know how to handle a rifle?"

Meek Gregory Report

Regarding the Meek Gregory Report Sir Ziauddin asked whether journalists could have written it sitting in the Assembly Library.

Resolution Regarding Detention

The debate on Mr. J. S. resolution regarding detention of the Muslim League members in the same critical moment of Governments Policy.

Sir Raza Ali in answer to Mr. Maxwell's refusal to appoint a committee warned Government that in the present time of war they should be careful not to do anything to alienate public sympathy.

SATYAGRAHA

A.P. Jubbulpore, Feb. 12

Mr. Balaprasad Pachar, President, Narasingpur Municipal Council was arrested under Defence of India Rules.

He was sentenced till the rising of Court and fined three hundred rupees.

Mr. Shyamsunder R. Mushran was arrested and sentenced to four months' rigorous imprisonment on charges of offering Satyagraha.

MECHANIZATION OF INDIAN ARMY

Indian Prisoners of War SEVERAL NON-OFFICIAL BILLS DISCUSSED

New Delhi, Feb. 13
Official bills were discussed in the Assembly today. Mr. Ali moved consideration of a bill to amend the Indian Army Act to give relief to low paid railway employees from certain District and Municipal taxes. After discussion during which the bill was opposed by the Commission Member and Mr. Aney the bill was withdrawn.

Mr. Ashar Ali's Bill
Mr. Clow, Communication Member, opposing the bill, pointed out that the House had power to exempt the servants of the Central Government or of the Government from provincial taxation of the provisions of the bill would be held ultravires. Nor was there any reason why the servants should be placed in a privileged position in comparison with others getting the same salary. It was true that the Railway Board had granted exemption to which the mover alluded, but the Board of those were in some obscurity as regards provincial and Central taxes of taxation. They later covered the error and were not paying tax themselves of unincorporated and non-gazetted servants. The Board were hesitating to withdraw the privilege which would be regarded a hardship.

Mr. Aney
Mr. Aney concurred with Sir Clow and opposed the Bill on the ground that he was against the creation of special privileges for Government servants because they were Government servants.

Sir Zaunuddin
Sir Zaunuddin pointed out if the servants lived in railway messes which were outside the municipal limits it was worth considering whether these servants were not exempt from taxation.

Mr. Nauman
Mr. Nauman suggested that the railways should pay taxes on houses occupied by railway servants.

Mr. Stalg, Financial Commissioner
Mr. Stalg, Financial Commissioner, said that Government was not prepared to undertake any further liabilities.

Bill Withdrawn
Mr. Ashar Ali said he had no alternative but to withdraw the bill and suggested that the Railway Member should try to find ways of giving relief to poorer employees.

Indian Prisoners of War
The Legislative Assembly agreed to circulation of Lachand Navarai's bill to amend the code of criminal procedure so as to repeal the provisions allowing private unqualified people to appear and act as pleaders in criminal cases with the permission of the Court. Provision, Mr. Navarai said served some purpose in the olden days when

Dollar Exchange
Sir Jeremy Raisman, Finance Member, regretted he could not give information regarding dollar exchange which the Government or the Reserve Bank acquired since 1st November 1940 as it was contrary to public interest.

Mr. Navarai's Bill
The Legislative Assembly agreed to circulation of Lachand Navarai's bill to amend the code of criminal procedure so as to repeal the provisions allowing private unqualified people to appear and act as pleaders in criminal cases with the permission of the Court. HARTAL IN CALCUTTA

A.P. Calcutta, Feb. 13
Shops and markets in Indian quarters of the City are observing hartal today as a protest against the Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) bill now before the provincial Assembly.

qualified pleaders were not easily available and could be engaged only at a heavy cost. At present there was no dearth of pleaders. Sir William Maxwell, Home Member moving circulation of the bill for eliciting opinion by July 1st 1941 pointed out although the subject fell within the concurrent field of the executive authority the matter rested with the provinces. It would not be proper to proceed with legislation without giving provinces opportunity of comment. The Amendment was passed.

Land Acquisition Act

The house after brief discussion rejected the motion by Mr. Navarai for consideration of the bill amending Land Acquisition Act. The amendment designed to avoid delays in decisions of cases arising out of Land Acquisition Act.

Sir Mahomed Zafrullah Khan opposed the bill on the ground the Centre had no jurisdiction to pass this legislation.

Mr. Kazmi's Bill

The following bills were introduced:
Mr. Kazmi's bill providing for the appointment of persons to office of Kazi and for performing and keeping record of marriages and for the appointment of tribunals for trying and deciding cases of divorce, dissolution of marriage against Muslims.

M.A. Ghani's bill providing for better administration of Muslim Wakfs in the province of Delhi.

Mr. Govind Deshmukh's bill removing legal disabilities under Hindu Law in respect of marriage between Hindus.

The house adjourned till to-morrow.

BINNY MILLS WORKERS RESUME WORK FROM TODAY

Strike Committee's Statement

GOVERNMENT'S DECISION TO APPOINT ENQUIRY COMMITTEE

Bangalore, Feb. 14
The following statement has been issued by the Strike Committee of the Binny Mills Workers including those of the Kaisar-i-hind Mills through Sir K. T. Bhashyam, President, Bangalore Textile Labour Union, Bangalore City—

Cause Of The Strike

The strike in the Binny Mills started with the dispute regarding the basis of calculation for payment of bonus - the workers demanding a ten per cent basis, the authorities insisting on the dividend basis. There were other grievances regarding leave rules, holidays, etc., besides those arising out of and incidental to the strike itself such as strike wages etc.,

The workers in the Kaisar-i-hind Mills went on strike both in sympathy with the strike in the Binny Mills and on account of certain grievances of their own such as dismissal of some workers, the retention of workers as temporary hands for long periods and the like.

These are matters calling for an enquiry and decision by an impartial arbitrator. The workers had been asking for such a settlement but since the grievances remained unsettled and would not be considered, they had to go on strike.

25 Days Strike

The strike has now lasted for twentyfive days and has focussed public opinion on the workers demands and their grievances.

The strike Committee decided to abide by the guidance and decision of Sir K. T. Bhashyam, President, Bangalore Textile Labour Union, and on their suggestion the entire body of workers adopted the following resolution:—

"We the workers of the Binny Mills now on strike are determined to continue the strike until our demands are satisfied and thereby resolve that Mr. K. T. Bhashyam, President, Bangalore Textile Labour Union, be requested to take over the conduct of the strike and that we shall abide by his directions in all matters concerning the strike including the termination of it and the resumption of it."

The Strike Committee have since functioned under his guidance.

Enquiry Committee

The strike Committee were satisfied that to go back to work without the grievances being agreed to be heard and decided the object of the strike would be defeated. They therefore resolved to continue on strike until such an enquiry was either made or promised.

The Strike Committee are glad to state that the Government have now agreed to issue an Order appointing an enquiry Committee to go into the grievances of the workers. The object of the strike has thus been achieved, namely to secure necessary machinery for the consideration of the workers' grievances and an assurance that they will be redressed as far as possible.

In view of the above circumstances the Strike Committee requested all workers to resume work from tomorrow.

Management

The Strike Committee hope and have reason to believe that the management will appreciate the decision of the workers to resume work and that they will make every effort to ensure complete satisfaction among the workers. They rather hope that the authorities will do every thing to develop cordiality or friendship between themselves and the workers.

The Strike Committee request all the workers on their part to continue to be united and resolute in the discharge of their duties as before and to observe an increasing measure of order and discipline in the management.

The Strike Committee desire to record their appreciation of the generally helpful attitude adopted by the Police authorities, in judiciously refraining with the strike. The Committee however regret that Shris N. D. Shankar, K. S. Kumaran, M. S. Rama Rao and A. Z. Sheriff all of whom were guiding the Committee, have been arrested and detained. The Committee hope that they will be released at once.

Thanks To Government

The Strike Committee desire to convey to the Government the thanks of the workers for agreeing to issue the Order appointing an Enquiry Committee and the workers for the unity, discipline and determination in carrying on the strike to a successful termination.

Thanks To Workers

The Strike Committee record their deep and genuine appreciation of the immense help rendered by the workers.

Problems Of Slum Clearance And Housing

We are sure our readers would have perused with great interest the four notes sent by our special correspondent in connection with His Highness the Maharaja's visit to the Shimoga District. Everywhere as was to be expected the young Maharaja met with very deep loyal affection of his people. They travelled long distances, most of them on foot, and in country carts, to have a glimpse of our Maharaja in whom all their hope for the future is centred. Loyalty of Mysoreans is proverbial and the love of the Ruler to his people is equally proverbial. His Highness the Maharaja might have visited these parts previously when he had not yet been invested with the mantle of responsibility. Now he is visiting these places as the Ruler of the State from whom the people expect a lot. To the rural folk, to their unsophisticated mind, Maharaja is equivalent to Providence. And as such His Highness must have felt deeply the touch of loyalty of the people.

The several addresses that were presented to him show the needs of the people. His Highness the Maharaja, has in his replies indicated in an abundant measure his sympathies with the people and his desire to meet their needs as far as possible. More than anything, it is with very great pleasure that we read His Highness's speeches especially those portions of them where his heart flows out in sympathy for the poor and the down trodden. In his reply to the address of the Shimoga Municipal Council, His Highness the Maharaja speaking of slum clearance and housing conditions says as follows "you also refer to the efforts you have been making in the direction of slum clearance, and to your desire to improve the housing conditions of the poorest classes. This is a matter in which I take the keenest interest, and an association will agree with me that it is especially desirable to set an example by providing good housing for the Municipal sweepers."

From our own connection with the condition of the people in the industrial centres, especially in Bangalore, His Highness and his address brings before me, vividly and concretely, the slum conditions of a city in which such took place only a few years ago in the House of Commons, where a member asked the attention of the Secretary of State to the prospect that existed of a large industrial development in India, owing to unimproved slum conditions in the large development of machine power and other facilities for industry. And he said, among other things, "the necessity

MYSORE NOTES

Message to Students' Conference

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, Feb 12

At the request of the Secretary of the first Kasaragod Taluk Students' Conference, Nileshtar, to send a message, it is informed that Mr. M. A. Khadir, the President of the Mysore State Student's Federation has sent the following message on behalf of the Federation

"Please convey to the Conference the Fraternal Greetings of the Mysore State Students Federation. The greatest need of the hour is a strong student organization, which can be built, in my opinion, on a non-communal, non-political basis and sustained by constructive work. We should study and discuss politics without identifying ourselves with any political group or party. I have every hope that your Conference will give the right lead to your members and student community of India in general. I wish your Conference success."

Death of Lt. Nanjaraje Urs

It is informed that Lt. B. Nanjaraje Urs, a retired officer of the Mysore army who had settled down at Mangala Village died recently and that the villagers held a meeting under the presidency of Mr. H. S. Jovinda Rao and expressed their condolence.

A SENSATIONAL BOMBAY CASE

Accused Acquitted

A. P. Bombay, Feb. 12. Second trial of Sir Richard Temple and Stanley N. Standage Directors of Temple, Thomas and Standage, Ltd., and J. D. Hudson, described as General Manager of the Firm, concluded today before the Criminal Sessions of Bombay High Court. Sir Richard and Hudson were acquitted and Standage was discharged. The charges were that Mr. Hudson cheated Mr. F. X. DeSouza an employee of the firm by inducing him to part with Rs. 4,000 as security deposit for employment and the other two abetted. It was further alleged that Standage committed criminal breach of trust by making use of the money and Sir Richard abetted it.

for India under these conditions to avoid a congestion of dull and gloomy streets in a few urban centres and to provide for the development, with the new industries, of pleasant dwelling places in suitable centres, where all the amenities of life would be secured for those employed upon them."

His Highness is deeply interested in the welfare of the working classes and is anxious that every thing should be done in our power to improve their lot.

We would earnestly commend His Highness the Maharaja's speeches delivered in his Shimoga tour to the attention of the newly elected Bangalore City Municipal Council. The problem of slum clearance and improving the housing conditions of the poorest classes is a crying problem of the City of Bangalore and for an early and speedy solution. We hope the Council members of the City Municipal Council will ponder over His Highness's speech and do something to justify the confidence that the Bangalore rate-payers have reposed in them.

LARGER SHIPMENTS OF RAW COTTON TO CHINA

Larger Exports Of Gunny Bags And Cloth

New Delhi, Feb. 14

Larger shipments of raw cotton were made from India to China in 1939-40. About 122,000 tons of raw cotton valued at Rs. 668 lakhs were shipped as compared with 34,000 tons valued Rs. 171 lakhs in the previous year. Shipments of both gunny bags (Rs. 18 lakhs) and cloth (Rs. five lakhs) also improved.

The value of imports from China advanced from Rs. 1,73 lakhs to Rs. 2,61 lakhs and the exports to China from Rs. 2,50 lakhs to Rs. 6,51 lakhs.

The improvement under imports was principally due to larger arrivals of cotton piecegoods and twist and yarn which amounted to 20 million yards and 10.8 million lbs respectively. Imports of raw silk rose by Rs. 10 lakhs and those of silk piecegoods by Rs. two lakhs. Imports of tea also showed an improvement.

RECORD STEEL PRODUCTION IN AMERICA

(By cable) London

The Economist writes under the heading "Record Steel Production in America":—

The 1940 output of steel ingots in the United States at 66,500,000 tons (of 2,000 lbs.) was higher than ever before. Production was 27 per cent higher than in 1939 and exceeded the previous record established in 1929 by about 8 per cent. Some 18 per cent of the semi-finished and finished steel made last year for sale was produced for export, one half of it for this country. Already at the end of 1939 America's crude steel producing capacity, then rated at 81 million tons of 2,000 lbs., was 38 per cent bigger at the end of 1938 and 15 per cent greater at the end of 1929. But while the rated capacity rose to 83 million tons by the end of 1940, Mr. W. S. Mower, President of the American Iron and Steel Institute, estimates that it has now been practicable for the industry to produce crude steel at the rate of 85 million tons per annum. The American Iron and Steel Industry has spent not less than 15 million dollars during the last ten years in modernisation and extension of its plant and further heavy expenditure is contemplated to increase its capacity still further.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Now that His Excellency the Viceroy is back in New Delhi political speculation is rife as to what he is going to do next. The fact that the Provincial Governors have also been visiting Delhi lends colour to the view that something is going to turn up. It is in the nature of men to guess things probable and possible.

It is in the above nature that a Calcutta paper styled 'Telegraph' publishes a rumour that a plan for the formation of a Central Cabinet to be composed of Non-party men has been placed before the Viceroy. The correspondent adds that if such a cabinet is formed after a viceregal declaration guaranteeing full Dominion constitution to India, within one year after the war, the Congress and the Muslim League may revise their attitude.

Not content with spreading this rumour the above correspondent mentions some names to the Cabinet. Those are honoured names and among them are those of Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan, (for Defence); Sir S. Radhakrishnan (for Education); Sir M. Visvesvaraya (for Industries); Sir Sultan Ahmed, Sir Purushottam Das Thakurdas, and Sir Mirza Ismail for other portfolios.

I am pleased to note that there are three names very dear to Mysoreans viz, those of Sirs Radhakrishnan, Visvesvaraya and Mirza Ismail. If this report comes true Mysore deserves indeed to be congratulated for having given at least two Cabinet Ministers to Central Government. And Mysore richly deserves this honour.

Sir Reginald Maxwell seems to have gone off his rails in his attack on detenus and security prisoners. He has used very foul language. He has lost his temper and mental equilibrium. I wonder if such speeches do any good at all.

This reminds me of the scene in the Mysore Assembly when some nincompoops indulged in a silly tirade against Mysore Congress and its leaders. Political prejudice knows no limits and people who are caught in its whirlpool behave worse than maniacs.

A correspondent who is also an ardent lover of Tennis informs me that the Tennis game is about to fall on evil days and the Tennis Courts are to lie waste. He seems to have got the information from a sports articles dealer who com-

Port Trust Boards

A. P. New Delhi, Feb. 12

Sir Abdul Halim Ghaznavi moved that the Chairman of Karachi, Bombay and Calcutta Port Haj Committees be appointed ex-officio member of Port Trust Boards of Karachi, Bombay and Calcutta respectively.

Sir Ghaznavi said this was necessary in order to remove the difficulties of nearly 20,000 pilgrims who embarked and disembarked these ports.

Sir Andrew Clow opposing the resolution said that on enquires made in all the three

On enquiry that quite a number of Courts in the City of Calcutta are humming with the game. Tennis players have to other avenues of recreation. The sports prophets are to prophesy when the weather would return to normal.

A contradiction is regarding the Cobra Trichy Jail. The student of the jail says the whole story is incorrect. It appears that a snake was near a latrine in the of the Trichinopoly was forthwith killed. The incorrect news had a day's sensation.

In the Election announced so far, there have been some notable Congress successes and failures. Messrs B. S. Puttaswamy C. Narasimhaiah are seen to Legislative Council. Mysore District constituency Mr. H. B. Gundappa G. President, Rastriya Mahasabha gets a defeat in the Assembly election from Hassan constituency. He suffers a defeat in the L. C. Election also. Y. V. Muniswamy, who defeat in election to Assembly from Channarayana Urban constituency. It is to be seen whether Mr. B. S. Puttaswamy retain his Assembly seat and Council seat, as he has elected to both.

The coming Assembly very prominent members. There is Rao Bahadur Nanjundaiah in it, there is Changalaya Reddy, Congress Leader. There are Messrs Chandrasekhar, Navaraj, Rama Rao, B. S. Puttaswamy and several others. As mentioned once before there is speculation as to whom His Highness the Maharaja choose as his Ministers. The name is certain. It is on a body's lips and it is not worth to mention it here.

There is already speculation as to who would be appointed the President of the Legislative Council. The name of Executive Councilor is not mentioned in that connection. The name of a Court Judge is also mentioned. Anyhow it is too early to mention names here. The month is full of great promises to a number of our public. I stop at this today.

port trusts he moved relating to Haj pilgrims come up before any port board and there was no concern pilgrims which refused to consider sympathetically. Moreover, the pilgrimage of pilgrims ships to be handled by the port was infinitesimal. As regards complaint that the collection of trusts had not been improved, he said that the Government of India at present were investigating the case of one Port Trust. The debate had not concluded when the house adjourned till tomorrow. The debate will be resumed on the next day. Non official resolutions.

ALONG THE AGUMBE ROAD

His Highness's Journey to Thirthahalli

FAMOUS BRIDGE OVER TUNGA

MALNAD SCENERY

(From Daily News Special Correspondent)

Shimoga, Feb. 13
His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore accompanied by his personal staff and high State officials left Shimoga this morning for Thirthahalli a town situated on the left bank of the Tunga river 35 miles south-west of Shimoga District Head-quarters. The Shimoga Agumbe road through which the high powered Cadillac conveying His Highness speeded through, was tastefully decorated for the occasion. The whole length of this beautiful Malnad road presented an animated appearance with thousands of local subjects eager to have a glimpse of their Monarch.

The Holy Spot

Thirthahalli derives its name from the number of thirthas or sacred bathing-places in the Tunga at or near this spot. At one of the cylindrical pillars scooped out by the river in the rocky bed is a granite spot for cleansing away by ablution. The formation of the hole is ascribed to Parasurama, who made it with his bow. At the Rameswara festival, held for three days in Margasira, thousands of people pass through the hole. At that season the river can be crossed by stepping over the great boulders in the bed, the difficult places where there is a rush of water being temporarily bridged over.

It is the principal centre of trade for the Nagar and Koppa ghats, valued at five to six lakhs a year, one-half of which results from transactions at the Rameswara festival. Coconut and coconut oil are imported from Kanara by the Agumbe and Huliker ghats, and various kinds of pulse, piece-goods, hides, etc., from the maidan areas.

Centre Of Learning

There are two mathas, the Ramka math on the town side, and the Putiki (or Puttige) math on the opposite side. To this place all the people of the Malava caste resort from Kanara and Nagar to be branded with a religious stamp, mudrakshana, by their priest the Kuvada Dasaiya, who comes from Koppa. Three miles up the river is the Mulbagal matha and a mile higher, the Shimankatte matha, which claims a fabulous antiquity.

The Famous Tunga

The construction of the bridge which is to cross the famous Tunga opens up vast communication in the south and takes a short-cut to a point west of Thirthahalli, where it is joined to the Beggarhalli from Sringeri and then runs east, forming for some distance the boundary between the Shimoga and Kalluru districts. All the minor streams, to the number seventy-five, empty into the Tunga, except a few into the north-west which empty into the Sharavathi. The Tunga is essentially malnad in its nature, hills, forests, areca-nut gardens and running streams being the prevailing characteristics. The whole taluk is hilly, especially the west, which touches the Ghats and is covered with splendid forest. The chief heights are Kavaledurga, Kabbinaadagudda and Kundada-gudda, the latter which is near Agumbe being a very conspicuous point. Iron stone of a superior quality is obtained at Kabbinaadagudda (iron hill), the iron made from which the Indians hold to be as good as steel.

His Highness was lustily cheered when he passed through the streets of this sacred town to lay the corner stone of the bridge across Tunga. People of Malnad can never forget this historic occasion. People from far and near gathered to welcome the Ruler.

Tunga River Bridge LAYING OF CORNER STONE

His Highness's Reply To District Board's Address

The following is the full text of the speech delivered by His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, in reply to an address presented by the District Board of Shimoga, on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of the bridge across the Tunga River near Thirthahalli:-

Mr. Sarabhoja, Mr. President and Members of the Shimoga District Board,
I am very glad to be able to come here today and to take my part in the inauguration of the bridge which is to cross the famous Tunga at this sacred spot, thus helping to open up communications, both for pilgrims and for the increasing trade of the district. As the Chief Engineer has explained, the question of the building of this bridge has been under consideration for over forty years, and several different designs have been examined. I have no doubt that the final design, of which he has just given us full details, will be found to be one worthy of the river and the site.

Three More Bridges

You mention your ambition to see three more bridges constructed in the district. The first is that over the Bhadravathi near Hole-honnur village, in regard to which action is already being taken to collect statistics as to the income which may be expected if the bridge is constructed and a toll-gate installed with a view to recovering interest and sinking fund charges on the capital cost. The second bridge you have in contemplation is one across the Kumudavathi river near Salur village on the Anantapur Shikarpur road. The construction of this bridge will be kept in view for consideration when funds permit. The third bridge you ask for is across the Gondi Hole near Anavathi. This scheme has not been included in the list of bridge works to be taken up in the Malnad in the near future, but it will be investigated in due course.

Progress In Railway

In the matter of the railway, your District Board has been very fortunate in the return that you have secured from the levy of the railway cess which you undertook fourteen years ago, and you have been in the position of watching the line continually penetrating further and further into your district from year to year. I sincerely hope that it has brought much prosperity and employment with it.

Spread of Education

As regards the spread of education among the masses I am as glad as you are to see a great advance made, and that at an early date, and I am very glad therefore to tell you that the scheme for the resumption of the control of Primary Education by the Government, which has recently been approved by the Legislative Council, includes provision for the opening of 1,000 new schools in the next four years. And it is hoped that, as this provision is carried into effect, there will arise a school in every village with a population of 300 and upwards in the Malnad. Meanwhile, as regards medical institutions, you already have 39 in the district which gives an average of one for every 106 square miles, or 13,420 people. Of these, seven, which include an itinerant dispensary, have been opened in the last three years. Any new scheme that you may put forward in this respect will receive the sympathetic consideration of my Government.

I have much pleasure in proceeding now to lay the corner stone of the bridge across the Tunga river.

His Highness returned to Shimoga from Thirthahalli at noon. Spending the afternoon there, he proceeded to Bhadravathi in the evening.

HIS HIGHNESS'S SPEECH AT BHADRAVATHI

The following is the full text of the speech delivered by His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, in reply to an address presented by the Town Municipal Council of Bhadravathi.

Mr. President and Members of the Municipal Council of Bhadravathi:-

It is a great pleasure to me to visit this thriving industrial centre and to hear such a favourable account of the growth of your town, which, as you say, has doubled its population in the short span of ten years. Your address brings before me vividly recollections of a discussion which took place only a short while ago in the House of Commons, where a member invited the attention of the Secretary of State to the prospect that existed of a large industrial development in India, owing to the outbreak of the War coinciding with the large development of electric power and other facilities for industry. And he laid stress on the necessity for India under these conditions to avoid a congestion of dull and gloomy streets in a few urban centres and to provide for the development, with the new industries, of pleasant dwelling places in suitable centres where all the amenities of life would be secured for those employed upon them. This is a policy which has been followed of late years in sundry areas in England and America, of which Port Sunlight is one of numerous examples, where the workers in factories are provided for their leisure hours with all the amenities and conveniences that make for a full and happy existence. It falls to you in Bhadravathi, which we hope to see developed into the Birmingham of Mysore, to take a long view of the future developments and to make provision well in advance for spaces for agreeable dwelling places, for institutions, for parks and playgrounds, for shopping centres, streets and thoroughfares.

I hope that this visit to your town will be the first of many and that I shall have the pleasure as the years go on of seeing it develop from stage to stage upon a well-balanced and concerted plan.

CENTRAL ASSEMBLY INDO-CEYLON RELATIONS

Attitude of Ceylon Ministry Criticised

DISABILITIES ON INDIANS IN CEYLON

New Delhi, Feb. 14.—The Assembly passed without dissent Sir Raza Ali's amendment supporting Government's attitude on Ceylon relations and appreciating the Governor's message to State Council.

In support to the attitude of the Government of India represented at the recent Indo-Ceylon negotiations and appreciation of Governor of Ceylon's message to the State Council were moved in an amendment moved in the Central Assembly by Sir Raza Ali, former General to the Government of India in South Africa, the Government motion that contents relating to the Indo-Ceylon conversations be taken into consideration.

Sir Raza Ali's amendment "This Assembly regrets the attitude of Indo-Ceylon conversations as revealed in the verbatim report and supports the attitude adopted by the representatives of the Government of India which faithfully represents the point of view of Indian public opinion; and while regarding the desire of the State Council to maintain independence of action appreciates the message sent by Governor of Ceylon to that effect in respect of undertakings by His Majesty's Government and by the Government of Ceylon to the Government of India and expresses a hope that will serve to emphasise the importance particularly under present circumstances of things being done by the Government and people of Ceylon which will endanger Indo-Ceylon relations which should be between the two countries and interests are so intimately connected together."

Mr. D. Tyson, Education Secretary, moving consideration of the motion, briefly referred to the papers laid on the 11th January before the Assembly by the Ceylon Council and subsequent to that the Governor of Ceylon had sent a message to the Ceylon State Council reminding the House of assistance of certain undertakings given by Ceylon to India.

Mr. Tyson regretted that the Government had not yet received from Ceylon the exact text of the Governor of Ceylon's message, but it appeared that the Ceylon Government considered that the Government of Ceylon were bound by their undertakings.

Sir Raza Ali

Sir Raza Ali moving his amendment regretted that there had been consistent attempts on the part of the Government of Ceylon to impose disabilities on the Indians resident there. The Village Communities Ordinance, and the Fisheries Ordinance were designed to achieve their political and economic strangulation. There was now a proposal to deprive the Indians of the monopoly of rice trade on the pretext of controlling food in war time. Various other attempts were also being made, he said, and while he appreciated the attitude of the Government of India and the manner in which they stood up for the rights of the people, he hoped they realised that they should not relax efforts to keep careful watch over all that was happening in Ceylon.

Dr. P. N. Bannerjee supported the amendment and said he hoped the Government of India in future would be as strong and as firm as they were with regard to Ceylon negotiations. As regards the suggestion for the association of nonofficial Indians with the negotiations of this kind Dr. Bannerjee said negotiations had not yet finished and when these negotiations took place again he hoped Sir Girja Shanker Bajpai would think it fit that some representatives of the Assembly be associated with the negotiations.

Sir F. E. James supporting the motion said conversations were held for the purpose of exploring the ground and try to find some common measure of agreement. It was most surprising even at this stage that no common basis was found. It was most regrettable that Ceylon Ministers should have come to this country with no better frame of mind. It was quite clear unless there was radical alteration in the attitude of the ministry of Ceylon on the question of the important minority in that Island there was no chance of any agreement being reached.

Mr. Govind Deshmukh congratulated the Ceylon Governor on his bold stand regarding Indian interests. He wished other colonies and Governors did likewise. Mr. Deshmukh warned

No Settlement Except On Basis Of Justice And Fairplay

SIR BAJPAI'S DECLARATION
Debate On Indo-Ceylon Relations
(By Wire.) New Delhi, Feb. 14

A somewhat optimistic note was struck in the course of the debate today in the Assembly on Ceylon. Unfortunately the Government were not in possession of full text of Ceylon Governor's message and could not therefore specify undertakings referred to by His Excellency. The debate however served to bring out complete identity of purpose and resolve between the Government and the legislature on this subject. The declaration made by Sir Bajpai that there can be no settlement except on the basis of justice and fairplay to Indians in Ceylon was loudly cheered. Ceylon Governor's prompt action in issuing the message to Assembly was welcomed by all sections. Mr. Aney on behalf of the Nationalists described it as courageous and statesmanlike.

Lobby anticipations are that as a result of firm resolve displayed by Government and the Legislature in India and also the bold intervention by Ceylon Governor, better counsels will soon prevail in Ceylon and Ceylon Ministers will reopen negotiations at no distant date. Threat of resignation by Ministers and constitutional crisis hinted in Colombo messages is discounted in informed circles. Need for vigilance on Government of India's part is however emphasised.

The Ceylon Ministers that if they created and threatened a crisis by resignation the Governor of Ceylon would have the support not only of the Government of India but the whole of India.

Mr. Azhar Ali advised the Government to take strong retaliatory measures if the Ceylon Government refused to deal with the Indian question in a spirit of friendship.

Mr. M. S. Aney was glad that the Governor of Ceylon was fully conscious of the fact that justice should be done to Indians. His message to the State Council betokened great degree of friendship and deserved India's congratulations on his courageous stand. He hoped that nothing would happen to impair the good relations between India and Ceylon.

Sir Bajpai

Sir Girja Shankar Bajpai was gratified that this debate had taken place as it provided an opportunity for the elected members to give their verdict on the stand taken by the Government of India representatives in their talks with the Ceylon delegates as also it had demonstrated complete unity of the House on the question of Indians overseas. Sir Bajpai added so far as the Government were concerned if there were to be a settlement it must be on the basis of justice and fairplay to Ceylonese, but also justice and fairplay to Indians in Ceylon. Sir Bajpai assured the House that Government would continue its vigilance and as in the past so in the future, Government would see to it that legitimate Indian interests in this as in other countries were safeguarded.

Sir Girja Shankar Bajpai continuing said if the Governor of Ceylon was zealous of the rights of Ceylonese he was equally conscious of his responsibilities to the important Indian minority and in framing his message to the State Council he had fully in mind this responsibility and the undertaking of His Majesty's Government that the legitimate rights and aspirations of Indians in Ceylon would be safeguarded.

He added that their fight in Ceylon was both political and economic equality.

Maulana Zafer Ali suggested the organising of a Goodwill Mission of leading men of India to Ceylon with a view to discovering ways of bringing about better relations.

Sir Zaidin hoped that in the face of threats from the Ceylonese Ministry to impose restrictions on emigration and control of non-Ceylonese traders the Government of India should continue vigilance.

The House then adopted the amendment without division and then adjourned till 17th Feb.

TRAINING CAMPS FOR SATYAGRAH

GANDHIJI'S DISAPPROVAL
(A. P.) NAGPUR, Feb. 14

It is understood Gandhi has disapproved the proposal of the Berar Provincial Congress Committee to start training camps for satyagrahis. Gandhi is reported to have told Mr. Wamanrao Joshi when he interviewed him (Gandhiji) recently that such training camps as it might be banned by the Government and that he did not want to embarrass the Government. Gandhiji had no objection for starting camps for purely training conscientious workers. According to facts in Government papers Gandhi is reported to have told Mr. Wamanrao Joshi that he disapproved the competition between Provincial and Provincial in the number of satyagrahis adding he would prefer quality to quantity.

Asked whether Congressmen owning motor cars should own the vehicles when these were demanded under a revenue notification. Gandhiji is reported to have said 'yes'.

Daily News

Bangalore City—February 15, 1941

Mr. Amery's Latest

Mr. Amery, Secretary of State for India, is useless in saying the same thing over and over again, with regard to India. His song has become stale. And Indians feel that he refuses to face the facts. In his recent speech referring to war aims, he said "I am content at this state to submit the following:—Preservation of the wonderful fabric which the free co-operation of our predecessors have built up and the further development of the path of political and social progress." He applies this statement to India and says—

"Think of India alone, a continent comparable to Europe not only in its extent and population but the diversity of its elements. We are pledged to help the peoples of India to build upon the foundations of internal peace and political and economic unity which we have laid, the super structure of a system of free Government which will enable the various elements in India to co-operate harmoniously for their own welfare and security in abiding India as a whole to fulfil her destiny as an equal partner in the brotherhood of free nations called the British Empire. No nobler mission has ever been set before itself by any nation."

Not a Light Task!

"It is not a light task. No ready to measure specious formula of Western solution will solve India's complex problems. They will call for all the statesmanship we and India can bring to bear upon them."

In plain language this means that the primary war aim—i.e. preservation of the Empire and that means preserving India within England's hold. Mr. Amery has not concealed the real desire of Britain. To that extent he deserves to be thanked. He calls that "a noble mission." He says "no nobler mission has ever been set before itself by any nation."

We know what the effect of this speech on India would be. In India all the parties are united together on the demand of freedom for India, call it by whatever name you like. You may call it Dominion Status or Independence. What is wanted is the substance. If Britain ignores the growing public opinion in India, we need not say what the result would be. Whatever may be the outcome of this war, one thing is certain. India is bound to emerge a free and independent nation at the end of the war. Let not Mr. Amery ignore the writing on the wall.

CENTRAL RECRUITMENT BOARD IN MYSORE

Mr. A. C. Gupta Appointed Chairman

Bangalore, Feb. 12.

Mr. A. C. Gupta, Public Service Commissioner in Mysore has been appointed Chairman of the Central Recruitment Board with effect from 1st Feb. 1941.

The Central Recruitment Board was first constituted in 1921 with a view to collecting information regarding the various vacancies occurring in the several Departments and to ensure that the rules of recruitment are strictly carried out. The Board consisted of a member of Council as Chairman with certain Heads of Departments and non-official gentlemen as members thereof. Although the system had worked satisfactorily during the last twenty years, there was a general desire for constitution of a Public Service Commission. The Reforms Committee also was of the same opinion, and Government accepted the principle underlying the recommendation but considered that for the present the functions of a commission could be performed by a Commissioner as this would be less expensive.

Mr. A. C. Gupta was accordingly appointed Public Service Commissioner for Mysore for a period of two years in the first instance, and he entered upon his duties on 5th February 1940. Mr. Gupta was requested to examine the existing rules in the matter of recruitment to the subordinate service and prepare a draft set of rules so as to enable Government to bring into force the new scheme from an early date. Mr. Gupta has now submitted his report and it is under the consideration of Government. Pending final orders in the matter, the Government have transferred the work relating to the Central Recruitment Board to the Public Service Commissioner.

THREE FRENCH OFFICIALS

Ordered To Go To France

A. P. Chandernagore, Feb. 13. By three orders of His Excellency Louis Bonvin, Governor-in-Council, all dated 29th Jan. 1941, three officials of Pondicherry have been relieved of their functions and ordered to proceed to France via Singapore and Indo-China by the next available passage. The reason for this measure as given in the orders-in-council is their refusal to ally themselves with the cause of Free France. Louis Bonvin has been nominated Governor of Free France in the French establishments in India.

RAIDERS FIRE UPON MILITARY PICKET

Women's Conference "Echo" Meeting

To narrate the proceedings of the recent Session of the All India Women's Conference, an "Echo" Meeting was held in the premises of the local Mahila Samaj under the Presidency of Dr. Miss K.S. Captain. After invocation by Srimiti Kaveramma, the President was welcomed by Mrs. V.D. Rajaram Mudaliar.

In the course of her remarks the President gave some valuable advice in the matter of Banduchand adult literacy classes in the poor, especially the working classes in the various parts of the City.

Lokasvaparyan K.D. Rukminiamma gave an interesting and varied account of her experiences of the Conference.

Mrs. Nanjamma Kalappa, Mrs. Tomlinson, Srimiti Thimmamma and Mrs. Rukmini Shama-nai also spoke.

Sevati K.D. Rukminiamma proposed a vote of thanks after which the meeting concluded.

SUPPORT TO WAR

Appeal of Bombay Liberals

A. P. Bombay Feb. 13. The View that all parties should co-operate wholeheartedly with the British Government in the prosecution of the war without prejudice to their various demands and schemes and that the British Government should unequivocally declare their intention to part with real power to Indian hands and give immediate proof to that effect, was expressed by Sir Chimanlal Satvalad presiding over a public gathering this evening. Sir Cowaji Jehangir and Dr. K.P. Paranjpye also addressed the gathering on the "political situation."

Advocating support to war Dr. Paranjpye said that the Government had not been able to allay the suspicion of the people in this country. Criticising the Congress policy he said it was not going to take India any further. The policy of the Muslim League likewise was deplorable. Pakistan, he said, would end in destruction of both Hindus and Muslims piecemeal.

Sir Cowaji Jehangir said the deadlock would continue as long as the Congress clung to the policy of non-violence.

SATYAGRAHA IN U. P.

1200 already Sentenced

A. P. Lucknow, Feb. 12. A third list of Satyagrahis in the United Provinces consisting of about 4000 is being compiled now for submission to Gandhiji. The present phase of Satyagraha will come to an end in April and by then the members of District Congress Committees and Town Committees would have offered Satyagraha. According to information at the Provincial Congress office about 1,200 Congressmen so far have been arrested in connection with Satyagraha.

MYSORE'S WAR EFFORT

Lord Mayor of London's Tribute

Bangalore, Feb. 13

Acknowledging the further gift of £ 2,000 sent to him by the Executive Committee of the Mysore War Fund for the relief of air raid victims the Lord Mayor of London has cabled the Chairman of the Mysore War Fund that he is greatly stirred by the continued support of Mysore to his Air Raid Fund and that he conveys to all concerned his heartfelt thanks for this splendid new gift.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

The news paper correspondents have been busy speculating about every visit to Delhi. Sir C.P. Ramaswamy Iyer left for Delhi. An enterprising correspondent speculating on this says that Sir C.P. will interview the Viceroy in connection with the new cabinet that he may constitute in the near future.

Another rumour set afloat in connection with the visit of Governors to New Delhi is that the Viceroy is consulting the Governors as to the advisability or other wise of arresting Mahatma Gandhi. The Viceroy would like to have the benefit of the views of Governors as to its probable effect on the country. It is difficult to find out what information is correct and what not in these days of busy speculation.

Madura the venue of the All-India Hindu Maha Sabha Session has now fallen on evil days. Even in the town of Goddess Meenakshi communal peace has been disturbed. Muslims seem to have indulged in rioting. I do not know what the provocation is. For one thing I am glad the Congress people have done well in suspending Satyagraha.

The talk of the day in Bangalore is the termination of the Binny mills strike. Thanks are due to many in this connection. Mr. K. T. Bhashyam, President of the Labour Union and also Mysore Congress, deserves to be warmly congratulated on his able and wise guidance. He had a very trying time of it, but thank God, he passed the crisis.

ANOTHER BATCH OF ITALIAN PRISONERS

800 In Number

A. P. Bombay, Feb. 13. "We were outclassed and outnumbered by the Imperial troops." This is the statement made by Italian prisoners of war yet another batch of whom arrived in this country. They were captured at Bardia after they had been engaged in a terrific battle with the British, Australian and Indian troops. The latest batch of prisoners, the fifth to arrive in this country, numbered 800 and includes three officers. The total number of prisoners brought to India from the Western Desert so far is about 12,000.

DISTRICT BOARD CHAIRMAN

Arrested And Sentenced

A. P. Delhi, Feb. 12. Mr. Shekh Khudabux, Acting Chairman of the District Board, who was arrested on 28th Jan. last, has been sentenced to nine months rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 50 in default to undergo further imprisonment for six weeks under the Defence of India Rules.

A. P. Calcutta, Feb. 13. A request to Industrial firms in the Province not to dispose of certain specified machines, tools without reference to the Government department concerned is made by the Government of India. Firms have been informed that specified machine tools are required for essential war purposes and they have been required to communicate the terms under which such tools may be released to Government.

very creditably. The Government also deserve to be thanked for the course of the strike. The days they showed restraint and discipline. The Police and the Labour Commissioner, are also deserving thanks. As Mr. K. T. Bhashyam puts it this is neither a victory nor a defeat. It is a management now to lead a cordial to the workers as a whole. No stinging or bitterness are allowed to influence future relations.

More election... been pouring in. I hope the Mysore Congress will have secured a fairly large number of seats in the Assembly. It could have secured more if the elections had been held in an atmosphere of freedom and non-interference. As it is, people have shown their loyalty for Congress even against my hope. Government must appreciate the situation from a proper perspective. By now it must have realised that since the Kastyri (Kashmir) in the country. Its President suffered a defeat in the past fourteen years. It is also another curious fact that the members of the Raj Paksha stood as independent candidates and not as party candidates. Their party might have collapsed like a house of cards in the face of the state Elections. I hope those members would make no attempt to resuscitate that party which buried six fathoms deep in the dust raised by the election storm.

ELECTION RESULTS

Bangalore, Feb. 13. The following further results of the elections are received.

Bhadravati Town

Mr. B. Pandurangappa (C) is elected to the Representative Assembly from the Bhadravati Town. Mr. B. Pandurangappa secured 245 votes as against B. P. Halappa 186 and Mr. Iyer 103.

Muslim Constituency

Khajai Abdul Sattarabek is elected to the Muslim seat from the Cum - Kumsi - Cum - Tani halli constituency to the representative Assembly. Mr. H. M. Hayath Mohiyuddin, Mr. Abdul Khadar, elected to the R. A. from Sagar - Cum - Sorab - Hosanagar Muslim constituency, defeating Mr. Md Hayath and Mr. Abdul Kareem.

Legislative Council

Mr. Ameer Ahmad is elected to the Legislative Council from the Shimoga - Kolar constituency. He is elected as against Mr. A. J. K. and Mr. M. A. Khajai.

LOKASABHA BANNED

Rajapilla State's Affairs... The "Loka Sabha" of the State has been banned by the Government. The Government says no less than five orders have been issued by the Maharaja of Rajapilla. Loka Sabha and its activities are illegal, cancelling the validity for principal activities of Loka Sabha. Some leaders of Loka Sabha have been arrested.

CHEMICAL INDUSTRIES IN MYSORE

A Peep into the Future Mr. E. V. GANAPATHY IYER'S ADDRESS

Bangalore, Feb 14.

As you are aware the grand Hydro-Electric scheme is on its way forward, and it will be in a year or two we will have vast resources of power at our disposal. Some of the great industries are all round the Niagara Falls in America, undoubtedly due to the water supply and this must be the case round the Jog area" said Mr. E. V. Ganapathy Iyer, Government Director of Industries, delivering the address of the Mysore Chemical Society, of the Mysore University, last evening. Dr. B. S. Rao presided.

The development of Chemical Industry in Mysore State is the subject of the address the course the address Mr. Iyer said "While Chemical Industry has already become a highly developed field in many of the advanced countries, particularly in America, England, United States of America, Japan, France, Russia, in India it is still comparatively elementary, even including the recent progress made under the stress of war necessities. Only in 23 Provinces like Bombay, Madras and the Central Provinces these Chemical Industries exist in some scale, while development in other provinces is practically very small. It is a matter of pride and satisfaction that the Mysore State should be following its development in Hydro-Electric Engineering and Mining and given special attention to the promotion of Chemical Industry in recent years. We now well set on the path of active extension of this industry."

Although I presume you are generally aware of the importance of Chemical Industry in modern life, I shall give an indicative list.

- (1) Coal Tar Derivatives,
- (2) Wood Distillation Products,
- (3) Ethyl Alcohol and its derivatives.
- (4) Electro-chemical industries.
- (5) Sulphuric acid and its associated industries.
- (6) Nitric acid and its associated industries.
- (7) Chlorine and its associated industries.
- (8) Ammonia and its connected industries.
- (9) The chemistry of Pharmaceutical and Medicinal Products.
- (10) Acetates and other connected industrial products.
- (11) Soap industry.
- (12) Oils, varnishes and synthetic resins.

The war has made us realise our backwardness in these lines with the result that we are now turning to help England in her hour of need. The one hand limited production of our country is affected. I shall plead for a special intensification of work to increase chemical manufacturing industries in the country.

Immediate Future

The illustrative list of chemical industries mentioned above may, if we omit the coal tar and chlorine industries, indeed be said to be a fair indication of the present position and immediate future of chemical industry in the Mysore State. There has been considerable development during the last about 5 years. The establishment of a great sugar factory at Mandya, the Paper Mills and Match Factory at Bhadravati, The Sulphuric Acid, Ammonia and Phosphate and Bichromate plants at Belagavi and the industrial and pharmaceutical manufactures in Bangalore have formed a great nucleus round which chemical industry can now grow to huge proportions. To the people of the State these industries afford wealth and economic benefit, while to you chemists, they afford scientific employment and prosperity. We feel grateful in a special measure to the Government of Mysore and to Sir Mirza M. Ismail to whose love of industrial development and promotion of prosperity in the State we largely owe our present position—one which is the envy of our neighbours. You have a great frame-work upon which as the future chemists of the State it should be your ambition and duty to develop.

Electro-Chemical Industry

I shall now take up a peep into the future of the Industry in the State. It is only the manufacture of Coal Tar derivatives on a large scale that cannot perhaps be envisaged; but the availability of a plentiful supply of electrical power, water, raw materials and other resources affords ideal scope for numerous chemical Industries. Electro-chemical industry has I may say made only a small beginning in the paper and ammonia industries and this is a field which we can develop in a unique manner. In this view research work on the making of electrolytic cells for manufacture on a commercial scale is urgent. The development of the Soap and Textile industries requires large supplies of caustic soda and Chlorine. I consider the manufacture of Caustic Soda, bleaching powder and liquid chlorine to be a basic industry to be built up in the State. In its turn the production of Chlorine will lead to the manufacture of other important Chlorine products. Potassium Chlorate is a very important material for the Match industry for which we cannot afford to depend upon outside sources. In a recent technical journal I read that the production of the liquid Chlorine in United States in the last 20 years has increased more than 10 times and this is an indication of the basic importance of the industry.

Fixation Of Nitrogen

The existence of valuable chrome ores along with plentiful supplies of power and oxygen and the existence of an acid industry points clearly to a successful chromates and bichromates industry, so necessary for the textile and tanning industries and the Government Bichromate Factory which has just gone into production is but the beginning of such a development. The fixation of nitrogen from the atmosphere an industry vital for food production ordinarily and war production when necessary has already been taken up by us. The oxidation of the ammonia is the natural outcome of the first step has shortly to be taken up and will in its turn lead to a successful and prosperous nitrate industry.

Plastics Industry

Synthetic resins and plastics play a large part in numerous applications in common use and I strongly feel that a plastics industry should be developed in the State as quickly as possible. This involves the manufacture of urea, formaldehyde and phenols and of these the manufacture of formaldehyde has already been taken up on a small scale. With the plentiful production of ammonia at Belagavi and Carbondioxide in Mandya here is an ideal scope for urea manufacture which will be both successful and remunerative.

The manufacture of rayons and wool fibre from casen are again industries which have been already successfully developed even in countries like Japan and Italy and there is no reason why with our facilities we cannot organise them as successfully. The artificial wool or Lanital, as it is called, has been found to be in some respects even better than the natural wool and I foresee immense possibilities for this industry which had been developed in Germany successfully just before the war. I feel that if this pioneer industry is built up it will indeed be a great step forward.

Motor Fuels

With the wood distillation plant in Bhadravati and ethyl alcohol production on a large scale in Mandya, there is good scope for development of motor fuels and other useful products. From these hydro carbons, it requires only your intelligence and research for successfully developing a synthetic rubber industry in the state along with a cyanamide industry. This industry is again one for which I foresee immense possibilities in the near future. It may be interesting to mention in this connection that it has been found that synthetic rubber made from acrylonitrile and Vuhadiene has greater wearing and resistance qualities which are undoubtedly in favour of the industry. Successful work on polymerisation on an industrial scale is one upon which great emphasis should be laid by chemists in Mysore. As you are aware the grand jog hydro electric scheme is well on its way forward and it may be in a year or two we will have vast resources of power from the scheme. Some of the world's great industries viz., the manufacture of electrodes, acetylene, carborundum and abrasive industries are all centred round the Niagara falls in America, undoubtedly due to the power supply and this must be an example to us for development round the Jog area.

The lecturer also referred to the necessity of industrial research in Chemical Engineering. He pleaded for holding of regular exhibitions annually in the University College Laboratory. He paid a handsome tribute to

POTENTIALITIES OF INDUSTRIAL BHADRAVATHI

His Highness the Maharaja's Visit to Factories

TRULY THE BIRMINGHAM OF MYSORE

LOYAL WELCOME TO THE YOUNG MONARCH

(Daily News Special Correspondent)

Bhadravati, Feb. 13

After a strenuous tour in Tirthahalli and Shimoga, His Highness the Maharaja accompanied by high State Officers drove to Bhadravati which is styled as "Birmingham of Mysore" where the Chairman of the Iron Works, the General Manager and others welcomed him.

This beautiful industrial colony which is the pride of Mysore's progress presented an animated appearance with flags and festoons.

His Highness went in procession through the decorated streets when thousands of his loyal subjects cheered him lustily.

Bhadravati Iron Works

The origin and development of the Mysore Iron Works located here can only be briefly touched. The investigation of the Mysore Geological Department had revealed the existence of important deposits of high grade iron ore in the Baba Budan mountains in the State. Early in the year 1915, Mr. C. P. Perin, the expert adviser of the Tata Iron and Steel Company, was in India in connection with the extensions contemplated during the early stages of the War to the plant belonging to that Company. The Government took advantage of his presence in the country and invited him to report on the Iron and Manganese resources of the State and advise them as to the commercial feasibility of starting any metallurgical industry in Mysore. After an inspection of the iron ore deposits and the Malnad forests in the vicinity of the ore-field, Mr. Perin submitted a report in May 1916 recommending the installation of a plant for the manufacture of charcoal pig iron providing also for the recovery of by-products in the conversion of wood into charcoal.

After a thorough investigation by experts both in and outside the State, the scheme was sanctioned by the Government of His Highness the Maharaja in 1917-18. The Tata Iron and Steel Company, Ltd., were appointed as the Managing Agents of the concern under the control of a Board of Management and the construction was commenced in 1918 with Messrs. Perin and Marshall of New York as consulting engineers. The Tramways, Forest and Mining sections of the Works were under the direct supervision of the Mysore Government. The construction was completed at the end of the year 1922 and the Blast Furnace was blown in and the operation began in January 1923 for the first time.

The industrial research conducted in the Indian Institute of Science under the able guidance of Dr. Ghosh

In March 1923, the management of the Works was transferred to a new Board and at the request of His Highness the Government Sir M. Visvesvaraya joined the Board as Chairman and he was vested with special powers and responsibilities. In May 1924, the agreement between the Government, Mysore and the Tata Iron and Steel Company, Ltd., was cancelled and the Works were transferred to the Government. The lower terminal of which is connected with Bhadravati by a tramway 24 miles in length. The entire length of tramway (2 feet gauge) in the service of the Works is 35 miles. Certain subsidiary industries such as pipe foundry, an alcohol refining plant and a tar distillation plant started.

A New Era

The visit of our Ruler to this industrial centre at Mysore marks the beginning of a new era in Mysore State. The vast potentialities of Bhadravati and the money-flowing industrial establishments which it contains caught the young Ruler's keen attention and a thorough inspection of the various factories were gone through.

The rattling noise of the rolling mills the flood of the molten iron, the manufacture of steel rods to measured lengths and other modes of industrial work struck our Sovereign's imagination. "How wonderful Birmingham is seen in Mysore" was the one expression that was heard there.

Visit To The Paper Mills

His Highness after going through the Iron works visited the Paper Mills where the processes right from the pulp to the paper were shown. The crude bamboo after undergoing different chemical processes emerged out as spotless white sheet. This struck the imagination of those who were privileged to see it.

His Highness after touring round the industrial area camped for the night in the lovely Bungalow overlooking the works.

SATYAGRAHA IN BOMBAY

A.P. Bombay, Feb. 13

Mr. Joachim Alva, Advocate and leader of Nationalist Christian party was arrested today. He had intimated the Police Commissioner that he intended offering Satyagraha today. Two other Satyagrahis were also arrested this morning.

GOVERNMENT REPLY TO CONGRESS MEMORIAL

Mr. K. T. Bhashyam's Statement

Bangalore, Feb. 14

Mr. K. T. Bhashyam, President, Madras Congress, has issued the following statement to the press:—

The Government reply to the Congress Memorial offers a clear proof that Government are hostile to Congress.

The memorial does not contain a single mis-statement of fact nor a single allegation which is untrue.

The Special Committee to which the Government refer never commanded the confidence of the public. The report of Mr. Justice Nageswara Iyer was obviously one-sided.

Nor are the allegations irrelevant. The conduct of the returning officers in respect of the nominations is part of a deliberate drive against the Congress and not a bonafide mistake in the interpretation of the Rules as is proved by the continuous and varied activities of the part of Government Officers in dealing most unjustly with the Congress movement in the State.

Regarding the power of intervention, it is a matter of opinion. The Congress feels convinced that Government had the power. In any event His Highness the Maharaja could have interfered in the exercise of his undoubted authority and set right a grievous and manifest wrong to the people.

ALLEGED FORGERY CASE

Bangalore Dt. And Sessions Judge's Orders

Bangalore, Feb. 14

Mr. G. Paramasivaiah, District and Sessions Judge, Bangalore, passed orders this afternoon on the preliminary objections taken by Mr. V. V. Sreenivasengar Advocate, on behalf of the accused Mr. S. K. Venkatarangier who stands charged under offence of forgery of a Will for trial which is being proceeded with in the Sessions Court.

The Judge ordered that he would make a report to Mysore High Court under section 438 Cr. P. C. for quashing the commitment as this Court had no jurisdiction to take cognisance of the case.

The Judge held that the requisite condition precedent under Section 188 of Cr. P. C. had not been fulfilled and that in as much as the offence admitted is said to have been committed in Cantonment, the order of commitment by the Magistrate under Section 467 I. P. C., regarding which the accused is required to be tried was ultra vires and illegal.

The Judge also held that under section 195 cl (1) (e) of Cr. P. C. the will having been produced and given in evidence in previous proceedings to which the accused was a partner, this Court had no jurisdiction to take cognisance of the Case without a written complaint from the Courts concerned. However, the Judge observed, that he could not accept the contentions based under Section 195 (1) (b) of Cr. P. C. and 'the Principle of Autrefois Acquit' embodied in Section 403 Cr. P. C.

The Judge ordered that pending orders of the High Court the accused would be on the same bail.

The assessors and witnesses were discharged.

AN ARREST AND ITS SEQUEL

Mob Pelted Stones-Police Lathi Charged

A. P. Rawalpindi, Feb. 14
One head constable and six constables of Pindi police were reported injured following pelted stones on the police by a mob after the arrest of Mr. Jogendralal Jain, General Secretary, Congress Socialist party, Pindi, who offered satyagraha. A large crowd had collected at the place where satyagraha was to be offered. According to previous arrangement the police force was stationed at a considerable distance from the place. After he raised antiwar slogans he was arrested by the Sub-Inspector who was present on the spot with a handful of policemen. After sometime the City Magistrate left in his car and the police force marched away when some stones were thrown at the car. When the Magistrate came out to enquire, more stones were hurled from several directions and from some houses resulting in injuries to policemen. The mob rushed towards the police station and were ordered by the City Magistrate to disperse. On failing to do so they were pushed back by the police who cleared the road. According to Socialist leaders, the police, it is alleged, made a lathi charge as the result of which about a dozen persons are injured. The police pickets had been posted and the situation is under control.

The Far East

The morning papers show great anxiety with regard to the situation in the Far East. The war clouds seem to be moving and hanging. Hitler in his madness is egging on Japan to raise her arms against Britain and the U. S. A. in the Far East. It is recommended that the Pacific should be made the Pacific but the cannon would boom and the ships would sink Japan thought of as a disaster. She has not calculated well. It is a pity that Japan, in her desire to oblige Germany with a view to embarrassing the U. S. A., is doing something calculated. The Japanese Foreign office refuse to be drawn into any discussion with regard to her movements. All the same the Far Eastern situation has become a good deal of mental unrest and alarm. The future developments are keenly watched.

The latest information on hand is that there is no cause for alarm.

CONGRESS MEMORIAL AND AFTER

The Government's reply to the Mysore Congress Memorial, which we have published in our yesterday's issue contains some legal aspects which deserve close examination. Under section 203 of the Mysore Representative Assembly Rules and the Legislative Council rules the Government has power to interpret rules otherwise than in connection with an election enquiry held under the provisions of those rules and questions which have to be interpreted so shall be referred to the Government. But the Government's interpretation of the Mysore Representative Assembly Rules is not in connection with an election enquiry held under the provisions of those rules and questions which have to be interpreted so shall be referred to the Government. But the Government's interpretation of the Mysore Representative Assembly Rules is not in connection with an election enquiry held under the provisions of those rules and questions which have to be interpreted so shall be referred to the Government.

As the Government's interpretation of the Mysore Representative Assembly Rules is not in connection with an election enquiry held under the provisions of those rules and questions which have to be interpreted so shall be referred to the Government. But the Government's interpretation of the Mysore Representative Assembly Rules is not in connection with an election enquiry held under the provisions of those rules and questions which have to be interpreted so shall be referred to the Government.

The Government have certainly powers to interpret the rules as they see fit. In that case Schwabe C. J. has something direct to say with regard to the case in question.

The Plaintiff in this case a candidate whose nomination paper was rejected is much troubled to refer the question of the rejection of his nomination which was a question of the interpretation of rules to the local government but the Government declined jurisdiction. The result is that there is no conclusive ruling. I venture to express a hope that it may be possible for the local Government acting under Section 36 of the Act to cancel the rejection of this nomination and direct the election to be held with the plaintiff as the candidate.

This case is on all fours with ours where nearly 90 candidates sought interpretation of the rules by the Government and whose cases were again rejected on the ground that the Government had no powers under the law to interfere. The above case quoted by us proves beyond doubt that the Government had the necessary legal powers to interfere and in this case they did not propose to do so which was all the more regrettable.

The post election remedy by way of election petitions to which the Government refer in their order is on the very face of it cumbersome and costly. Moreover the right of filing an election petition accrues only after the elections are held and in the case of the present rejections the elections had not been held, when the nomination papers were rejected. As Wallace J. rightly observes in 1923 Madras 475 "It is no consolation to tell him that he can stand for some other election. It is no remedy to tell him that he must let the election go on and then have it set aside by petition and have a fresh election ordered. The fresh election may be under altogether different conditions and may bring forward an array of fresh candidates" holds good also in the present case.

Having refused remedy by election petitions the Government now ask the aggrieved party to file an election petition which they say is the only way to seek redress. We fail to understand this argument. When the right to file petitions has not accrued how can there be any remedy by election petitions?

We are sorry that the Government took this attitude when by means of election petitions, which are a constitutional remedy, they could have done something to avoid the present situation.

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 15. Sir Claude Auchinleck, Commander in Chief and defence Member of Governor General's Executive Council, has been nominated a member of the Council of State.

Anonymous petitions which would need expenditure and hardship both to the petitioners and the Government.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I am glad that at long last, Government of Mysore, have condescended to send a communication to Mr. K. T. Bhasyam, President of Mysore Congress. This event is to be noted particularly, because, before this, ever so many letters were written by Congress President to the Chief Secretary to the Government complaining about this irregularity or that in elections. To none of them was any reply sent from that end. And naturally Congress people bitterly complained against this lack of courtesy. Not merely lack of courtesy was it but also a grave omission of duty.

Even in this reply the Government might shy of addressing Mr. Bhasyam as President of Congress. This sort of shyness is unnecessary. They cannot ignore the Mysore State Congress and its President. After all nothing would be lost if the Government send their communications promptly to Congress and its President. On the other hand the Government prestige would rise by observing all decorum in the matter of correspondence. I hope in future at least the Government would observe all these rules of courtesy in correspondence, even to their opponents. A Congress organisation or its President would not lose anything, if Government omit these formalities. But the man in the street would think that small minds sometimes influence Governmental actions. And no Government should give room for any such idea to spread.

I am not going to discuss in this column the merits of the memorial and the reply of Government thereto. It is justly the province of my Editor to deal with it exhaustively. But I cannot omit making one remark and that is this memorial and the reply should give a fresh start for a good standing between Government and Congress. The Government has fought well, but clearly, has met with circumstances. But for today it shines resplendent the glory of its serene time for Government to their mind and their should play the game and like sportsmen. How long this stalemate continues long should the Congress in the wilderness? The responsible Government should go on consistently and create an unbridgeable gap between Government and Congress. I play for a change of heart on the side of Government.

Sir C. P. Ramaswami speaking the other day the present day journalism as "Journalism of the present was very different from what was some years back. Now now had the patience to read a three column report a particular speech or any heavy Editorials. What was read at home was forgotten. In short the journalism of the present day could be called breathless journalism."

I congratulate Sir C. P. Ramaswami on his up-to-date knowledge of men and things. People in a days do not want long reports they want short spicy summaries. Even regarding Editorials, Sir C. P. says with truth, he has no patience with longwinded pompous leading articles. They want simple direct, homely articles which they can read with ease and with no exertion. More and more, modern day journalism is coming down to meet the man in the street. That is he that is its patron.

Management's Warning To The Workers

Enquiry-No Concern Of The Management

Bangalore, Feb. 18
Mr. J. Nuttall Director of the Binny Mills Co. Ltd., (Binny Mills) has given a direct answer to the Government's proposed enquiry and affirms that he for part does not know anything about the enquiry.

He reiterates that the workers are in the wrong. Mr. J. Nuttall says:—

The Management have called the (past and present members of the Welfare Committee and the Mill Employee's Union) together in order to explain the reasons of your employees on the recent strike. We would have referred to address all the workers but this is not convenient without a serious dislocation of the work of the Mill. What the Management have to say at this meeting will be translated into Tamil and Canarese and distributed to every employee, and I hoped that you also will pass on to your co-workers the views that are expressed at this Meeting.

The strike presumably occurred because of dissatisfaction about the terms of the Cash Bonus payment concerning those who had enquired that the bonus would be paid strictly in accordance with our Notice of last year. This, we might say, is still our attitude and will remain so.

No Intimidation

No intimidation was received by prior to the strike that the workers intended to stop work because of what we had said about the Bonus or anything else. When the workers would enter into no discussions about work was resumed. After the workers had been absent from work for 18 days we closed the Mill and warned the workers of the consequences of their behaviour. During the period of the strike we have refused to accept, either on the supply or demand of the workers issued by a "Strike Committee" which was formed some time after the strike commenced or concerning the penalties we should enforce because of the action of the workers.

Labour Commissioner

On Thursday 13th February the Labour Commissioner informed us to the effect that the workers would return to work unconditionally if we opened the Mills on Friday morning 14th February. We informed him that in these circumstances the Mill would be opened and so it was with the result that work was resumed. The Labour Commissioner also informed us that an Enquiry would be made by Government about the Strike and we said that such an Enquiry was solely the concern of Government and that we were not prepared to open the Mills more because an Enquiry would be instituted. We have no information about this Enquiry or what its terms of reference will be, but so far as we are concerned there can be only one issue and that is, are workers justified in suddenly stopping work and then advancing their demands and grievances? There can be only one answer to this and we have already given it. The workers were in the wrong and it is now left to us to take such action as we consider fitting.

Men on probation

So far we have put a certain number of men on probation and whether they are reinstated in their old service or summarily dismissed will depend on their future behaviour. The number already selected might have to be increased that will depend on circumstances.

We now announce a strict warning to all our workers. If they or any of them resort to activities which are likely to lead to a dislocation of work in the Mills or the enforced idleness of any or all of the rest of the workers, the men concerned will suffer the full brunt of the penalties we are permitted to enforce. Because of the recent behaviour of the workers some of the penalties we can inflict are the forfeiture of the following payments:—

Cash Bonus 2nd Half 1940 Rs. 72,000 (estimated) Cash Bonus 1st Half 1941 Rs. 72,000 Gratuity Fund allocations Rs. 2,09,000 Perfect Attendance Bonus 2nd Half 1940 Rs. 3,100 Perfect Attendance Bonus 1st Half 1941 Rs. 6,000 Fines from 20th to 31st January (for absence) Rs. 15,000 Wages earned up to 20th January Rs. 82,000, 15 days Privilege Leave for next 5 years Rs. 27,000 Bread and Tea Rs. 1,80 (Monthly) Dear Living Allowance Rs. 9,000 (Approximate) Total Rs. 4,97,200.

And we reserve to ourselves the right to bring these penalties into effect if we consider it necessary to do so.

The Management have experienced over the past 15 years many serious stoppages of work caused by lightning strikes, and the recent stoppage is all the more serious because of the important work on which we were engaged. We intend to take very drastic action indeed if there is any further interruption in our work.

Work of National Importance

We are now engaged on work of National importance, and if this work cannot be carried out smoothly in these Mills we shall make arrangements to transfer the necessary plant elsewhere. Such a step would throw many men out of employment in Bangalore, but that is one of the consequences which will follow any interference with our business. If our workpeople imagine they are working for employers whose object it is to benefit because of the War situation, they are entirely wrong. War supplies are not necessarily profitable and the sooner this is realized the better.

Regarding the forfeitures which have already been mentioned, the Management hereby state how they will deal with them.

Cash Bonus

Through the members of the Welfare Committee and the Mill Employees' Union the workers were informed on July 31st 1940 after the July 1940 strike that:—

"The strike was illegal and the workpeople have therefore forfeited their rights to any benefits which they receive from the Company. It all depends on the behaviour of the workers for the period between now and the publication of the Company's accounts for the year ending 31st December 1940 as to whether the Management will enforce their rights. The benefits are well known to you but I would refer particularly to Cash Bonus and Perfect Attendance prizes which may become due for payment early next year. If the workpeople continue their work without further strikes or interruptions I can assure you that the Management will not enforce their rights."

The workers therefore have no claim on the Company for a

CENTRAL ASSEMBLY

Grievances Regarding Census

CENSUS ENUMERATORS' ACTION Adjournment Motion Fell Through

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 17. The Assembly held a brief sitting this morning and passed the bill to further amend the law relating to fraudulent marks on merchandise as reported by the Select Committee and also referred to the Select Committee a bill further to amend Insurance Act after rejecting Dr. Bhaugjee's motion for its circulation by 43 votes to 36. The House adjourned till to-morrow when the Ticketless Travellers Bill will be taken up.

Grievances regarding the census were the subject of the adjournment motions attempted in the Central Assembly this morning one of which was read out by the Chair and the other fell through for want of support.

Maulvi Abdul Ghani wanted to discuss the reported refusal of census enumerators in Bihar, Orissa and Jora state (Central Provinces) to return Urdu or Hindu as mother tongue of persons so demanding, and that there was insistence of returning Hindustani for Urdu. He also notwithstanding people's protests.

Sir Reginald Maxwell, Home Member, objected to the motion on the ground that it did not refer to any specific matter but to a number of isolated cases in four different provinces and Cash Bonus for the past half year or for the present half year. Regarding the past half year the payments, depending entirely upon the Ordinary Dividend declared, will be decided upon when the dividend, if any, is declared. The Management will be influenced in their decision by the conduct of the workers in the meantime and it must be left to the Company to announce what they will do when the time comes.

No announcement is necessary regarding the Cash Bonuses of the future beyond its being clearly stated by the Management that they will withhold any such payments if in their opinion the conduct of the workers justifies such action being taken.

Gratuity Fund

The same must be said about this Fund as has been stated in regard to the Cash Bonus. We are loath to discontinue the privilege, but it will be forfeited by the workers if they do not conduct themselves satisfactorily.

Perfect Attendance Bonus Or Prize

We have found that the Perfect Attenders are usually the most conscientious workers and we have therefore decided that they will not incur the penalty for absence during the strike.

Fines For Absence
The Management are pleased

Privilege Leave

This is a privilege leave which is granted to employees who are absent from work for a certain period of time.

Bread And Tea

Those workers who are absent from work for a certain period of time will be provided with bread and tea during their absence.

Dear Living Allowance

In accordance with the conditions governing the payment of this allowance it will be calculated accordingly. Sick leave, privilege leave and ordinary leave will not disqualify an employee from payment of the full amount, but for absence without leave a deduction pro rata will be made. The period from 20th January to 13th February will be treated as absence without leave in the case of all those who did no work.

Wages up to 20th January

As we have allowed the workers to resume work unconditionally, wages earned for this period will be disbursed on 21st February.

Some of the workers who have been on or who might later be put on probation will benefit by any of the above privileges until they are reinstated in their old service.

Indian Railways

According to the annual report on Indian Railways just issued by the Railway Board, it is stated that the State owned Railways yielded a net surplus of Rs. 4,33,00,000 after meeting all charges including depreciation and interest in the year 1939-40. This surplus was placed to the credit of General Reserves of the Central Government Railway Board. In this sum is Rs. 4,00,00,000 as the contribution due for the year.

Some interesting facts are disclosed in the annual report. There was a net revenue under goods traffic and also due to the increased rates and fares introduced from March 1st, 1940.

There was a fall in the earnings from the passengers from Rs. 30,730,000 to Rs. 30,470,000. The number of passengers also was less than in the previous year, 529,700,000 as against 530,600,000 in 1938-39.

At the end of March 1940, the total capital at charge on all Railways including those under construction, amounted to Rs. 82,56,00,000 of which Rs. 76,62,00,000 was capital at charge on State owned Railways inclusive of premium paid in the purchase of Companies lines. The remainder Rs. 93,97,00,000 represented capital raised by Indian States, Companies and District Boards.

It is stated that in the purchase of stores, the policy of giving preference to indigenous goods was continued with greater effect.

The report deals with several measures adopted to improve earnings. Third Class zone season tickets, circular tour tickets and cheap return journey tickets were among the facilities offered to encourage passenger traffic.

The report no doubt deals with additional comforts shown to third class passengers. They say that the comforts and convenience of the travelling public, particularly in the lower classes continue to receive special attention.

The gross traffic receipts of State owned Railways amounted to Rs. 7,63,00,000.

The problem of the third class passengers remains the same every year. In spite of so much of discussion on the floor of the Central Assembly, the Railway authorities have not been doing in that respect, to improve the comforts and convenience of third class passengers.

NO SAT AGRAHA COMMITTEES IN CANTONMENT

Bangalore Committee Abolished

A.P. Wardhagan, Feb. 16
No satyagraha will be offered within Cantonment limits and no Satyagraha Committees should function there, was the reply of Gandhiji to a question, stated Mr. Patel and Adhyapak of the Karnataka Provincial Congress Committee who interviewed Gandhiji prior to their departure for Belgaum.

They added that Gandhiji informed that no person under 21 and no one unable to understand the implications of satyagraha would be permitted to offer satyagraha. In pursuance of the above instructions of Gandhiji, the satyagraha Committees at Belgaum and Bangalore will be abolished. Gandhiji, they stated further, had advised to test the new satyagrahis for fifteen days making them spin, before granting permission to offer satyagraha.

Mr. Gangadhar Rao
It is understood Mr. Gangadhar Rao Deshpande, the Karnataka leader was not permitted by Gandhiji to offer satyagraha. It is learnt Mr. Gangadhar Rao was asked to remain outside in order to advise and guide the movement in Karnataka. In addition they stated that Gandhiji permitted explaining anti war slogans while offering satyagraha by shouting them.

A HIGH SOCIETY WEDDING

Bangalore, Feb. 16
Rajasevasraskta Mr. B. T. Keshava Iyengar, Chief Secretary to the Government, celebrated the wedding of his daughter, Sow. Mayura with Sri S. N. Srinath, son of Dr. S. N. Prasad, at his residence, Basavangudi on Friday last.

A reception was held on Saturday which was attended by Dewan Sir Mirza Ismail, State Officers and prominent public men.

The bride and bridegroom were recipients of numerous presents and congratulations.

For the current year the following office bearers were elected.

President—Adul-ul-mulk Justice C. Abdul Ghani.

Vice-president Mr. V. Gopalaswamy Iyengar.

Secretary—Mr. V. K. Sreenivasan.

Joint Secretary—Mr. B. S. Dattatraya.

Managing Committee Members—Dr. C. S. Pichamuthu, Messrs P. G. Satyaginath, R. K. Sangameswaran, T. Vasulakumar, M. Shamanna, G. Mallanna and K. R. Vidyaranya.

A delightful dinner and tea party had been arranged for the members of the Club in the afternoon and evening.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

The following is an extract from a Rome Broadcast from Malta:—

"The British continue to talk of events in Abyssinia, but ignore what is happening in their own possessions, especially India, Palestine, Egypt and the Sudan. After years of occupation, the British are still treated as prisoners. The quarters where they live have iron bars and after sundown no one may come in or go out. In India no European may go out after dark."

This is an illustration of the saying everything is fair in war. Any propaganda is perhaps allowed.

News is received here that Kannan Devi, the New Theatres Star, is injured in a car accident.

The injuries, it is said, do not appear to be serious. A few days' rest has been advised to suffice to restore her to complete health.

A friend informs me that some cinema fans of Bangalore are offering coconuts and flowers this evening to Lord Anjaneya praying for her speedy recovery.

Dr. P. Varadarajulu Naidu, was once a Congress leader. Now he is in the Hindu Maha Sabha, holding a very high position. He is going round a whirlwind tour of India meeting prominent men to resolve the present political deadlock. He is meeting Gandhiji on the 18th and placing his scheme before him. The other day he explained that the direct action of Hindu Maha Sabha did not mean jail going. There are Rao Bahadurs, Diwan Bahadurs, in the Sabha. The world is anxiously waiting to know what sort of direct action the Hindu Maha Sabha would launch on or after the 31st of March.

Mr. M. N. Roy, the leader of National Democrats would be in Madras, on the 18th inst. Public meetings are arranged. I hope there will not be disturbances in the public meetings as it happened in Bengal and Andhra. Is he visiting Bangalore? Why not Bangalore also have the benefit of hearing him first-hand?

Mr. K. M. Munshi, writing on the subject "Some remarkable Lawyers I have known" gives an interesting story of how an uncle of his got him out of pleadership from a High Court.

"This uncle of mine fine morning, tired him home on his horse from Broach to seek diploma. He travelled stages, fated and fated his father's friends, and fated Bombay in about a time. He put up with Dhiraajal Mathuradas a friend of my grandfather. Next day when the ment Pleader got in palanquin to attend to my uncle accompanied by his horse.

They came to the Court, where the Chief Justice, majestic in wig and the Government in white in front with lobbied candidate at a table trembling in his seat, examination began, to ed Chief Justice.

English the question is equity of redemption. Government Pleader low, turned to the candidate and in solemn voice Gujarati, "What was at your marriage feast, equipped with this part of my uncle unhesitatingly a long list of the spicy delicious meals served at marriage festivities. Dr. Mathuradas, with a satisfaction on his lips, to the Chief Justice, bowed, and in respectful said, "My Lord, it is natural that his answer should be correct. For generally they are lawyers. Live in their veins!" The offered the diploma, the Justice put his august seal on it; my uncle recoiled almost on bended knees, he rode proudly back to native town, flushed victory.

The Comment of Mr. Munshi on the story is "I was born so late, when I had this story, from my uncle's lips, and I dare say you sorry,—for the days when I can describe a dinner and a diploma have gone, now to return."

I have heard people say one can become a Bar-attorney in England by giving a dinner. I do not know if people have such stories even today.

Mr. H. C. Dasappa Criticises Govt.

A.P. Wardha, Feb. 15.
Referring to the rejoinder made by the Government of Mysore to the Memorial submitted by the Mysore State Congress to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore on the rejection of certain nominations for the State Legislature elections, Mr. H. C. Dasappa, Chairman of the Parliamentary Sub-Committee, Mysore State Congress, declared to-day "There was no justification for such stand on a point of law or precedents in Mysore itself. Besides, the Memorial had prayed His Highness to use, if necessary, his special powers and had not asked only for a revision by Government." Mr. Dasappa also criticises the Government's action in replying to the Memorial two days after the general elections were held.

ADDRESSES AND REPLIES

(DAILY NEWS SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

Reply to Planters' Associations Addresses

It is a great pleasure to me to come to spend a few days at this delectable spot, and still more so to be received, not only by the members of the Municipal Council, but also by representatives of the two important associations of planters of the coffee and other products on which the prosperity of the district is so largely dependent. And my pleasure is enhanced when I receive so useful an account of the development of the district itself and of the town which are its headquarters.

My dear coffee, we are told, it is quality that sells coffee in the world and represents quantity more than half the produce of the land, and the investment in coffee estates in the State represents something like three crores of rupees. It is therefore a matter for serious concern to me and my Government when the War cuts us off from the supply of most of the greatest coffee-consuming countries in the world. And I need not tell you what anxious consideration I have been giving to the many problems that have arisen out of the question of tiding us over the critical period in which it finds itself. You yourselves have lent to the work of the Balachonnur Experimental Farm, to the loans which I have given, to the establishment of the Curing Works, and to the promulgation of the Coffee Market Expansion Emergency Act. I am sincerely hoping that the measures will serve to ease the situation and we shall not come to give out coffee in any quantity less than we are anxious attention so long as the War lasts, and the troubles arising out of it continue.

should like here to refer to another matter which may be of interest to members of the planters' associations. You are all aware of the outcry that has been raised, not only in India, but all the world over, against the extinction of various species of wild life through the extension of cultivation and the activities of poachers. In order to put a check upon these latter we have under consideration for some years past a question of establishing sanctuaries for wild life in order that the rarer species may be preserved. When this matter was investigated by a Committee in 1936, a proposal was made by a member of the planting community that one such sanctuary should be established in the Jagar valley, which has just come to fruition. The scheme which is proposed to form a sanctuary consisting mainly of the two State forests of Mubodi and Thegugudda, which at present hold the bulk of the game of the three more forests, namely, those of Mubodi, Madla and the Bababaduna forest, to act as buffers, the whole sanctuary comprising an area of 68 square miles. I am aware that this may involve some small sacrifice of damage to crops, but I feel sure that the planting community, which I include in my keen sportsmen, which I include in my keen sportsmen, will be prepared to make such sacrifices. It will also be necessary to take active steps to deal with poaching, and for this purpose we propose

Turning now to the address of the Municipal Council, I am glad to be able to advise you that active progress is being made in all the matters to which you have referred. In the matter of the water supply scheme, sanction has been accorded to the first stage of the project and an estimate has been called for for the second stage, which involves the increasing of the storage capacity of the Hirekola tank. The estimate for the drainage scheme is still under consideration, but already an expenditure of Rs. 11,000 has been incurred. I and my Government view with every sympathy the scheme for housing the poorer employees of the Municipality, and I am glad to be able to announce today, as a token of my interest in it, a grant of Rs. 5,000 together with a further sum of Rs. 5,000 for works of town improvement in general. Sanction has been accorded to the scheme for conversion of the wet lands near the town into dry in order to lessen the incidence of malaria. And estimates for other engineering measures, such as the deviation or closing down of irrigation channels running in or near the town, the breaching of the Landikatte and the Tavarekere and the grading of the banks of the Yagachi stream, are all under consideration. As regards the tarring of the roads, an estimate for Rs. 12,000 has been prepared and is under the consideration of the Government.

Finally, gentlemen, you refer to the many measures of improvement in the condition of the people of the Malnad inaugurated by my illustrious predecessor and express a hope that these improvements will continue at an accelerated pace. During my tour, I have listened to many addresses and spoken to some of the leading citizens in these parts. I have been touched by the warmth of the welcome I received wherever I went and appreciate the opportunities which the tour has afforded me of acquainting myself with some of the economic and other problems of the Malnad. I have been particularly impressed by the condition of the minor towns and villages and of the need that exists to accelerate the improvement of the same. It is with great pleasure, therefore, that I announce a special grant of two lakhs of rupees for expenditure on approved schemes having this object in view.

Rajashrivadam by Sringeri Mutt
A.P. Chickmagalur, Feb. 17
His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore passed through Koppa yesterday morning under 34 palanquins and numerous arches. Messrs K.M.J. Abdul Karim Brothers put up a 22 pillared green panel corresponding to the Maharaja's age. They offered a handsome gold eagle and garland bearing 3 double-headed. The emblem of Mysore Royalty. Messrs Siddhiah, Subbaiah and Siddagouda also offered garlands. While nearing the Shankar Mutt Office a number of 21 guns was fired as the band played soft music. Pandits from the Sringeri pronounced Rajasheevard on His Highness whom they warmly welcomed and the procession moved in front of the Siddagouda's hall where a Municipal address was presented by the Vice-President Mr. Subba Rao in a cylindrical silver basket bearing the royal insignia.

The Malnad Landholders address was presented by Lokasevaniratha Dyave Gow

In conclusion, I am very glad to have the assurance of your full co-operation in the fight for freedom. Koppa, we are sometimes told, means righteous indignation, and there must be among all right-thinking people a great volume of indignation at the shameful deeds that are being committed by the totalitarian powers against innocent

Though we are far away from the beautiful cities and manufac-

Coffee, Arava and Cardamom are the main products in this District. And we want that the improvement of these agricultural industries has always been next to Your Highness' Heart and Your Highness' Government have been giving a helping hand in the promotion of these industries and in overcoming the difficulties that the land owners of this District have been encountering. So much has already been done for the coffee industry, the arava industry, has now come in for a large share of the Government encouragement by the building up of the bridges across the river Thanar near Tirthahalli of which the corner stone was just laid by our Gracious Highness, while during the Spring, the District construction of new bridges across the river, Banar, on a scale of which Your Gracious Highness has been pleased to accept to lay the foundation stone, will mean not a little encouragement. We the land owners of this District are ready to envisage a bright future for these staple industries of our District. With the improved communications that are going to have and the consequent rapid transit of our produce to the marketing centres, we are looking forward with the advice and guidance at Your Gracious Highness and Your Highness' Government to an immediate prosperous future of this District.

We wish to express in this connection, our anxious desire to have an Areca Experimental Farm in Koppa so that it may be possible to root out more effectively the fell disease (Koleroga) which has been the bitterest enemy of the Areca Industry, on the same lines as your 'Highness' Government have been pleased to establish a Coffee Experimental Farm at Alechonur, which is a great blessing to the Coffee Industry. We also pray just as the numerous indebted coffee land owners have been given timely and adequate relief, we request Your 'Highness' Government to be graciously pleased to consider favourably the extension of the same to the Areca Industry which is also in a dire need.

[FOUR PAGES]

On this happy occasion of Your Highness's visit to this part of the State, we wish to put before Your Highness Government, for its consideration, the necessity of our mobile state having the nearest access to the service. This will mean not a little impetus to the industries in these parts. The immediate extension of the Bangalore-Thannur Railway line to the Mysore and the extension of the Mysore-Kadur line would be a very great asset to our state, and we beg leave to commend this to Your Highness and Your Highness Government for their consideration.

The supply of Electric Power and Light to the important but remote towns of this District, such as Koppa, Hariharapura, Srirang, Bannur and Kallur has been a long time wanted, and we pray that the MEMBERS of Your Highness Government may be pleased to extend the grant of Electric Light and Power to these parts. This will give very great encouragement and will contribute materially to industrial progress and well being of the land holders, and people of these parts.

It is now our proud privilege to request Your Highness to permit us to express our humble, loyal and heartfelt gratitude to Your Gracious Highness for the visit to our place and we pray God Almighty and Goddess Sri Channarayana to bestow long life and prosperity to Your Highness and Your Highness Family.

May peace and plenty always crown the Reign of Your August Highness' Rule.

His Highness At Narasimharajapur

REPLY TO MUNICIPAL ADDRESS

From our correspondent)
 Narasimharajapur, Feb. 17
 The following is the reply to the speech delivered by His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore in reply to an address presented by the Town Municipal Council of Narasimharajapur.

Mr Chairman and members of the Narasimharajapur Municipal Council.
 I am very glad to have this early opportunity of visiting this picturesque town, which bears a rather honoured name, and to learn from you, I am sure, of its steadily increasing prosperity since his visit to it two to six years ago. I am very glad also to have your assurance that you realise the urgent necessities for a town that is so far away from the main currents of world politics as this, to bear your full share in the great struggle for the freedom of the world.

Your town has the unusual feature that drainage has been undertaken in advance of water supply, and I wish that there were many others in which this was the case, since a water supply without drainage only means sewer, and an efficient drainage system established before the water supply comes in, may prove the most effective measure of prevention.

You ask, as is only right, for additional amenities that will bring you on a par with some of the most highly developed places in the State, such as protected water supply, tarred roads, improved medical facilities, the supply of electricity and the conversion of your sub-taluk into a taluk. As regards these requests, I am glad to be able to tell you that it is the intention of my Government to continue the tarring of the road which is already in progress that a survey with a view to the supply of electric lights and power to Narasimharajapur among other places is now being made, and that the conversion of the sub-taluk into a taluk in accordance with the declared policy of my Government and will be taken in hand as soon as funds permit. Any proposals that you may make with reference to drainage and water supply will be considered as soon as they are received. Meanwhile I am glad to announce that a lady doctor will be added to the staff of your dispensary with effect from the coming year.

I am afraid that the construction of a new road from Narasimharajapur to Channarayana is not a practical proposition. You already have two alternative routes, and the actual distance

CENTRAL ASSEMBLY

Ticketless Travellers Bill

VIGOROUS NON-OFFICIAL OPPOSITION

"HONEST AND INNOCENT PERSONS WOULD BE VICTIMISED"

New Delhi, Feb. 18. The President disallowed an amendment motion attempted in the Central Assembly this morning by Mr. Govind Deshmukh to discuss the Government's refusal to remove the rifle range built outside Peshawar Cantonment. Mr. Deshmukh said the rifle range was a source of danger to the surrounding villages. The President ruled it out of order on the ground that the range was built some time ago and was not a matter of recent occurrence.

Interpellations
Sir Reginald Maxwell, during question time, told the House that the question whether legislation should be undertaken for extension of Federal Courts Appellate Jurisdiction, was under consideration.

Replying to another question Sir Maxwell said there were no reported Indian political suspects residing outside India. Government had not a complete list of persons who voluntarily left India on account of their political activities. Government would be prepared to consider request from them for facilities to return to India.

Ticketless Travellers
The Legislative Assembly passed without division Ticketless Travellers bill and took up discussion of the clauses.

The Central Assembly discussed today the bill to tighten the law dealing with ticketless travelling as reported upon by the Select Committee.

Sir Andrew Clow moving the consideration of the Select Committee's report said that he had been having discussions with party leaders and hoped the measure of agreement he expected to reach would shorten the debate. The Bill, he asserted, did not seek to introduce any new principle. Provision to deal with ticketless travellers already existed in the Railway Act and the present bill only made punishment more stringent.

Mr. L. K. Maitra disagreed with the Communications Minister's contention that no new principle was introduced in the bill. He pointed out the presence of ticketless travellers in small numbers and suggested to encourage persons to travel without ticket but were there proper facilities to help detection of ticketless travellers? Military people travelled as a matter of right in classes higher than that where for they had ticket. He had occasion to raise the matter in the house and he had been told that it was the usual practice for military people to travel that way. Unless law was made applicable to all alike what was the use of passing a law he asked. He instanced the cases of people who were forced to board a train without ticket because ticket counters were overcrowded.

Mr. Azharali appealed to the house not to pass this legislation as it could be abused by the railway staff to the inconvenience of innocent persons particularly women.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai said that this drastic legislation could never stop ticketless travelling in India because ticketless travellers were mainly beggars who could not afford to purchase tickets. He considered the punishment of one year's imprisonment too heavy. He advised the house to refer the bill again to the Select Committee as he thought the Committee might come to fresh conclusions more acceptable to the house.

Mr. Nauman said by this legislation a wrong impression was being given to the world about the honesty of Indians.

Mr. Nauman was sure that as it was, the bill would only bring into trouble honest men who were forced to travel without ticket because, proper facilities for getting tickets did not exist.

Dr. Bannerji was in favour of punishing adequately persons who intentionally travelled without ticket but pleaded for a considerate treatment of illiterate people who could not distinguish between second and third class compartments.

Sir A. H. Ghuznavi opposed the proposal for committing the bill to the Select Committee. As regards the difficulty of obtaining tickets, Sir Ghuznavi said penny in slot machines should be introduced in many stations so as to relieve crowding at Ticket windows.

MR. SUBHASH BOSE

Yet Another Proclamation For Arrest

Calcutta, Feb. 13. Yet another order for issue of proclamation for the arrest of Mr. Subhas Chandra Bose was passed to-day by the Additional Magistrate of Alipore when the case against Mr. Subhas Chandra Bose came up for hearing before him to-day.

Before ordering the issue of proclamation the Magistrate asked from the police if they had anything to say regarding the warrants issued previously. The police stated the warrant still remained unexecuted.

Mr. Bose is at present being prosecuted in connection with two speeches delivered by him.

STOP PAYMENTS TO SUBHAS BOSE

Calcutta Magistrate's Order To Ban A.P. Calcutta, Feb. 17. Notices issued by the Additional Chief Presidency Magistrate, Calcutta, were served to-day on a number of banks in the City directing them to stop operation of any amount standing in the name of Mr. Subhas Chandra Bose. A proclamation for the arrest of Mr. Bose has already been issued under orders of the same Magistrate before whom Mr. Bose stands charged under certain sections of the Defence of India Rules.

New Delhi, Feb. 18. Sir Abdullah Haroon, President, Sind Provincial Muslim League and Khan Bahadur Khuro, Minister, Sind, arrived to-day and had a long discussion with Mr. M. A. Jinnah on the Sind situation. An official statement by Mr. Jinnah is expected to be issued shortly.

2000 MORE ITALIAN PRISONERS Arrived In Bombay

Bombay, Feb. 13. Two thousand more Italian prisoners of war who included 552 officers disembarked to-day. These men, it is learned were captured in Tobruk. Besides men of Mussolini's land army, the batch includes men from Italian naval units, airmen and medical corps and army chaplain. One Italian officer reported to have jumped into the sea en route. The prisoners were taken to the detention camp.

Madras, Feb. 18. One more Congress Councillor of the Madras Municipal Corporation submitted resignation. The total number hitherto of these who resigned is thirteen.

"Remain Calm and Unperturbed"

MR. K. T. BHASHYAM'S APPEAL TO WORKERS

Surprised at the Management's Statement

"Cannot Drive A Coach and Four Over Heads of Workers"

"Profoundly Disappointed"

Bangalore, Feb. 19. The following is the Statement issued by Mr. K. T. Bhashyam, President, Bangalore Textile Labour Union, Bangalore —

I have seen the statement of the Binny Mills Management and I feel profoundly disappointed at it. The workers are accused of having suddenly gone on strike. It is a wrong assumption. They hammered at the door of the Management for over a fortnight and were sternly refused a hearing. It is only thereafter that they went on strike. What else could they do? On a previous occasion they had approached the Government and the Labour Commissioner but with no tangible result. Their Union was neither recognised nor respected by the management. Under the circumstances they were left to shift for themselves in the face of what they considered to be a crisis. They feared, and naturally so, that the bread was sought to be taken away from their mouth and none so sympathetic as to hear their cry. Are they to blame for having gone on strike?

Spontaneous

Those who are put on probation were perhaps prominent in the strike. The strike was spontaneous and nobody fomented it. It was a deep and widespread grievance that led to it. These people took charge of the situation after it arose and maintained it in peace and order, preventing it from going off the rails. Are they to be penalised?

Magnificent Behaviour

The workers behaved magnificently before, during and after the strike. They tried their best to secure redress, failed and then struck work. The local management know it. They remained peaceful and orderly during all the long period of the strike, the longest I have known here. The Police will testify to it. When the Government agreed to enquire into their grievances they promptly went back to work without imposing any conditions. The Labour Commissioner will possess it. To terrorise such workers

Cannot Drive Coach And Four

I am surprised at the statement that the management of the Binny Mills has issued. It is a matter of no concern to the management. It is an unduly long. They cannot drive a coach and four over heads of workers. They might rather consider the request of the workers. Between L. D. and C. G. and the management, the latter is to be blamed.

In my opinion Government having promised an enquiry an Officer will certainly be appointed to go into the matter and it will be well for the management to co-operate with him even as the workers will.

Appeal To Workers

I appeal to the workers to remain calm and unperturbed in spite of anything that the management might say or do. If a few of us have to suffer for a while for the sake of the many let us do so in good cheer; for, that way lies our advancement and the fulfilment of our destiny.

A.P. Calcutta, Feb. 17.

Sri Sreekrutia Sarala Baladev, President, and Nibaran Chandra Dutta, Assistant Secretary of Sylhet District Congress Committee, offered satyagraha in different parts of Sunamganj, Karimganj, Habiganj and Moulvi Bazar, according to information received here. They were not arrested.

Sri Banamali Ghosh, Assistant Secretary of Uluberia Sub-divisional Congress Committee, offered satyagraha today at Chandipur ghāt at Uluberia and Baidyanath Ghose at Naldia in Sonamusi Sub-division, but were not arrested. Eight other persons offered satyagraha in Calcutta, but none were arrested.

Mysore Congress
And Non-Violence

A controversy is arising again about the efficacy of Non-Violence. Mahatma Gandhi is the apostle of non-violence. He has been telling the world that human nature is intrinsically good and it responds to non-violence as certain as lightning. He hopes that even Hitler would melt like snow before non-violence. The Times of India does not seem to have been convinced by Gandhi's argument. It is but natural. The 'Times of India' swears by Mr. Churchill who is no believer in non-violence. Whatever this controversy may be, Gandhi has practised non-violence in his own person and has inspired it in Indian people. As a result, an amount of success. Mahatma Gandhi is a born fighter. And he has fought with clean weapons. Even his opponents admire Gandhi, and those sometimes, have turned in their attitude towards him. The Gandhi-Irwin Pact in India in 1931 was a triumph of non-violence. In India today, there is a force ranged against Mahatma Gandhi's Indian movement, we should admit unreservedly that there are hundreds of Englishmen who see that there is a wrong and India is right. There are people in this country who are at heart in England, unimpaired treatment of India is a natural question of quantity of numbers. If the numbers were equal with Gandhi's movement, we can say, non-violence has triumphed. This is a case of the effect of non-violence upon a mass of people.

Now with this introduction let us turn to the theme of Mysore. Whatever may have been the policy and practice of Mysore Congress with regard to non-violence, prior to Mahatma Gandhi's guiding the movement from about November 1939, none can say since then, the Mysore Congress has departed even to the extent of a hair's breadth from the rigid path of non-violence. Every tiny whisper and move of the Mysore Congress has since then been inspired and gently guided by the loving hand and kind of the Saint of Sevagram. None can accuse Gandhi of ignorance or wantonness. As every one knows Mahatma stoops to conquer. He wins his way to the heart of his opponents by his own suffering.

The Mysore Congress has scrupulously followed Mahatma's instructions. Unconditionally it submitted to even the most humiliating treatment. Unconditionally it continued its existence. Without hesitating in the least it suffered all the humiliations, in the past and in the present, that have befallen it. It has borne the contempt of those who have written off its members as a bunch of fools. It has borne the contempt of those who have written off its members as a bunch of fools. It has borne the contempt of those who have written off its members as a bunch of fools.

The non-congress non-officials have also supported in electioneering a large number of officers and officials. In some cases bad bosses were opened. As if adding insult to injury the Government Ministry Officer carried on a disgusting campaign of vilification in the press against the Mysore Congress. On the floor of the Representative Assembly and Legislative Council some uncomports were directly and indirectly encouraged by Government to be made against the Congress.

In spite of all this, Mahatma has advised Mysore Congress not to lose its patience, but to persist in working Government to change its heart. It must be said to the credit of Government that there were occasions when they did like changing their heart to progress. But as it would have to deal with the upper and the efficiency of non-violence on Government was frustrated. The Dewan went so far as saying that he did not lack sympathy to Congress. On several occasions he told some private gentlemen that he had no ill will against anybody and would not stand in the way of anybody getting his due. Some how it looked as if fate was putting the Mysore Congress to a greater ordeal in non-violence.

The success in the District Board Elections, some time ninety percent, and the cent-percent success in the Bangalore and Mysore City Municipal Elections carried the opponents off their feet and they manoeuvred to see that a large number of nomination papers of Congressmen to the Assembly and the Council were rejected. Injustice against Congress reached its climax. It is alleged that some officials worked hand in glove with the opponent of Mysore Congress in the matter of rejection of nomination papers. We have said above that the wave of injustice had reached its crest and the Government also felt once again like doing justice. It is an open secret that the Dewan actually promised in Mysore some of the representatives of public that justice would be done to Congress. We do not know what happened that day between morning and night and the Government who had initially dratted a new order for resubmitting nomination papers, suddenly were led under cover of a legal deficiency and the injustice was allowed to be perpetuated.

This was an occasion of greatest adverse reaction on the Mysore Congress mind. But Mahatma Gandhi whose faith in non-violence is invincible advised Mysore Congressmen to be patient and approach His Highness the Maharaja with a memorial. That course the Congress followed. Even the enemies of Mysore Congress have to admire the spirit of love and non-violence permeating the memorial. There is not one harsh word in it. Even the criticism made against Government is factual and mild. We would say that the reply of Government is not worthy of the memorial. There is a ton of force, one non-violent and the other the opposite. The Mysore Congress in spite of deep deconstruction have held their feet in patience and decided to file election petitions before the tribunal.

We have written all this great and to demonstrate to our members how a non-violent movement, in political struggle, is being conducted in Mysore by the Congress under the guidance of Mahatma Gandhi. We would request even the hostile critics of Mysore Congress to survey the Mysore movement dispassionately since the time Mahatma Gandhi took charge of it. Let them lay their hand on their heart and ask their conscience if the movement has not been strictly non-violent. We have watched the Mysore Congress leaders both in their chambers and outside in the public. They have so beautifully disciplined themselves. It may be, by still further practice they would be more perfect in non-violence but most is today the Mysore movement is an object lesson of non-violence in a political struggle.

What is the reaction of this non-violent struggle on the official mind, it really there is one? As we believe in certainty of natural laws, love be getting love and hate begetting hate, we have every reason to believe that there ought to be a corresponding change in the heart of Government. Mahatma Gandhi has advised Mysore Congress leaders to respond to the call of Government if one emanates from them. Mahatma Gandhi hopes that the non-violent action of Mysore Congress has its corresponding reaction on the official mind. We have every evidence before us that Government have some how reconciled themselves to the hard reality of the existence of the Mysore Congress. They have realised that all their repression and policy of divide and rule has not been able to extinguish the life of the Mysore Congress. There it is, the life and hope of the people of Mysore, ever going forward like the rays of the sun.

The recent elections have shown that in spite of the obstacles placed in the way of Mysore Congress it has surmounted them all and enthroned itself in the hearts of the people. We would earnestly request Sir Mirza and Government not to state the waves of generous impulse that rise in their heart towards the Mysore Congress which has suffered innumerable hardships to establish a political principle. For aught we know the Mysore Congress movement is not a movement designed to remove anybody from his office or to instal anybody in office. The Government would do well to ponder over this aspect of the matter. If there is any doubt in their mind as to the objective of the movement, time has come for them to wipe it out clean. Mahatma Gandhi would not undertake to guide a movement which has in it, personal motives, personal ambitions and personal animosities. We would request Sir Mirza Ismail to view the movement from this angle. The moment the Government perceive the genuineness of the movement that very moment there would be a change of heart. After all, whom are we serving? We are serving His Highness the Maharaja, we are his loyal subjects. What better aim can there be to Government to take into their fold the people who struggled hard for popular liberties and bestow upon them the respect due to them as to those who strived hard to establish a political principle.

We hope in Mysore the non-violent struggle of the Mysore Congress would have a healthy and wholesome effect upon the Government and induce them to befriend the leaders and representatives of the people, who are none other than the Mysore Congress.

WAITING AT THE DENTIST'S SHOP

The Balkan situation has not ripened and the war of nerves continues unabated. The Hitlerian blackmail is in full swing and the Berchtsgaden baits have been thrown far and wide to enmesh nations of no defence. The frequent sojourns of Balkan Statesmen in the heights of Bavarian Alps have come as a forerunner to a more deepening sinister influence in that part of Europe which lazily looks to the West for a possible intervention. The news of the Bulgar Turk Agreement has created a sensation of the first magnitude as throwing a black veil on the Balkan situation. No one was aware of this latest pact which has come like a boomerang. The now pact between these two nations finds no ready response on the side of the Nazis who are already well on their way inside Bulgaria. The sanctity of respecting one's mentality has been blown to the winds by the sneakingly mean attitude of the Germans.

The waiting at the Dentist's shop is nerve racking. The Balkan Volcano doesn't burst and how long this suspense continues it is difficult to say. One thing is clear. Hitler has by no means abandoned his South Eastern march. He is waiting for a forward thrust to aid his Axis partner in his hour of dire distress. The Nazis have not declared war on Greece and if that conflict spreads Britain's duty is clear. She must protect Turkey's neutrality and aid Greece with all its strength to keep Hitler at bay.

The Balkan Zero hour is fast approaching and it is difficult to comprehend the exact meaning of the recent trips to Berchtsgaden and back of several Diplomats. The British victory at the Western Desert has made Hitler rub his eyes. Whether he will aid his vanquished partner or not future events can alone tell.

INTER-VILLAGE ROADS
IN MYSORE

Rs. 4 Lakhs To Be Spent
On Development

Bangalore, Feb. 19

How much the Government have been doing for the welfare of Mysore villages — the backbone of the State — is well illustrated by the very comprehensive rural uplift work undertaken during the past few years. Another measure which will improve village economy is the provision of inter-villages in different parts of the State, the importance of which was also urged on the attention of Government by means of representations and resolutions at the last session of the Representative Assembly.

Now a provision of Rupees four lakhs has been made in the State Budget for the current year under "Contribution to Inter-village Road Fund". The Revenue Commissioner has, in consultation with the Deputy Commissioners of Districts forwarded programmes of the works to be taken up under the Scheme and also proposals for distributing the above sum and financing the works. For the current year Government have allotted the following sums to the several districts: — Bangalore, Rs. 15,000; Mysore, Rs. 20,000; Mandya, Rs. 25,000; Kolar, Rs. 25,000; Tumkur, Rs. 25,000; Hassan, Rs. 20,000; Kadir, Rs. 25,000; Shimoga, Rs. 25,000; and Chitaldrug, Rs. 20,000. The

MEMORIAL AND AFTER THE WORKING COMMITTEE STATEMENT

Bangalore, 19
The following statement issued by the Working Committee of the Mysore Congress in the matter of the sale and unjust rejection of notices of candidature by the Working Committee, the Government for interference in the matter of the Working Committee before His Highness the Maharaja for his intervention and redress of injustice on the part of Government and its officers. A trial in this behalf was held on his Highness on January, 1941, pending the permission to wait in the elections.

The elections came on 18th February, 1941 and held without the candidates whose notices had been rejected and in respect of whom a memorial had been submitted. On the 10th February, an endorsement was received from the President issued to his personal address by the Secretary to the Government communicating the views of Government on the memorial submitted to His Highness, declaring that on reconsideration of the position the Government still regret their inability to redress. The endorsement stated that the earlier part of the memorial contains misstatements and allegations which have proved to be false by the Committee and a legal Officer and which were irrelevant.

The Working Committee constrained to observe Government have effectively denied all relief by the delay in issuing the endorsement. It is also to be regretted Government have issued the President to his personal address and not in his capacity as President of the Congress. The Working Committee are satisfied the allegations in the memorial well founded and that Special Committee and the judicial Officer referred to Government did not command the confidence of the public. Their reports cannot be taken to represent the views of the Working Committee. Further satisfied that the allegations were perfectly correct since they went to prove all doubt that the rejection of the notices of candidature was a stray bomb dropped as part of a deliberate drive on the Congress.

The Working Committee endorse the statement of the President regarding the Government's reply and regard a grave and manifest wrong been allowed to be perpetuated.

MYSORE NOTES

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, Feb. 17
The Sessions Case in which one Subdargowda of Krishnarajapuram Taluk was placed for trial alleging that during June last he caused the death of one Kale Gowda of Haramallikoppal by fatally injuring him on his abdomen, concluded today.

Mr H. Nanjundiah, Sessions Judge, Mysore Division who tried the case requested the prosecution benefit of doubt.

Security Proceedings Case

The Case of Security Proceedings instituted against Mr T. S. Subbanna, a local Congress worker, at the time of Municipal elections at Krishnarajapuram came up for hearing today before Mr. Abdul Azeem, Sub-division officer and Ex-officio Special First Class Magistrate, Mysore.

As the accused prayed for a transfer of the Case it was adjourned to 3rd of March next.

A.P. Rawalpindi, Feb. 17

Satyagraha in Rawalpindi has been suspended for the present, it is understood, under instructions from the President of the Punjab Provincial Congress Committee. A meeting of the Working Committee of the Punjab Provincial Congress Committee will be held at Lahore on 20th February.

are not far to seek. The war has closed the European continental markets for the Indian coffee, and to make matters worse no tonnage is available even for United Kingdom, the shortage of carriers necessitating the suspension of the 2,000 tons quota. The foreign demand is now confined to Haifa and the Persian Gulf ports but even here the transport becomes a problem, owing to the scarcity of both coasting and ocean-going steamers. The operations in the African theatre of War seems to have requisitioned all the existing tonnage for military purposes. The 67% of the crop meant for export under the Control Ordinance consequently hangs on the hands of the Surplus Pool without any visible outlet.

The demand for the balance of the crop earmarked for internal distribution under the same ordinance is by no means absorbing. Most of the offerings of plantation coffee at the recent auctions have had to be withdrawn for want of bids and the highest price obtained so far by the plantation as time has been 40/- and old per cwt ex bags according to quality, fair average quality marks being in the vicinity of Rs. 37/8. Peaberry and triage are about Rs. 50 and 34 respectively.

On the whole the native market behaved better. The offering almost always changed hands and the pounded crop, for example, containing a generous peaberry content and their merits fetched Rs. 63 and odd per candy. Cured whole crop clean cherry realised a couple of rupees less.

About 100 tons of the past season's coffee is reported to have been stranded in the godowns for want of an outlet. The land offer is about Rs. 165 per candy, but this figure is not acceptable to the speculators who have stacked heavy capital in "moonroving" of it.

REVISED PAKISTAN SCHEME

Ceded Districts to be ceded to Hyderabad?

(From our correspondent)

Hyderabad, Feb. 18

(By wire) New Delhi, Feb. 18

It is understood that Mr. M. A. Jinnah will take part in the debate of Sirdar Sant Singh's resolution in the Assembly on Thursday. His speech will probably be on the same lines as before attack both against Government and the Congress as responsible for deadlock and restoration of Muslim League's claim for "equal partnership".

In the meantime the publication of revised Pakistan scheme by Foreign Committee of the Muslim League has been the subject of some comment.

According to this scheme Sind, British Baluchistan, N.W.F.P., and Punjab should be grouped together as one Sovereign State with Delhi Province amalgamated with Punjab. The eastern boundary of the Punjab is to include the area of the U.P.

The Moslem percentage proposed in the Northern Zone is stated as sixty three. The Nizam's Dominion is to be expanded by return of ceded territories. States expected to federate with the neighbouring Moslem Zones are mentioned as Dir, Swat, Chitral, Kalat, Las-Bela, Kohirpur, Mirs, Bahawalpur, Kapurthala, Patiala, Nabha, Faridkot, Jind, Malerkotla, Loharu, Patand, Dujana Chamba, Mandi, Suket, Kalsia, and Simla hill states of Sirmur Bilaspur, and Kashmir.

The other Moslem Zone is to include Assam and Bengal excluding Bankipur and Midnapur districts and the district of Purnea of Behar with Moslem percentage of fifty four. The States like Cochin, Tripura, Manipur, and Kash Hill States are mentioned as federation States.

The Scheme provides for transitional common co-operation agency at the centre where Moslems are to have control on terms of perfect equality with non-moslems. There is also provision for inter-migration.

CENTRAL ASSEMBLY RAILWAY BUDGET PRESENTED

Surplus of Rs. 11.83 Crores Estimated For 1941-42

PURCHASE BY GOVERNMENT OF B.B. & C.I.
AND ASSAM-BENGAL RAILWAYS

New Delhi, Feb. 19. The Railway estimates presented by Sir Andrew Clow in the Central Assembly to-day show for 1940-41 a surplus of Rs. 14.59 crores against a deficit of Rs. 8.29 crores originally estimated for 1941-42 a surplus of Rs. 11.83 crores.

There are no important changes in freights and fares.

Sir Andrew referred to the Government's intention to reduce the rate on coal by 5 per cent in the months from April to October with a view to encouraging the placing of orders at times when the wagon position was tight. Government were examining the question whether the rates designed to encourage export of coal and wheat would be justified and whether the seasonal tickets fares, which were not altered when passenger fares were enhanced last year, were giving fair returns at their present levels. It was stated that no change would be made in these charges at present, or within the next few months at least.

War Efforts

Referring to Railway war efforts, the Railway Member pointed out some railway work had been 'wholly made good' for production of various requirements. About 305 miles of branch lines which had been unremunerative would be completed before the end of the year for shipment overseas.

Capital Expenditure

The Capital expenditure included the purchase of three engines, the Assam Bengal Railway at a cost of Rs. 2 crores, B.B. & C.I. Rs. 2 crores, and Rs. 2.25 crores and notice had been given for the purchase of the Valley Railway. (156 miles) at the end of 31st March 1941 at an estimated cost of Rs. 2.25 crores. It was stated that only in 1942-43, has been provided for in this year.

The gross total works programme is slightly over Rs. 100,00,000. Estimates for track work amount to 6 crores, for rolling stock to Rs. 3,25,00,000, for bridges and other works and a little over 1 crore for increase in maintenance. The programme provides for 2,25 miles of which 1,350 are broad gauge general service wagons to be added to the general pool. After deducting from the above figure, 1 1/3 crores for credits on account of released materials and an allowance (about 2,50,00,000) based on past experience, for unforeseen delays in the execution of works or in obtaining supplies in the conditions created by the war. The net amount of the open line works programme (including the purchase of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India and Assam Bengal Railways) is a little over 15,50,00,000.

An Appeal

He concluded with one word of appeal and said, "I hope that in the future this House or its successors will not forget the service which the railways have been able to render at this juncture and will be ready when peace is restored, to give the Railway generous treatment. Generosity by the community here is generosity to themselves, and a liberal policy towards the railways will not fail of its rewards."

PAKISTAN MOVE Amendment to Sant Singh's Resolution

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 18. Syed Ghulam Bhiknairang, Deputy Leader of Muslim League Party in the Central Assembly, has tabled the following amendment to Sardar Sant Singh's resolution regarding the steps to end the political deadlock in India and establish responsible Government.

"This Assembly recommends to the Governor-General in Council to advise His Majesty's Government to make a declaration immediately that the future constitution of India should be framed on the basic principle embodied in the resolution of the All-India Muslim League passed at its sessions held at Lahore on 23rd March 1940, viz., that geographically contiguous units are demarcated into regions which should be so constituted with such territorial readjustments as may be necessary that the areas in which Muslims are numerically in a majority as in the north-western and eastern zones of India should be grouped to constitute independent states where in constituent units shall be autonomous and sovereign, that adequate and effective and mandatory safeguards should be specifically provided in the constitution for minorities in these units and in other parts of India where Muslims are in a minority, and mandatory safeguards shall be provided in the constitution for them and other minorities."

MR. JINNAH CLARIFIES Meaning of Lahore Resolution

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 18.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah, President of the All-India Muslim League, has issued the following statement to the Press:

"My attention has been drawn to a report under the heading 'Revised Pakistan Scheme Committee's Recommendations' published in a news paper today. This is entirely incorrect. It is incorrect either that the Working Committee of the League is going to consider any of these schemes at its meeting on 22nd February. I would however welcome any scheme or proposal coming from any source, and I believe there are many Mussalmans and others who are applying their minds to this problem. I however want to make it clear that the All-India Muslim League officially is unconcerned with the scheme published in the newspapers from time to time. Some confusion prevails in the minds of some individuals with regard to the use of the 'Pakistan' word has become synonymous with the Lahore Resolution owing to the fact that it is a convenient and compendious method of describing the Lahore Resolution quoted above. For this reason the British and Indian newspapers generally adopted the word 'Pakistan' to describe the Muslim demand as embodied in the Lahore Resolution. I really see no objection to it and fail to understand why some people are making a mountain out of this mole hill."

ALL OVER STRAYED CATTLE Clash And Death

A.P. Madras, Feb. 19. One person died and twelve sustained injuries as the result of a clash which occurred in the village of Nelloyapalayam between caste Hindus (Reddies) and Harijans according to a Chingleput message.

The reported trouble arose when some cattle of Harijans strayed into the fields belonging to Reddies and from a wordy quarrel a clash ensued wherein sticks and knives were freely used. Of two Reddies seriously injured one succumbed at the hospital while the other is stated to be progressing satisfactorily.

COUNCIL OF STATE

OPENING DAY C-in-C Welcomed

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 19.

The Budget Session of the Council of State opened this morning Sir Maneckji Dadabhai presiding.

Sir Claude Auchinleck, Commander in Chief, H. E. Frere and D. N. Mitra took their seats.

Welcoming the Commander in Chief to the House, Sir Maneckji Dadabhai congratulated him on his appointment as the head of the army in India. He recalled Sir Auchinleck's services in the past, especially his association with the Chatfield Committee before which he stressed the importance of modernisation and mechanisation of the army.

Sir Auchinleck replying said he fully realised what keen interest the members of the Central Legislature took in defence matters. This interest had two sides. It was connected with responsibility the members of the legislature had in regard to the defence of India. Secondly interest in defence matters was closely connected with the successful prosecution of the war.

His Excellency assured the Council that it would be his duty to give all possible consideration to the views expressed by the legislature. He also assured the Council that all information consistent with the safety of the country would be given to the legislature.

After the Hon'ble Mr. L. Wilson, Chief Commissioner of Railways, had presented the Railway budget for 1941-42, the Council adjourned till 25th February.

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 19.

The Bill to amend the Petroleum Act was introduced in the Central Assembly today by the Commerce Member.

THE HON. THE BR. RESIDENT

Bangalore, Feb. 19. Lt Col J. H. Gordon Resident in Mysore will leave for Mysore on Thursday 20th Feb. and return to Bangalore on Sunday 23rd February. Lt Col Stubbs, Resident's Personal Assistant will accompany the Resident.

(By wire, New Delhi, Feb. 19.) One section of the Congress Nationalists hold the opinion that it may be worth pressing Sirdar Sant Singh's resolution in the Central Assembly for discussion owing to the aggressive character of the amendments tabled on behalf of the Muslim League. On the other hand, certain liberal minded members of the Muslim League party are anxious to avoid an unnecessary discussion on the floor of the house and concentrate on matters which do not arouse party feeling. As the main object of the resolution is to show dissatisfaction with Government's standstill policy and call upon the Governor-General in Council to take immediate steps for removing this dissatisfaction, it is felt that nothing would be more injurious to national interests than the debate which merely brings the Congress Nationalists and the Muslim League into conflict with each other or provides an occasion for anti-congress tirades by interested people.

To avoid this contingency Mr. N. M. Joshi has brought forward a motion merely demanding National Government on the basis of the Poona resolution—throwing on the British Government the responsibility of deciding the steps necessary for bringing it into existence and satisfying the minority interests.

A good deal is going on behind the scenes in the Muslim League Circles. A domestic campaign has not started to prevail upon the Viceroy to leave Congress alone as it has refused to co-operate in war effort and entrust the Muslim League as the second largest party with responsibility of the Central Govt in other words dominant position in the expanded cabinet and also appoint a majority of Muslim League members as advisers to Governors in Congress-governed provinces.

Official attitude appears to be that if the main political parties who are willing to co-operate in war effort are prepared to accept the August Declaration and agree to work in the spirit of the Viceroy's speech at Calcutta the Government would offer all possible facilities for such co-operation.

are happy to submit that this is not merely in the form of institutions established for people resorting to them. In regard to quality of service rendered, there has been continuous and vigorously planned improvement in surgical operations.

Ramanathapur, at a cost of no less than 4,03,716. But the mere fact that a similar scheme is being considered by the District Board, with, of course, the help of the Government, has been able to take two bridges of such magnitude in succession, itself affords a proof of the soundness of the finances and of the advancement of the prosperity of the District and the State. I hope that, as the years go on, it will be found that the tolls attached to these bridges will meet the cost of the interest and principal, and mean while the general improvement effected by my Government in the matter of District Board finances on the report of the committee which was appointed to enquire into the same, will afford you much-needed relief.

Ladies and gentlemen, I renew my congratulations to you on the great developments which have been exhibited by Salespur and by the District at large, and I have great pleasure in proceeding to lay the foundation stone of the most symbolical of them all, the new hospital. In conclusion, I should like to add what a special pleasure it is to me that this hospital will bear the name of a family which is already honoured throughout the State for many years of good citizenship, which have included many benefactions to the neighbourhood in which they live. All these have culminated in and have been surpassed by the present most generous benefaction of Colonel Crawford of Rs 15,000 towards the construction of this new hospital. I hope he may long stay among us to witness the benefits it will confer on the people of the district in which he has made his home.

The view of Government is that there will be sufficient unskilled labour when the Ministry of Labour has completed a comb-out. It is emphasised, however, that men and women should be willing to take on any job even if it is not what they think they are fitted for.

His Highness Sri Jayachamaraja Wodeyar Bahadur has graciously sanctioned a sum of Rs. 1525 for the following purposes in Chickmagalur:—

Rs. 400 for distribution of sweets to school children Rs. 525 for special prayers at the various religious centres, and Rs. 800 for Maternity and Child welfare and Rs. 100 for furniture to the St. Joseph Convent.

BANGALORE CITY—THURSDAY FEBRUARY 20, 1941

[FOUR PAGES]

OPEN LETTER TO BANGALORE'SNew Congress City Fathers
(From T. L. A. Acharya)

Friends,

May I have your permission to talk to you? I have thought fit to write to you, because, I have a claim on you and because the hopes of the people of Bangalore are centred in you. With the rest of the citizens of this dear city of ours, I have faith in you. Though, personally, I want Municipal Councils to be the battleground of a struggle between diehard conservatives and youthful constructive socialists, now that you are there, I want you. What I mean is that the Municipality is no longer for a political party. In any case, now that you are there, let us see what we can do.

I want to tell you this: the future of Municipal Democracy in Mysore is in your hands. I want you to turn that thought, even your active minds for a minute. Others have disappointed a thousand times over. A good many have used the Municipality as a jumping ground for a political career. A good many have got themselves elected just to see their names in print and again. I am not out to ride the high horse and question people's motives or cast aspersions. Surely, I do not gain anything by such a course.

What I am out to suggest is that civic—not the science or theory of civics but the practice of it—has been, too long in the bankruptcy court. It is there because it has been put there. As such I say the future of Municipal Democracy in Mysore is in your hands. We have utterly failed to produce dependable and correct Municipal leadership till now. So the jobs cut out for you to produce it now and do it you must. You must get civic work into a right perspective. Progress of a community is the dribs and drabs of civic progress totalled up.

I think your Mr. L. S. Raja spoke with vision and commendable pragmatism—at some meeting or other, I forget which—when he said that he expected the Congress Municipal party to be able to win the Government over by sheer force of honest civic work and not by flag-waving and political slogans and exciting shibboleths. Yes, the Municipality is not the place for political pyrotechnics or for sophisticated political claptrap. We have a little too much of it without the Municipalities joining in the chorus. Unfortunately, it is true that some Municipalities in India have been misused. Mr. Raju's assurance of non-partisanship will be appreciated tremendously. If the Congressmen are better and cleaner politicians, it is not necessarily the best and the cleanest citizens. That means you must deal with heroic severity, your political entanglements at the main gate of the Municipal Offices. We do not have to raise political dust in a place where we have the challenging task of dealing with big simple human facts. Our Municipalities have till now, been more or less tax-gatherers. Shall we not, now that you are there, transform them into social engineers?

I have before me an imposing list of the resolutions that your party has tabled for discussion. You say something about surveying the living conditions of the Sweepers and Scavengers. You have made me your friend by the mere mention of the Sweepers and Scavengers. But do you have to survey their living conditions? I know them. You stand or fall by what you do to help them out—that is, in my opinion. They are harassed by petty Municipal Officials, who possess almost Hitlerite power over their very existence; they live in indescribable poverty and filth; your Municipality gives a single water-tap for a hundred of their families; there is no Municipal Doctor visiting them; no Municipal co-operative store supplying their wants; no Municipal School for their rickety, under-nourished and naked children; they know no provident fund or security of service or decent wages. I can tell you what you can and must do with out your going and wasting you and the city's good time by conducting a survey. Anyway, the Sweepers and Scavengers are your first charge. Do something for them, at least build houses for them, before you go or somebody calls you out of the Municipal Council.

I have looked at your resolutions. You contemplate setting up a plethora of Committees. Others, before you, have set up Committees and achieved nothing. Please do not get Committee ridden. It things go into Committee, select or otherwise, they just disappear or come out with a metamorphosis that even the smartest among you will fail to discover in it the faintest trace of the original. Do not develop the Committee fever. I am not a doctor but I know it is a dangerous disease. Do not produce reports but do something. If you want to equip your private library with reports there is the Government of India for you with a countless number of reports in its dust-laden archives, reports of good intentions which were never meant to find concrete embodiment but meant to lacate public agitation.

You talk of prohibition. I am afraid I am treading bomb-ridden ground. But I do not care. I want you to think of it with an honest mind. If I had the money I would have bought and given you all a copy of an excellent essay by that celebrated scientist, J. B. S. Haldane entitled, "Bio-Chemistry and Mr. Gandhi." I shall be happy to lend me a copy if you want it, you cannot question Haldane's integrity, though you are free to question mine. He supports Mahatma's Salt agitation because, as a Scientist and a biologist, he knows that people in the tropics need a good amount of salt. If the people are poor, the salt of the earth must have no salt. See, here you have a scientific Defence of Salt Satyagraha. I say, you dare not suspect Haldane's integrity. You do it at peril. But when the peril is somebody's, other than your own, you must walk slowly because you want to help. You know Haldane faced certain death by self-immolation in an endeavour to prove a point with regard to the Third's submarine disaster. Haldane gives documentary evidence to show that if the poor are denied today—their mortality shoots up, just because today is the only source of vitamins for those unfortunate. The toddy less mothers have no vitamins in their milk for the sucking infants. I beg of you to devote your earnest thought to the problem. Let us not gamble in human lives. Let us not say, "Don't Drink." Let us create the atmosphere, the living conditions, the standard of life and food, which automatically eliminates the need for toddy.

There are a thousand things you can and must do. You can plan Municipal industries and put the Municipality on a non-tax-revenue basis to a great extent. I want you to think of leaving a "green belt" round Bangalore. It is growing and growing tremendously. You do not want a Bombay or a London on your hands, do you? They do it in the west, they call a halt to unchecked expansion of Cities. The bigger a city grows, the greater the more insoluble, will its problems become. I may sneer of the black-board and academic goud but I am not projecting imaginary troubles.

I do not think that our approach to the city's beggar problem does any credit to our intelligence. You have the same task of undertaking compulsory primary education within the limits of the city, if only to demonstrate to people that it can be done and you know how to do it. I must tell you that it is your duty to wipe out illiteracy in the city. For a change, you can take over the City Bus Service from the Company, which finds it difficult to have conductors with ordinary good manners, and run it as a municipal public utility. Then if you are among those who insist on surveying before striking, conduct a reconnaissance of house-rents in the city and tell me if the people with moderate incomes are not being terrorised by profiteering house-owners who call themselves lords of the land. I can produce a thousand thirty-rupee wallahs

I tell you, Bangalore has spread its wings and is going, full-steam ahead, on the road to becoming an industrial city. You must think of the working man and the host of thorny social problems that are born of industrialisation, planned or unplanned. If you do not you will be caught napping.

I can just see, for your consideration, hundred other problems I have already over-stepped the column-space that any decent man can have at his disposal. I will do so later. Municipal work is prose. I will give you some poetry that I want you to commit to memory, a stanza from Carl Sandburg's poem, "The People, Yes". He is an American poet, (English-ridden as we are, we are told America has not and never can have poets. In any way, here goes!)

CENTRAL ASSEMBLY HOUSE AND GALLERIES RAPIDLY THINNED OUT

On Non-moving of Sirdar Sant Singh's Resolution SIR GHAZNAVI'S RESOLUTION REJECTED

New Delhi, Feb. 20
The Central Assembly dismissed non-official resolutions of Sant Singh and Sir Ghaznavi. Sant Singh said he did not move the resolution on the constitutional deadlock as he was called upon to do so and thereafter the House and galleries rapidly thinned out. Earlier in the morning the resolution was rejected by 34 votes. Sir A. H. Ghaznavi's resolution recommending that the Chairman of Karachi, Bombay and Calcutta Port Harbours be appointed ex-officio members of Port Trust Boards of these ports.

APPEALS OF RAILWAY EMPLOYEES Need For Judicial Officer

New Delhi, Feb. 20
In the absence of Dr. Habibur Rahman, Sir Ziauddin moved the resolution recommending the appointment of a judicial mind to listen to appeals of railway employees and to scrutinise the present rule relating to those appeals. Sir Ziauddin said that there was a great deal of dissatisfaction with the manner and method of attending to these appeals. The whole thing was left to the discretion of one man who was often guided by the wishes of his immediate subordinates. Sir Henry Gidney strongly supported the resolution which he considered reasonable, much needed and urgent. Sir Andrew Clow opposing it said that it was and should be the duty of every officer to have a judicial mind using that word in its ordinary English meaning of a sound mind able to form a sound judgment. The Railway Board did its best to have such a mind. But a judicial officer in the technical sense was in his position which the resolution was not to give him. The objection was that the whole method of dealing with appeals was not sound and training of judicial officers in that sense were not to be dealt with. The incident in the life of the Railway Board and come to the attention on evidence, whereas the Railway Board has to deal with the same everyday came to

CLIMAX ON FEB. 28 AND MARCH 1

Population-400 Millions!

ONE AND A HALF MILLIONS ENUMERATORS

Estimated Cost Rs. 50 Lakhs

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 20
The Seventh All-India Census involving gigantic task of counting one-fifth of the world population, reaches its climax on 28th of February and 1st of March when the final check up will be made of figures which are now being collected in some provinces and will be shortly collected in others. The census which the decennial is expected to show the Indian population is well on the way to four hundred millions—an increase of over 13 percent which is a record for the past sixty years. Enumerators number a million and a half but the total cost is estimated at Rs. 50,00,000, stated to be the cheapest in the world proportionately to the population owing to large numbers of voluntary workers. It is hoped to publish provisional total returns by about the 31st of March.

MASULIPATAM CONGRESS

Municipal Councillors Resign

A.P. Masulipatam, Feb. 21
Seven Congress Councillors of the local municipality resigned their seats in pursuance of instruction from the A.I.C.C. that Congress Councillors of local bodies who are in a minority should tender resignation.

Mr. Abdullah declared that Government did in practice recognise communal unions as in the case Anglo-Indian and European community and the case of Railwaymen's Federation which was a Hindu body. Why then not recognise Muslim Unions also?

Sir Henry Gidney said the mover was incorrect in saying there was an Anglo-Indian union. There was no such thing. The National Union of Railwaymen of India and Burma with which he was connected was no communal organisation having members of a number of Indian, Hindus and Muslims. He nevertheless expressed sympathy with the mover because Government toyed with the All-India Railwaymen's Federation which he regarded more or less as a Hindu union.

Mr. Nauman supported the resolution. The debate had not concluded when the House adjourned on Saturday.

BINNY MILLS STRIKE ENQUIRY

Mysore Government Appoint Mr. A. V. Ramanathan as Officer

"THESE FREQUENT STRIKES ARE UNDESIRABLE"

Circumstances of Strike Should be Ascertained

ESSENTIAL OIL MILL INDUSTRY

Exploratory Committee Set Up

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 20
On the recommendation of the Board of Scientific Industrial Research the Government of India have set up an exploratory committee consisting of Messrs. P.A. Narielwala, General Manager, Tata Oil Mills Company Ltd. Bombay, convenor and Mr. J. N. Rakhit, Chemical Examiner to the Government of India (retired) as members, for surveying the present position of essential oil mill industry in the country.

INDO-BURMA TALKS Chance Of Agreement

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 20
It is learned that the non-official advisers to the Government of India on the Indo-Burma trade negotiations and representatives of the Governments of Madras, Bengal and Bombay after fully considering the fresh proposals of the Burma Delegation this evening submitted a report to the Government of India. The report is believed to be unanimous.

It is further learned that the Burma Delegation will meet the British India delegation tomorrow morning before leaving for Rangoon in the afternoon. They are expected to return to India by March 6 to resume negotiations. Responsible circles opine that there is every chance of a trade agreement provided both sides appreciate each other's point of view.

He'd up at Puzza pan involving kidnapping of three persons occurred this afternoon. A lady proceeding to Banu from Puzza was stopped by a gang of Mahabads and Bhutans numbering over 20 at mid-40 from Banu. Lakhand, driver, Husam, passenger and another person were kidnapped. The kidnappers demanded a sum of Rs. 5000 as result of which one Mahabadi was wounded.

Bangalore, Feb. 21
The Labour Commission reported to the Government that the workers of the Bangalore Woollen Cotton and Silk Mills Ltd. struck work on January 20th 1941 and that the Labourers of the Hebbal branch of the Mills also struck work a few days later. As the workers did not resume work though the Mills were kept open, the management went on to close the Mills on the 21st from 10-1-41. As there was no sign of the strike coming to an end through any negotiations between the Management and the labourers on strike, Government advised the Labour Commissioner to inform all concerned that Government would appoint an Enquiry Officer to go to the place to ascertain the circumstances in which the labourers went on strike and that this would be done through the workers' representative which they did on 14-2-41.

There was a strike in the same Mills in July last. Government consider that this is undesirable that there should be such frequent strikes in one of the biggest industrial concerns in the State and deem it necessary to ascertain the circumstances which led to the strike. They are therefore pleased to appoint Rajasevaprakas A. V. Ramanathan, Excise Commissioner in Mysore, to hold the enquiry. The management of the Mills have now agreed to furnish information and to afford such facilities as they can to the Enquiry Officer. Mr. Ramanathan is expected to hold a detailed enquiry and submit a report to the Government.

Our City reporter learns that this appointment has given satisfaction to all concerned.

Mr. B. Kempe Gowda is declared elected vice-president of the Mandya District Board.

Maharaja's Tour

The downward trend in newspaper circulation is not a fault of its contents but it is a sign of the apathy of readers in public. The vagaries of a newspaper buyer is intriguing. It fluctuates with the change in weather. The budget of a newspaper is the key position in determining its popularity. It is a fact that in the case generally all costs newspapers have to pay and they shall live. The Editor of Narasapur have thought it to rush at a needy hour and pay our tribute to their great and good purpose. We do hope that the readers' plea will not fall on deaf ears.

G. F. LABOUR AFFAIR

SPECIAL OFFICER'S ENQUIRY AND AFTER

Mammoth Rally of K.G.F. Workers at Rolla Bhoadagur

EXTENSION OF ENQUIRY DEMANDED

(From a Correspondent)

Kuppam, Feb. 17. The decision of the K.G.F. Union, thousands of workers, to give evidence on the 12th and 14th instants before K. Mathan, Special Officer enquiring into Labour conditions in the K.G.F. The workmen besieging the Special Officer's house in such large numbers were in the K.G.F. Union's instructions to the workers to be a striking contrast to the behaviour of any one to come forward.

Mr. Mathan's previous visits in spite of the fact made in several quarters during the last few days of the enquiry only about 1000 workers were examined out of the 10,000 required and thousands anxious. Evidence was tendered on such points as wages, absence of scales of payment, discrimination, housing conditions, medical provision, bonus, holidays and with pay, sick leave, workmen's compensation, adequate provision for old age, pension of gratuity and provident fund, representation in the Sanitation Committee, etc. Every witness emphasised the restoration of the workers' rights under section 17 of the Mining Act, the repeal of the regulation which gave too much room for persecution and for participation in the legitimate activities of the union, with facilities for functioning unfettered in K.G.F.

Thirteenth Rally At Bhoadagur

Thirteenth weekly rally of the K.G.F. Union held on Sunday last at Bhoadagur in Chittoor Dist. on the borders of Mysore State and about eight miles from Mysore. A very large body of K.G.F. workers attended. From early morning workers arrived at the place in buses from the various mines in K.G.F. They brought with them their own meals for the day. Extra large crowds petty vendors had also set up stalls. Five plateain fruits were sold to the President were auctioned and the proceeds fetched such light cash down as Rs. 1/4 for one fruit.

Mr. Sarma's Speech

P.R.K. Sarma, Hon. President of the Union, presided and addressed the two days held one in the morning and the other in the evening. He congratulated the workers for having so enthusiastically taken evidence before the Special Enquiry Officer as advised by the Union and also for the sympathy and appreciation of the workers and the workers of the Enquiry Officer. The exiled workers were heard at Bangalore when he (Sarma) had also been called and urged to be present. This has removed the apprehensions and enabled the workers to take the Enquiry and the splendid work which it had in the K.G.F. last year. Mr. Sarma said that he had also the pleasure of seeing Sri Meera, M. Linnai, the workers to discuss matters with him for over an hour on the 8th inst. and was quite satisfied with the Enquiry so far as it went after making a decision to co-operate with it. He hoped that the special officers assurances given during the enquiry will not suffer from any misunderstanding and would be justified by the action of the Magistrate and the Police in Mysore. He hoped that the Enquiry will not only redress the workers' grievances but also the unfettered growth of the Union. As the Wholly Commission had no other machinery such as committees and welfare Committees for the workers, the Enquiry Commission did not enquire into the workers' conditions now about 12 years old.

The Mining Companies

The financial position of the Mining Companies was quite sound. The Mysore State Coal Mines Ltd. had a capital of Rs. 1,00,00,000 in 1934 had paid till 1939 a dividend of Rs. 2,00,00,000 which was more than the amount invested. The Company has paid 27½% dividend in 1940. It had even received 100% in many years and even 150% once. The Nandioorg Gold Mining Co. started with a capital of £ 283,000 in 1882 had paid till 1939 a sum of £ 16,870,911 which was sixty times the capital. The Champion reef's Company started with a capital of £ 325,000 in 1892 had paid till 1939 a sum of £ 20,553,237 being 54 times the investment. Similarly the Orisum Co. started with £ 410,000 in 1888 had paid during the 51 years ending with 1939 £ 16,831,111 which is 41 times the investment. The ratio between payments to share holders and to the Govt. showed that the Govt. were only getting one third though they were owners of the mines. There was therefore no justification for the appalling condition of Labour in the K.G.F. which should give place to radical improvement immediately. He advised the workers to be disciplined, peaceful and patient and the working place as well as outside and hoped that local officials will not show any vindictive spirit or unreasonable prejudice which had so embittered relations in the past.

Mr. S. R. Shanmugham

Mr. S. R. Shanmugham Catered Worker made a fervent appeal to the workers not to be deterred by any obstacles in exercising the right of free organisation and to loyally stand by the Union the objects of which were so broad and constitutional.

Mr. Krishnaaswamy

Mr. A. R. Krishnaaswamy, another Ex-terated Worker explained the evidence which he had tendered for the Enquiry before the Special Officer at Bangalore and appealed to the workers to act in such a manner as to win for the Union respect from even its worst enemies. He also explained the procedure laid down for the enrolment of members and collection of subscriptions.

Messrs. Thangaraj and Anandam, two other workers also addressed about the ideals of the Union.

Resolution

A resolution was unanimously adopted urging on the Special Officer for Enquiry into Labour conditions to continue the enquiry of witnesses at least a week more as many departments had not been covered and several persons who could give useful evidence did not get the opportunity to give evidence within the short period of 24 days of the Enquiry.

The workers then marched round the red labour flag thrice singing and shouting labour songs and dispersed at 5-30 P.M.

It is alleged that he committed suicide as he was unable to stand frequent attacks of stomach ache. The Police held the usual inquest.

HEALTH EDUCATION IN MYSORE

Propaganda in Villages

Bangalore, Feb. 19. Health propaganda in Mysore Villages is carried day after day with relentless energy by the Bureau of Health Education. Villagers taught elementary health habits by sweet persuasion in as interesting a manner as possible. In January last, the Publicity Staff covered a distance of nearly 1,000 miles, visiting 7 towns and 5 villages and gave 16 cinema shows, in connection with cattle fairs, and jattras, taluk conferences and baby shows in the districts of Bangalore, Mysore and Hassan. Lectures on village sanitation and personal hygiene were given at the cattle fairs and illustrated posters and leaflets on health subjects were freely distributed. The staff visited primary schools at Periyapatna and Magadi where lectures on "Personal Hygiene", "Fly as a disease carrier" and "soil pollution" were given to the teachers and the students. Health poster exhibitions were arranged at Hassan, Magadi, Sivaganga, Devanahalli, Yeshwanthapur, Nanjangud, Periyapatna, Kunigal and Mahadevapura.

Propaganda talks on the activities of the Red Cross movement in Mysore and Mysore War Fund were given in various centres in Bangalore, Mysore, Hassan districts.

Thai Government issued a communique that there is no truth in the report that ships are in Thai territorial waters and British troops are moved on Thai borders.

SATYAGRAHA IN KARNATAK

A Satyagrahi Handcuffed and Roped

Dharwar, Feb. 18.

Since the starting of Satyagraha in Karnataka Province nearly 250 satyagrahis have been arrested and convicted. But yesterday a satyagrahi from Gadag Village, Shri Ishwarappa Badiger, Executive member of the Dharwar Taluk Congress Committee and Treasurer of Gadag Group Congress Committee was sentenced for four months simple imprisonment and when he was taken to Belgaum Central Jail from Dharwar he was handcuffed along with a criminal convict and his right arm was roped. This is the first instance of a Satyagrahi being handcuffed and roped in this district. The local Congress leaders have approached the Authorities in the matter and great resentment is felt at this sudden change in the treatment of political prisoners in Dharwar.

A. P. Chittrali, Feb. 18.

Mr. Ramkeshan Singh, a Congress worker of Dhanabad, who was arrested at Jharia on 5th February in connection with satyagraha, was sentenced to three months imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 50 in default to undergo further imprisonment for one month.

FRONTIER SATYAGRAHA

Mahatma's Instructions

A. P. It is understood that Mahatma Gandhi has sent a letter to Mr. Aligul Khan, President of the Frontier Provincial Congress Committee, regarding the agreement with Khan Abdul Gaffar Khan's suggestion that Satyagrahis should remain in Frontier Province to finish constructive work and thus there need be no march towards Delhi at present. Referring to those Satyagrahis who want to postpone Satyagraha on some pretext or another Gandhiji is understood to have advised that their names should be struck off unless their case is undeniable. Mr. Aligul Khan is forwarding the letter to Khan Abdul Gaffar Khan.

SUPPORT CEYLON WAR LOANS Governor's Broadcast

A. P. Colombo, Feb. 20

Give though it hurts—the version of legend “Give though it hurts” was commended to the listeners by Sir Andrew Caldecott Governor of Ceylon broadcast last night to Ceylon to support Ceylon War loans. There is no need for me to preach the necessity for our winning the war. Response to our appeals for our war funds up and down the Island is proof that we realise what is at stake. If we lose the war we lose everything that makes life worth while. Governor added every cent of money available should be deposited in the war chest for freedom.

KHALSA DEFENCE LEAGUE

Commander-In Chief's Address

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 21. Replying to an address presented by members of Khalsa Defence of India League to-day the Commander-in-Chief said that he had under active consideration the best means of continuing and improving co-operation between Khalsa and the Army authorities in securing mobilisation of Sikh manpower. As regards representation of the community in officer ranks of the Army, His Excellency emphasised that officers were selected not proportionately in respect of communities, but as Indians. He nevertheless was glad to know that the Khalsa Defence League was taking steps to help finding suitable Sikh candidates and in encouraging educational proficiency, particularly in respect of colloquial English where definite weakness existed. His Excellency remarked he was considering at the moment methods to improve the machinery for securing officers for the army. The Commander-in-Chief assured the deputation that the army would continue to exact strict observance of essential requisites of Sikh religion from Sikh soldiers and no sepoys who ceased to be Sikh would be permitted to continue in service in the Sikh unit. He however could not make the same demands on officers who were not selected with regard to their class.

Continuing His Excellency declared it to be his firm intention to do all he could to secure a position to Sikhs in the army and other armed forces. Sikhs would have every chance of proving to the world that they were true to their traditions and it was for the League to ensure that this chance was not lost.

Sardar Santa Singh's
Resolution

No surprise or regret is expressed at lobby at the withdrawal of the resolution by Sardar Santa Singh at the Central Assembly. As the Muslim League Party took up a hostile attitude and wished to use the occasion for Pakistan Propaganda the Congress Nationalists wisely decided to give up the debate for the only result would have been acrimonious discussion on the floor of the house among elected members themselves on extraneous issues which the Government would have used as an answer to the demand in the Resolution for a conference of leaders. The motion however is to come up for discussion on the sixth March in the Council of State demanding that the Executive Council of Viceroy should be reconstituted with the majority representative non-official Indians with Indian Members in Charge of Finance and Defence.

The new Commander-in-chief Auchinleck, has been meeting a large number of non-officials. He had a long talk yesterday with Mr. Naliniraj, Banker of Calcutta. He is also expected to go on tour within the next few days for personally acquainting himself with the public opinion in various parts of the country.

EASTERN GROUP COUNCIL

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 21. It is learned that Mr. R. B. Elwin, I.C.S., lately Under Secretary, Defence Co-ordination Department, has been appointed Private Secretary to Sir Archibald Carter, Chairman of the Eastern Group Supply Council. Small offices both of Indian Representative and Sir Archibald Carter have been set up pending arrival of other members of Council from Australia, South Africa and New Zealand.

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 21. Two non-officials have given notice against Premier Mr. Bhabha. Mr. Bhabha is understood to have been a victim of a conspiracy by Mr. Bhabha.

Indo-Burma Talks

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 21. Delegates of Burma and India to the Indo-Burma Trade negotiations held a meeting this morning.

BURMA SPEAKER RESIGNS

A.P. Rangoon, Feb. 21. Speaker U Chit Hlaing has resigned.

BURMA DELEGATION

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 21. The Burma Delegation left for Rangoon this evening.

MADRAS GOVERNOR

A.P. Madras, Feb. 21. His Excellency the Governor of Madras returned to Madras this evening.

AHMEDABAD HINDU MAHA
SABHA

Direct Action Resolution

A.P. Ahmedabad, Feb. 21. It is understood that the Hindu Maha Sabha has made arrangements for the purpose of enrolling volunteers to implement the Madras resolution on the Hindu Maha Sabha. This resolution demanded from the British Government a declaration before the March 1941, expressing their disapproval of the Pakistan Scheme and assuring India of Dominion Status in one year after the conclusion of war, failing which the Hindu Maha Sabha would resort to direct action.

ADULTERATION OF MILK, Etc.

First All India Conference

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 21. Presiding over the first All India Conference for the prevention of adulteration of milk, ghee, butter etc., Mr. Santidas Ashkarani suggested that the Conference should send a deputation to wait upon His Excellency the Viceroy to put forth their demands. He declared the root cause of adulteration was shortage of milk and its by-products in this country. He asserted that the action taken by Municipalities and Governments so far failed to check the evil and in view of the fact that adulteration was spreading even in villages some drastic action was called for by which even a layman could detect adulteration either by difference in colour or smell.

Princes And Paramount Power

Among some urgent problems that have been crying for a solution is the one relating to Indian States. In absence of a uniform policy in the matter of transferring power to people of Indian States, different voices are heard. Sometimes they are very discordant. This is due to the fact that the Paramount Power refuses to lay down a definite principle to guide Indian States' Rulers. To what extent the Rulers might transfer power to their people, consistent with their obligations to the Paramount Power, requires to be defined precisely now and here.

Even the British Statesmen have spoken differently on different occasions on this matter. When the Rajkot agitation was at its climax and Mahatma Gandhi was on his fast the Paramount Power woke up as never before to its sense of duty to the people of the States. The "Statesman" of Calcutta went so far as to ask the Paramount Power to depose the then Thakore of Rajkot. Lord Zetland, the then Secretary of State, said on that occasion "The Paramount Power should intervene a little more actively than it had in the past, not with a view to derogating from the Sovereignty of the Princes but for giving them advice with the object of raising the Standard of their administration. We should do what we can to raise the Standard of administration and see that the subjects of their Highnesses get a fair deal."

A few days after, Col. Muirhead, said "No State would be regarded as relieved of its obligations to the Paramount Power by the fact that the Ruler has divested himself of the control necessary to discharge them, and the Paramount Power would remain free to take such steps as might be required to ensure their fulfilment."

This utterance makes it clear that even though Responsible Government is granted by any Maharaja to his people, his obligation to the Paramount Power does not cease.

It is understandable that any Maharaja grant Responsible Government to his people, with minimum obligations to the Paramount Power. Even the people demand Responsible Government under the aegis of their Ruler. There is no conflict at all. In Cochin, a modicum of power is granted to the elected Representatives of the people and Sir Sankaralingam Chetty hopes to see more of it to the elected representatives of the people.

Whereas in Travancore, Sir C. P. S. small tours against a transfer of power to the people, he has made it clear that there is no conflict between Responsible Government on the one hand and a modicum of power to the elected representatives in the other. Sir C. P. S. has suggested in his or not at all. To give it in full he says the treaty relations between the State and the Paramount Power stand in the way. In Mysore this question was discussed there before the Reforms Committee. Having fully considered all the points of view the majority were of the view that the goal of Responsible Government could be declared. But the Government without assigning any reasons turned the proposal down, though in private some people were told that with the existing relations with the Paramount Power such a declaration was not practicable. Even in the matter of appointing Ministers, the Government have not committed themselves to the position of selecting only such elected members as command the confidence of the majority. In other words they do not want to make those Ministers responsible to and removable by the legislature.

Situated as we are today, in spite of our declaration and determination to attain immediate and full responsible Government, it is profitable to consider the present situation as it is. Does Paramount power stand or does it not stand in the way of recognising the principle and goal of an executive responsible to and removable by the legislature in Indian States? If they recognise that to what extent they are going to relax the Princes from their obligations to the Paramount power? Are they prepared to relax their hold on Princes to the extent that they are going to respond to the popular view in British India? This is a tough matter.

If they do not stand for the principle of establishing an executive in the States responsible to and removable by the legislature, do they not stand self-condemned? Do they not discriminate by doing so, between the citizenship of an Indian State and British India? All this discrimination not an account of the fault of the Princes but an account of the fact that the Paramount Power do not want to relax their hold on them.

We would earnestly request our readers to consider this aspect of the problem in all its bearings.

GROUNDNUT SITUATION

Decision Of Delhi Conference

A. P. New Delhi, Feb. 20
In accordance with the arrangements already decided upon earlier, a Conference was held on 20th February, 1941 between representatives of the Government of India and representatives of the Governments of Madras, Bombay and Hyderabad State to consider the groundnut situation and devise suitable measures to mitigate the difficulties arising out of a loss of a large part of India's export market of this commodity, says a Press Note.

The Conference came to the conclusion that it is not practicable to enforce restriction of output by compulsion but that it is necessary to carry on propaganda directed towards a reduction of acreage. It was decided that the most suitable method of helping the cultivator was to encourage consumption of the crop partly by propaganda leaving attention to the use of groundnut as a illuminant and partly by encouraging the consumption of groundnut cake in cattle feed and manure.

NO MILK! NO VEGETABLES!

BANGALORE HOUSEWIVES GET A SCARE!

(T. L. A. Acharya)

Wherever I happen to be on the City's bus, the railway station, the market, the Udiipi Hotel, the homes of my friends I hear definite and unmistakable undertones of fright. "No milk! No vegetables!" It is not a mere undertone, a subterranean fear. It is not an expressed and loudly articulated fear. It does not partake of the nature of the scare-mongering gossip that emanates from the delirium caused by war-fever. People see it coming and are afraid. The housewives, especially, have become terribly apprehensive, scared. The point is this scare has a basis.

The Italian prisoners of war, picked up in the course of the African campaign—I wonder if there are any Italians left in Italy, so many have been taken! are here now, to use correct terminology, billeted on us. I learn that the camp, eight miles from Bangalore and somewhere near Chickababavara, will be a temporary war-time Italy for 23,000 men and 700 officers. What is more important than their being there, they want food. The talk is going the round of the city that a local contractor has undertaken to supply a thousand rupees' worth of vegetables per day! As such contracts go, supply the gentleman must or pay an unwelcome penalty. I do not have statistics of the value of vegetables sold every day in Bangalore. It may conceivably be a thousand rupees, more or less. But this contractor bloke has to obtain, somehow, anyhow, a thousand rupees' worth. He will enlist an army of scouts, pay high prices and corner the vegetable market, corner it to the detriment of the vegetable buyer who goes to the market, bag in hand and three annas in his pocket. Prices will shoot up and, then condemn most of us to the unwholesome monotony of rice and dal. That would be the immediate outcome of a totalitarian regimentation of Bangalore's supply of vegetables.

Add milk to vegetables and imagine the result! My milkman told my wife, this morning, that the milkman-fraternity was in the throes of a major excitement as it anticipated a rise in milk prices to the tune of one rupee—we have even now a few good and honest silver rupees in circulation—a seer. I cannot say how many gallons of milk the Italian innocents will consume. They must be quite a thirsty lot, having trudged through the scorching African deserts and having been landed in summer in a country celebrated for its summer.

So, you see, what I am talking about is not an idler's fancy. I am not out to project a fearful picture. But the point is this: Are we to become the complaining victims of a vegetable-and-milk racket? Is this contractor-war-lord to be the abriter of vegetable prices in the city and the Hitler of the dietary destiny of two lakhs of people? Are our children, the city's future hopes, to be scourged with rickets for the sins of the Italian fascists? I know the vegetable grower, the little market-gardener and the old woman, who

The talk of the town is about the abnormal rise in prices of food stuffs, vegetables and milk. In some cases the prices have gone up fifty percent in the last two three days. There is a definite scare in the minds of the people. Bangalore City consists of very poor people. Even those who get regular income cannot cope with this abnormal rise in prices. The middle and the lower middle class people are hit very hard. Something should be done immediately. Otherwise I am afraid the scare and the discontent will be uncontrollable. It is up to Government and the local Municipality to move speedily in the matter.

What is this sudden rise due to? The popular view is the incoming of the Italian prisoners. It is said only 2,000 have arrived and 18,000 more are yet to be accommodated. The public mind is much agitated over this affair. The matter deserves to be immediately attended to.

The Government of India have passed rules to the effect that beggars and hawkers should not infest trains. This is a very necessary and healthy rule. Now-a-days third class railway travelling has become more than a nuisance due to the invasion of these ticket-less beggars who infest upon your unwanted money. Most of them are ugly, deformed and dirty to look at. Even in Mysore Railways this reform is absolutely essential. I hope the Mysore Railway brings a basket of brinjals from Kugganahalli will benefit by this ramp enormously. I know the secretariat peon, who, in his unofficial hours, functions as a dealer in milk, will be able to flaunt a turban with a bigger lace-border than that of his boss and perhaps, pay the Pathan, money-lender his month's pound of flesh. I know all that. I want them to prosper. But at what cost and at whose expense? It is true that we, in India, specially the Hindus, possess an amazing adaptability and live a simple life. If need be, we shall resign ourselves to our staple rice-and-dal diet. But why should we?

When the war clouds burst and the demon of profiteering raised its head, even here, there was quite a good deal of furor about price control and penalisation of profiteering. Nothing much has happened and profiteering is enjoying a free, uninterrupted and unchecked sway. Personally, I was just hoping to be able to make both ends meet when the war came and threw the two ends further apart than they were ever before. There must be many who have never even seen the two ends.

Any way, there must be a human limit to profiteering. We shall not let it invade the field of vitamins and life-givers—milk and vegetables. I am sure the authorities in the city are cognisant of the position and have in them weapons to fight the menace. But action to be effective and fruitful must be immediate and heroic. "Hands off Mr. Contractor! Hands off our vegetables! And our children's share of milk!" It would be a flagrant wrong to allow the prices of vegetables and milk to go up. I appeal to the Government and the Municipality and draw their attention to this. I am not a professional alarmist.

A good lot of fun flows on the floor of the Central Assembly which the people in the various galleries might enjoy. All fun that takes place there is reported in the Newspapers, sometimes one or two of them that are reported make a pleasant reading. When the House is to ticketless (1) it was discussed the Communications Member humoured that he had received a representation from ticketless travel Association. This is what happened.

Maulana Zafar Ali Khan received representation from Madras Association that the not like this Bill?

Sir Andrew-L have also asked a representation from ticket-less-travellers (loud laughter) They like the Bill either and I read their memorial to House to-morrow.

There was again another in the Assembly on the 19th. The discussion was again a reference to the same Bill. House rejected Mr. Naval amendment to provide the railway servant could obtain the help of a railway ordinate (to eject a ticketless passenger) and not of "any son" the latter phrase in opinion being liable to be any other passenger who might be an enemy of the person concerned, or might be a per.

A voice: Or his wife (laughter)
I feel that this could be an occasion for a vegetable industry drive and a cheap good-milk drive. The latter people could grow vegetables. The Agricultural Department could do something about the latter has its farms. So efforts could be made to promote a Government agricultural market-gardening industry. I have the example of Gandhigals! Not cheap-produce in a co-operative way. The Municipality is it better to grow vegetables and milk huge dairy industry. All this could be done.

The housewife is who will give us milk. Think of our lot, six months will it be six months of vegetables, not to speak of

GANDHIJI'S REPLY TO

A. P. "The Hindu Mahasabha" so inclined it could partake the re-organisation of the Central Government, but question of the Congress does so would not arise, so long as the Congress demand remained unconceded."

This is stated to be the reply given by Gandhiji to the resolutions put forward by Dr. Varadrajulu Naidu, General Secretary of the Hindu Mahasabha, a view to bring about a settlement of the political differences.

Gandhiji is said to have Dr. Naidu that the reply by him recently to an article in the "Times of India", fully represented the position.

Mr. C. Rajagopala Aiyar is appointed as Assistant Railway Audit Office.

The Chief Scout Speaks To The World

LORD BADEN-POWELL'S LAST MESSAGE

Put a Bit Of Happiness Into The Lives Of Others"

George S. Arundale, Chief Scout of the Hindustani Scout Association in the Madras District, has received the full text of the Chief Scout, Lord Baden-Powell of Gilwell, who died in January at his home in Kenya. The text of the message is published below:

To The Public

The first message is addressed to the general public. It has been an intensely personal one, not only in my own circle, but also in the outside it.

As I would like, before I go hence, to how grateful I am to the thousands of Scouts they have rendered to

I have been deeply touched from time to time by that jolly fellow which I have met with my brother Scouts and from the subjects of all stations in throughout the Empire.

For has this goodwill been merely to fellow countrymen, for men of other qualities have given me their willingness in the same way.

has been due to not to me, since in a great number of ways they have been entirely for me; but it has been expression on their part of readiness that lay in their

has helped very largely in making my life the happy it has been, and for that I do hope that that same spirit will be inculcated in the next generation, so that the lives will be made the happy and the practice, not merely in the Christian of peace and goodwill among men may become general.

Looking back on a life of over 70 years, I realise how short life and how little while little and political warfare is the most worth while thing to try and put a bit of happiness into the lives of others.

To Boy Scouts

The second message is addressed to Boy Scouts:

My dear Scouts,—If you have seen the play, "Peter Pan" you will remember how the Chief Scout was always making a speech, because he was that "possibly, when the time came for him to die, he did not have time to get it off his chest.

So much the same with me; so, although I am not at the moment dying, I shall be so in some of these days, and I want to send you a parting word of good-bye.

Remember it is the last you will ever hear from me—so think of me.

I had a most happy life, and each one of you to have a happy life too.

Remember that God put us in this world to be happy and to help others.

Kindness doesn't come from the heart, it comes from the mind. It is not merely from indulgence.

APPALLING COST OF WAR WITH CHINA

Will Japanese Be Lured Into Another Conflict?

Enormous Public Debt

(By Cable.) London. Commenting on the appalling cost to Japan of the four-years war with China, an editorial in the Times recalls:

For the last five years the Government's annual expenditure has been multiplied five times. The annual debt now amounts to the whole of the 1935-36 budget, while the standard of living of the people has been deliberately reduced on the totalitarian model.

Nevertheless, the war with China is far from being finished, and there are actually signs that the present leaders of the country may drive the Japanese people into a new war. It is perfectly plain that no foreign country is thinking of attacking Japan, and yet her rulers are making fresh preparations to conduct a war at sea and are increasingly declaring their interest in the affairs of the Southern Pacific. It seems hardly credible that responsible statesmen can be so infatuated as to believe that the lack of success in one war can be retrieved by starting another and there is in fact no doubt that, in turning their attention to an area in the Pacific where French, Dutch and British interests are predominant, the Japanese are playing the German game at the bidding of Berlin. The Japanese people have joined, or have been joined to the Axis, and they are being called on to display alike to their rulers and their allies their loyalty, which to do them Justice, is their special virtue.

Hitler's Plan

It would, of course, suit Germany very well to see British and Dutch resources being expended now in the struggle in the Far East. It is Hitler's obvious strategy to get this country to spread its war effort over as many different theatres as possible, while he is massing German strength for a blow at the heart. Fortunately the tricks of Hitlerian statecraft are by now pretty well-known and Britain is everywhere well-prepared. The misfortune is that the Japanese leaders still seem to be willing to allow themselves to be used as a cat's paw, disregarding the fate of other countries which have hitched their wagons to the German star. No doubt some of them believe that the present is a rare opportunity to snatch territory from nations heavily engaged elsewhere. Other countries have thought the same, but the idea has brought them no luck. It is easy to see how Japan may try to serve Germany. It is not so easy to see how Germany can help Japan.

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 20

Nawabzada Liaqat Ali Khan has been selected by Mr. M.A. Jinnah, President of the All India Muslim League, to contest the seat for Rohilkhand and Kumaon division Muslim Rural Constituency in the Central Legislative Assembly on Muslim League ticket.

One step towards happiness is to make yourself healthy and strong while you are a boy, so that you can be useful, and so can enjoy life when you are a man.

Nature study will show you how full of beautiful and wonderful things God has made the world for you to enjoy.

Be contented with what you have got, and make the best of it; look on the bright side of things instead of the gloomy one. But the real way to get happiness is by giving out happiness to other people.

Try and leave this world a little better than you found it, and when your turn comes to die you can die happy in feeling that at any rate you have not waited your time but have done your best.

"Be prepared" in this way to live happy and to die happily—stick to your Scout Promise always—even after you have ceased to be a boy—and God help you to do it.

You friend, Baden-Powell

TICKETLESS TRAVELLERS' BILL

Amendments Moved And Disposed Of New Delhi, Feb. 19

The Assembly rejected without division the amendment to Ticketless Travellers Bill moved by Dr. Bannerjee for omission of clause providing for grant of certificate to bonafide passengers who for exceptional reasons cannot purchase ticket, certificate being to the effect that the passengers had been permitted to travel on the condition that he subsequently pays fare payable (or distance travelled).

Sir Andrew Clow accepted and the House passed Pandit L. K. Maitra's amendment to the effect that the railway servant authorised to give permission to the passengers to travel in circumstances referred to above, shall ordinarily instead of may grant certificate. Mr. Maitra attempted through the amendment to provide the railway servant appointed for this purpose not to be ticket collector or ticket inspector and not be below the rank of Station Master.

Sir Clow opposed and said that he was prepared to accept the latter amendment which sought to make clear that the Magistrate shall decide on facts. The amendment was negatived. Mr. Essak Sait's amendment laying down only the Magistrate of first or second class be empowered to act under the clause, was accepted by Sir Clow and passed.

According to an earlier understanding the Communication Member accepted the same member's amendment to the effect that the Magistrate shall order recovery of sum if satisfied that the sum is payable. The amendment was passed. The House divided on the next amendment moved by Mr. R. N. Chattopadhyaya to provide that the Magistrate should satisfy himself after proper investigation. The amendment was rejected by 42 votes to 19.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai attempted deletion of all words in the clause giving power to Magistrate to order imprisonment which might extend to a month. The amendment was rejected by 40 votes to 19 and the clause as amended was passed.

MR. WILKIE'S DISCLOSURES TO MR. ROOSEVELT

Strengthening President's Aid-to-Britain Policy

London. The Washington correspondent of the Daily Mail cabled on February 12

The detailed report on Britain's war needs which Mr. Wendell Wilkie made to Mr. Roosevelt here on the 11th will have immediate results, according to reliable Washington circles.

Mr. Wilkie in his talk with the President set out bluntly what he considers should be done to make American aid for Britain effective.

As a result, Mr. Roosevelt is expected to call a conference of his military advisers in the near future to draw up a new plan for sending ships, planes and tanks to Britain.

The picture of Britain's needs which Mr. Wilkie painted for the President was far more vivid than the statement he made before the Senate Committee considering the Lease and Lend Bill, because, according to persons in touch with White House, he was able to give a series of confidential figures gleaned during his tour of Britain.

Mr. Wilkie's testimony is regarded as having helped Mr. Roosevelt considerably from the point of view of uniting the whole country behind his bold Aid-to-Britain Policy.

x x x

Mr. B. N. Thammaiah Setty, is elected Vice-President of the Turuvekere Minor Municipal Council reconstituted from 1st January 1941.

The Congress Nationalists and Moslem League Members combined again to oppose the next clause which empowered any railway servant with the help of any person to reject a passenger who attempted to travel in a carriage without ticket or refused to deliver ticket to examination. The House adjourned till tomorrow.

DHARWAR NOTES

SUSPENSION OF "UNITED KARNATAKA"

From a correspondent

Dharwar, Feb. 19

It is with mixed feelings of pain and pleasure that I now bid good bye to my readers. I am pained because I have to suspend the publication of the journal during the period of my absence. I am glad because while so doing I am responding to a more urgent and a higher call in joining the rank of Satyagrahis. We are to-day a nation of slaves and our first duty is to fight the battle of freedom. Every thing else is secondary and must subserve this main purpose. Till freedom's battle is won, we must either be fighting or be preparing for the fight. Obviously in a non-violent battle like this, Satyagraha is the actual fight and every other activity is a preparation for it either directly or indirectly.

I have been editing this weekly for the last Thirty-one months. I have once and often intimated to my readers the difficulties under which I was carrying on the duties which had devolved upon me. The recent press restriction had rendered the task more arduous. More often than not, I had to bear the entire burden of editing, printing and publishing. It is only since October last that the "Samyukt Karnataka" Press of Hubli had taken upon itself the responsibility of printing and publishing the journal. They had thus relieved me comparatively from burdens other than editing. I must thank them for what they have done for the journal during the last few months.

I must take this occasion to thank all other friends who have ungrudgingly and promptly responded to my call and helped this cause either financially or by contributing articles to the journal. Let me look forth for the day and occasion when I shall be able under better auspices to serve the cause and let me assure all that the flame in me is unflagging and the zeal to serve as fresh as ever. I cannot foretell the period of suspension nor the date of revival as everything seems to be uncertain except the solid fact of suffering for the nation to-day, here and now. But if the nation's faith remains unshaken and if we follow with unflinching loyalty our chosen leader, the dawn is not far distant. With this trust in the future, let us march on, each doing his duty without looking either to the right or to the left.

HANDICAP DOUBLES TOURNEY FINALS

MADRAS MARKET REPORT

(From our correspondent)

MADRAS, Feb. 19

The following is the weekly review of the Madras Market Report from Messrs Kothari & Sons:

Since our comment in our last Report the Stock Market has shown a dropping tendency with prices inclined to fall down in some of the later-market shares. Although, fears about the possibilities of fresh taxation by the Central Government in the forthcoming Budget, and imposition of Excise Duty on Steel, Cotton, Cement and Sugar have not been completely ruled out, there has been an increased anxiety over the disturbed international situation in the Far East and in Balkans. Operators seem to be making time until the Budget is out of the way.

Government Securities have been decidedly easier. 3 1/2% Paper which was better at Rs. 96 1/2 during the first half of last week has now been marked down to Rs. 94 1/2 due to heavy offering. 4% 1 1/2 70 has also been brought down to Rs. 107 1/2 from a previous rate of Rs. 108 1/2. 3 1/2 1963 65 which was in good demand last week at Rs. 94 9/10 have now been on offer at Rs. 94 1/2 1951-54 is easier at Rs. 99 2/10, 4 1/2 1955 60 at Rs. 113 4/10 and 5 1/2 1945-55 at Rs. 112 2/10. There has not been any appreciable change as regards State and Provincial Loans have been concerned. 3% Travancore and Cochin Loans have been in short supply, although buyers are reported to meet sellers even at slightly higher levels. 3% Madras Loans remain unchanged.

BANKS: Banks have been a neglected counter. Indo-Commercial Bank's shares were done at Rs. 47 1/2, Indian Bank small at Rs. 3 1/2, Indian Overseas Bank at Rs. 51 X D. and Reserve Bank in large parcels at Rs. 105.

TEXTILES: Business was of a restricted nature. Pankajias came to hand at Rs. 96/0 Coimbatore Spg. at Rs. 35/0, Cam. odias at Rs. 92/0, Buckingham at Rs. 243/0, Kaleswaram at Rs. 297/8, Madras at Rs. 43/0, Rajakshami Mills at Rs. 54 X D. and Meitru Industries at Rs. 108/0.

IN FINED INTEREST BEARING SECURITIES: business was possible in Nilgiri Neerugundi Pref. at an improved rate of Rs. 92-8-0, South Madras Electric second Pref. at Rs. 12-4-0, Malanallai Pref. at Rs. 25-0, Ayer Manni Pref. at Rs. 10-0, Devon Tea Pref. at Rs. 105-8, Rangoon Pref. at Rs. 24-4/8, Indian steel Rolling Mills Pref. at Rs. 11-8-0 and Onclat Paper Pref. at Rs. 106 X D.

PLANTINGS: This group did not witness any increased activity and prices have been more or less unchanged. Highlands have been better at Rs. 33-4-0, Lavangore Rubber at Rs. 8-10-0, Udaya at Rs. 6-2/0, Devayalash at Rs. 8-2/0, United Nilgiri Tea at Rs. 121-8/0 and Nilgiri Neerugundi at Rs. 17-0-0. Balan or Is. ancha gel at Rs. 9-12/0, Cottanad at Rs. 5-14/0, Nilambur at Rs. 11-4/0, Jochi Malabar at Rs. 6-12/0, Nellore at Rs. 8-3/0, Tropicals at Rs. 18-12/0, Thamarappally at Rs. 8-10/0, Thirunadai at Rs. 14-1/0 and Midland at Rs. 5-4/0.

There has not been much business in Electrical shares although there has been a keen demand. Madras Telephones are lower at Rs. 16-8-0, Idia Cochin State Power has been better at Rs. 9-4-0. Sugars have been popular along with Papers and Chemicals. Mysore Sugars are better at Rs. 50-0, Decent Sugar big at Rs. 223-0, Travancore Sugar at Rs. 13-14-0, and India Sugars at Rs. 10-4-0. Mysore Paper has improved to Rs. 14-8-0, Mysore Chemicals and Fertilisers to Rs. 17-8-0, Mysore Chemicals Manufactures to Rs. 14-4-0 and Meitru Chemicals at Rs. 9-8-0.

In other Miscellaneous issues, Tata Chemicals was done at Rs. 13-12-0, A.V. Thomas at Rs. 15-4-0, Brunton Engineering Co. at Rs. 8-8-0, Alkali and Chemical Ord. at Rs. 18-0, Singareni at Rs. 10-12-0 and Steel Rolling Mills at Rs. 7-12-0.

GENERAL DISCUSSION ON RAILWAY BUDGET

FAVOURITISM SHOWN TO ANGLO-INDIANS CRITICISED

Government Blamed for Muslim Leaguers' Walk-Out

"Discontinue Recruitment on Communal Basis"

New Delhi, Feb. 22. Mr. Sant Singh opening the debate in the Central Assembly characterised the Budget as a great disappointment in several senses. It showed large surplus and yet no provision had been made for relief to the labour who had to pay higher rates on the movement of goods on which their blood depended. He dwelt on the grievance arising from the fact shown to one community, namely the Anglo-Indians, and declared that the Railways claimed to be on a commercial basis, such special treatment to any community was reprehensible.

Mr. L. C. Buss said that for the first time for many years the Budget had been able to make a full contribution to the revenue under the terms of the Convention. Mr. Buss welcomed the decision to add to the Depreciation Fund and the Reserve. He strongly criticised the Government's policy in favour of a conservative

Sir Ghaznavi Abdul Halim Ghaznavi regretted the action of the Muslim League Party in coming out from the House this morning. "They had done a great disservice to the Muslim community and I hope that the members of India would take note of their action this morning. Speaking on the budget Mr. Ghaznavi said that in view of the phenomenal increase in the railway surplus, Government had not reduced railway rates and fares. The export of goods to the country was at a standstill and yet no measures had been taken to encourage inter-provincial trade.

Sir Henry Gidney Henry Gidney asserted that the large increase in the railway surplus was not due to any increase in efficiency in the railway but to the control of the Government by the war and the increase in the rates and fares. He alluded to the dismantling of railway lines and asked why such uneconomical lines were permitted to be constructed and why they were allowed to continue for such a long time.

Mr. Navalrai

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai blamed the Government for the Muslim League Party's action this morning, for it was the Government who issued orders for recruitment on a communal basis. He declared that the time had come now for the withdrawal of the circular under which recruitment on communal basis was being made. He also stressed the need for reduction, if not removal of surcharge in freights and fares.

Mr. Navalrai urged that rebate on wheat exports should not be withdrawn and that since the Railway Member had made provision in the budget for possible war allowance orders should immediately be issued granting allowance. He complained about the present method of recruitment which, he said, had the result of keeping Sindhis down to a small number in railway services.

Mr. Deshmukh

Mr. Govind Deshmukh referring to the dismantling of railways which had been declared to be uneconomical said it was not much consolation to agriculturists or to other users to be told that they could rely on motor bus as an alternative form of transport. He received the information to the effect that in Central Provinces and Berar a hundred motor vehicles were being acquired by the military authorities.

Mr. Chattopadhyaya

Mr. Amarendranth Chattopadhyaya asked the Railway Member to consider what would be the position of 'railway finances after the war. Welcoming the decision to acquire more company-managed railways he urged that all state-managed railways should be amalgamated and brought under a uniform system of administration.

Mr. Bose's sudden decision to offer his services to Mahatma Gandhi in connection with the satyagraha movement and to reject the latter on grounds of fundamental differences in the latter's philosophy of non-violence and the former's between the two is a matter of great interest. Mr. Bose's sudden decision to offer his services to Mahatma Gandhi in connection with the satyagraha movement and to reject the latter on grounds of fundamental differences in the latter's philosophy of non-violence and the former's between the two is a matter of great interest.

Mr. Bose writing in the January says:—"The sentence in your letter the full significance of which I do not sure I grasp correctly. I said 'Till one of us is converted to the other's view we must not differ from each other. I am not of that opinion. I am of the opinion that the only way to the solution of the political crisis in India is through non-violence. I am not of that opinion. I am of the opinion that the only way to the solution of the political crisis in India is through non-violence."

Mr. Bose also stated positively that he would not publish the correspondence if necessary.

As Gandhiji had not received this letter, Mr. Mukund Lal Sarcar sent a copy on the 19th February to which Gandhiji replied saying:—

"The differences in our case are vital and fundamental. Subhas Babu knows them and I expect you too know them."

Gandhiji requested that he should be informed of Mr. Bose's whereabouts as soon as known.

Mr. Sarkar acknowledging the letter of Gandhiji's letter says:—

"Mr. Subhas and his associates in the Forward Bloc had all along advocated means of 'non-violent' mass struggle as the only potential force to secure independence. And therefore independence thus secured is surely independence through non-violent means."

Town And Minor Municipalities

The report on the administration of the Town and Minor Municipalities in the State for the year 1939-40 makes an interesting reading. There are 40 Town and 64 Minor Municipal Councils. The Municipalities of Channarayana, Murgur and Thirthahalli are under Government management. That means those Municipal Councils were superseded. The Gubbi Town Municipal Council was also superseded last year. These supersessions tell their own tale. It is due to the factious spirit of the people even in towns that municipalities have to be suppressed. It is a matter which ought to make us think seriously about our public life. In our opinion discipline in public life can only come when there are well organised public parties like the Congress. Even the opponents of the Congress should accept one undeniable fact that where there is chaos and disorder in public life they have introduced order and discipline. Congress organisation is something like a non-official Government or if you prefer to call it a military order. Government are earnest about purifying public life and training people for self rule, it is necessary that they should encourage non-official organisations like the Mysore Congress. This is only an incidental observation which we make in connection with supersession of some Municipal Councils in the State.

The report under review contains some interesting observations by Government in respect of some lapses of the Municipal Councils. Government regret to observe that in spite of repeated instructions no committees were formed in many of the Municipalities and that the Committees formed in some Municipalities did not function satisfactorily. In Chitaldurg, the review says, the expenditure was more than the income. The financial condition of the several Municipal Councils was not satisfactory, the prescribed minimum balance not having been maintained by them. The Government give a list of about 12 Municipalities whose arrears were more than Rs. 10,000. The arrears were more than the previous year in Dargachery, Shimoga, Tumkur, Hassan, Harihar, Kolar, Chitaldurg, and Hunsur Municipalities.

In respect of audited accounts Government regret to observe that the work of discharging of audit notes and objection statements has not been attended to promptly by the Municipalities. In the Bangalore Municipal Council, Hassan and Kolar Districts, and in the Mysore Municipal Council, no information regarding the audit notes and objection statements has been furnished by the Deputy Commissioners of the Districts in spite of specific instructions in the previous year.

It is encouraging to note that there are no cases of uncollectible

the Municipalities excepting that of Mandya where a sum of Rs. 143-9-0 out of the toll-rate collections was misappropriated by the toll-misad of the Municipality.

On the whole, the Government express their satisfaction about the keen interest the Municipal Councilors evinced in their work.

We desire that our non-official gentlemen study the administration of the town and minor municipalities and offer useful suggestions for their improvement. After all, the Municipal Councils of Towns and Minor Municipalities are training institutions for our public men. One who does well as a Municipal Councilor is bound to do well even as a Minister. Efficiency in the one leads to the efficiency in the other.

THE FIGHT IN A REFRESHMENT ROOM

Periyar has scored a victory not in politics but inside the precincts of a railway refreshment room and before the steaming plates of luscious edibles. He has fought a gallant battle with the Railway High Command at Delhi as a result of which the board "For Brahmans only" has been shoved into the rubbish. The triumphant entry into the hitherto forbidden Dining Hall has been marked with outbursts of Dravidianism from various platforms. The distinction at the many Dining Halls were made out of necessity and not in anyway to provoke the "Dravidians" who perceive a fearful vision of Aryan crusade. However much we dislike the distinction at a public place Periyar need not have fought such a hard battle to gain his footing in Refreshment stalls. It is amusing indeed that the leader of a very vast community like the one which our venerable Periyar represents should have interested himself in such a flimsy affair. The apostle of communalism in South India has cleverly brought about a hearty concord between two warring communities and we hope he will fly his flag of unity in the broader field ere long. The fight in the Refreshment room reminds us of the storm in the tea cup and Periyar's entry into the forbidden hall hitherto reserved for brahmans coincide with his latest trick to embrace Royism.

Mr. M. N. Roy is in a company with Periyar both of whom are attempting to raid Fort St. George for getting safe berths as Coalition Ministers. The self assumed leader of a new South Indian Nation has done well to hobnob with another political stunt-maker providing an unusual spectacle of varied mental aberrations. Roy-Periyar combination is of a first rate importance to those who look forward to funny political romances in the capital of "Dravida Nelu". Three cheers to the bearded old man and the disappointed revolutionary to whom Wardha is an anathema.

CLOSEST HEALTH CENTRE

A Model For India

(Contributed)

The 'Times' (London) Educational Supplement, reviewing public health propaganda in India, makes the following reference to Mysore:

"Of late certain centres known as 'health units' have been established by Provincial Governments and some of the larger States through the generosity of the Rockefeller Foundation which meets part of the expense during the first five years of the existence of these organisations, in the understanding that thereafter their maintenance will be undertaken by the Government themselves. Characteristically the Mysore State seems to have been the first administration to take advantage of the offer of the Rockefeller Foundation. The Closest health unit in the State has been in existence since the beginning of 1936 and has had a steady development in all phases of public health work. All medical probationers and all sanitary inspectors appointed by the Mysore Government are required to spend not less than two months in the health unit. Public health workers from other parts of India visit the area for a study of methods."

Maddur And Mandya Taluks

Bangalore, Feb. 22
One more step to stamp out malaria in certain parts of Mysore has been taken true to the Government's policy of affording medical relief to the suffering on an increasing scale from time to time. Now Government have sanctioned the proposal of the Senior Surgeon for starting four itinerant dispensaries in the Irwin Canal Area at the Maddur and Mandya taluks to combat malaria. This is the first instance where a period of three months, the total initial and recurring expenditure being Rs. 12,000. A demand for this sum will be placed before the next session of the Legislative Council.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

A friend has brought to my notice some sentences in Mr. M. N. Roy's speech, delivered in Madras with Mr. E. V. Ramaswamy Naicker in the chair. As I foreboded there was disturbance in the meeting. The speaker could not proceed for a time. Order had to be restored and the meeting proceeded with.

Mr. Roy seems to have said in the meeting that he felt the Congress was not really pursuing the goal of popular freedom; if it did, he said, there would be no necessity for men like Mr. Jinnah and Mr. Ramaswamy Naicker to be out of the Congress. I do not know why he did not include his own name. It appears he said in the meeting that he wanted to carry on anti-fascist propaganda, disciplinary action was taken against him and ultimately he was expelled from the Congress.

The reaction to this statement in the meeting was "They did very well indeed". Mr. Roy spoke very jeeringly of the Congress and said that all those who were not in the Congress were politically dead. He continued saying, if all those who did not pay four annas and put on a particular brand of cloth should be politically dead, India today must have become a vast graveyard. In a bravado spirit he said "I lived before the Gandhian Congress and I shall survive the Gandhian Congress."

The audience naturally did not brook this. They created a disturbance and cried "wait and see".

I cannot congratulate Mr. M. N. Roy on his exploits. He seems to ignore the reality of the situation. He seems to pursue his own fancy and phantasies. Gandhiji is a hard reality as the Himalayas and Congress is the living stream of India, even as Ganges is. Mr. M. N. Roy would do well to observe silence for a few days and learn a lot of undigested and uncorrelated stuff with which he has filled his head. Congress would survive hundreds of Roy. It is immaterial whether Mr. Roy would survive Congress or not.

I am told he is coming to Bangalore on March 1. As he sought the help of Periyar at Madras to aid him in his propaganda, I hope he also would take the aid of the Rastriya Paksha to address a public meeting in Bangalore. He may as well say here that the Mysore Congress was not really pursuing the goal of responsible Government, for the simple reason that there were not some pillars of Rastriya Paksha in it.

Mysore Silk Conference

Mr. N. Madhava Rao's Address

Various Problems of Silk Discussed

From our correspondent)
Mysore, Feb. 22.
The fourth Conference of the State Sericulturists took place today at T. Narasipur, the distinguished president of the Rajamantrapravina N. Madhava Rao, First Member of the Government, presided. A large number of sericulturists participated in the conference.

Narasimha Rama Rao delivered a welcome address after which the President spoke as follows:

Late Maharaja
I am thankful to Rajasabha Bahadur K. R. Narasimha Rao for giving me the opportunity of meeting you at this the Fourth Provincial Sericultural Conference. On the occasion like this our thoughts turn to the passing of His Highness Sri Krishnaraja Wodeyar Bahadur who has left the Sericultural movement in Mysore owing to the loss of His Highness Narasimharaja Wodeyar who was the last Sericultural Conference in 1933 and whose deep interest in all that concerned the welfare of the agriculturists was a feature of his public activities.

At previous conferences held at a time when the industry was passing through difficulties. The demand for silk had gone down, there was keen competition for foreign silks, the price of cocoons and silk had fallen to uneconomic levels and sericulturists in Mysore suffered heavy losses. Apart from the efforts made by the Government of India and, it is gratifying to remember, with successful results. The attitude of the Government of India, and the international situation helped the indigenous silk industry to a great extent. The price of cocoons and silk have been encouraging during the last 14 months. Over 5,000 cocoons have been newly brought into the mulberry in Mysore. It is gratifying to hear that the area under mulberry has increased in Mysore, Bengal and other sericultural parts of India. Sericulture is being newly started in Punjab, Baroda, United Provinces, Bihar and Central Provinces.

It is gratifying to hear that this Conference convened at an opportune moment when the claims of the industry for support and aid for its expansion are so widely recognised.

A Century Ago

You are all aware that over a century ago, India was not only a large consumer of silk but also a large producer of it. The quantity of silk produced in India was such that it was a major contributor to the world's supply. At that time, about 40 lakhs of lbs. of silk were produced in India. Mysore is responsible for roughly one-half of that quantity. About 15 years ago, the area under mulberry in Mysore amounted to over 50,000 acres and the annual production of silk to about 12 lakhs of lbs. Though the area under mulberry went down to about 25,000 acres during the period of depression, the production of silk in Mysore (about 8,00,000 lbs.) has not fallen to proportionate extent due to adoption of improved methods by the sericulturists. The climatic and other conditions in Mysore are said to be very favourable for the silk industry and it should be quite possible to increase the production in Mysore to over 20 lakhs of lbs. in the near future as a result of the combined efforts of all concerned. The Governments of other States and Provinces where sericulture is an important industry are organising their work with the same objectives and there is no reason why with the natural advantages possessed, India which is perhaps the only Empire Country producing this valuable material should not regain a position of self-sufficiency and at the same time meet the requirements of the Empire.

Imports

The imports of better reeled foreign silks and their sale at cheap rates in India have changed the whole aspect of the silk weaving industry. The silk weavers who were satisfied with the silk produced in country charakas have been asking for better quality and cheaper price. The consumers also have been asking for lighter fabrics produced out of better reeled silk.

The markets for indigenous raw silk can be secured, consolidated and expanded provided the quality of the silk is improved and the cost of production reduced. So far as improving the quality is concerned, it is gratifying to note that in addition to the Filature started by the Mysore Silk Filatures, Ltd., at T. Narasipur, two more Filatures will be started by the same Company at Kuderu and Sidaghatta and the Mysore Spun Silk Mills will run the Government Filature at Channarayana. The production of silk in well organised filatures is the best way of assuring a steady supply of raw silk of the required quality, and it would be a good thing if enterprising and moneyed people come forward to start and run the filatures without seeking the assistance of Government.

Along with the organisation of filatures on a factory scale, there is always room for carrying on the reeling industry on the cottage basis. It is gratifying to hear that the reellers in the indigenous country charakas also have improved the quality of the silk to a noticeable extent.

The quality of cocoons depends upon the seed used, the quality of mulberry leaves and the rearing methods adopted by the sericulturists. Production of cocoons is in the hands of illiterate sericulturists in interior villages and it takes considerable time and patience to induce them to adopt new methods. You are all aware that intensive work is being done by the Department of Sericulture to increase the supplies of examined silk worm seed and to improve the rearing method. Ten Government and 40 aided grainages have been established and the supply of examined seed of higher and quicker yielding hybrid races is being steadily developed. Experimental work on mulberry cultivation, rearing of worms, production of seed and allied subjects is being carried on in the Government Silk Farms to the extent possible and the results are being tested on the fields and in the homes of the sericulturists. It is gratifying that the sericulturists are responding to the advice of the Departmental staff.

Silk Association

The Mysore Silk Association and the Board of Sericulture have been working in close cooperation with Government and have been advising Government regarding the measures to be taken for the improvement of the industry.

The problem of seed supply, especially of the first generation cross breeds, is an intricate one. Apart from the maintenance and improvement of the Mysore race, the purity and virility of the foreign races used for crossing have to be maintained. The difficulties with regard to the foreign races have been accentuated by the fact that the export of silk worm seed has been prohibited by certain countries. All possible steps have been taken in Mysore to maintain the purity, virility and the good qualities of the foreign races available. An Experimental Silk Farm has also been started on Biligirirangan hills to see if the foreign races can be further improved by rearing on the hills.

Indian Conference

At the second All-India Sericultural Conference held at Lucknow in December 1940, a resolution was passed unanimously requesting the Government of India to provide facilities for periodical imports of eggs of univoltine and bivoltine races, and Sir Alan Lloyd who presided over the deliberations of the Imperial Sericultural Committee gave an assurance that the Government of India would take up the question. Though there is keen demand for eggs of first generation cross breeds in Mysore, we have naturally to hasten slowly in this respect. The question of increasing the examined seed supply in Mysore is engaging the attention of a Sub-Committee of the Board of Sericulture, and we are looking forward to the report of the Committee for useful advice on the methods by which this supply could be improved and accelerated.

Scientific Problems

Apart from the administrative problems, there are several scientific problems to be tackled and solved if the indigenous silk industry is to withstand outside competition. In this connection, it is well to remember that it is only through sustained research and adoption of improved methods that Japan has been able to become the premier silk producing country in the world.

Though some amount of experimental work has all along been done in Mysore and research work along certain lines has been started in Bengal a couple of years ago, there is no Central Sericultural Research Station in India. It is high time that a fully equipped central research station was started in a suitable locality where the matic conditions admit of work being carried on throughout the year. I understand that the need for such a station was earnestly pressed at the second All-India Sericultural Conference and at the seventh meeting of the Imperial Sericultural Committee.

Quality of Raw Silk

As has been already mentioned by me, the quality of raw silk produced has to be improved to meet the demand at home and abroad. Legislative control of seed supply would not only extend accelerate the production of good cocoons and the quality of the silk but also ensure the quality of standard supplies of standard Mysore raw silk. The question of starting a silk conditioning house in Mysore is engaging the attention of Government.

Silk Fabrics

Apart from the market demand for the silk produced out of Mysore silk, the climatic and other conditions are favourable in Mysore for developing the silk weaving industry. By utilising the local labour locally for producing fabrics in demand in other markets, the cost of production is reduced and employment is provided to a large number of skilled people. There is great scope for private initiative and enterprise in this direction.

The advent of artificial silk and substitutes has created another problem. Apart from the low prices, the silk substitute goods afford peculiar facilities for being passed off as real silk goods. In the interests of both the consumer and the silk industry, it is necessary that action is taken to stop such practices. In the United States of America and other countries, laws have been passed making it obligatory to indicate on the fabric itself a statement of its composition. Such legislation has become necessary in India to prevent fraud and assure a market for the Indian silk weavers' genuine products.

Reference in Japan

The problems of the silk industry are of a peculiar nature and cannot be solved by either Government alone or by the people alone. These can only be solved, as is evidenced in Japan, when the Government and the people work hand in hand. As I have already stated, we are in some respects well placed in Mysore. We have to put our heads together and devise methods for stabilising and expanding the industry and we are privileged to approach its problems with a feeling of assured hope for its future.

Dr. K. R. Narasimha Rao, First Member of the Government, presided at the Sericultural industry in Mysore State.

New Delhi, Feb. 22.
The Muslim League party withdrew from the Assembly this morning. As the house took up the general discussion of the Railway budget Mr. Chulam Bhik Nairang, Deputy Leader of the party, is a statement before withdrawing declared that they were doing so in order to mark their protest against the policy followed by the Government in regard to Muslim grievances about their share in Railway Services. Mr. Nairang said they would not take part either in the general discussion or demands for grants under Railway Budget. Mr. Nairang said we do not wholly share our case on instances of individual injustice to Muslims. It is Railway Member's outlook and mentality as evidenced by his policy where we take very strong objection on our best endeavours to persuade the Member for Communication to look at things in light of justice and reason not only as a fruit but unfortunately led him to adopt an attitude which, unless greatly altered, would do still more harm to our community. Our party therefore unanimously decided that the only constitutional protest it can make is to withdraw from the house while Railway Budget is under discussion.

MUSLIM LEAGUE PARTY'S WALK OUT

Reactions In The Lobby

When the Muslim League party withdrew from the Assembly this morning, the reactions in the lobby were of great interest. Mr. Nairang's statement was widely discussed and many felt that the party's withdrawal was a significant move. Some felt that the party was making a statement of protest against the Government's policy towards Muslims. Others felt that the party was making a statement of protest against the Government's policy towards the railway budget. The reactions in the lobby were of great interest and many felt that the party's withdrawal was a significant move.

Railway Member whose policy they described as being against Muslim interests. Curiously enough, even the subsequent speaker Sardar Sant Singh opened by saying that he was also thinking of walking out of the house as a protest against the treatment of minorities by the Railway Administration. According to lobby reports the action taken by the Muslim League in pursuance of this challenging attitude against Government has a political significance. It is part of the general political campaign intended to force Government to come to agreement with the Muslim League on the latter's terms for reconstruction of the Central Govt. and Provincial Governments in Congress governed Provinces. Still the fact that even the second largest party in the House of the Muslim League is withdrawing from the house to express its opposition.

Our Cine Review

By 'Bee'

New Pictures Released

National Studios fourth picture 'Kudina' was released yesterday at Palace Cinema, Bombay. The picture is a devotional, in which Nalini Jaywant the 15 year old girl, has excelled herself in her smart maiden performance. Ranjit's latest social 'pardesi' was released yesterday at Lamington. The picture has a background of the Quetta earthquake, circa's latest 'Madhusudan' was released at Imperial Cinema on 15th. The picture depicts some of the burning problems of the day. Chandro's 'The Great Dictator' has been released both at Bombay and Calcutta.

Pictures Popular

'Bandhan' the hit of 1940, still continues to be popular at the Royal, now in its 25th week. 'Naseem' at Krishna has entered its 23rd week and it is to be withdrawn soon after its 25th week. 'Lagan' New Theatres great social, directed by the Camera Wizard, Nana Bose, is likely to succeed the picture 'Nartaki' at Minerva. 'Purnanama' at Majestic. 'Lagna Pahawe Karoon' at New West End and 'Padosi' at Central are greatly popular.

Sadhona Bose to South

The incomparable danseuse Sadhona Bose with her troupe will be coming to Bangalore very shortly. After her South Indian tour, she will be going to Calcutta to act in a picture for New Theatres, for which she has signed a contract. Her dancing tour will be concluded by the middle of April.

News in Brief

Film actor Yakub is no longer with National Studios. He has joined cine.

New Theatres latest production, 'Nartaki', is now running its 10th week at the Minerva and continues to attract discriminate film goers.

Mr. Balu Rao Pendharkar, well-known actor and producer is now in Bombay and is likely to join Bombay Theatres.

and a question as to the railway budget and the nationalists are also ranged against the Govt's policy, surrounded the Congress, at the present constitutional position in all the national news—only selected members' support of Govt being of Europeans and one or two land holder representatives. The question naturally asked in the lobby is whether it is wise to continue this constitutional position without any popular support when war is continuing on its most serious phase. It is better to have no Lok Sabha at all than to have one which is a mere rubber stamp. The best way to solve this is to have a new constitution.

Naseem as 'Cleopatra'

Setting aside all surmise and speculation as to the future plans of Naseem, cine productions have come forward with an announcement that she will play the role of the siren of the Nile, in their forthcoming production 'Cleopatra'. Chandramohan will play Mark Antony, and a well-known player will play the role of Octavius. Khosla has been named to direct the picture.

Fact

In 1940, 162 films were produced in India of which 77 were in Hindi, 35 in Tamil, 18 in Bengali, 12 in Telugu, 10 Marathi, 8 in Panjabi, 1 was Malayalam and 1 was Urdu.

"BANDHAN"

(An Actionless Picture)

The picture is running its eleventh week here. Reports are flashed that elsewhere it is running its thirtieth week. So far it has all been so good, we have to admire the fans who have so emphatically contributed to the coffers of the film magnates.

Is the production really so magnificent as these records and reports go to prove?

On its credit side, the picture reveals excellent photography and audiography and some crisp dialogues. There may not be any such as the music is generally pleasing, especially to the uninitiated.

But what disappoints one most is the garbled plot. It is only a tremendous organization like the Bombay Talkies that can lay its fingers on such a story and have it dubbed as the year's miracle. Leela Chitnis and Asok Kumar are assigned roles which do not exactly suit them. They do very little in the story to give it grip and the result is that the former half of the play is dull with its dialogues and repetitions of studio-scenes. At best, the adolescent youth may take it all to be a carnival of poses. Asok Kumar is acclaimed the non-violent hero of the screen. In "BANDHAN" he may deserve that title because he is too inactive to be violent.

The theme is like a classical Romance with 'love at first sight' and all that routine. But the hero is far from classic type. 'The Head Master Sab' of "BANDHAN" is a goody goody man, whom a girl loves because of his good looks. He meets with an accident and evokes sympathy from her. How would his doom appeal to a knight errant of Romance?

The suspense sought to be maintained in the part of the story regarding the identity of the Head Master is meaningless and serves no artistic purpose. The village school is a pure studio school with the least tincture of reality about it. The Zamindar, a benevolent aristocrat seems to have brought up his children in some western traditions. See what freedom is allowed when these

CHANDRABHAGA-KRISHNA WEDDING

Dance Partners Become Life Partners

(By FOOT LIGHT MANIAC)

In the glare of the Movie Lights they trotted on to the melodious tunes of sweet music unmindful of the matrimonial rate which awaited them. Krishna chose Chandrabhaga as his dance partner and made her his life partner too. Both of them look charming with the divine art running in their veins.

Chandrabhaga comes from a cultural home. Her birth, her upbringing and her present state of married life have been art-inspired to the very core. Her mother is a fine Kannada writer. Her father combines in himself all the best qualities of an inspired soul. He has trained his children to the best interests of our hoary culture and Chandrabhaga is the product of a sweet, contented, knowledge pervading home. Though dance is her hobby she has been perfect in it.

Krishna too is a torch bearer of a forgotten art. He has resuscitated Bharatha Natya from its labyrinth and has given a fresh life to it. He is a Central College boy having had the necessary academic distinction. Ram Gopal fascinated him and then he began his trot to find himself a lovely dancer ere long.

This colourful wedding has cemented two inspired trotters to carry the art's banner higher and higher. Mysore is proud of these real partners both in life and in art. Let God bless them with long life and prosperity.

permitted to play the hostess to 'Head Master Sab'.

Perhaps the best part of the story that moves the audience is the very last scene but one has to sit fretting and fuming for nearly two hours till he gets that dainty dish.

A cine plot need not be highly intellectual like a problem in mathematics. But "Bandhan" errs too much on the other side. The plot is a "toddler" when compared to its giant forerunners in the field. One noteworthy feature of the production may however be mentioned. The producer has paid a tribute to the most neglected of professions, viz. teaching for the hero of the play is a school master. However that does not blind us to the truth that glares us in the face, "Bandhan" is without doubt an actionless plot. The more we think about it the more we yearn for the great 'silent' pictures of the good old days.

HINDI AS LINGUA FRANCA OF INDIA

Mr. K. V. Anantaraman Doubtful

Bangalore, Feb. 23.

A doubt that Hindi may not be quite successful as the lingua franca of India was expressed by Rajamantrapravina Mr. K. V. Anantaraman, Second Member of the Mysore State Executive Council, presiding last evening over the eighth anniversary of the Tamil Sangham of the St. Joseph's College, Bangalore Cantonment.

Mr. Anantaraman said that for the people of South India especially, considerable mastery in the Hindi language might be very difficult and in their attempt to speak that language they might merely mutilate it to the disgust of those whose mother tongue was Hindi. Such people would do well to master their vernaculars and converse with people who did not know their language with the aid of efficient interpreters. The speaker, however, said that people of India could not neglect the English language which was the inter-national language and which would continue to be the common language of India for many years.

Men Not Plague Rats

BANGALORE CITY MUNICIPAL COUNCIL MEETING

Human Beings Cannot be Treated As Plague Rats

DISCUSSION IN MUNICIPAL COUNCIL ON ACQUISITION OF PROPERTIES

SUDDEN RISE OF PRICES

Bangalore Feb. 23.—An interesting discussion took place in the Bangalore Municipal Council on the meeting lasting for four hours. Mr. L. S. Raju (Comm.) made a characteristic speech in which he pleaded for the needs of the section of rate-payers was met with. He said, "Human beings cannot be treated as plague rats and unless inhabited sites are given accommodation else their dwellings should be tampered with."

Congress members showed great sympathy to the poor. At the ordinary General Meeting of the Municipal Council, held on Saturday 24 February at 3 p.m. in the Council Chamber of the Municipal Offices, with Mr. Hanumanthappa, Municipal Commissioner, Mr. Mysara Rao was also places where nuisance is committed by the public. An arrangement has been made for inspecting the drains periodically and the Sanitary Staff are working at it.

The Municipality have provided 20 Urinals and 36 Latrines to prevent the nuisance committed by the public in many streets and lanes of the City. They have also adopted measures by means of prosecutions and propaganda to prevent the nuisance.

There are 14 Sub-Overseers in the Municipality. Five of them are put in service for more than three years. It is desirable to retain useful hands in the municipality in the interests of work.

Two opening ceremonies were held by the municipality in the month of December 1940. No expenditure was incurred out of Municipal Funds for these functions.

Then the subjects were taken up.

Meters

The deferred subject of sanctioning an estimate for Rs. 10,810 for purchase and fixing of meters to house connections came up for discussion. Some questions were put to the Water Supply Executive Engineer Mr. M. L. Narasimha Iyengar regarding the quality of meters and their purchase. He gave suitable answers. Mr. L. S. Raju suggested to him that in fixing the new meters he must first fix to those houses which consume a large amount of excess water and as far as possible to take up poorer houses after all rich persons' houses were connected. This was agreed to by Mr. Narasimha Iyengar. Subject to this condition the estimate was sanctioned. As regards nearly 500 houses which still remain unconnected with meters on account of not supply of meters it was suggested that a flat rate may be fixed. Mr. Narasimha Iyengar said it would be done if rules were framed in this behalf. This will engage the attention of the By-law Committee.

Sudden Rise in prices of Food-Staffs

Then Mr. C. N. Narasimha Rao brought forward with the consent of the house an urgent proposition regarding sudden rise in prices of food-stuffs and moved that the committee already formed by Government on this behalf should take steps to prevent profiteering. Mr. L. S. Raju seconded and stated it called for urgent action in case profiteering is true. After a few other members spoke about this the house accepted this resolution and the President was asked to communicate this to Government at once.

Acquisition of Properties

Mr. L. S. Raju next moved the majority opinion of the Select Committee appointed to enquire into and report on all aspects of the acquisition of properties for forming a road from Krishna Iyengar road to join Chickpet. Only Mr. M. A. Gopalaswamy Iyengar had sent a dissenting note which agreed in several respects with the majority report but only wanted acquisition to go on.

Manager's Notice

Since Tainadu Press observes Tuesday as a holiday there will be no issue of Daily News on Wednesday.

Mr. Raju stated that when human beings are concerned they cannot be treated as plague rats and wanted to defer the whole scheme until it was thoroughly investigated and inhabitants of those houses were given separate accommodation elsewhere. At present what is more urgently required is more free water of consumption, better lighting, more schools and hospitals, more lung spaces in congested areas and after these are done the major beautification and City improvement may be taken up as part of an organised plan by forming a City Improvement Trust.

Messrs K. Hanumanthiah, H. C. Suryanarayana Rao, N. Kesava Iyengar, C. N. Narasimha Rao and H. R. Guruvu Reddy spoke supporting Mr. Raju. Mr. O. S. N. Sheriff, Dr. M. Royan, Mr. A. J. Khaleel and Mr. Razvi spoke in support of the dissenting note of Mr. M. A. Gopalaswami Iyengar. They wanted acquisition to go on.

In the end the proposition was put to vote and Mr. Raju's proposition (i.e. Select Committee's majority opinion) carried, only 5 voting against. Messrs. Sheriff, Royan, Khaleel, Razvi & Chickellyappa voted against. Mr. M. A. Gopalaswamy Iyengar remained neutral.

As it was nearing 8 p.m. the House adjourned.

The Present War TEACH BOYS ABOUT IMPLICATIONS

Dr. Sinha's Advice To Teachers

A. P. Jhariah, Feb. 23. Charging teachers of Secondary Schools to explain fully to pupils the implication of the present war, Dr. Sachidananda Sinha, Vice Chancellor of Patna University, in his Presidential address at the Eleventh Conference of Secondary Schools Teachers' Association appealed to the Conference to give its serious attention to the consideration of measures to ameliorate the conditions of teachers. He advised the Conference to appoint a Committee to report carefully to Government on the recommendations of the Education Reorientation Committee.

Referring to the progress of Girls' Education, Dr. Sinha suggested that a Provincial Committee be set up by the Government to examine "this very important question and to make a report in the course of a specified period."

AN INSIDE VIEW OF MUSLIM LEAGUE CONFERENCE

Not A Smooth Sailing For Mr. Jinnah

From our own correspondent. By Wire. New Delhi, Feb. 24. It was not all smooth sailing for Mr. M. A. Jinnah at today's meeting of the Muslim League though the resolutions were finally passed unanimously. At the meeting of the Working Committee Mr. Jinnah and Sir Sikandar came into sharp conflict with each other, the latter objecting to the words of Pakistan resolution and offering his own interpretation to the Lahore resolution and the former accusing Sir Sikandar of not passing the same. He merely condemned Pakistan, without supporting the Lahore resolution. The departure of Sir Sikandar for Lahore without attending the meeting of the Council has led to some comment, so also the last minute decision of Mr. Fazlul Haq, Premier of Bengal not to attend the Delhi meeting. In the course of Sunday's discussions the Council's main session was Sir Raza Ali's speech. He spoke out frankly and said the Muslim League was not concerned with Satyagraha movement of the Congress. Nor did he agree that the movement would worsen the communal situation. He went on to say that the Congress and the Government which were two parts in a "mock fight" might come to terms and then the position of those who would unconsciously entangle themselves in the fight would be ridiculous. He reiterated that the Muslims did not come in the picture at all. A wordy duel between Mr. Jinnah and Sir Raza Ali ended however in the latter's "bowing to his master".

Communalism In Government Appointments

Sir Andrew Clow, the Communications Member, Government of India, in his reply to the general discussion on the Railway budget, made a speech in respect of Government appointments by promotions, which deserves to be pondered over by every Government.

The Muslim League Party walked out of the Assembly as a protest against the policy pursued by the Railway Department in respect of appointments made from the Muslim community. Sir Clow said that he referred to the question of appointments of two types, appointments by recruitment and appointments by promotion. After disposing of the first point namely appointments by recruitments for which there was a definite policy, which he fulfilled both in letter and in spirit, he came to the second point and said, "On this subject, we had a vigorous debate in the House during the last Railway Budget and it ended in a division, a division which I claim supported the policy that the Government have pursued of making promotions without fear and without favour (cheers)." On this point I and the honourable members of the Central Muslim Party do not see eye to eye, but the policy pursued in that respect is not my policy. It is a policy pursued in every Department and by every Member of Government and it represents the policy of the Government as a whole.

"So long as it is our principle to make promotions by merit, so long I shall regard it as my duty to see that every man serving under me of whatever caste, creed or community, has a fair chance, and an equal chance of succeeding to those posts for which he is eligible and qualified."

These are indeed memorable words. Whatever may be the policy pursued by Government with regard to recruitment to appointments, in the matter of promotion there should be only one guiding principle and one only and that of appointing only men of merit without fear or favour. The attitude of the Communications Member might be applicable to the Muslim League members but they should remember that Government machinery like any other machinery should be conducted on efficient lines and efficiency ought to be the guiding factor in the matter of promotions.

Sir Andrew Clow's words ought to be applied to Mysore.

Now we are on the eve of the appointment of new Popular Ministers. The Government appointments, as in the past, are bound to be a bone of contention in official policies. The Government have appointed a Public Service Commissioner. We do not know what that functionary has been doing. As to what his recommendations are, we are yet in the dark. As to what the future policy would be, we are told nothing. Even in Mysore, the time has come, more so in the wake of the popular regime, that Government services are kept pure and uncontaminated with communalism. Non-officials, to whatever communities they may belong, should guard the purity of the Government servants and they should not drag them to their controversies. This is a survival point to be remembered in shaping the future destinies of Mysore.

DEAD OR ALIVE

The mortality and immortality of persons depend on Newspapers as disclosed by a series of amazing despatches from the Italian Capital. Ex King Alfonso is dead according to the Lyons Radio but he gives an audience to the Italian Crown Prince according to another news agency. Stefani the Fascist purveyor of "authentic" news assures its clientele that the Exiled Ruler is alive. It is amusing that the life of a great figure should get into the whirlpool of warring news agencies to go down into disgrace. The newspaper obituary if at all correct will be a very great extent enhance the dignity of writing. But as ill-luck would have it, if the tide turns turtle the obnoxious piece would stand as a remarkable testimony to one's power of cruel imagination. Ex King Alfonso has been the latest victim of a clever journalistic trick. We commiserate with him.

To read one's own obituary and eulogy from the sheets of a newspaper is rather a tragicomic. Learning against soft silk follows in a convalescent posture gives an appearance of pitiful personality and more so when he reads his own death news from the columns of his favourite paper. It has happened before and it has happened now.

The fight with the approaching death has its own repercussions in the sanctity of an Editorial room. Persons like the Exiled King drive "Subs" into rage and force them to many sleepless nights. The tough job of digging for the memoir from the depths of a confusing indexing department makes men's nerves crack. When a great man's life is slowly ebbing away the newspaper offices in that locality appear as abodes where police search is ordered. But if the reported dead man comes to life and profuse apologies are offered notifying that the man is alive and not dead.

The unhealthy competition of two news agencies probing in the mangled and tortured Europe for "authentic" news has provided a mild sensation all over the world. One has made Alfonso breathe his last and the other has injected life into him. May Ex King Alfonso live long.

Railway Budget In The Central Assembly

Mr ANEY'S SLASHING ATTACK

Government Member's Reply To Muslim League

New Delhi, Feb. 22

Mr M. S. Aney dealing with the decision to discontinue certain railways, characterised it as an act of vandalism which, in his view, was "a political blunder, an economic wrong and constitutionally inappropriate method." These lines, he said, had been built after the House had given its sanction to it and he declared no one, not even the Railway Board, had the right to decide to pull those lines up without the sanction of the House for that purpose. Again, Government did not seem to realise what alarming impression the act of pulling up railway lines was creating in the minds of the public. The impression was that it was being done because nothing could be manufactured in England. Such moral effect should be counteracted and he deemed it was the duty to bring the matter to the notice of responsible officers of Government. Mr Aney asserted that the Budget would cause a great deal of disappointment among third class passengers. The country expected that the Communications Member should have returned to the public at least a part of the surplus either by way of reduction of rates and fares or by additional amenities to third class passengers. He said that the most disappointing feature of Sir Andrew Clow's speech was his reference to the manufacture of broad gauge locomotives. They in the country were convinced that if there was will, there would be a way to secure the necessary plant and machinery.

Sir Clow

Sir Andrew Clow replying to the debate expressed regret at the attack on his policy made by the Muslim League Party. He said that the members of the Party had not remained in the House to hear his reply. The attack related to the question of appointments by recruitment and appointment by promotion. In the case of the first class of appointments Government had laid down the policy in a resolution designed to safeguard the interests of the minority communities. That was not his (Speaker's) policy, but had been laid down before he became Member and it was the policy which it had been his constant endeavour to fulfil in letter and in spirit. In view, however, of the allegations that it was not being carried out properly an inquiry into the matter was entrusted to an experienced and impartial officer and a Muslim officer was later attached to that officer. "I have heard nothing since," said Sir Andrew, "to suggest that the facts elicited by Dr. De Souza are incorrect. They appear to me to vindicate the methods that my predecessors and I followed."

The real issue however lay in the second class of appointments namely appointments by promotion. There was a debate in the last session on this issue and the division on it showed that the House endorsed the policy of making promotions without fear and without favour (cheers). "On this point the honourable members of the Muslim League Party and I admittedly do not

The otherday I referred to some funny items in the proceedings of the Central Assembly. Here is an interlude.

"Why are holy passengers allowed to travel in gents' compartments even when accommodation is available in ladies' compartments?" asked Mr. Nauman.

Sir Andrew Clow: "There are no gents' compartments, Sir." (Laughter.)

Dr. Sir Ziauddin: "In one instance, certain ladies, in spite of their own compartments being vacant, insisted on travelling in my compartment." (More laughter.)

Sir Andrew Clow: "The Doctor's company is so fascinating." (Renewed laughter.)

The Central Assembly now without Congress members presents a desolate appearance. With Congress members in it the Central Assembly would have been more lively. There is a genuine Parliamentary atmosphere in the Assembly with sallies and counter-sallies, jokes and counter jokes. There is plenty of give and take among members. In spite of the hard hits that Congress members indulged in, the treasury benches liked the Congress members most. Mr. Satyamurthy was very popular among the official members. The Senator-like Mr. Bhubhai Desai was respected and admired by Sir Edward Grigg and others. I would like to see the Mysore Assembly and the Council also attain that standard. I think that standard is attainable if people are highly cultured and gentlemanly. Fight when you ought to, and shake hands when you can. This ought to be the motto of Parliamentarians.

As the days roll on, the talk in the Bangalore Bazaar is getting more and more concentrated on the coming Ministry. Several names are on the lips of the people. There is a good lot of backbiting and mud slinging among those who consider themselves to be prospective Ministers. The matter has become very delicate. After all, some 'dark horse' may win the race.

see eye to eye, but the policy is not my policy. It is the one followed in every department and by every Government. So long as it was our policy to make promotions by merit I shall regard it my duty to see that every man serving under me, whatever his class or creed, has a fair chance of advancement to posts for which he is eligible and qualified." He expressed agreement with the view that the divergence between the salaries at the top and in the lower ranks was great, but any attempt to even them, must be undertaken by the country as a whole.

and there may be many other. Anyhow speculation is very interesting and I people expect number of jokes in this connection.

Seeing all this I think Government would have been relieved of all the worry it had been clearly laid down the constitution that such those as command the confidence of the legislature, be appointed as Ministers. Although it has not been definitely laid down like that, a convention like that which would be very wholesome. They should think of well organised parties with distinct heterogeneous groups clubbed together only for the sake of ministry should be rejected.

The Correspondence passed between Mahatma Gandhi and Babu Subash Chandra Bose, which is now released, the Press, makes a sorry read. Now that Babu Subash Chandra Bose has disappeared, the correspondence has a pale and melancholy interest. I doubt the wisdom of those who released it for publication at the present moment. The differences between the views of Mahatma Gandhi and Babu Subash Bose are so wide that nobody would expect Mahatma Gandhi with unpopularity in the present affair.

It is announced that a meeting suggested that Mr. Jinnah be elected President of the Muslim League for life. It is said that Mr. Jinnah, while expressing his appreciation of the confidence the Muslims of India have shown in him, said that they should never elect a man as life President who soever he might be. "Let me come to you at the end of every year and seek your vote at your confidence. Let the President be on his good behaviour. I am definitely opposed to your electing a life President." I congratulate Mr. Jinnah for his refusal of Presidentialship. This reminds me of the Emperor Caesar who refused the crown offered to him three times by his fellow citizens.

THAILAND'S APPEAL TO INDIA

For Improved Trade Relations Good Relations Between Indian Settlers and Government

(From Our Special Correspondent)

(Cam.) Bangkok Jan.

Thailand's appeal to India to increase the latter's reciprocity in trade was stressed by Mr. Vanich Paranda, Director General of the Department of Commerce, Thailand's Government, in a special interview which I had with him today in his office at Bangkok. Mr. Vanich Paranda had paid a semi-official visit to India in February last year. He flew first to Rangoon and then to Calcutta. During his stay in Calcutta he met members of Commercial Chambers of Calcutta and made certain investigations in regard to Thailand's trade conditions with India which was the main aim of his visit.

Publicity Officer

My interview with the Commercial Chief was arranged through the courtesy of the Department of Publicity. Government of Thailand and he said he would be pleased to place all information at the disposal of the Indian papers, in order to advance the present and past his historic and economic relations between Thailand and India.

Trade With India

The first and foremost point which Mr. Paranda dealt with was the trade balance between Thailand and India, wherein Thailand showed a greater trade from India than India from Thailand. He said, the figures stood as 1 to 5. If India was willing to reciprocate sufficiently there was enough that Thailand could supply to her in the form of Teak, Spices, Beetlenut, and Rice. Neighbourly Thailand would appeal for India's consideration of the subject.

Chief Products To Thailand

Asked as to what were the chief products that Thailand bought at present from India he replied they were gunny bags, cotton, ceramics, paints, and bricks. Thailand was able to purchase Jute and meet its needs of gunny bags but she had preferred to purchase her Rice Industry instead.

Asked whether the Government of Thailand had made any representation to the Government of India in the matter, Mr. Paranda said that the Government of Thailand was working to those steps to know exactly what was the permanent nature of trade relations between the two countries and then plan to develop more and more every with the subject accordingly. Though there was intention to take up the matter this year, the war in Thailand and outside had engaged the attention of the Government fully and the subject had been set aside for a more suitable time. All the same he would make a direct appeal to Indian merchants to take a personal interest to increase their purchases from Thailand on a voluntary basis.

Regarding external trade of Thailand, trade with Europe had been affected considerably owing to shipping difficulties, whereas trade with Japan and America had increased with the latter more than with Japan.

Tagore's Photo

While in Calcutta last year, Mr. Paranda visited Maharaja Tagore who gave him a suitable reception and also presented him with an autographed photo. Mr. Paranda has decorated his office room with the photo, which was taken down from the wall for the benefit of my recalling the likeness of the Maharaja. Mr. Paranda visited Tea estates at Darjeeling.

Indian Merchant Community

Regarding the Indian merchant community in Bangkok and other places of Thailand (who are fairly large in number) he was pleased to state about the good relations that existed between the Government of Thailand and the community. They have been carrying on their trade peacefully and living happily. They have been enjoying all trade facilities in common with Thai traders. He felt pleased with their loyal co-operation with the Government of Thailand.

War Between Thailand and Indo China

According to reports received at Bangkok, regarding the position of war between Thailand and French Indo-China, Thailand forces have made considerable advance into the territory of French Indo-China and have occupied parts of districts for the retrocession of which the hostilities broke out between them just about two months ago. From evidences that reached Bangkok city from the war front, it is clear that the French divisions are shaky, and both the civilian population and native forces of French Indo-China are changing their allegiance more and more every day in favour of Thailand, as the troops of the latter are showing signs of success. The element of racial affinity between the Thais of Thailand and Thais of French Indo-China are partly responsible for this rapid change-over in respect of allegiance. However, the situation is developing into a critical stage, such that a bigger Power may be called on the scene as a mediator. As Japan has already happened to occupy certain parts of French Indo-China for strategic purposes, and has built its fortifications and concentrated its forces over there, it is naturally expected to come first into the field as a mediator. Moreover there is its professed guardianship of the Greater East Asia.

Japan's Mediation

It is not yet possible to assess the reactions of the local circles on the Japanese offer of mediation (which since this letter on the typewriter has been announced). For one thing the spokesmen of the Government of Thailand are yet mum on the subject, whereas an average individual though intensely interested about the affair in which this country is involved, and watches day-to-day reports in anxious care, has left the matter of decisions entirely to those men who are at the supreme command of the war.

Thus there is yet a lot of uncertainty as to how matters will develop in the next fortnight. It is not so much the issues between Thailand and Indo-China that should make the world watchful of the developments here. It is the spheres of influence that one or other of the Great Powers in the Far East will establish in Indo-China, as a result of this dispute, that will mark a beginning of a great stir-up in the Far Eastern peace. Thailand, therefore, is naturally very cautious and slow in expressing its mind regarding this offer of Japan's mediation. True, Thailand has been all along saying its willingness to end the dispute by peaceful negotiations. It made many suggestions to French Indo-China in this regard. But its slowness to snatch the offer of mediation at this moment can most probably be for no other reason but to be sure of the motives of the mediator before accepting him as such.

Thailand's Terms

Thailand's terms for a settlement with French Indo-China, as put forward by His Highness Prince Varnavadyakorn Voravarn, Adviser to the Thai Cabinet and the Foreign Office, are: (1) Recognition of the Thaiweg as the boundary line in the Mekong in accordance with International law (2) Adoption of the Mekong as the common frontier from the North to the South as far as the frontier of Cambodia, involving the retrocession to Thailand of two pieces of territory on the right bank of the Mekong which are sparsely populated and are of little economic

Clash at a Public Meeting A CALCUTTA INCIDENT A Dozen People Injured

A. P. Calcutta, Feb. 23
Over a dozen were injured as a result of a clash at a public meeting at Howrah Maidan to-night.

The trouble arose over a speech by a local Hindu Leader. Several Muslims who happened to be present at the meeting took exception to the speech and demanded that the meeting should be dispersed. A clash ensued and stones and bricks were thrown from either side as a result of which over a dozen persons received injury. Eleven were removed to the Hospital. Later, all but one were discharged. The Police took into custody half a dozen persons and restored order. The meeting then continued peacefully and was addressed by Dr. Shyama Prasad Mukherjee and others.

certain railways which had caused great inconvenience and loss to poor agriculturists.

Sir Andrew Clow
Sir Andrew Clow, replying to the debate assured the House that Govt. were not contemplating any increase in rates of food grains at present. He said that he merely repeated a warning which he had given last year. If prices did go up which meant that the agriculturists were getting higher prices for their produce, it was not unreasonable if railways asked him to pay higher freight.

With regard to the dismantling of railways he said that the first reason for dismantling was that Government wanted railways. That being so Government naturally looked to those lines first which were not remunerative or could be spared.

Sir Andrew then dealt with the question of construction of locomotives in India. He did not agree with them who said that the scheme had been practically abandoned. The postponement was mainly due to a lack of technical staff, material and workshops.

Referring to the question of promotion of Muslims in railway services, Sir Andrew said he knew that those officers who worked with him were most solicitous about carrying out the policy laid down by the Government. They were fully aware that small minorities of men working largely under officers of other castes and creeds might at times be subjected to handicaps. Government were always ready to make allowances for that. He was not prepared to say that there were no officers in subordinate grades who never yielded to communal bias. No one was perfect. But so far as he had looked into personal cases he could testify to the fairness of mind which all officers brought to, rather individual task of selection candidates for promotion. So far from having any bias against the Muslim community he declared he had taken great care to see that officers of that community were full justice.

The Muslim League member started a walk out in the Council of State today when general discussions on the railway budget commenced. Before withdrawing from the house, Mr. Hossain Imam, leader of the League party made a statement that since the fixation of communal ratio for direct recruitment to superior posts, Muslim had not received even three fourths of that quota. He added that a large number of posts was still held by promotions on communal grounds to keep out the Muslims. He said that Muslims did not want 25 percent share in promotion but asked for 25 percent of the total recruitment. He assured the House that it was not a Hindu-Muslim tussle but in fact

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA BUDGET FORECAST

Lobby Speculations in Assembly

No Further Increase in Postal Rates?

(By wire) New Delhi, Feb. 25

Speculations in Lobby on the eve of the Finance Member's budget statement are a considerable loss this year than usual. According to the statement made by Sir Kaisman, in November last, deficit expected for the current year was Rupees thirteen to fifteen crores. The first fact to be remembered is that as a result of the figures announced by the Railway Member, the Central Finance may expect five crores more from the Railways than originally calculated. Other favourable factors to be taken into account are receipts from emergency taxation imposed in November which may be well over two crores, profits on gold currency and mint, from subsidiary coinage, rupee notes and lesser interest charges. Taking all these facts into consideration, the general expectation is that the deficit for the current year may be in the neighbourhood of five or six crores. That general revenue receipts upto the end of December show there has been slight increase under Income Tax, despite some fall in corporation tax. Both customs and salt have taken a deep downward trend, the only offset being a fairly large rise in excise collections. As compared with the Budget Estimate of eighty-nine crores for the whole year the first nine months revenue brought under the month revenue heads fifty and a half crores—eight crores less than the last year for the same period. The position regarding the coming year is uncertain as no definite plan is definitely known of defence, social and other schemes. According to Sir Kaisman's statement in November last, commitments involving increase of recurring expenditure of sixteen crores must be met over thirty crores spread over the next year or two. As a total will be met from defence loans the position is not likely to be so serious as one had feared. Still no one is so optimistic as to think Sir Kaisman would be able to avoid further increase in the postal rates. European and Anglo-Indians had secured fourteen, Hindus thirteen and Muslims one and the other minorities one out of 29 posts in lower gazetted staff for promotion. The House adjourned tomorrow.

Lobby anticipations mention probable increase in excess profit tax which during the current year is expected to bring three crores and next year as much as three that amount. The increase of fifty is expected, also some small increase in income tax. Sir Kaisman's policy is said to be to select such items for additional taxation as will fall on the middle or upper classes. No further increase in postal rates is expected for the present. It is also said that time has not come to sip further sources like salt but certain reversion of excess duties is possible to make up for the loss in customs especially items like petrol.

Recruitment of I. C. S.

IN ERESTING DISCUSSION ANTICIPATED IN COUNCIL OF STATE

What is Official View?

(By Wire) New Delhi, Feb. 25
Interests discussion is anticipated in the Council of State on Thursday on the policy of recruitment of the I. C. S. during the period of war. Mr. P. N. Sippy wants suspension of British recruitment on the one ground that in the present conditions it is not possible to hold examinations in London or suitable candidates. On behalf of the Muslim League party a notice has been given by Mr. Hossain Imam asking suspension of all further recruitment of the I. C. S. as the I. C. S. cadre should be filled not by local recruitment but by promotion from the Provincial service on a Provisory basis. The Government had a Act governs the recruitment of I. C. S. and the Government will be the Secretary of State.

Bombay Government's Curious Experience

We are informed that the Bombay Government have instructed all Collectors to see that notice boards indicating that public tanks and wells are open to all castes and classes without restriction are erected and permanently retained on every work constructed from the village water supply grant. It is stated that this measure is necessary to secure the free enjoyment of public amenities by members of the scheduled classes on the same terms as persons belonging to other communities. It is interesting to observe that some notice boards which were of wood were removed or destroyed by people who did not like them. The Bombay Government therefore have issued instructions that stone or concrete slabs should be used in place of wooden boards.

We are of the opinion that whatever the Government may do, unless the higher castes and classes co-operate with Government and the authorities in this matter there is bound to be a good deal of waste. Even the stone slabs may be disfigured and removed. The Government will have to punish the people who disfigure or remove these boards. This would naturally create a furore in villages. There is also one other point to consider. When once the village police are invested with the power of tackling the people who disfigure or remove such slabs, there is bound to be some misuse and abuse of this power somewhere.

All this points to one moral. Unless the people in the rural parts welcome such reforms there is bound to be a good lot of confusion. Even in this small matter of public tanks and wells, it is so difficult to induce the higher caste people to be generous to the depressed classes. In the State of Mysore, in the Mandya District, some time ago clashes were reported in connection with the use of a tank by depressed classes. We are so backward and reactionary in the matter of these reforms that sometimes a feeling of pessimism is likely to overtake us.

But there is an effective remedy to all this and that is no other than Popular Government responsible to the will of the people. Now we find lack of co-operation in rural parts with the reforms introduced by the Government but when the Government is popular, there is bound to be identity of interest and plan of action between the Government and the village voter. In a sense, it is the village voter's policy that influences Government policy and naturally all such reforms are bound to take effect in the rural parts in an expeditious manner. In this connection it is useful to remind our readers of what the Congress Premier did in Behar. He himself went with shovel and pick axes to the villages in connection with a tank work. It had an electric effect on the villagers. This is the beauty of a Popular Government and a Popular Minister. The usual and one difficulty that the Government come across now, will vanish in the wake of a Popular Government responsible to the will of the people.

GREAT EVENT OF THE SEASON

The topical event of the season is certainly the scramble for Ministerships. A dozen of the elected representatives have set out on their quest for getting high places in the Executive Council. The charm of drawing a high salary with all the appurtenances of a big boss has driven some people to pitiful modes of life. The never-ending indents on all things sundry and big despite of the dearness in prices have been the order of the day with these people. They feel that the Minister's air is blowing towards them. The position they hold as elected representatives gives them the needed hope to be installed as Ministers.

Like the Italian Prisoners' entry into Bangalore the forthcoming Minister-Installation makes many people suddenly rich beginning from the housewife to that of the servant. The freak of fortune that is in store for some people has its own repercussions on others as will be disclosed ere long. The convulsions of hope and disappointment which is characteristic of Ministry-making will be subjected to a severe strain and people who have the nerve to withstand it might rest content with peace and glory. All said and done these places of fortune go only to two high-souled people who will be placed in that comfortable berth for four long years at the end of which their bank balance will indicate a veritable wealth in itself. The variation from being a member and a minister is great indeed. The paltry travelling allowance which accrues after a forced attendance looks dwarfish before the huge balance at the end of four years not to speak of the bureaucratic training which he will have the honour to receive. The sudden upward trend in private fortune depends on these ministerships and he will be the luckiest who adorns it. We wish well of those who are in the run for these places. God's merciful look shall be on them.

MYSORE NOTES

SCHOOL DAY CELEBRATION

Mysore, Feb. 25. The Sishuvihar in Lakshmi-puram Extension was enfeate last evening when the annual School Day Celebrations took place under the presidency of Mr. E. G. Meapline, Director of Public Instruction. A large and distinguished gathering including Raja-Karyapavina N. S. and Mrs. Leelavati Subba Rao, Dr. K. N. and Mrs. Kini, Mr. G. R. and Mrs. Joshyer, Mr. V. and Mrs. Gopalaswamy Iyengar, Mr. K. and Mrs. Jagannatha Rao, Mr. C. V. and Mrs. Krishna Iyengar, Mr. K. and Mrs. Krishna Rao, Srimati N. Shakuntalabai, Srimati M. R. Lakshamma, Miss R. Samuels, Dr. M. Hiranniah, Dr. Y. Appaji, Messrs. N. Narasimha Iyengar, C. Rangachar, R. Kasturiraja Chetty, A. S. Mallappa, A. C. Deve Gowda, M. G. Venkatrao, Venkataraman and others were present.

After invocation by girl Dr. M. V. Gopalaswamy, Director of Sishuvihar, welcomed the guests in a brief speech and presented the annual report. He appealed for generous help and encouragement from Government and pointed out the need to have a Central institute to train teachers for nursery schools. The children of Sishuvihar gave an interesting variety entertainment.

The President, Mr. Meapline in the course of his concluding remarks expressed his appreciation of the work done at the Sishuvihar and hoped that such institutions will be started in all District Headquarters with local initiative and enterprise. He said that under the old Education Act, the nursery School did not receive the due attention and he hoped that under the new Act proper attention would be paid for the development of nursery Education. He pointed out that people in Mysore State are doing more help from the Government for the education of their children than in many other part of India. He stated that in Mysore the Government pay three fourths of the cost of primary education while in most of the other provinces the Primary Education gets only a quarter of its cost from Government. He also felt happy that the quality in aided Schools in Mysore is good though in quantity they are not comparable with the other provinces.

With a vote of thanks moved by Mr. G. N. Nanjundiah the function terminated after Mangalam.

Controlling The Prices Of Food stuffs

As the prices of food stuffs are shooting up in Mysore, it is learnt that Mr. P. Sitaramaiah and some other Councillors of the Mysore City Municipality have written to the President to convene a special Meeting of the Council to consider the matter and request the Government to control the prices of food stuffs.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

It is always heartening to me to read anything encouraging of newspapers and newspaper men. The other day very high comments were paid to the memory of the late S. Kasturiranga Iyengar who was responsible in a large measure to the present prosperous condition of 'The Hindu'. It was revealed in the course of a speech by Mr. C. R. Srinivasan, that when S. Kasturiranga Iyengar took charge of the paper, although it was in existence for about 25 years, it had hardly a thousand subscribers and it had practically no income. He, therefore, set himself the task of carrying out the necessary improvements to the paper. "No one would buy a paper as an obligation. The paper must be attractive, must have sufficient reading matter, its views should be acceptable to the general public and it should also give the correct lead necessary for creating and sustaining interest and enthusiasm in public. All these Mr. Kasturiranga Iyengar succeeded in achieving as could be seen from the fact that at the end of his days, the circulation of the paper had gone up to about 25,000. For a paper, its circulation was an index not only of its intrinsic merit but also of its popular appeal".

My readers would kindly note how difficult it was for 'The Hindu' to attain the position it did at the time of Mr. S. Kasturiranga Iyengar. From 1,000 to 25,000 it was not a small achievement, that too in the course of about fifteen years. It is very gratifying that under Mr. K. Srinivasan, worthy son of a worthy father, 'The Hindu' has been progressing steadily and to day it is the best Indian edited English paper. 'The Hindu' serves as an example to all those engaged in newspaper work. Sometimes some may agree with its views or not, but on the whole, it has added lustre to itself and to Indian journalism.

As to what a newspaper editor ought to be and what is expected of him, it is sometimes useful to know what non-newspaper-men say. This is what Mr. S. Srinivasan Iyengar said of the late Mr. S. Kasturiranga Iyengar. "Sterling independence of character and fearlessness, sometimes amounting to audacity, characterised that great journalist. He was not a man who was emotional, though every act of his, every judgement of his, was coloured, as it should be, by that emotion which should be hidden and restrained—not that cheap emotion which we see all round us today, which expresses itself in sentimentality and other kinds of futile propaganda. Emotion restrained and directed and he was a sample of that".

As to what an ideal Editor ought to be Mr. S. Srinivasan Iyengar says a few words. "An Editor has to be inaccessible, very few really understood him, he would say or do on a particular occasion. That aloofness and reticence were invaluable, nay precious for Editors of great journals. If they allowed themselves to go into matters, places to be heard by the crowd, there they would become targets of criticism and they would have that impartiality, that independence of character, that isolation, that detached observation from the watch tower, a great journal which enables one to take of all persons and the movements going on around them and all kinds of little things."

This is as much as to say to an Editor should not mix himself up with any propaganda. S. Kasturiranga Iyengar appeared on the platform considered himself to be on a place there. Now-a-days of journalism has grown to the point where the present state is not possible for an Editor to be both an editor and a speaker on the platform. He ever he has to say he can through his paper. Mr. Kasturiranga Iyengar observed this principle strictly. Sometimes he was with the Congress and sometimes against it. Though a nationalist to the core, he felt that a nationalist should not abdicate its responsibility and duty of criticism even the Congress when in opinion it was not doing a sensible thing. As a result of this sometimes he was unpopular but he did not swerve from his path of duty. On the whole, 'The Hindu' is synonymous with the Southern Democracy's progressive life and it is an epitome of South India.

Dr. N. B. Khare of Nagpur, peevish with Mr. D. P. Khare who is now in jail, has written an open letter to the Editor criticising Mr. Khare's conduct for having a radio at his expense inside the jail. Do not know why Dr. Khare is so sore against Mr. Khare, the other hand, the Government deserve to be congratulated for having provided Mr. Khare a Radio set at his own expense. They might even go further and provide a general Radio set for all the prisoners.

MYSORE SUGAR COMPANY

New Head Office Building

DEWAN LAYS FOUNDATION STONE

Bangalore, Feb. 27.—I earnestly hope that, in laying the foundation stone to its new Head Offices, the Mysore Sugar Company is laying the foundation of a new prosperity for an industry that is undoubtedly of the greatest importance to the people of the State. In this memorable day, Dewan Sir Mirza Ismail
the foundation stone of the Mysore Sugar Company Ltd. this day in Bangalore City.
The site is situated in the Chamarajendra Road, opposite the Town Hall, and close to Raja Chetty Works. The building bore a festive appearance with bunting and festoons.
Mr. K. Mathan
Dewan Bahadur Rajamantrarao K. Mathan, in requesting Dewan to lay the foundation stone, made a speech in which he traced the growth of the Mysore Sugar Company from its inception to the present day. He gave a plan of the building which would cost about Rs.
22 lakhs. It has already cost Rs. 19 lakhs in dividends and has built up a reserve of Rs. 28,70,000. Up to the end of Dec. 1940 it has paid Rs. 185 lacs to the cane-growers. The company gives employment to about 3,000 persons of whom 1,000 are on daily wages.

miracle wrought by the policy of protection adopted by the Govt. of India. Almost unknown a decade ago, this industry is now a feature of the industrial life of the country, providing at one end employment for the cultivator and at the other end satisfying the needs of the consumer. We have now reached a stage when those interested in the industry should think of establishing it on a secure basis with the minimum tariff aid.

Future of Sugar Industry
The future of sugar industry is not without doubts and difficulties. Expert opinion is definitely of the view that with the establishment of up-to-date mechanical equipment, there is little chance of a further reduction in the cost of manufacture. Every-thing then depends upon the quantity and quality of the cane grown, on the cultivation of canes of early and late ripening varieties which would help to extend the cane-crushing season on the eradication of pests and diseases to which the cane is subject; and lastly on the realisation of a higher return from the disposal of molasses for which more use should be found. The problem of the sugar industry is thus essentially one pertaining to the cultivation of the cane and the use of the resultant waste product. Here is much work yet to be accomplished in the interests both of the agriculturist and of the industrialist if they are to flourish and satisfy the consumer. Any set back to this industry, with an investment to its credit which totals Rs. 25 to 35 crores and involves the welfare of some 20 million agriculturists, would mean a great set back to the rural economy of India, particularly in the United Provinces and Bihar, which to-gether produce something like 85 per cent. of the sugar required in the country. Nor can we forget the telling fact that the industry has, as a whole, afforded employment to a lakh of workers including nearly 2,500 university graduates in the higher and middle grades, and has helped to retain nearly Rs. 16 crores annually in the country.

Irwin Canal
In our State, Nature has provided us with some special facilities, of which we should take the fullest advantage. Sugarcane can be harvested here for at least eight months in the year. This is obviously a great advantage when one realizes that the average time for harvesting sugarcane in the United Provinces and Bihar, is not more than five or six months. The same investment in machinery, as in a Northern Indian factory, will enable con-siderably more cane to be dealt with here. Another advantage we enjoy should also be noted. The sugar industry came to Mysore after much steady work had been done by our Department of Agriculture. About the beginning of this century, the Department began a programme of cane selection and breeding at the Hebbal Experimental Farm, near Bangalore. New varieties of cane, resistant to disease and giving good yield, were de-veloped by it and distributed among cultivators, who were thus enabled to grow cane at a rea-sonable profit, which they were hardly able to do with the older varieties. The construction of the Krishnaraja Sagar, mean-while, opened up opportunities not only for the development of hydro-electric power but also of irrigation. The Irwin Canal, the principal outlet, is designed to irrigate 12,000 acres, so that wet crops such as rice, and semi-wet crops such as sugar-cane, can be grown. Experiments in the cultivation of sugar-cane soon followed at the Government Ex-perimental Farms in this area, and it was discovered that excel-lent crops could be raised.

The passing of the Sugar Industry Protection Act in 1932, increasing the import duty and giving protection to locally pro-duced sugar, induced us to see if we could not develop the in-dustry in the Irwin Canal area. Cane was grown on a large scale and the results obtained, espe-cially with H M 320, a variety developed by our own De-partment of Agriculture, estab-lished the fact that a modern suga industry could be started with every assurance of success. When in 1933 the Government of Mysore decided to co operate with business people in the es-tablishment of a white sugar in-dustry in the State, it seemed a most natural thing to do. So great has been the demand for the cultivation of sugar-cane in the M-andya area, where the factory has been established, that the new Company was soon induced to extend the capacity of the Factory from a grinding capacity of 400 tons to 1500 ton of cane per diem.

Cultivators
I am glad to be able to testify to the fact that the Company has always been anxious to de-al fairly with the cultivators on the one hand and with the share-holders on the other. The Com-pany may, indeed, be said to de-pend mainly upon the cultivator for its supply of sugar-cane. During the past year, the Com-pany's mills handled over 3 lakhs of tons of sugar-cane of which nearly 24 lakhs of tons came from the cultivators; about 23,000 tons from the Company's farms; and about 700 tons from the experimental enough to show how closely the interests of the Factory are bound up with those of the raiyats. The Company also provides facilities for affording technical guidance to them in cultivation methods, so that they can make the most of their land. It advances fertilizers to them on the security of their crops. It also maintains its own teams, not so much to supplement the cane output of the raiyats as to carry on experimental work in co-operation with the Government Agricultural Department, with a view to evolving the most suit-able varieties of cane and to find out the most effective method of fighting the many pests to which it is still a prey.

A rough estimate shows how much the Factory has helped to increase the economic prosperity of the raiyat. With in the past seven years following its estab-lishment, it has distributed among the cultivators as much as Rs. 167 lakhs. It has been authoritatively stated that the bonus paid during the past finan-cial year of the Company, as the raiyats' part of the increased price of sugar, according to the Company's scheme of sharing, amounted to over Rs. 8 lakhs, while about Rs. 32 lakhs was paid as the initial price of cane purchased for the Factory.

Molasses
Waste, they say, is the delight of the manufacturer. If there is one industry which gives the manufacturer an opportunity to use his talents to advantage in the matter of waste, it is this one. The manufacturer here has to deal with a large quantity of waste called molasses, and its use in different ways has meant not only an addition to the share-holders' divisible profits, but also advantage to the people of the State in many ways. Though used at present as material for conversion into arrack and alcohol in an up-to-date distillery, whose further development has been held up by the present war conditions, and as the prime base for the production of absolute alcohol for use as fuel in conjunction with petrol, the problem of disposing of the bulk of this product still remains. Very recent researches at the Imperial Institute of Sugar Technology at Cawnpore suggest various other uses for this product. It has been declared, for instance, a valuable carbohydrate food and attempts have been made to in-troduce cattle feeds in which it is an ingredient and which can economically replace common fodders. Experiments on the fermentation of molasses to butyl alcohol, acetone and acetic acid, and on the preparation of yeast, have shown, it is said, the practical possibility of de-veloping these into paying indus-tries. As research develops, there will doubtless be many other uses for this product, none to the advantage of the industry.

Industrial Progress
The new building will be worthy of the Mysore Sugar Company. Standing as it will on a most prominent site, it will be an elegant testimony to the industrial progress of Mysore. This Company's progress and growth, indeed, are a fitting tribute to the growing strength and order of the State of India. The Mysore Sugar Company is a fine example of the growth of an industry in a backward area, and its success is a source of inspiration to the people of the State.

The Central Recruitment Board

For a long time in Mysore Politics the activities of the Central Recruitment Board loomed large. For about fifteen years on the floor of the Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council no other subject dominated the scene as this. Though it is very unpalatable to us, to refer to that of controversy, truth demands us to characterise that as a very ugly feature of the then Mysore politics. There was no question of reason or rhyme in the fact of this communal politics. The late Mr. M. Venkatakrishnayya was the sole fighter against this divisional politics. He incurred much displeasure but yet unmindful of all that, he persevered in his campaign against communalism.

Perhaps we have now to consider it as a necessary phase of evolution of our political life in the country. It was an evil but yet that resulted in good. But for that communal virus, those leaders would not have stirred the masses and disturbed the then existing order. Due to efflux of time and force of circumstances, the same movement gathered momentum and diverted itself into a new channel. In the cry of communalism in those years, the cries of civil and political liberties were drowned. The protagonists of communalism were declaring then that the time was not ripe for responsible Government. Thank God, wisdom dawned on those leaders, though late, that it was futile to fight communal battles and they ranged themselves on the side of those who were striving for responsible Government. Though there are a few people who are yet sceptic about disappearance of communalism in our high politics, it must be said that it is held under check by a high idealism and objective of an all embracing political goal. As a result, the Assembly and the Legislative Council atmosphere was comparatively free for the last three years from communal wordy warfare on the floor of the house. One must be thankful for this turn in our political affairs.

Now to go back to the Central Recruitment Board. It was constituted in 1921 with a view to collecting information regarding the various vacancies occurring in the several departments and to ensure that the rules of recruitment are strictly carried out. The Board consisted of a Member of Council as Chairman, with certain heads of departments and non-official gentlemen as members thereof. The Government are of the opinion that the system worked satisfactorily during the last 20 years. In response to a general desire for constitution of a Public Service Commission and also in view of the recommendations of the Retirements Committee, the Government accepted that principle and appointed a Public Service Commissioner. With regard to this appointment the public opinion is expressed in the columns of our paper was not favourable. The public would have liked a Commission to be appointed and not one single Commissioner. Another point was that there was no justification for appointing an outsider. Be that as it may, this officer who entered on his duties on the 5th Feb. 1940, was requested to examine the existing rules in the matter of recruitment to the subordinate service and prepare a draft set of rules so as to enable Government to bring into force thenew scheme from an early date. It is said that the Commissioner has submitted his report to the Government, which is under the consideration of the Government.

We understand that Government have not passed final orders in the matter. Pending that, the Government have transferred the work of the Central Recruitment Board to the Public Service Commissioner and the Board also is reconstituted for a further period of three months with the Public Service Commissioner as the Chairman. For one thing we are glad. The Government have not passed their final orders on the report of the Public Service Commissioner. We suggest that it would be advisable to publish the report and submit it to public criticism. It is also advisable to take the opinion of the newly constituted Houses of legislature. Nothing would be lost by waiting until June. If the Government pass the order themselves without ascertaining the public views on the matter there is bound to be criticism both for the procedure and also the contents of the order. After all, this is a matter in which the public are vitally interested and the Government would be doing only their duty by publishing the report of the Public Service Commissioner with a view to ascertaining the popular view, before passing final orders. We hope our suggestion would be appreciated by those concerned.

THE LUCKY CONCLAVE

The distinction of moulding the careers of numerous Film Stars has fallen to the lucky lot of a charming young Gentleman who is in our midst now. Film Journalism differs from its counterpart in ways more than one. No one is better born than the person who dominates the colourful scene of a Film World. The conclave of lucky ones who choose rare romances to please the dall world have a mission of their own Film being as distinguished in on the stage as he has many duties to perform unless the one which in recent years is declining in taste and form. MYSORE STATE CONGRESS

A Calcutta Paper on its Destiny

That "The Statesman" has been evincing a keen interest in the affairs of Mysore is evidenced more than once. Here is another occasion. Writing under "Occasional Notes" in the issue of 22nd Inst the paper says:-

"Mysore's State Congress has won a little over a third of the seats in the local Assembly and less than half of the elective seats in the Legislative Council. Its leaders are loud in complaint that its share in both Houses would have been larger if the nomination papers of a number of its members had not been rejected on narrowly technical and even frivolous grounds. On this point the State Congress recently petitioned first the Mysore Government and then the Maharaja in the expectation that the one authority or the other would by a general decree, collectively override the decisions of all the returning Officers. In this it was disappointed. The aggrieved parties have been told, not without reason, to seek relief from the law courts. The electoral results, as they stand, put the State Congress in a position of influence in the reformed legislature; they do not put it in the position of a majority influence is not however a thing to be despised and the State Congress will be expected to make a creditable use of its opportunities as a constitutional party. Its destiny is within the State; it has nothing to gain by looking outside the State for its policy."

We wish the Mysore Government appreciate this view point and defend the Mysore Congress.

John, a motor cleaner, died of heart failure in Seshadri Road, on the afternoon of February 25. The motor car in which he was going having stopped in that road owing to shortage of petrol, he got down and proceeded to a petrol bunk to get petrol. But on the way he collapsed, and it was believed, owing to heart failure.

which the silver screen throws up as pieces of entertainment differ both in quality and quantity to that of the ordinary dull foot light musical comedy which has lost its grip due to its own decline.

Mingling with Film Stars has its own fascination unsurpassed by any of our modern amusements. The popularity that has been built up by the pioneers of the silver screen has an object lesson to those whose business is to please this world. It is always unsafe to rub shoulders with the popular Screen Stars and more so with the "Queen of the Silver Screen". The unquestioned sovereignty which pervades the Film world by the authority and power of prerogative of the Screen Stars has landed many in trouble not to speak of the shame and ignominy characteristic of the close proximity to the favourite star. It is more often hinted as safe to get pleased on the screen than to go the whole way to a studio the mysteries of which might entangle the innocent. The power of the screen though wholesome has its dangers too, as revealed by the seemingly incongruous modes of studio misbehaviours.

The Film Journalist who is trying to patch up these quarrels does well to proceed in his worthy mission. We welcome the visitor in our midst.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Dr. C. R. Reddy who was once very popular with audiences is experiencing for the first time a rough handling from audiences. "Go away!" "Get away!"—these cries greeted Dr. C. R. Reddy when he attempted a speech at the tenth Andhra Nakata Kala Parishad Conference over which he presided. All his efforts to make himself heard above the pandemonium proved fruitless. The students formed the bulk of the audience. They did not like Dr. Reddy's attitude with regard to the Congress which organization he had criticised in a former address of his in connection with War Propaganda. Ultimately Dr. Reddy had to sit down helplessly without proceeding with his speech.

This clearly shows that any body who is easy-going in politics and criticises all and sundry can have no chance of getting a hearing from people, that too, on critical occasions. Students who are idealistic can have no charm for epicurean politics of which Dr. C. R. Reddy has been an ardent votary.

Resuming the editorial, 'the National Herald' writes its first article on the Central Assembly under the caption "Well Done". These are the first few sentences:-

"Though pre-eminently a city of states of men, great or small, we would not be unwilling to vote one more in honour of Sardar Sant Singh in New Delhi, if only for the reason that he had the good sense not to move on Thursday his resolution for the convening of a conference of the leading parties of India to settle the political and constitutional question. A debate of this nature in the context of the present circumstances in the country would have been both tenuous and fantastic. It would have meant not only an unnecessary waste of public time, but a pernicious deflection of public attention from the supreme and paramount issue. Those who have the good name of the country at heart could not have desired worse than the amazing exhibition of political paltroony, callous opportunism, and bankrupt statesmanship that would have resulted from the discussion of a proposal that had neither a moral nor a political bearing on the reality of the Indian problem. The issue of a debate has certainly whatever little is left of the name of a heavily depleted representative and moribund legislature.

I have quoted the above sample of the vigorous and refreshing contrast to the humdrum writings that come across in most journals.

This is a story from Lucknow father proposing son's marriage but marrying himself. Here are the facts:-

"He proposed the marriage of a girl with his son but was celebrated his own marriage with her". This revelation made in the course of a case of the court of Mr. Jyoti Prasad Magistrate of Lucknow.

The complainant in the case was the mother of Mr. Jyoti Dulari. She stated that she accused Natha proposed Janka Dulari be married to son, but while negotiations were in progress the accused came away Janka Dulari. The mother of the girl filed a complaint, and then in the court his statement the accused that Janka Dulari was his fully wedded wife.

The magistrate passing judgment in the case observed that in matter of guardianship was decided by the civil court since the girl was not prepared to live with the accused. She was at liberty to go her own way. This is another Sarangdhar affair.

The following is a distressing story. A Congressman Bulandshahr went on hunger strike as a protest against his father's refusal to allow a son of his to draw water from a well to water his field. After a fast, the father thought he had yielded to the general impulses of his son. He did not know what Gandhiji would do to this. Would he congratulate the son?

LIFE SENTENCE FOR MURDER
Confirmed By The High Court
On Appeal

Bangalore, Feb. 27. In the Mysore High Court, the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice F. Singaravelu Mudaliyar, in disposing of a criminal appeal, yesterday, confirmed the sentence of transportation for life, passed by the lower court, on Gowdegowda (30) for the offence of murder under section 302 I. P. C.

It was alleged that Gowdegowda murdered Lakshammamma, a young girl, on the morning of November 29, 1939, near Nidugod Belur taluk.

Their honours, in the course of their judgement dismissing the appeal observed that unfortunately the case was pending before the committal court for over eight months. Though the magistrate was a revenue officer also, it was not sufficient reason for such a long delay in important cases as the present one.

Mr. S. Gundappa appeared for the Appellant and the Advocate-General for Government.

MALARIA HAVOC IN THE IRWIN CANAL AREA

To the Editor "Daily News"

In the issue of the 11th January 1941, there appears an article under the heading "Health Vigilance in the Irwin Canal Area". How Irrigation is "Protected" I have not read, but I find it through that can be said nothing that can be said to help the people. It is said that some millions of the Bodies of the purpose are to be holding meetings and holding this and there visiting this and that. In the meanwhile, the people are suffering from a very bad and virulent type of malaria in almost all the villages along the Irwin Canal. From babies in the cradle to old men and women already in the grave, almost every person has been the victim of this dire epidemic. In the village one can see hundreds of persons with enlarged livers and swollen pale faces, suffering and groaning. Their agricultural operations have become a standstill and in many villages though it is nearly two years since the existing sugar-cane is planted, the harvest of the crops is not yet begun. At the time of harvest thousands of labourers used to come from outside in search of work, but this year nobody has come. Some who had come, had to turn back to their homes, having been severely attacked with this dire disease, and many of them are still suffering in their villages. In many villages there are not persons left to cook their food. The relatives who go there to help them are also mercilessly attacked with the disease in no time. The situation here is far more than in the worst part of the world.

When the state of affairs is like this, no useful purpose will be served if the existing officers and staff are asked to control the epidemic along with their other work. It is an urgent necessity to employ an army of doctors and health experts to deal with this dire disease, and also against the mosquitoes, simultaneously. As I can see the Government has not yet realised the seriousness of the situation. No effective steps have been taken to combat the epidemic.

The Government are realising more than Rs. 300 as income from all sources, if a ryot grows sugar-cane in one acre in this area. This may be amazing, yet it is true. The sugarcane duty alone brings in an income of Rs. 10, taking the average yield to 30 tons per acre which gives 10 tons of sugar. Railway freight for the cane being sent from one acre to the factory, from more than three-fourths of the area under the canal, is Rs. 30 for 30 tons. The railway traffic is other than the cane. It is greatly increased by the transport of Ammonia Sulphate, superphosphate, oil cakes, compounds of sugar, grain etc., and by export of sugar, distillery products etc. The Government have purchased 50 per cent of the shares of the Sugar Company which has a 20 per cent dividend and the shareholders are transferring large amounts of the income from the company to the Reserves. Then, the Government are levying on the company. It is admitted on all hands that sugar-cane is a two-year crop and in the third year in that block only dry crop is to be raised, which often does not yield even as much as a ryot spends. Hence out of the sugarcane income the ryot has to pay actually three years' kandyam, water-rate, local cess and instalment of acreage contribution, all amounting to Rs. 75. Then there is the income from the distillery, whose income I cannot estimate. In these and other ways the income from this area to Government is enormous. The income of the ryot who cultivates even his own lands is not more than two to three annas per day per head if the land is good. Otherwise he does not get even this. Out of the income he has to make provision for food, clothing, shelter, sickness, medicine, death, marriage, feasts and festivals, other kinds of ceremonies both auspicious and inauspicious, and the like. If these statements are doubted an economic survey may be made and truth be ascertained.

When the matters stand like this, Government should not hesitate to spend a decent amount to get rid of the malaria pest which is eating into the very vitals of the whole population.

I think the following remedies should be at once adopted by the Government:—

(i) A number of doctors should be sent to this area to go to the very doors of the sufferers and treat them regularly and continuously until each patient gets rid of all traces of malaria in his system. Otherwise there will be relapses leading to the Chronic stage when it would be very difficult to rescue him. There are already a large number of persons whose chances of complete recovery are very remote. Government should not hesitate to give costly injections also free of cost in cases of necessity.

(ii) Small health-units should be formed and volunteers from each village should be taken to help the medical men. Their services may be suitably recognised by awarding medals etc., for their honorary work.

(iii) There should be a good deal of propaganda work by the Health Department. Health films should be shown and lectures delivered in each of these villages and not merely in the annual Exhibitions at Mysore.

(iv) The use of mosquito curtains should be encouraged and people who can afford to buy them must be provided with cheap and durable varieties, the Government buying wholesale from cheap markets. Poor people, who cannot afford to purchase them must be given gratis some less costly curtains. The use of curtains both by the healthy and the sick would prevent the transmission of malaria from the unhealthy to the healthy. I have seen people using curtains, somewhat free from malaria and such people are few and far between. Mosquito raid shelters should be provided for them at all costs.

(v) Surrounding marshy places should be sprayed with at least kerosene oil periodically in the absence of Paris Green.

I hope the authorities concerned will do their level best to save the population in this area before it is too late. On account of this pest they have lost much of their income and they have also lost much of their strength and energy; and everything is drifting towards the loss of the whole population.

The politicians of to-day in Mysore do not pay any attention to such sufferings as these. They are divided into mainly two classes. Persons belonging to one class are not satisfied with anything less than "Responsible Government" to start with and they are not bothered about smaller things. The other class of politicians is composed of persons who call the existing state of things as "Ramrajya", thus creating an impression on the minds of the authorities that everything is alright and satisfactory. If other than the representatives of the people represent the people's grievances it is likely that such representations may not be seriously taken notice of by the authorities. I am not now the representative of any section of the people and yet I think it is my duty to bring to the notice of all concerned the sufferings of the Malaria stricken people with a hope that the Government would take the matter seriously into consideration and take all necessary action immediately to relieve the distress and to prevent the depopulation of the whole of Mandya District.

Another important help that the Government can and must render to the ryots is a financial help, not by advancing money to them, but by postponing the collection of the instalments of the acreage contribution till the epidemic subsides and till they can avoid the loss that they have been incurring for want of labour. Now they themselves cannot work, neither can they get labourers from outside. As it is, it is a delusion to think that the ryot is getting any profit from his lands. In fact a landowning ryot is far worse than a landless cooly who ordinarily gets in these parts, 6 annas a day and now for more than this, for one fourth of the work that an owner of the land turns out on his land. A hired labourer comes to the field after 9 O'clock in the morning and clears out before 12 noon, doing his job in a half hearted way. So also he works about 2 hours in the afternoon. The owner on the other hand begins his work even before dawn and continues till darkness sets in.

Further, when the ryot is ill or in a convalescent state, he must require some sort of nourishment. He must have medicine and even tonic to have stamina to resist the onslaught of the disease. Hence also the appeal to postpone the collection of acreage contribution for sometime.

RELATIONS BETWEEN NEWSPAPERS AND GOVERNMENT

Government Reply to Resolutions of Editors' Conference

NO DIFFICULTY IN MAINTAINING DELHI AGREEMENT

Formula for Publishing Gandhiji's Statements

THE DELHI AGREEMENT

New Delhi, Feb. 27.—The Government of India recognise the duty of newspapers to give legitimate publicity to persons to take part in their own declared intention from doing anything to make war effort and from making news or views which might incite persons to take part in war movement and which therefore, prejudicial reports in the meaning of law, Government see no difficulty in maintaining the Delhi Agreement of the good relations between Government and the Press which it is its purpose to preserve.

This declaration is made in a letter received by the President All-India Newspaper Editors Conference from Sir Richard Stevenson, Additional Secretary, Government of India in reply to the resolutions passed by the Standing Committee of the Conference held in February, Delhi.

SIR TOTTENHAM'S LETTER

The letter says Government of India do not consider it to be desirable for the Chief Press Adviser to consult the Central Press Advisory Committee about messages referred to him for advice since many of these are of purely routine nature and there is no room for any divergence of opinion about them. Government of India agree however to refer to the Committee most important messages regarding to which there is legitimate room for doubt as to the nature of press advice to be given provided that the newspapers themselves are willing to accept delay involved and do not publish doubtful messages before receiving such advice.

Bengal Press

With reference to the Committee's resolution regarding correspondence between the Press Adviser of the Government and the Provincial Press Adviser sory Committee, the letter says there may be special circumstances which render publication of particular message in a particular province not desirable even though there may be no objection of its publication in other provinces. Subject to this qualification Government endeavour to secure uniformity of treatment and agree messages concerning central subjects such as Defence, Foreign affairs etc., if they have been passed for publication by the Chief Press Adviser should be accepted as passed for publication in all provinces.

"Sainik"

Regarding Committee's resolution about "Sainik" newspaper of Agra the letter says Government of India will consult U.P. Government regarding this resolution and obtain their views.

Mahatma's Statements

Reference to the Committee's resolution requesting the Government ordinarily not to ban publication of statements issued by Mahatma Gandhi and in cases where they are inclined to take such step they should consult the Central Press Advisory Committee before passing any orders thereon, the Government of India are prepared to accept the resolution provided the newspapers for their part are prepared to accept delay which must involve in following the procedure suggested. They must however point out it can only be followed in the case of formal statements of Gandhiji issued through news agencies and not sent to Editors direct and that only by this means can equal treatment for all newspapers be ensured.

Consultative Machinery

The Government of India accept the Committee's resolution about consultative machinery so far as they themselves are concerned and will ask those Provincial Governments which have not already done so to establish a convention that ordinarily no action will be taken against a newspaper without prior consultation with the local Press Advisory Committee.

"Harij n"

With reference to the Committee's resolution desiring to assure Gandhiji that it will welcome the reappearance of "Harijan" weeklies, the letter points out that the resolution was addressed to Gandhiji and not to the Government of India.

Directions To Provincial Govts.

Government were prepared to accept for themselves so far as they were concerned and to recommend for favourable consideration of the Provincial Governments the following points in one of the resolutions. Instructions to press should always be in writing and should be signed by the official in authority. Police officers should not be employed except in cases of search and arrest, in dealing with press and pressmen. The Chief Secretary to the Government of the Province should attend the meetings of local Press Advisory Committee from time to time.

The Government of India regret they cannot accept the Committee's request that the circulars issued to the Press except those which relate to Defence Military and Foreign Affairs should be allowed to be printed in newspapers in order to make their position clear to the public. The letter says they cannot accept this for reasons connected with the efficient prosecution of the war which they will be prepared to give in confidence to the Standing Committee at its next meeting.

Other Matters

As regards other orders or instructions affecting the Press the Government of India agree that in all matters of real importance affecting the press as a whole or any considerable section of it, they will proceed so far as they can possibly do so in consultation with the Central Press Advisory Committee. They will also recommend a similar procedure to the Provincial Governments vis a vis their Provincial Advisory Committees.

BREEZE IN COUNCIL OF STATE

BETWEEN MR. SAPRU AND MR. HUSSEIN IMAM

"You Don't Count Us As Indians" (From our correspondent)

(By wire) New Delhi, Feb. 27.—An unexpected turn was taken today by the debate in the Council of State on Mr. Sapru's resolution for suspension of British recruitment of I.C.S. when Mr. Hussein Imam on behalf of the Muslim League started a communal attack. His charge against the supporters of the resolution was that by "Indians" they meant only "Hindus". He went on to declare "I cannot consent to Indianisation of I.C.S. without making my own community secure. When Mr. Hussein Imam shouted "you don't count us as Indians" Mr. P. N. Sapru angrily retorted "whom do we count you?" as "Moroccans, Libyans." A spirited speech was then made by Pandit H. N. Kunzru describing Mr. Hussein Imam's allegations as mischievous and disclaiming any intention to harbour designs against the minority interests. Mr. P. N. Sapru in his opening speech asserted that Government of India Act 1935 was now a dead letter. Stoppage of British Recruitment of I.C.S. appeared to him one way to ease the present political situation in India. He then appealed to British Government if they really desired to make India free to show some evidence of the new spirit in the manner suggested in the resolution. Mr. Conran Smith on behalf of Government promised to forward the text of the resolution and the summary of the debate to the Secretary of State for India.

POLITICALS' ECULATION

Gandhiji's Meeting With Sir Sapru

(From our correspondent) (By Wire) Allahabad, Feb. 28.—Gandhiji arrived here and his meeting Sir Sapru this morning has given rise to political speculation about possible relations between Congress circles and Gandhiji. There is no change of opinion of Gandhiji's attitude towards Congress. Dr. Govind Vellore Gandhiji's demand of freedom of speech and expression.

A. P. Allahabad, Feb. 28.—Soon after his arrival Gandhiji accompanied by Mr. Mahadev Desai visited Ananda Bhavan.

Gandhiji walked the whole distance from Ananda Bhavan to the meeting place. He was received at the door by Manohar Lal, President of the Institution who took him to the hall and showed him various buildings and the latest additions to the ashram since Gandhiji's visit. The inmates of the ashram presented to Gandhiji some products of the ashram such as "Mushrooms" and flower baskets and shawl garlands.

The Census

Today all over India, people are busy with census operations. As far as Mysore is concerned this is the eighth census. It is stated that a regular census was first taken in the State on 14th November 1871. As there was famine in 1877 and there was much loss of life, there seems to have been a suggestion immediately thereafter that the second census might be taken without delay to ascertain the extent of the loss. This was however not done and the second regular census was taken only in 1881. The subsequent censuses were carried out in 1891, 1901, 1911, 1921, 1931 and 1941.

Now the people are accustomed to census operations. During the time of the first census there was suspicion in the minds of the people. Mr. M. Venkatesa Iyengar, the Census Superintendent of the last census writes humourously in his report that during the first census "a rumour got about that heads were counted in order to levy a poll tax; there was another rumour that wives were wanted for European soldiers and that the census was held to make a list of young women of eligible years. The effect of the former rumour upon the returns is not on record; but the latter rumour is said to have led to many young women of marriageable years being returned as much older than they really were." In the last census the State was formed into 41,490 blocks and these were grouped into 3,395 circles. Expenditure in connection with the last census was over 2 lakhs. In 1921 it was Rs. 2,80,000.

A few days ago we published some interesting facts about the coming census in respect of All-India. In All-India this is the seventh census. The total cost is estimated at Rs. 50 lakhs. There are over 11 millions of enumerators. We wish the Mysore Government also furnished the like information early to enlighten the public.

However, as it is, the census operations are very important from the point of view of raw material for sociological research. As now conceived census has two main objects. It provides an instantaneous picture of the community—a cross section of the body politic exhibiting its constitution. It affords knowledge of numbers and conditions in a changing world. It furnishes knowledge of the forces and directions of the trends in the community in the modern census, such enumeration is conceived not only as a source of static knowledge but as a item in a consecutive series. "From the succession of these alone can be ascertained and measured those great drifts and currents in the national life which, whether deemed good or evil, whether resistible or irresistible, must at least be known and reckoned with."

How important the census figures are, one cannot sufficiently realize. "In the modern day," democracy census statistics are the common tools and material of the business of government in ways too numerous to detail; but they are equally indispensable to the direction of state policy. In matters of defence the most pacific nation cannot afford not to know, where it stands and whither it is tending. Questions of unemployment cannot begin to be considered without a knowledge of the industrial disposition of the people. Policy respecting migration still depends on a recognition of the forces of population pressure which have so often changed the face of history. Knowledge of these facts, even where not directly contributing to the solution of the problems of statecraft or state policy, nevertheless forms a back ground against which they must be viewed."

In this age of science and scientific way of thinking, when mathematical precision is coming into vogue, the facts and figures furnished by the census operations would form the rock-bed of the foundation of structure of future destiny of mankind. The very fact that in Bengal there has been raging a virulent controversy with regard to the census operations reveals how fundamental are the figures of the Census in determining the future politics of the country. Any modern and enlightened citizen who does not contribute his best to the successful operations of the census, fails in his duty to his countrymen and falls from the standard of true citizenship.

RADIO INSTRUMENTS FOR HIRE

The local Municipal Council has decided to lend Radio sets unmindful of the provocation that it would cause to the dealers. Whether it is a receiving set or an amplifier has not been made clear. The agenda says "in the matter of levying a fee of Rs. 10 per day on the loan of Municipal Radio sets to others" and forgets whether the valve set is to be given as a loan or on transfer. The absence of clarity in the preparation of official items for the Council Agenda sometimes get twisted itself to connote a different interpretation. We have never heard anywhere and at any time that the Radio sets are given on loan to others for the small sum of Rs. 10. If what is conveyed in the Agenda refers only to the amplifier, we have no quarrel. But to transfer a public Radio set for a paltry sum is nothing but astonishing and all the more incomprehensible.

The Municipality sanctioned a definite amount to provide evening music through the

BANGALORE'S BUS SERVICE

MAKE IT A PUBLIC UTILITY

(T. L. A. ACHARYA)

I should think on Municipality "missed the Bus" when it let the running of the City's Transport Service slip into the hands of a Private Company, a sterling opportunity for the introduction of the tradition of Municipal public utilities has been lost. Just before this merger of all the City's competitive bus services was effected in the shape of the Bangalore Transport Co. Ltd., if I happened to be terrorised by a conductor or manhandled by an Inspector, I could, being a Jajalswaramite, rush for redress to that perfect gentleman, Mr. S. L. Narayana Rao of the S. L. N. Service. Now we have a company, coldly impersonal, and comfortably unresponsive. The days of Messrs. Garudachar and Narayana Rao are gone, though rattling bone-shaker 'Bus will always be called a Garudachar 'Bus and the form, employees of Mr. Narayana Rao will always think of him as a model of courtesy and benevolence.

I should not be mistaken for holding a belated brief for a return to the bad old days of competitive Bus Services. They have died on unlamented death. What I am at pains to suggest is that in an decent big city, the Transport Service must be run in the interests of the tax-payer and for the tax-payer. What should really be a public utility becomes a veritable public nuisance if the conduct of such a service is inspired by a profit-seeking motivation. The company has to think of its shareholders and the non-stop clamour for dividends. I do not suggest that a public utility service should not make a profit. But the basic inspiration of such an institution will be service and incidentally a little profit.

The bus habit has taken roots in my blood and become chronic. I know what I am saying. I am one of the Bangalore Transport Company's paying victims and, as such can speak with the authentic voice of the oppressed. I have even toyed with the idea of starting the S.P.C.B. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Bussers, if you want to know what S.P.C.B. means.

radio, in several of our local parks. We have two or three valve sets placed at convenient places. But the music which emanates from these instruments compare with the wail of a Tamil Nad woman who had the misfortune to lose her husband. The tuning in is in the hands of those who do not know anything about sets. It is all the more revealing that this sorry state of things should culminate in a sudden decision to loan the sets. Radio instruments are delicate things and to lend them to all and sundry is strange indeed. We hope our City Fathers will realise the mistake ere long and rectify things to the satisfaction of our rate payers. Radio instruments can never be given on loan.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I congratulate the Mysore Sugar Company on the function of laying the foundation stone by the Dewan on Thursday evening. The building when completed would add beauty to the locality. Some facts and figures were disclosed in the speech of the Chairman of the Company. In the shape of dividends 19 lakhs have already been paid. To cane growers 185 lakhs are paid. I wish more was paid to the farmers. There is a complaint that the recompense that they get is not equal to their sacrifice. Mr. S. Krishnaswamy Rao, a wellknown advocate of Mysore has written a letter to the President in which he has shown that the Government are realising more than Rs. 300 as income from all sources if a ryot grows sugarcane in one acre in that area. Mr. Krishnaswamy Rao has shown that the income of the Ryot who cultivates even his own lands is not more than 2 to 3 annas per day per head if the land is good. In his letter he has offered some suggestions as to how to get the area rid of the Malaria pest. This is a matter deserving of serious attention at the hands of Government. I am of the opinion that the Sugar Company ought to devote a good portion of its profits to the medical aid of the locality.

The news of the day is Sir Vizia Ananda Maharajakumar of Vizianagaram's desire to offer Satyagraha and Mahatma Gandhi's turning down the proposal. Sir Vizia is very popular in the cricket world. He is a good sport. His writings show how desirous he is of introducing a sportive spirit in politics. It is remarkable that a scion of a well-known aristocratic family feels so keenly for the political situation in the country and offers his services for Satyagraha. Patriotic people in India have nothing but admiration for Sir Vizia Ananda Maharajakumar of Vizianagaram.

I will now charge-sheet the company (only major charges mentioned) before the Court of public awareness.

(a) No change, get out (without even as much as a 'please'). Fancy, gentlemen of the jury, one of you being unceremoniously and summarily bundled out of a 'bus, just because you presented a Rupee, not even a counterfeit one, and you did not have small change. I have seen it happen everyday, times out of number. Surely the Treasury and the banks are not depleted of small change and nobody hoards the various fractions of a Rupee, even in these days of hectic hoarding. What do you make of the management of a company which cannot provide its 'bus conductors with, say, five Rupees in the shape of small change? I have seen unescorted ladies ejected and deposited all along the route and I have watched them standing on the road side perplexed and befuddled.

I wish my readers a careful study of the rates. They are an important factor in the financial stability of the State. In the last 3-4 years there has been a good deal of speculation about the rates, which would be placed before the Assembly this year. There is a belief in the market that taxation will be so high as to hamper progress. The effect of the war to Far East has disturbed the business of Mysore. Shares are steady in some cases rising.

Dr. C. R. Reddy is advising Andhras not to themselves too much about Andhra Province question. He wants them to concentrate on war and am inclined to think that war has given a turn to Reddy's way of thinking who was very ardent about Andhra Province, while Congress was in power sings a different tune, but out of office. Mystery in the ways of people. Reddy who can do anything.

of jankawallah who ran amok. And the bus carried a fair contingent of ladies!

(c) YOU DON'T KNOW WHERE YOU ARE GOING. Take the bus and the bus carries a fair contingent of ladies! (What you are going to the Majestic, flower stand at the Majestic, newspaper sellers, fruit hawkers, beggars and other pedestrians from the cinema-houses, the rush hour in the houses, the regular loony camp, the bus is a regular loony camp to be. There is a terrible scramble for berths. People climb on the bus and curse the driver who settles and curse the bus. Cries rise into the air and the bus, like a possessed, and the passengers (some of them) topple off and disappear in the general confusion. A regular stampede of people. Thank God, you have a bus. The bus starts and halts. You realise you are being taken to Sirampur, while all the time you have been waiting to go to the Indian Institute of Science. Or you are on the Sampige Road one. You have no relief. You are deposited, quite a discarded doctrine, quite a mile from your home. And if you are on one of those char coal power contraptions you have scarcely any hope of reaching anywhere.

The women are always left behind. In the evening, in the market square, you are at sea. You do not know which bus to take, the yellow, the green, the red or the new-red, the grey or the one of no definable colour. From Malleswaram to the Majestic you pay 9 pises and from Malleswaram to the City Railway Station you pay an anna and three pises. You do not have a bus when you want it and when the bus halts at a place, exercise your vocal chords as you will, it refuses to move. There is no bus stop on the Malleswaram side of the Railway Station and there are no stops where you expect to have them.

It is just the ecstasy of thoughtlessness and we pay for such service!

I would not be what I am if I did not think of the employees of the company. A driver goes to work, at the appointed time, and if his vehicle refuses to function he has to go without his wages! Or if the bus goes and starts and stops somewhere on the road and defies all mechanical fiddling to set it going, the driver goes without his wages. So does the conductor. There is no labour regulation in our State yet. In any case, the Government will do well to ask the company the following: Have you guaranteed permanency of service to your employees? Do you give them a day off in a week? Are the employees entitled to sick leave? Have you instituted a Provident Fund Scheme for them? Do you pay daily, weekly or monthly wages? Why do some drivers get higher wages, while others, of an equal standard of efficiency, get less? While they are about it, the Government may as well find out why the first-aid boxes in the vehicles of the company are stocked with fresh tickets instead of the essentials of first-aid? If not, why not?

If no satisfactory answers are forthcoming, the charter for running the service must be cancelled with alacrity.

I register a strong and genuine plea for municipalisation of the bus service. I want it to be run as a public utility.

MYSORE SUGAR COMPANY

FOUNDATION STONE FUNCTION

Dewan Bahadur K. Mathan's Speech
Bangalore, Feb 27
In requesting Sir Mirza Ismail Dewan of Mysore, to lay the foundation stone of the new Head Office Building for Mysore Sugar Factory, Dewan Bahadur K. Mathan said:-

As you are aware, the Company's Head Office has, from the commencement, been held in rented premises on Seshadri Road, originally intended for residential purposes. With the growth of the activities and prosperity of the Company, the Directors have, for a long time, felt the need for constructing, for the purpose of housing the Company's Head Office, a modern and up-to-date Building, which would be designed specifically for use as Office premises and be in keeping with the position held by the Mysore Sugar Company among the leading industrial and commercial enterprises of the Mysore State and, at the same time, be a worthy addition to the rapidly increasing number of dignified and attractive Buildings in this City of Bangalore. The inspiration for these civic improvements has, as is well known, come from Sir Mirza Ismail and it was due to the keen and active interest taken by him in the Sugar Company's project that we were able to acquire from the Government this valuable and prominent site, measuring 1-1/2 acres lying along the Kumbargundi Road, one of the important thoroughfares of the City, near its junction with another main Road, the Sri Narasimharaja Road, and overlooking the beautiful lawns and fountains in front of the Sir Puttanna Chetty Town Hall, which is diagonally opposite.

Plan of Building

The Building will consist of two storeys. The first floor will accommodate the whole of the Sugar Company's Office, while the ground floor will be available to be let out as business premises. Generous provision of ventilation, which is an essential requirement of commercial Office Buildings, has been the controlling consideration in planning the building. Two principal stairs will be provided, which not only provide easy access to floors but also form an elegant feature in the entrance Hall. There will also be service stairs behind. Ample and efficient modern sanitary and water supply conveniences will be installed in the building. The plinth area of the building is about 7,500 sq. ft. and it is estimated to cost about Rs. 75,000. It is designed to be capable of further expansion, if this should at any time be needed.

The principal elevation has been designed with a central circular entrance Hall looking towards the point at which the important thoroughfares, previously mentioned, join. This elevation will be supported by a pair of wings on either side, thus affording a wide street frontage composed of three faces. The structure will be surmounted by a central tower covered by a dome which dominates the design. The treatment of the elevation will be thus dignified and, at the same time, exhibit the practical simplicity of the commercial architecture of the present day afforded by cement, glass, concrete chajjas and other modern materials. The external walls will be built of Bangalore grey granite, dressed to a pleasant surface texture, which will be in keeping with the style of the other stone buildings in the immediate neighbourhood, viz., the Town Hall, the United India Buildings and the Municipal Offices. The design includes the use of local materials, such as Mysore teak, stone, iron, steel and cement, etc., as far as possible. In construction, the building will be completely fire proof. It will rest on a substantial reinforced concrete foundation, with reinforced concrete floors and walls of solid stone, having the very latest finishes for floors and interior.

The outline of the design of the building was prepared by Mr. Koenig-berger, the Government Architect, under instructions of the Dewan Sahib, while the design was completed by Mr. T. S. Narayana Rao, Architect, to whom the supervision over the construction of the building has been entrusted.

Company's Prosperity

The habitation of the Mysore Sugar Company in a permanent building of its own may be regarded as the visible symbol of the attainment of its maturity. The Company was inaugurated in the year 1933 with a capital of Rs. 20 lakhs. Its capital is now nearly Rs. 22 lakhs. It has already paid out over Rs. 19 lakhs in dividends and has built up a general reserve of Rs. 28,70,000 and a dividend equalisation fund of Rs. 5 lakhs, besides making full provision for the liquidation of a debenture loan of Rs. 8 lakhs which falls due for repayment at the end of this year. Up to the end of December 1940 it has paid Rs. 185 lakhs to the farmers supplying Sugar-cane to the factory, whose steadily increasing prosperity is a source of just pride to the Company. One source of anxiety is the spread of malaria, which, during the last two years has greatly increased in this tract; but we are confident that Government will spare no pains or expenditure necessary for the removal of this serious menace to the health of the community.

Employees

The management of the Company, while safeguarding the interests of the shareholders and of the cultivators supplying the raw produce required for its factory, has not been unmindful of the interests of its own employees. The Company gives employment to about 3000 persons, of whom 2,500 are on daily wages. A scheme of providing suitable housing accommodation for the employees has been inaugurated and considerable progress has been made in this direction. A provident fund has been constituted to which both the monthly and the daily paid staff are equally eligible to subscribe and the Company makes a contribution of an amount equal to the subscription of the members. Free Medical aid is given to the employees and their families. A school, a Maternity Home, a Club, playing fields and various other amenities have been provided.

Thanks to Government

As I said at the last annual general Meeting, the Company is the outcome of the wise, courageous and farseeing policy of the Government of Mysore in providing extensive irrigation facilities at enormous cost to the once dry and arid area of the Mandya and Maddur taluks which are now like smiling gardens all the year round. The success which the Company has achieved during the past eight

DEARNESS ALLOWANCE FOR RAILWAY EMPLOYEES

Government Contemplate Setting Up Machinery

New Delhi, Feb. 27

In the course of the debate in the Assembly this morning on the question of dearness allowance for railway employees on a cut motion moved by Mr. Miller (European Group) Sir Andrew Clow announced that in order to remedy the difficulties felt by the Court of Inquiry owing to scantiness of statistical evidence, Government contemplated setting up of a machinery of more or less permanent character which would include experts in economic statistical investigation. Sir Clow said it was not fitting for him at this stage to give any indication of Government's view on the conclusions reached by the Court of Inquiry. The Railway Board had been in consultation and correspondence with the All India Railway men's Federation on the subject and were at the moment awaiting views therefrom. Discussions, he said, were proceeding not exactly on the basis of the report and it would be recognised that if a solution could be reached by the method of negotiation it was a form of sounder basis than investigation. He would endeavour to keep the Standing Finance Committee in touch with any important changes in the situation.

Replying to Mr. Aney, Sir Clow said members were entitled to draw any inference they could from the fact that provision was made in the railway budget for any possible increase in wages.

Mr. Miller

Mr. Miller moving his cut motion criticised the Court of Enquiry's handling of statistical evidence. He indicated the European Group's opposition to any suggestion that allowances given should be included as an integral part of wages and stressed the advisability of maintaining a permanent or semi-permanent panel of persons with experience of labour conditions and in constant contact there with who could act on the courts of enquiry such as the one presided over by Sir B. N. Rau.

Mr. N. M. Joshi

Mr. N. M. Joshi opined the report was a good one but wished that the Court had not confined its enquiry or findings to those getting thirty five rupees and below per mensem but had taken into consideration the case of men getting Rs. 50. He deprecated the European Group who represented employers, opposing the compensation that was being made to men whose standard of living was going down. He urged Government to come to a decision quickly as there were already signs of unrest among men.

Mr. Mortimer

Mr. Mortimer explained that the European Group was not criticising or casting reflection on the Court's findings but only was criticising the methods whereby the findings were reached. Nor did they want any years is ultimately due to the sympathy, the support and the guidance of the Government of His Highness the Maharaja, who hold a controlling share in the capital of the concern. It is, therefore, in the fitness of things that before this building rises above the ground level its foundation should be well and truly laid with the blessings of the executive Head of the Government. reduction in the standard of living among men but he said it was undesirable to set up a machinery of more or less permanent character which would include experts in economic statistical investigation. Sir Clow said it was not fitting for him at this stage to give any indication of Government's view on the conclusions reached by the Court of Inquiry. The Railway Board had been in consultation and correspondence with the All India Railway men's Federation on the subject and were at the moment awaiting views therefrom. Discussions, he said, were proceeding not exactly on the basis of the report and it would be recognised that if a solution could be reached by the method of negotiation it was a form of sounder basis than investigation. He would endeavour to keep the Standing Finance Committee in touch with any important changes in the situation.

Sir F. E. James

Sir Frederick James referred to the Court's recommendation that the Central Government should make an enquiry into the basis on which the index figures were calculated and asked if Government were going to conduct such an enquiry and if so what machinery would be used. He supported Mr. Miller's suggestion for a panel of names wherefrom the members of courts of enquiry would be chosen.

Mr. Miller withdrew his motion.

Sir Gidny

Sir Henry Gidny raised a discussion on the policy of selection for certain posts obtaining in the railway administration and the Railway Board with particular reference to medical appointments.

After this cut motion was rejected by the House, Sir Gidny wanted to bring a motion to discuss control of Railway Board and Communication Member of the Government of India.

The motion was moved in his own name and in the name of the European Group was allowed by the Speaker. Sir James explained that it had been the practice in the past that after motion standing in the name of the European Group had been exhausted, Sir Gidny specially permitted to move his cuts in his own name during the time allotted to the European Group.

Sir Henry's cut motion was rejected by the House.

Grievances Of Ry. Workers

Mr. N. M. Joshi raised discussion on the grievances of railway workers. Mr. Joshi suggested that provision for permanent panel of persons with experience of labour conditions and in constant contact there with who could act on the courts of enquiry such as the one presided over by Sir B. N. Rau.

Dismantled Railways

Referring to the dismantling of certain railways Mr. Joshi wanted to know what the Government intended to do with the employees of such railways and hoped that provision would be made therefor elsewhere. He urged the Government to accept the suggestions made by Labour Conciliation Officer in his recent report.

Sir Clow

Sir Clow replying referred to Mr. Joshi's earlier argument regarding grant of dearness allowance and said it did not appear logical that the grant of dearness allowance would enable workers to maintain a standard of living and then compel them to join provident fund.

Regarding dismantling of railways Sir Clow said that provided the employees concerned were willing to move elsewhere, there would be no difficulty in their being absorbed. Sir Clow said that Government had not yet had time to examine the Labour Conciliation Officer's report.

The cut motion was rejected and the Assembly passed the Railway demands for grants and adjourned.

The House has official business on the agenda before the budget is presented at 3 p. m.

★ Gandhiji Sees Sir Tej*KAMALA NEHRU HOSPITAL*Mahatma's Speech on the Occasion*"THIS IS A MISSION OF MERCY SERVICE"

Allahabad, Feb. 28. Gandhiji opened the Kamala Nehru Memorial Hospital today. Jyoti Melia requesting Mahatma Gandhi to open the hospital thanked the U.P. Government for the generous grant of Rs. 30,000 towards construction and equipment of the hospital and Rs. 5,000 remaining grant. He also thanked Allahabad Municipal Board and other donors for help and appealed for a large fund for endowment, so that the hospital might be placed on a sound basis for all times.

This is a mission of mercy service as this hospital is meant only for the poor of all classes of community, said Gandhiji during opening of the Kamala Nehru Memorial Hospital. Five lakhs of rupees collected was not enough and therefore they should make more to collect more.

Pandit M.M. Malaviya was present on the occasion.

(Mahatma Nehru died on Feb. 19, 1936. It was under the inspiration of Mahatma Gandhi that was decided to raise a fund of five lakhs for a Memorial hospital at Allahabad.)

Mahatma Gandhi has always taken a personal interest in the hospital and he came down to Allahabad specifically for the cornerstone laying ceremony on November 19, 1939. Kamala Nehru's interest in hospitals goes back to the last civil disobedience movement when she took an active interest in the Congress hospital which had just been started.)

KHAN BAHADUR ALLAH BAKSH
Announced to Resign by Premier of Sind

Karachi, Feb. 28. Premier Mirbundi, it is understood, demanded the resignation of Khan Bahadur Allah Baksh, from the Cabinet in the name of a communication to the latter, presumably under instructions of the Muslim League Executive Meeting. After an emergency meeting of the Sind Provincial Muslim League Working Committee held later this morning a statement was issued by the Secretary. The statement said that the League was willing to continue the administration of the province with the co-operation of all the various parties in the legislative assembly as far as it was practicable. It was further stated that the League was prepared to carry on negotiations so long as there was the prospect of no consequence motion.

INDO-CEYLON DISPUTEQuestion Raised in Central Assembly

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 28. Indo-Ceylonese dispute was again brought up in the Central Assembly to-day when Mr. Govind Deshmukh attempted an adjournment motion to discuss the proposed introduction on the 4th March in Ceylon State Council of two bills affecting the rights of Indians overseas one regulating and controlling non Ceylonese to Ceylon and the other for registration of person in Ceylon who do not possess Ceylon domicile or origin.

The President pointed out the matter was not the responsibility of the Government of India and further more the subject was already discussed in the Assembly. Mr. Deshmukh argued that the matter formed part of the responsibility of the Government of India and despite the views expressed by the Assembly in the last debate the Ceylon Ministers were going ahead with their plans and therefore it was necessary to strengthen the hands of the Government by further debate.

Mr. Aney suggested that the Government should accept short notice question on the subject so that the adjournment motion may be withdrawn. Government agreed and Mr. Deshmukh withdrew the motion.

CONTROLLING THE PRICES OF FOOD STUFFSMunicipal Council's Decision
(From our correspondent)

Mysore, Feb. 27. "Resolved that in view of the sudden rise in prices of food stuffs in the course of this fortnight, the Government be requested to take necessary and urgent steps to prevent the rising of the level of prices of food stuffs in the City of Mysore and the State in General" was the resolution that came up for consideration this evening at a special meeting of the Mysore City Municipal Council held under the Presidency of Mr. B. S. Raghavendra Rao.

The resolution had been tabled by Mr. P. Sitaramiah and 14 other members of the Council.

Various members expressed their opinion about the increase of prices on food stuffs and gave some suggestion about Government controlling them.

Prof. K. B. Madhava and Prof. V. L. D'souza who were also present by special request gave some suggestions about it.

Finally a resolution comprising all suggestions was passed.

A.P. Allahabad, March 1

It is now ascertained that Mahatma Gandhi and Dr. Rajendra Prasad will see Moulana Abul Kalam Azad and Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit in the Naini Central Jail this morning.

At first it was thought that Mahatma Gandhi after meeting Moulana Azad and Mrs. Pandit would entrain for Wardha at the Naini Railway Station, but now according to the latest plans Mahatma Gandhi will return to Anand Bhawan after the interview and will leave for Wardha later.

A.P. Allahabad, March 1. Mahatma Gandhi interviewed Mrs. Vijayalakshmi Pandit and Maulana Abul Kalam Azad at Naini Central Jail this morning.

Gandhiji accompanied by Mahadev Desai left for Wardha this morning.

A later message says Gandhiji entrained for Allahabad from Naini railway station.

The Central Budget

It has been the practice for Finance Member to present the General Budget on the last day of the month of February, that too, at the very last hour. The Budget this year was presented on the evening of 28th February at 3 p.m. The members are usually given four days' time to ponder over the budget and then the general discussion on the budget would start. It is the constitutional practice to discuss all matters of policy in the general discussion on the budget. It is unfortunate that due to the reactionary policy of Government of India, Congress Members of the Assembly refrained from attending the budget session last year and this year most of them, or all of them, are within the prison bars. There is not much enthusiasm in the house over this budget. As we found on the occasion of the Railway Budget, the usual matter of fact criticism was made by the members present in the Assembly and the Council of State. The walk out by the members of the Muslim League Party created a mild sensation. It is to be seen whether they would similarly walk out on the occasion of the general budget.

Be that as it may. The budget for the coming year is expected to result in deficit of 2,046 lakhs of rupees. This is proposed to be made up by (1) increasing the rate of Excess Profits Tax from 50 percent to 66 2/3 per cent yielding 2 1/2 crores. (2) raising central surcharge on Income tax and super tax from 25 percent to 33 1/3 per cent yielding additional 190 lakhs (3) Doubling the excise duty on matches to produce 150 lakhs (4) Increasing import duty now leviable on artificial silk yarn and thread (duty stands at 25 per cent advalorem or 3 annas per pound which ever is higher) to 5 annas per pound to yield 36 lakhs. (5) Introducing new 10 per cent advalorem excise duty on pneumatic tyres and tubes to yield 35 lakhs.

The total estimated yield by new taxation is 661 lakhs and this reduces the prospective deficit to 1385 lakhs. The uncovered revenue deficit will be met by borrowing. Sir Raisman announced that new duties on matches and artificial silk yarn and thread will take immediate effect.

It is expected that Indo-Burma negotiations might result in some increase of revenue.

Dealing with the item of budget under Defence, Sir Raisman said that the total

MYSORE NOTES

DEWAN'S ARRIVAL

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, Feb. 28
Sir Mirza M. Ismail Dewan of Mysore arrived here today (from Bangalore). He is staying at the "Lake View".

It is learnt that he had an interview this afternoon with His Highness the Maharaja.

He is returning to Bangalore to-morrow.

Prize Distribution

The Annual Prize Distribution at the Sri Chamarajendra Ursu Boarding School will take place on Sunday the 2nd March. Rameswastika M. Rama Rao, Assistant Secretary to His Highness the Maharaja and President of the School has kindly consented to give away the prizes.

Senate Meeting

At the Annual Meeting of the Senate of the Mysore University which was continued yesterday afternoon after lunch under the Presidency of Rajakavya N. S. Subba Rao, the proposition tabled by non official members were considered.

The resolution of Mr. K. R. Subbannachar that the Senate recommends to the authorities concerned that the representatives, on that body of the Registered Graduates should be increased to nine, with a stipulation that at least three of them should be women and

That the Senate recommends to the authorities concerned that that body should be given the privilege of electing five of its members to the University Council at least two of whom should be women were passed at the meeting.

The House also considered the resolution of Messrs. T. Rama Chandra and M. Ramachandra Rao.

strength of India's armed forces was well over half a million men of all arms and further expansion is proceeding, the latest estimate for increase in defence expenditure for 1940-41 is 1,775 lakhs.

The non-official view so far unofficially expressed characterises the budget as unsatisfactory. The poor man's goods ought not to be touched at all is the view of experienced statesmen. Any deficit is to be made up by borrowing. More than anything, there can be no enthusiasm in the country with regard to this budget as long as the machinery of Government of India is run by those who are not of this country and whose interests conflict with the genuine interests of this land. Clapping honoured leaders in jail and carrying on the administration in the teeth of their opposition and piling up defence expenditure without granting even freedom of speech for propagation of non-violence is a matter which has deeply gone into the heart of the people of this country. The political problem is the main problem. With a satisfied and contented India, England would win this war much earlier than she imagines. And India would be prepared to bear her share of the burden of this war quite cheerfully.

VICEROY'S MESSAGE TO SCOUTS

Triennial Conference

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 28
"Your meeting is held under a grim shadow of war shadow which has lately been darkened for all of us scouts by the sense of personal loss of Chief Scout of the World" says the Viceroy in a message to the Triennial conference of Boys Scouts Association of India which met here this afternoon. Viceroy adds: "But we can take courage in these dark days from his example. The advice I wish to commend for your acceptance is that by your labours and by your example, Scouts of India should be encouraged to strive as never before to live up to these principles." His Excellency recalled his address to the conference in 1937 when he said "Our aim will be to do the best we can for India through the scout movement" and he warned the scouts against differences and conflicting allegiances which exist in India. It must always be our aim to transcend the differences. They must not be reflected in the Boy Scout Movement but on the country our movement must shine forth as an example to the whole of India of single-minded loyalty to the world cause whereby it stands. The Viceroy also recalled his New Year message to the Scouts of India when he had referred to many opportunities for service opened to them as the result of war and said at the time when there were dark forces of aggression still unsubdued, scouts should not rest content. Our aim will be still better service and wider fields so that scouts may prove to be torch bearers of unity and brotherhood in a new and better world.

Frontier Mail Accident Echo In Central Assembly

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 28
In the course of a debate raised by Sir Ziauddin on the Frontier Mail accident on 15-5-1940, Sir Andrew Clow stated that two railway officials were prosecuted and their appeals were still pending. The House passed all demands that were moved amounting to over three crores.

Sir Mahomed Zafrullah Khan's bill to extend certain acts to Berar as reported upon by the Select Committee was passed.

The Assembly adopted the motion of Education Secretary Mr. Tyson to refer the bill to regulate the use of land in the province of Delhi for purposes other than agriculture. Mr. Kazmi's motion for circulation of the bill was rejected.

The Assembly rose at 4 p.m. for one hour's interval.

Finance Member, Sir Jeremy Raisman presented the budget at 5 p.m.

A.P. Madras, Feb. 28
Sir Shafat Ahmed Khan advocated greater powers to provinces in the course of a speech here today. He said unless this was done the minorities and other important interests in the provinces would not be satisfied.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I have been asked to be very brief today on account of pressure on the columns of the paper. The Central Budget was presented in the Central Legislature last evening. The main features have already been published in the paper. This being a war budget we naturally expect a deficit. But the question is whether this deficit should be made up by fresh taxation on the poor. The Excise duty on matches is bound to affect the poor man and also, the excise duty on pneumatic tyres and tubes is bound to affect the motor transport in the country. In my opinion, as it is in the opinion of several others, this deficit should be made up by borrowing. After all the effects of this war are bound to influence the destiny of the coming generations who should also bear the burden of this war. This budget has naturally created dissatisfaction among the non-official members of the Legislature.

Another noticeable feature of the Budget Season is that in provinces where the Congress is in power, this year, not at all find any presentation of budgets or meetings of Legislature. It is all a regular show. In Bengal, Punjab and Sind budgets were presented. As to what the financial position of the remaining provinces is, the public are in the dark.

Mahatma Gandhi's visit to Allahabad is full of events to what the outcome of Sapru's interview with him would be it is difficult to tell. As our Correspondent from Allahabad wires to us, it is not much hope of the end of the dead-lock. Mr. Ambedkar's latest speech is an indication of the mind of Government. Mr. Savarkar puts it, the past successes in Africa has made the British Government forget much of their pleasing promises they made when the war was decidedly going against them. He asks, who knows history will not repeat itself and make British forget all their promises even regarding the goal and time-limit if they come completely successful in war. I hope better conditions will prevail.

PAKISTAN DELEGATION

A.P. Rawalpindi, Feb. 27
The Muslim League Pakistan Delegation consisting of Qaimohdasi President Baluchistan Provincial Muslim League and member Working Committee All India Muslim League (Leader) Nawab Bahadur Yung Bahadur, President All India States Muslim League Maulana Abdul Hamid Badayuni Maulana Karamalibalihabadi (members) were here last night. Members of the Delegation held consultations with the local Muslim leaguers today. Replying to the address of welcome presented to the members of the delegation on behalf of Pindi Muslim Students Federation Qazi Moshida stressed the necessity of Muslims mustering under a common platform under one flag, and dwelt on the advantages of Pakistan scheme. Referring to attacks on Pakistan scheme by Hindu Press the speaker pointed out that antagonists of the scheme had not put forward any alternative scheme acceptable to all parties and criticised the scheme of Constituent Assembly propounded by Mr. C. Rajagopalachariar and other Congress leaders.

CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY

A Department For Chinese Language

A.P. Calcutta, Feb. 27
With a view to reviving centuries of old religious and cultural relationship between India and China the University of Calcutta decided to open a new department of teaching Chinese language under a Chinese scholar. The Department will be provided with a library well-equipped with Chinese books for facilitating research work. His Excellency Tai Chiao, President of Examination of the year, with whom the matter was discussed by the authorities of the University while he was in India encouraged the University in this project and promised to send Chinese scholars to deliver lectures in the University and also collect books for the library.

STATUS AND RIGHTS OF PRINCES

To Be Discussed In Chamber Of Princes

(By Wire) New Delhi, Feb. 27
Interesting questions regarding the Status and Rights of Princes and other Dewans expected to be considered in course of discussions which will be held in the second week of March. The first is the question whether in viceregal function Princes are not entitled to high rank in precedence than Provincial Governors. At the end of the last investiture there was some comment among the Princely circles that two Maharajahs were placed after the Punjab Governor in the precedence list though they had higher number of salute. One solution suggested was there should be separate categories for Princes for investiture purposes. Another question which has come up for discussion is the present practice regarding introductions when the Viceroy visits States. It appears that present the Resident first introduces Maharaja and then his own personal staff and afterwards Maharaja introduces the Dewan and others. This is considered not in accordance with the position of Maharaja should have the place in these functions. These matters are expected to be discussed informally when the Princes Chamber meets.

A.P. Raigarh, Feb. 27
The Senate passed the Purchase Bill which was sent back to the House of Representatives. The chief amendments accepted provides for appointment of three judges for the decision of Land Commission and 45 days time for filing appeal. Decision of court will be final.

A.P. Asole, Feb. 27
Dr. Shridhar Laxman Kulkarni of Berar Provincial Congress was sentenced to six months imprisonment and fined Rs. 100.

BOOK-KEEPER'S BUDGET" "STAGGERING BUDGET"

Non-official View on New Taxation

RAISMAN'S POLICY CRITICISED

(From our correspondent)
New Delhi, Feb. 28. "Staggering" was the comment of Mr. Hossain Imam in the Council of State on coming out of the Chamber after the presentation of the budget statement. He considered it most remarkable that so large a sum of 140 crores over the basic budget—should be spent on defence department without consultation of Indian opinion in the Administration and control.

It is in his opinion was the main objection to the budget. He also thought that full benefit of the recent scheme of revaluation of sterling securities which in his estimate was about five crores had not been taken. In his opinion time should be taken for Provincial Government to contribute to the Central Government for defence expenditure during the war period by making contributions under war award.

Effect of five and a half crores added in the current year's estimates was as stated by his message anticipated by members however feeling that Member's estimates of 140 crores deficit for the current year may actually be added owing to the rapid rate at which the defence expenditure is increasing.

General criticism is that the Member is going ahead with additional taxation without regard to the taxable capacity of the people. They feel war expenditure should be got mostly from loans as the burden should be shared also by the coming generation.

Industrialists like Sir Cowasji Wadia expressed grave doubts about wisdom of increasing profits tax as it may seriously discourage industrial enterprise. In the course of a discussion Sir Yamin Khan and Sir Asaf Ali took exception to duty on pneumatic tyres, tubes as it would adversely affect motor transport further and make it more difficult.

There is general opposition to the duty on matches as it will hit the masses.

The statement made by the Finance Member that supply of cement costs half a crore was criticised on the ground that money which should accrue to Government by charge of commission on orders executed had been needlessly waived. Many members expressed disappointment at lack of any constructive scheme for securing economy in the Government of India.

More than one member expressed regret that instead of taking a large view of the problem of war economy and taking steps for speeding up industrialization and helping the distressed population Sir Raisman seemed more anxious to increase the budget by steadily increasing taxation.

"Book-keeper's budget" was the comment of another member that during the last twelve years additional taxation had reached the huge total of eighty crores—even excluding what was proposed for the coming year.

QUESTION OF DEARNESS ALLOWANCES

Sir A. Clow's Assurance

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 28. The question of dearness allowance for railway men and men of other Government departments was once again raised in the Central Assembly today during discussion on demand for supplementary grant in respect of "Working Expenses and maintenance of working ferry steamers and harbours" which included a provision for payment of possible war allowances.

Sir Andrew Clow replying to the debate said that the Government had made certain proposals in the course of discussion with the All-India Railway men's Federation and were awaiting their acceptance. He explained at the meeting of the Standing Finance Committee for Railways a few days ago that the Chairman gave the Committee details of a scheme which the Government contemplated for giving allowances. These were strictly confidential. The Committee accepted the proposals by a majority.

Replying to a number of questions Sir Clow pointed out that the House in effect agreed to provisional allotment in the budget. If it was not his intention to place before the House proposals which the Railway Board and the All-India Railway men's Federation might agree.

Earlier during debate, Sir Clow made a clear case for dearness allowance for railway workers on a different footing from that for Government servants of other departments.

Sir Frederick James during the debate pleaded for the improvement of condition of ferry steamers between India and Ceylon.

Sir Clow pointed out there was provision in the South Indian Railway Budget for improving these ferry steamers.

The demand was passed.

QUESTION TIME IN ASSEMBLY

Figures about Kidnapping by Tribal Dacoits

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 28. At question time in the Central Assembly the Foreign Secretary stated that 190 persons including 157 men, 25 women and seven children were kidnapped by tribal dacoits in 1940, 11 thereof were killed. 197 persons were released during 1940. Government paid no ransom for the release. Measures taken by Government to control the situation included the strengthening of the Frontier Constabulary and the occupation by civil forces of adjacent tribal areas. Deterrent action was also taken in all cases of raiding and kidnapping. Every endeavour was made to prevent the payment of ransom for captives since such payment acted as incentive to further outrages. The measures succeeded in effecting a large number of releases.

CENTRAL BUDGET

ESTIMATES for 1941-42

REVENUE Rs. 113.00 LAKHS PROSPECTIVE
DEFICIT Rs. 2,046 LAKHS
Yield By Proposed New Taxes
Rs. 661 Lakhs

Deficit Reduced to Rs. 1385 Lakhs Uncovered Revenue Deficit To Be Met By Borrowing

New and Further Taxes on Excess Profits—Central Surcharge on Inc.-me-Tax and Super Tax—Excise Duty on Matches—Import Duty on Artificial Silk Yarn—and Ad Valorem Excise Duty on Pneumatic Tyres.

A.P. New Delhi, Feb. 28. Announcing the prospective deficit of 2046 lakhs Finance Member proposed to increase the rate of excess profits tax from 50% to 66 and 2/3 percent yielding two and a half crores. He also proposed to raise Central surcharge on incometax and super tax from 25 per cent to 33 1/3 per cent yielding additional 190 lakhs.

Finance Member proposed to double the excise duty on matches to produce 150 lakhs. He proposed to increase import duty now leviable on artificial silk yarn and thread. Duty stands at 25% ad valorem or three annas per pound whichever is higher and he proposed to increase the alternative specific duty to five annas per pound to yield 36 lakhs.

Finance Member also proposed to introduce new ten per cent ad valorem excise duty on pneumatic tyres and tube to yield thirtyfive lakhs.

Total estimated yield on new taxation is 661 lakhs which bring the estimated revenue from 1941-42 to 1,13,00 lakhs and reduce prospective deficit to 1385 lakhs. Uncovered revenue deficit will be met by borrowing.

Sir Jeremy Raisman Finance Member introducing the budget in the Central Assembly this evening disclosed a deficit of 842 lakhs for 1940-41 and prospective deficit of 2046 for 1941-42.

Strengthening of all arms of India's defence services is estimated to cost approximately Rs. 24 crores this year and Rs. 35 crores additional expenditure next year.

Benefit to India from recent repatriation of sterling loans it was explained lies in reduction of Government of India's external debt by about Rs. 120 crores, decrease in sterling interest charges and immediate gain to revenue.

Announcing his Budget proposals Sir Jeremy in the course of a speech pointed out to what extent Railway contribution had come to the assistance in the matter of covering deficit and mitigated difficulties.

Excess Profits Tax

Dealing with increase in Excess Profits Tax, the Finance Member said at present the main economic advantage derived from India's war supply activities accrued to industrial and commercial sections of the country and therefore the direct tax may fairly be called on to shoulder a larger share of any further burdens. He therefore proposed that profits of further period of one year shall be subjected to Excess profits Tax at Sixty-Six and two thirds per cent. He said on account of important modifications in Excess profits Tax bill dealing with optional standard of periods and special provisions for new industries and for such matters as abnormal depreciation there would be no cause for substantial hardship in existing industries nor impede the growth of new ones. He said a small amending bill would be brought for adjustments of the previous year's assessment. He referred to increase in surcharge incometax and super tax yield of 190 lakhs.

Referring to excise duty on matches, Sir Raisman said over a large part of the country retail price had already advanced yielding large uncovenanted profit to trade. The increase in duty now proposed will appropriate for the exchequer a due share of the enhanced retail price. The yield of additional duty on matches is estimated at 150 lakhs of Rupees.

Referring to the new Excise duty on pneumatic tyres and tubes Sir Raisman said the domestic supply now fills a large proportion of demand which was formerly met by imports whereon the Revenue duty of 25 per cent ad valorem was levied.

Sir Raisman announced that new duties on matches and artificial silk yarn and thread will take immediate effect.

The Finance Member added though the estimated prospective large unforeseen contingencies of the year ahead is likely to widen than narrow it. On the other hand he reminded that our expenditure estimates still contained a provision of three crores of Rupees for reduction and avoidance of debt. There is also an incalculable factor which might emerge from the Indo-Burma negotiations now proceeding since modification of the existing free trade regime would result in some increase of Revenue. He said there was little doubt that greater sacrifices awaited us, but it was indisputable that inherent soundness of India's financial position entitled her to face it with courage and confidence.

With the total strength of India's armed forces at well over half a million men of all arms and further expansion proceeding the latest estimate for increase in defence expenditure for 1940-41 on this account is Rs. 175 lakhs. This provides for raising new armoured and mechanised cavalry regiment; New Indian field artillery regiment regular infantry battalions, engineer units etc.

Finance Member said the growth of Royal Indian navy continued unchecked. Programme of ship-building in India further expanded. As regards air force modern aircraft equipment are in sight from American sources. Training of both officers and men is being pushed forward rapidly.

Aeroplane manufacture has reached a new stage and the year 1941 should witness appearance of first aeroplanes made in India.

Total expenditure for 1940-41 is estimated at 11213 lakhs against total revenue 10371 lakhs.

Yield from customs duties estimated at three crores lower. Post and Telegraphs departments revenue 1941-42 is expected at 1349 lakhs and expenditure Rs. 1209 lakhs.

Sugar account almost entirely for increase of 175 lakhs in central excise duty.

Estimated yield of ordinary corporation tax and income tax has been raised by fifty lakhs to 2150 lakhs as assessments to be based on income derived from last year's war profits.

Central surcharge is expected to yield 568 lakhs and excess profits tax 750 lakhs with additional carry-over of one hundred lakhs from current year.

Provincial share of income tax is expected to increase from 373 lakhs this year to 446 lakhs next year.

The budget statement was made in the Council of State by Mr. C. E. Jones, Finance Secretary.

FACILITIES FOR INVESTING

SAVINGS

New Post Office Scheme

A.P. New Delhi, March 1

It is announced that in order to provide facilities for those of limited means who wish to invest their savings in a manner which will aid the war effort, a special form of Post Office Savings Bank account to be known as the Indian Post Office Defence Savings Bank, will be opened on April 1, 1941. It is believed that the new scheme will prove more convenient to investors than the present arrangements for putting savings into Defence Loans or Savings Certificates. An interest of two and a half per cent per annum free of income tax will be allowed on new war savings but no withdrawals are permitted until one year after the war except on the death of the investor.

FRANCE AND INDO-CHINA

A.P. Bombay, Feb. 27

General De Gaulle in the course of a message to the Committee of Free Frenchmen in Bombay says that the defence Council of French Empire issued the declaration stating that the temporary disaster suffered by France does not in any way whatsoever justify encroachment in any nature on the integrity and rights of French territories by foreign powers in any part of the world. He adds that the declaration is applicable in the particular case of Indo-China. Requisition or surrender which has the consent of the Government of Vichy or its representatives would be considered null and void by Council of Defence of French Empire.

THE BANGALORE CITY MUNICIPAL COUNCIL Resolutions Passed

Bangalore, Feb. 28.
The Adjourned meeting of the Bangalore City Municipal Council held yesterday passed a number of resolutions Mr. W. H. Hanumanthappa, Municipal President, was in the chair.

One of the resolutions pleaded for the abolition of nominations, the enfranchisement of all adults in the city, the annual revision of the electoral roll and the coloured book system of voting.

It was also resolved that all uniforms of Municipal Servants supplied by the Council should be made of hand-spun and hand-woven Khadi as far as possible and that all articles purchased should be swadeshi except such as are not available in India.

A committee was appointed to examine and report on the condition of work and living of the Municipal sweepers and to make recommendations for their improvement. Another committee was appointed to receive and arrange for prompt disposals of complaints made by the public in regard to all Municipal matters. It was also resolved to print and publish an up-to-date Hand book of the Municipal rules and Bye-laws both in English and Kannada and make available to the public at cost price.

A committee was appointed to enquire into and report on the system of water-supply, the contribution of Govt. to Council in regard to water supply and to make recommendations in regard to the measures necessary to improve the water supply, to reduce the annual charges payable to Government and to increase the minimum free allowance of water for domestic use and also to requesting Govt. to enhance their grant for water supply to 50,000 Rs.

HIS HIGHNESS AT KOPPA

Replying to the address presented by the Malnad Landholders' Association, His Highness in a gracious message said,

It is very comforting to me to receive from the representatives of these people so happy an account of your well-being that you are able to say that you have no doubt that in the next few years you will attain a condition in which the most interior landholder of the Malnad will have no complaint to make regarding the Malnad being a hidden and unopened area.

The Pakistan Scheme condemned in the Lahore resolution of the All India Muslim League was strongly condemned by the Punjab and Frontier Hindu Hindus' Conference which concluded its first session after passing a series of resolutions this evening. One of the resolutions stated that the Conference felt that the Pakistan Scheme was fraught with great danger to peace and tranquillity of the country and held that the scheme constituted a great blow to the political and national integrity of India and called on every Hindu to resist it with all might to save India from the proposed vivisection.

Suspend Sind Constitution

By another resolution the

TUESDAY—MARCH 4, 1941

The All-India Manufacturers' Conference

This Conference was held in Bombay on March under the auspices of the Association of Indian Industries, Albert Building, Fort, Bombay. It was composed mainly of industrialists many of whom were directly interested in war supplies and war needs which are at present making a great demand on the industries and manufactures of this country.

Mr. Sankalchand G. Shah, who was the Chairman of the Reception Committee made a fine speech tracing the industrial growth of the country to the present day. He paid a high tribute to Sir M. Visvesvaraya, the President of the Conference, and said that it had been their good fortune to secure his guidance in their first effort of this kind. "His contribution to the economic and industrial regeneration of the country is a matter of common knowledge. In fact, he has almost evinced a missionary zeal in matters connected with our industrial development."

It is the idea of the Conference to initiate a continuous and sustained programme of work throughout the year. "Establishment of regional committees and sub-committees, enquires into the difficulties and handicaps of small industries, methods of making available technical advice and assistance for such industries, assisting the formation of agencies for financing industries, investigating the natural, mineral and industrial resources of the country providing facilities for the efficient marketing of our goods, securing the standardisation of our manufactured products and the maintenance of an Information Bureau, are some of the matters which we wish to tackle in the near future."

This is no doubt a very ambitious programme of work. Nevertheless these things have to be carried out urgently. The war has created us fresh opportunities of developing industries, but it is a pity that the Government are thinking only of war industries. The way in which they brushed aside the automobile industry shows how unsympathetic the Government are with regard to peace time industries. India continues to import annually Rs. 160 crores worth of goods. During this war time we cannot import some articles and they have to be prepared in India itself, but it is a pity that Government have not been active in this matter. The Eastern Group Conference is

CONGRESS CANDIDATES AND RETURN OF DEPOSITS

BANGALORE, March 3
Mysore Congress Publicity Officer writes:—

Complaints are pouring in from many parts of the State that deposits made by the Candidates standing for the Representative Assembly and Legislative Council, whose notices of Candidature have been rejected and of those who are not successful at the Elections are not being returned to them inspite of repeated requests both oral and written. The stock answers of the several Returning Officers are to the effect that they have referred the matter to the Deputy Commissioner. The Rules in the matter are very clear. The Returning Officers have no alternative but to return the deposits immediately. The Deputy Commissioners have no power to advise the withholding of deposits. It is suspected that such delaying tactics are being adopted by the Officers with a view to make it increasingly difficult for such candidates to find deposits to file Election Petitions. If that is the case, it is highly deplorable.

Bangalore, March 3
The marriage of Shri Pache Gowda, President Village Congress Committee, Baginigeri, Magadi Taluk was celebrated yesterday. Messrs. Salar Siddappa, N. C. Thimma Reddy and K. Sampangiramaiah attended the function and blessed the bridal pair. A small present was given to the Mysore Congress.

At the marriage of Mr. Nanjundaradhy, residing at Gowdanpet, Bangalore City, a present was offered to the Mysore Congress.

concerned only with war industries. It is feared that foreign capital would be attracted and utilised in promoting or developing industries coming within that co-ordinated frame work. The Government of Bombay is pleading war as a cause or an excuse for the rejection of the recommendations of the Bombay Economic and Industrial Survey Committee.

Sir M. Visvesvaraya in his remarkable address detailed at length his views on the question supported by facts and figures. His address on this occasion, as his addresses on other occasions shows his missionary zeal for promotion of Indian industries. He said "we must impress on Government that they will not have discharged their duties to the people of this country by encouraging only war industries, which can be in production by the middle of 1942 but that an endeavour is expected in this emergency on their part to make the country self contained in as many requirements, both for peace and war, as possible." Sir M. Visvesvaraya said, "let us welcome whatever Government may do but let us strive to meet the situation ourselves by co-operative effort to the best of our capability and opportunities." These are wise words. We hope they will not fall on deaf ears.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Mr. M. N. Roy accompanied by his wife left last night for Dharwar.

Sir C. V. Raman, arrived here from Bombay.

Sir Tukoji Rao Holkar, Maharaja of Indore arrived here from Bombay.

Mr. K. T. Bashyam, President, Mysore Congress, arrived here from Mysore.

Mr. M. Sushadri, Deputy Commissioner of Shimoga arrived here this morning from Shimoga.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Sunday was a day of events. The holiday that I used to enjoy once a week had to be cancelled. There were three functions which could not be unattended. There was the Silver Jubilee function of the Mysore Apex Bank. And there was also the opening function of the premises of the Central College Old Boys Association. In Sir Puttanna Chetty Town Hall, there was a demonstration of Bharatanatyam.

More than all these, comrade M. N. Roy made his first entry into Bangalore yesterday morning. I do not know if I would be right in calling him comrade. He has now become a big dignitary rubbing shoulders with jinnahs and Ramaswami Naickers. He has created an impression of being an ally of British Imperialism to fight which he had devoted the labours of his early life. It looked as if he visited Bangalore to do propaganda for war effort. His speech at the Intermediate College, Bangalore, led one to no other conclusion.

Mr. M. N. Roy is a notable figure in Indian politics. I had great admiration for him bordering on adoration. But I must frankly say that I have ceased to admire him. To me he looks like a creature of circumstances drifting on the sea of opportunism. He has discarded his cherished theories as if for a mess of pottage. He is touring from province to province to fish allies to his new party styled as National Democratic Union.

As to what the ideals of this new party are apart from its professions, we can find out from the speeches and writings of its founder and leader. Mr. M. N. Roy does not believe that India is a nation. This being the case, I do not know why he calls his party as National. He has advocated recently that Pakistan may be conceded to Mahamadans and that Dravidians to Justices. At this rate, parceling out India among separatists and communalists, I do not know what is left of Indian Nation.

He calls his party 'democratic'. Does he really think that Britain would concede full fledged democracy to India? If so, why should not Britain declare it in unmistakable terms? Why should they not say that India would be declared a free-democratic country at the end of the war? Is not Congress asking for it? Are not liberals asking for it? It is only the Muslim League that does not ask for it. It is not bothered about all that. It is intent upon Pakistan and none else. Does Mr. Roy hope to achieve his goal by joining hands with Pakistanists and Justices? How can he establish democracy with communalism in it? To me it looks his party is neither national nor democratic.

I have discussed the views of Mr. M. N. Roy to give a background to his visit to Bangalore. People must have read that most of the meetings that he addressed in Andhra and Tamil Nadu were disturbed and ended in confusion. This is the position of Mr. M. N. Roy today.

As I said I had great admiration for Mr. M. N. Roy until a few years ago. He was then a daring revolutionary who left India in 1911-1912, took part in the revolutionary movements of other countries. He was in China, Russia, South America and several other countries. He rubbed shoulders with Lenin, Trotsky and Stalin. He was also a prominent and conspicuous personality in the communist party. Later on he travelled to India. He was in the Indian movement and contributed some new thought to it. It is said that he was responsible for the idea of Constituent Assembly in India. He was in jail and suffered all privations. I have read writings; they are all learned and profound steeped in the Marlowe. He is materialistic in look, but a scientific realist. He does not believe in any religion as we understand it. He is an advanced thinker.

All honour to him for all that but his part in Indian politics is not noble. I saw him in 1936 in Faizpur Congress. He was then a mysterious man. I saw him again in 1939 in Ramgarh Congress. By then he had developed his views. He had propounded them. He was an opponent of the Congress High Command. But I felt that he created a very poor impression in the A.I.C.C. His name was known, he could not speak impressively could not drive home his points. There is not that fire and push in his speeches. Elder leaders poolpoohed views.

As to Mahatma Gandhi, Mr. Roy is foreign to him. Gandhi soon found out that Roy could not fit into his machine. Roy poolpoohs Non-violence and Satyagraha, but he is unable to give any alternative to the country.

His visit to Bangalore has created any good impression. The generality of the public prejudiced against him that is carrying on a campaign against Gandhiji and the Congress. His speech at the Intermediate College was not a happy one. It was a boring speech. Some people got out before it was over. When the audience asked him questions he refused to answer them. As a matter of fact no questions were allowed. When he came to the question of India and War, there was hissing and jeering. His views were not palatable at all.

The meeting that Mr. M. N. Roy had with journalists was sorry and pitiable affair. It came to the meeting because of the idea that it was a Congress Press that was the meeting. When questions were asked, he put counter questions. He was impatient and intolerant. He misunderstood what the honourable journalist said. He called him "Stupid Fool". It was very unbecoming of Mr. N. Roy. I am sorry of manners. I am sorry that he created a very bad and unpleasant impression on the minds of Bangalore journalists.

It is a pity that one who intends to propagate non-violence and convert people to it, is of thinking is so intolerant and criticism while claiming non-violence.

BANKING PROGRESS IN MYSORE

Silver Jubilee Celebrations of the Mysore Provincial Co-op: Apex Bank

Mr. K.V. ANANTARAMAN'S SPEECH

Bangalore, Mar. 2

The Silver Jubilee celebration of the Mysore Provincial Co-operative Apex Bank Ltd., Bangalore, was held last evening at the residence of Mr. K.V. Anantaraman, Second Member of Council, presiding.

It was a pleasing function. Premises bore a festive appearance with bunting and flags. After Tea and music, the usual invocation of the Goddess commenced. Lokanath Swamiji, Mr. C.S. Kuppuswami, President of the Bank, welcomed the members in a nice speech.

Mr. Kuppuswami's speech after expressing gratefulness to Mr. K.V. Anantaraman for having consented to preside over the function. Mr. Iyengar said:

Some ten years after the inception of the Co-operative movement in the State in 1905, I felt that there should be a Central Financing Agency for the management of the Primary Co-operative Societies and solely for their benefit. It also considered desirable the audit and supervision of the societies, and to a smaller extent co-operative propaganda generally, should be undertaken by a Central Financing Agency. To meet these needs, the Mysore Provincial Co-operative Bank was established in December 1915.

Strong doubts were expressed at that time about the success of such institution. But thanks to the sympathetic interest of Their Highnesses Maharaja Sri Chamarajendra Wodeyar Bahadur, Maharaja Sri Kantarava Wodeyar Bahadur, and the Government of Mysore, the Bank has made steady progress. It is no exaggeration to say that the Bank owes its existence, chiefly to the efforts of Mr. M.A. Narayana Iyengar, B.A., B.L. (now Mr. Narayana Iyengar, B.A., B.L., of the Sri Chamarajendra Math) who was the first Chairman of Co-operative Societies in 1915.

Within two or three years of its formation, the work done by the Bank proved that it met a real need. At the close of the year 1915-1916, it had a membership of 308 societies and 504 individuals, its paid up capital was Rs. 89,322, its deposits Rs. 2,60,000 and its loans Rs. 2 lakhs. In the next few years, its membership increased to 527 societies, while its paid up capital was Rs. 1.47 lakhs, its deposits Rs. 4.87 lakhs, and its loans Rs. 5.72 lakhs and Reserve Rs. 40,331.

Loan Policy

As has been mentioned already the main object for which the Bank came into existence was to finance the Co-operative Societies in the State. It has so far lent over Rs. 57.63 lakhs to its affiliated societies, most of which are Rural Agricultural Societies. The loan policy of the Bank was, indeed, liberal when economic conditions were good. The Management of the Bank has never hesitated to render assistance to the societies in every deserving case. But since the world wide economic depression which set in after 1930-31, the Bank has been following a policy of cautious restriction in the issue of loans to them. The rates of interest on loans have steadily decreased and the advantages of lower rates of interest prevailing in the money market have been passed on to the borrowing societies. In the earlier years, the rates of interest on loans ranged from 7½ to 9½ per cent. For some years past, the maximum rate charged has been 7½ per cent. Loans granted for current agricultural operations are charged only at 5 per cent while the loans to House-building Societies are at 5½ per cent.

Advancing Land Mortgage Bank

With the advent of the Land Mortgage Scheme in Mysore, the Bank had to restrict the grant of credit to Societies on long-term basis, with the exception of loans granted to House-building Societies. Most of the loans granted by the Bank in recent years are for short periods for current agricultural operations and for marketing of the produce grown by the members of the affiliated societies. There is a large scope in the State for extending marketing facilities to the villages. Crops, such as cardamom, areca, cotton, coconuts, and copra, paddy and other food grains can be marketed on a co-operative basis on a large scale, thereby securing just and reasonable prices to the rayats whose profits are at present going mostly to middlemen.

Government's Help

It would not be out of place here to mention the assistance which the Bank has received from the Government from its inception. Such assistance has taken many forms. A cash credit of Rs. 1 lakh was sanctioned as early as 1916. In the year 1926-27, the Bank was recognised as the sole agency for utilising Government grants for the development of Agricultural Co-operation and House building activities in the State. A sum of Rs. 15,000 at 4 per cent interest has been placed with the Bank for advancing to Agricultural Societies, amounts necessary for the purchase of seeds manure and implements as may be required by the members of such societies and a sum of Rs. 1½ lakhs at 4½ per cent interest for financing House-building Societies in the State.

As recommended by the Mysore Committee on Co-operation 1936, Government have sanctioned a cash credit of Rs. 5 lakhs to the Bank. Government have also made available from time to time the services of experienced officers of the Co-operative Department for the inspection and supervision of the societies indebted to the Bank. The Secretary of the Bank has been a whole-time Government Officer. A moiety of his salary and allowances and the pensionary contribution are met by Government. The travelling expenses of the two Official Liquidators of the indebted Societies, which are under liquidation, are paid by Government. The financial and other support thus extended by the Government to the Bank have contributed not only to the development of the activities of the Bank but have helped also to raise its prestige in the public eye.

The relations of the Bank with the Co-operative Department have always been cordial. Successive Registrars of Co-operative Societies and other Officers of the Department have been uniformly kind and helpful to the Bank. I take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation of the services of Mr. Abdul Hukh, Registrar, and other Officers of the Co-operative Department for the interest they have been evincing in the working of the Bank and of its indebted Societies.

The present position, from the point of view of Share Capital, Membership, Deposits, Loans, Working Capital and Liquid Resources is as follows:—

| SHARE CAPITAL | |
|-------------------------------|-----------------|
| Authorized | Rs. 7 lakhs |
| Subscribed | " 3.81 " |
| Paid-up | " 2.49 " |
| MEMBERSHIP | |
| Societies | 1,063 |
| Individuals | 189 |
| Deposit | Rs. 23.31 lakhs |
| Reserve and other Funds | " 3.31 " |
| Loans due by Societies | " 22.41 " |
| Gross Profit, 30-6-1940 | " 63,670 |
| Net Profit | " 34,312 |
| Working Capital | " 34.90 lakhs |
| Liquid Resources | " 10.93 " |

These are the achievements which the Bank has to its credit. The steady and unselfish labours of a host of the public spirited gentlemen associated with it from the very beginning have rightly made the Institution the pivot of the Co-operative Movement in the State. In the past, in spite of adverse circumstances, this position has been filled with honour and success. Let us trust and pray that the future will be even more glorious.

Mr. Anantaraman's speech

Mr. K.V. Anantaraman spoke as follows:—

I am deeply thankful to you for your cordial welcome and for the opportunity that you have given me to participate in the Silver Jubilee Celebrations of your Bank. Your organisation stands at the head of the co-operative movement in the State. On its efficiency, resources and outlook depend the success of the numerous primary Societies of different kinds scattered all over the State. The Bank has now completed twenty five years of work. The first twenty five years in the life of an institution are generally years of difficulty and anxiety and the inherent strength of the constitution is sorely tested. The report that has been read to us by the President of the Bank shows that it has had its critical years continued economic depression and a succession of poor harvest adversely affected the repaying capacity of the borrowers of rural Societies and the latter in their turn became defaulters in the payment of their dues to the Apex Bank. It is gratifying to note that as a result of concessions given to defaulting Societies, and of the energetic, prompt and sustained measures undertaken to speed up recoveries, the continued increase of arrears has been checked and the percentage of overdue reduced. I am glad to hear that the management considers the outlook for the future fair and encouraging.

The results of the working of the Bank during the Jubilee Year are certainly satisfactory. The amount of loans recovered during the year was half a lakh more than in the previous year. There has been a striking increase both in gross and net profits. The percentage of working expenses to gross profits has fallen by 11 per cent. With the increase in the prices of agricultural produce now apparent, I feel sure that the results in the coming years will be even more satisfactory than heretofore.

It is gratifying to note that the Bank has lately undertaken the grant of loans for short periods for current agricultural operations and for the marketing of the produce grown by the members of the affiliated Societies. There are various crops which can be marketed on a co-operative basis on a large scale to the great advantage of growers. All interested in co-operation will be glad if greater activity could be developed in this direction.

You have referred with appreciation to the assistance and encouragement that you have received from Government and to the cordial relations that you have maintained with the co-operative department. May I assure you that Government have an abiding interest in the Bank and that in all the efforts that the management makes to improve and expand the activities of the Bank. It can count upon the sympathy and support of Government?

Looking back upon what you have been able to achieve during the last twenty-five years, you have every reason to be proud. 1063 Societies out of a total of 1891 have become members of your Bank. Reserve and other funds, to the extent of 3.31 lakhs have been built up. Deposits have been attracted to the extent of nearly quarter of a crore of Rupees. The working capital has increased to the extent of 34.90 lakhs. All this reflects great credit on the numerous public spirited gentlemen who have been associated with the working of the Bank. I wish the Bank all success and pro-

Mysore Congress and Acceptance of Ministry

No Question of that Without Government's Honourable Understanding With Congress"

If Power Comes on Honourable and Satisfactory Terms Congress Will Not Stand Out"

BANGALORE, March 4.—The Congress has decided to make it clear that it will not stand out as cantankerous opponents. The Congress will always be reasonable and but it will not stoop to clutch power by any means."

Mr. K.T. Bhasyam, in the course of a statement to the press.

He related a statement that appeared in the press about the discussion that he had had with the Government and said: "There is no truth in the report published in a local daily that there was any discussion at Shimoga regarding acceptance of Office by a prominent Congressman returned to the Assembly. The statement attributed to me that if the member accepted a ministerial position he will be lost to the Congress is utterly baseless. The leader in a local paper based on such false report and containing malicious attacks against the Congress is mischievous."

BENGAL ASSEMBLY Congress Parliamentary Party Walks Out

A.P. Calcutta, March 3.—After question hour in the Bengal Assembly this afternoon members belonging to the Congress Parliamentary Party owing allegiance to the All-India Congress Parliamentary Sub-Committee withdrew from the House in accordance with the direction of the parent body. In a brief statement explaining their attitude Mr. Kiron Shanker Roy, leader of the Party, informed the House that according to the directions of the All-India Congress Parliamentary Sub-Committee they decided to withdraw from the legislature. He added whenever the present Government brought forward measures "to trample the fundamental interests of the Province" those of the party who remain outside the prisons would come to the Assembly to record opposition.

Earlier at a meeting the Party decided to abstain from the legislature as a protest against the present session.

No-Confidence Motion Against Minister

CAN A MINISTER SPONSOR IT AGAINST COLLEAGUE?

Propriety Discussed in Sind Assembly

A.P. Karachi, March, 3

The constitutional propriety of a Minister permitting his supporters to sponsor no-confidence motion against his colleagues was debated on the floor of the Sind Assembly when Premier Bunde Alikhan and Khan Bahadur Alla Baksh, Finance Minister, upheld diametrically opposing views. This was in connection with the fixing of date for the discussion of no-confidence motion against the Premier.

The Premier declared that an extra-ordinary and uncommon situation had arisen. His colleagues were in sympathy with the no-confidence motion and would probably vote for it. The Premier feared it would be impossible in these circumstances to carry on Government business, namely general discussion on the budget and therefore requested the Speaker to adjourn the House till 7th March "so that any Government that may be formed in the meantime may carry on the future business".

Khan Bahadur Allah Baksh expressing dissent explained the convention which the House wished to establish. He condemned the Premier's position as untenable and asserted his unpreparedness to tender resignation. Concluding, the Finance Minister said "If the Premier feels he has a majority, the work of the House must be proceeded with without postponement. If the Premier feels otherwise he must resign forthwith and then anybody may be called upon to form Government".

The Speaker Miran Mohamed Shah held as overwhelming majority of the House wished to proceed with the business, namely, general discussion on the budget, it should be continued. The House accordingly commenced discussion on the budget.

Week End Conference At Lahore

HAS ADDED TO POISON AND BITTERNESS

Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan's View

A.P. Lahore, March 3

The view that the week-end Conference at Lahore had added "to the poison and bitterness" which he wanted to avoid was expressed by Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan, Premier, replying to the debate on a cut motion in the Punjab Assembly this afternoon.

Rai Bahadur Mukund Lal Puri supporting the cut motion relating to Police demand protested against "communal disparity" in recruitment to additional police and said all their appeals so far had fallen on deaf ears and that Government machinery had not moved at all.

Replying to the allegation that due representation had not been given to the Hindus in the lower ranks of the Police, Sir Sikander said that Government adhered to a formula for recruitment to services according to which the share of Muslims was 50 percent, Hindus 30 percent and Sikhs 20 percent. They had now set themselves to remove the disparity.

The cut motion was rejected and the demand was passed.

PROMOTION OF COMMUNAL HARMONY

Punjab Government's Scheme

A.P. Lahore, March 4.

The Punjab Government have prepared a scheme for promotion of communal harmony in the province. The scheme envisaged collection of authentic historical incidents indicating tolerance and respect for the susceptibilities of religious feelings of others. It is also proposed to encourage activities initiated for common celebration of certain festivals and birthdays of founders. A provision of one lakh has been made in the next year's budget.

A scheme for improvement of living conditions and providing other amenities of life in Simla will be given practical effect next winter and includes Circular Road for motor traffic round the town.

Bulgaria And After

The Military occupation of Bulgaria by Hitler though couched in a diplomatic language is a great menace to Near East. A glance at the map of Europe would clearly show how great the danger for Greece is. Hitler has justified the military occupation of Bulgaria in a well known manner. He worked hard to entice Bulgaria into the Axis. But that country resisted. When it was found hopeless it had to yield. Compared to Germany, Bulgaria is a small country. And it should resist Hitler, defeat for it was certain. In these circumstances, one can understand why and how Bulgaria submitted to the enemy.

This leads to one and only one conclusion. In Europe there is no place for small States. In spite of divergences of races and cultures Europe is one military unit. With perfect and military organisation it is possible for a conqueror to subjugate the whole of Europe. Europe's past history shows that such attempts have been previously made not without success. History has now repeated itself. Hitler, though a German, is no less a European. He thinks of Europe as one Unit. France has not the means and the ability at present to subjugate the whole of Europe. In the beginning of the nineteenth century Napoleon tried it and was successful to a great extent but England was a thorn in his flesh. And Napoleon's failure was mainly due to England. Even today Hitler has told England several times that he has no designs against her but that island country should not meddle in European politics. He says if England takes her hands off Europe there would be no war between England and Germany. But England's past history has shown that she has always striven hard to maintain her position in Europe as an arbiter between countries to maintain balance of power. England's position is such that it is not easy for any European conqueror to invade England successfully and subjugate her. It would be child's play for any European conqueror to subjugate the small States in Europe. Though Hitler has taken so much time to subjugate Bulgaria one can rest assured that that would not be the last country. Yugoslavia may fall an easy prey to Hitler. The fate of Greece is hanging in the balance. From there to Turkey it is only a hop. Anyhow the European situation is alarming. The middle of March is a period when tremendous things have happened in Europe.

HOPE ABOUT INDIAN INSTITUTE OF SCIENCE

THOUGH SEAT OF LEARNING WOULD CONTRIBUTE TO PROGRESS OF THE POOR

Mr. Banker's Speech

Bangalore, March 4
The hope that the Indian Institute of Science, though essentially a seat of learning, would contribute substantially for the material progress of the poor, was expressed by Mr. Shankar Lal Banker of the All-India Spinners' Association (an old body of the Institute), speaking at the Founder's Day celebration, held yesterday, at the Institute. The Institute had done, he added wonderful research work and was at the moment availing all opportunities afforded by the war.

Last Night, dinner arranged in the quadrangle in front of the statue of the late Mr. Tata over, Mr. Shankar Lal Banker proposed the toast of the Founder. He was glad to have been able to participate in the function and pay homage to the great benefactor of India. The late Mr. J. N. Tata was ahead of his times and even now several of his wishes had not been materialised.

Among those present included Rajakrishnavarada N. S. Subba Rao, Sir C.V. and Lady Raman, Dr. J.C. Ghosh and Dr. Bhabha.

RAO BAHADUR H.C. JAVARIAH ENTERTAINED

BANGALORE, March 4
A delightful party was held last evening in Lal Bagh, by the members of the Mysore Horticultural Society, to felicitate Rao Bahadur Mr. H.C. Javariah, Superintendent, Government Gardens, Bangalore, on the title conferred on him.

There was a large and distinguished gathering, including Sri Mirza M. Usail, Sri Shafat Ahmed, Rajananta Pravin K.V. Anantaraman, Dewan Bahadur K. Muthan, Sri Dorey and Lady Reilly, Dewan Bahadur K.S. Chandrasekhara Iyer, Rajasevasakta R. Ranga Rao, Rajasevasakta B.K. Narayana Rao, Lokasevasakta C.S. Kuppaswamy Iyengar, Rajasevasakta B.T. Keshava Iyengar, Rajasevasakta A.V. Ramantaraman, Capt. Tangavelu Modaliar, Mr. and Mrs. Deva Rao Siva Ram, Dr. and Mrs. B.S. Madhava Rao, Mr. T.G. Ramaiyer, Mr. A.C. Yegannarayana, Mr. A.C. Gupta, Justice Subramanyalal, Justice Singarvelu Modaliar, Mrs. H.C. Javariah, Mrs. A.R. Banerji and Mrs. Cowdrey.

There was refreshment and European band was in attendance.

Rao Bahadur Mr. and Mrs. H.C. Javariah thanked all their friends.

New Turkish budget totals sixty million sterling an increase of seven million over past year. Increase is due primarily to supplementary sums for National defence.

In 1938 March Hitler seized Austria. In the next March he seized Czechoslovakia. In March 1940, he invaded Norway, Denmark and Holland. In March 1941 what he is going to do we are already told. The invasion of England is in the air. But we know that England would not yield. Hitler would have to spend himself up in the coming few days. Some prophesy that the war would be over within this May and that, in the crushing defeat of Hitler, let us pray for it and wish for it.

Mysore Beat Madras Inter-provincial Match

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, March 3.

Before a big gathering of football fans an inter-provincial football match between the Mysore and Madras teams took place last evening.

The match ended in a victory for the home team by 5 goals to 2.

Before the exchange of sides Kemparamaiah of the local team opened the account with two goals to which Nanjundiah added one more after the interval.

The margin was however reduced during the second half by the efforts of Ramamurthy and Rajagopal of the visiting team each netting a goal.

Before the close of the game Janardhan, the Veteran Mysore player annexed two more goals for his team thus making the total 5—2.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

The departure of His Highness the Maharaja, the Dewan and the Hon. The British Resident in Mysore, to Delhi, more or less simultaneously has given room for much speculation. The official circles refuse to enlighten the newspaper correspondents on the object of this tour. This much is certain that something is in the air. Some say it is Retrocession, some say it is Italian Prisoners impounded in Bangalore. What it is exactly, only they know, who are in the know of things. The fact that the Dewan is going to stay in New Delhi, until about the 12th or 13th, makes it certain that it is some State business that is on the anvil. The Resident's going lends strength to the view that it ought to be in connection with the Retrocession question. Anyway, people are expectant. Something will be definitely known after the Dewan returns by about the middle of this month. Some say it is not improbable to have Retrocession by the beginning of the next month.

A lot of speculation is in the air about the probabilities of the coming nominations to the Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council. But the number is limited. The scope is not very wide. Some well known names are passing from mouth to mouth. Some people have been saying that some prominent defeated candidates would be nominated.

I had not known that there are people who apply to Government to be nominated. This sort of petitioning is strange. I am told some defeated candidates have been going on repeated pilgrimages to the Secretariat for this purpose. Anyhow let us wait and see.

News comes from Karur that Mr. H. M. Hasan, Sub Collector, addressed a largely attended public meeting, beginning with a song from the Koran. In his address he said that people of every religion had liberty to follow their own religion, when civil reigns supreme, people should join together in defence of it. He quoted the Koran and the Gita. He seems to have said that at present in the Nayaga the British people have come down to India like Lord Krishna to save the different races of Indians and putting down Adharma.

There is no harm in the speech as such, but the notice of the meeting as circulated is amusing. Here is the notice: "THERE IS NONE WORTHY OF WORSHIP EXCEPT ALLAH And Muhammad is his Apostle NOTICE

"S. M. Hassan, I.C.S. Sub Collector of Karur wishes to perform Satyagraha at 9.30 a.m. on Sunday the 2nd of March near the Railway Bridge Amaravadi river and speak on "How India can Attain Eternal Welfare". He earnestly requests all the English knowing citizens to oblige him by attending the function."

A friend of mine was very glowing and enthusiastic about the advantages that our labourers, vegetable growers, milkmen and curdsmen are having on account of this camp. He said that they are making mint of money. I am doubtful about it. The advantage if there be any, is all to the middleman, the supply contractor. I am not enthusiastic about this.

had now come down to Rs. 48 lakhs. He narrated how the various measures adopted to promote temperance. He suggested the Gothenburg System of Licensing and the system of Local option might be introduced before total prohibition could be introduced.

THE HON'BLE Mr. V. V. KALIKAR'S RESOLUTION IN COUNCIL OF STATE Urging Reconstruction of Viceroy's Cabinet

Important Statement Expected From Government Spokesman

LOBBY SPECULATIONS IN NEW DELHI

(From our own correspondent)
New Delhi, March 3.
An important statement is expected to be made by the Government's spokesman in the Council of State on Thursday. Mr. Kalikar's resolution on the reconstruction of the Viceroy's Cabinet comes for consideration in view of the Commission's Political Conference at which official circles appear to attach some importance to it. It is probably considered necessary by the Government that the occasion provided by the debate of the Council of State this week should be utilised for making a political statement on the Government's intention.

According to lobby reports it is expected that Government's statement regarding Sardar Santokbhai's resolution last week in the Council of State should neither take the form of a debate nor vote. It is likely this decision was based on the lobby reports indicated on the Government's instruction which was to the effect that amendments as well as the resolution of several controversial issues of a political and in some circumstances it was not probable that official members would say anything on the floor of the Council. As the resolution moved by Mr. Kalikar in the Council of State suggests only a minority of non-official representatives of Indians with Indian members in charge of finance and other matters it is not considered appropriate that the leader of the Government should say something on behalf of the Government.

Attitude of Official Members
It is understood that official members though they may speak in the Council will not make a statement on behalf of the Government. It is expected only to advise that the August offer of the Viceroy implies that there should be a majority of non-official Indians in the Viceroy's Council and the question of the Government's over finance and defence matters will be one of the subjects concerning distribution of power which the Viceroy in consultation with the members of the expanded cabinet would consider later. The Government is likely to repeat that the offer is still open and if the political parties would accept it the object of the resolution would be achieved.

Main Political Parties Decline?
On the point however, raised in the resolution viz., whether the Viceroy would proceed to the Council with the help of other representative non-official Indians even if the main political parties decline co-operation, no definite answer is likely to be given by Government. It is still uncertain whether the Muslim League Party would table any amendment on the same lines as the former one in the Assembly but in the course of the debate its leader intends to make a statement that without previous communal settlement his party could not agree to any proposal for expansion of cabinet.

CENTRAL ASSEMBLY

Membership On Madras Port Trust Considered

A. P. New Delhi, March 3.
On circulation of the Motion on Madras Port Trust, Mr. Esak Sait pleaded for a seat, if necessary, by enlarging membership for Muslim Chamber of Commerce in the City.

Mr. N. M. Joshi urged that a seat be given to labour which should be filled by election and not by nomination.

Sir Andrew Clow replying said that the claim put forward by Mr. Esak Sait for the Muslim Chamber of Commerce was one for Select Committee which would be appointed to consider but he pointed out that Skin and Hides Merchants Association to which a seat had been given was largely, though not exclusively a Muslim body. He was surprised at Mr. Joshi's advocacy of representation by election. The Royal Commission's recommendation, said Sir Andrew, was that labour should have a voice in trusts. If Mr. Joshi wanted a nominee of Labour to be selected in consultation with trade unions that was a point for the Select Committee to consider.

The House agreed to circulation of the bill and adjourned till tomorrow.

THE LATE KAMALA NEHRU

HER LAST WORDS TO GANDHIJI

An Old Scene Recalled

(From a correspondent)

Fifteen months have passed since Mahatma Gandhi laid the foundation-stone of the Kamala Nehru Hospital before a large gathering in November, 1939. The occasion was, in one sense, only ceremonial. In another sense it provided the background for serious political decisions. Where Mahatma Gandhi is, the least little ceremony puts on the aspect of nationalism. The Congress ministries had less than a month ago chosen to go out of office. What was the next step to take on the war issue? The country has been vigorously speculating.

To a moving incident Mahatma Gandhi, unusually for himself, added an intensely personal emotion when he traced the history of the hospital. While going to Europe in May 1935 for the treatment of the disease to which she fell a victim in the end, Mrs. Kamala Nehru met Mahatma Gandhi in Bombay and asked him, "Shall I come back alive?"

"I am older than you," replied Mahatma Gandhi, "and I must naturally expect to die earlier than you."

"Whatever happens to me," she requested him "look after the Congress hospital. Let it not die."

"I shall not allow it to die if I can," Mahatma Gandhi assured her. The hospital, he reminded us on the occasion, was not only a tribute to a noble Desh Sevika, it was also a symbol of the Indian fight for freedom. It arose out of the Congress hospital that was hurriedly improvised to look after the victims of the police lathi charges of 1930-32. The great woman spent days and months of toil and devotion on nursing them back to health. Shall it then die?

A string appeal was made for the balance of Rs. 2,50,000 that would be necessary for completing the building and starting the work of the hospital. Dr. Kailash Nath Katju promptly offered a cheque for Rs. 2,500 the first instalment of a promised amount of Rs. 5000. He also promised to pay Rs. 1000 more if the United Provinces were able to collect Rs. 5000.

We had to wait for an hour or two for the function to begin but the presence of the leaders who had gathered for the meeting of the Working Committee of the Congress, their coming and goings, enlivened the tedium of time. It was an enormous concourse of people, and at one time Jawaharlal had to run out of breath to control them.

A large space had been reclaimed from a semi-wilderness, cleaned and kept tidy. The arrangements were excellent.

WEAKNESS OF JAPANESE FLEET

FAULTY CONSTRUCTION OF VESSELS

How excessive armament affects Stability

(By Cable) London
The Swedish paper Social Demokraten writes on the situation in the Pacific:

Among naval experts it is the general opinion that the Japanese Fleet is in many respects relatively inferior to the American. The difference is not great, but nevertheless it exists. Japan must face not only the American but also the British, Australian and Netherlands Navy. Numerically, therefore, the prospects for the Japanese in a possible conflict are scarcely bright. In any coming conflict the strength of the Japanese Fleet, as far as it can be judged, is that it can operate on internal lines which makes it difficult for a somewhat superior adversary to contact.

This also in some degree diminishes the negative effects, generally speaking, of consistent faulty construction. This consists in the fact that vessels are generally too heavily armed which has a disadvantageous effect on their stability and seaworthiness. Too many guns are placed on one and the same vessel. Because of this a vessel overturned a year or so ago. The lesson was taken to heart and in recent years many units have been reconstructed. It appears, however, particularly to be the smaller vessels which are affected by this disadvantage, but even the battleships look somewhat dangerous with their vast tower constructions. On some the triple towers have also been taken away, which shows that unfortunate experiences have been met with even in this category.

Any break in the diplomatic relations between Britain and Bulgaria, it is thought, will not be made before Tuesday.

Even the German circles in Ankara regard the visit of Mr. Eden as a great diplomatic setback to Reich.

Nearly 200 British seamen were liberated from prison camp in Italian Somaliland by the Imperial units which are vigorously marching into the territory.

The mandap was gaily decorated the god of fire blazed gloriously, the Brahmans did the chanting of mantras sonorously. Mahatmajiji did not take more than five minutes to lay the foundation-stone. Making of speeches followed after his. The origin of the epic effort was lucidly explained by Dr. Jivraj Mehta.

Though the sadness and solemnity of the occasion kept him in the background, Jawaharlal could not escape prominence and publicity. In between he made short speeches—Shukriya, dhanyavad, and all that.—N. H.

ANTI-INDIAN BILLS

In Ceylon Legislature

A.P. New Delhi, March 3

The proposed two Ceylon Bills which are intended to deal with non-Ceylonese in that Island were referred to in short notice question this morning by Mr. Govind Deshmukh.

Mr. J. D. Tyson, Secretary, Education Health and Lands said Government had seen the press reports of the proposed Bills and had received telegraphic report from their Agent in Ceylon that draft ordinances had been published in Ceylon on the 26th February. Mr. Tyson added that the Government of India had already informed the Government of Ceylon that the emigration question should not be dealt with unilaterally by Ceylon but should form part of a general settlement of outstanding questions between the two countries. On receipt of the text of ordinances, the Government of India will consider whether further representations should be made to Ceylon Government. Before determining this matter the Government of India would consult the Standing Emigration Committee of legislature. The attitude which the Government of Ceylon and His Majesty's Government may adopt towards these ordinances will be known only after the ordinances have been discussed in Ceylon State Council.

OUR NEW DELHI LETTER

A SURVEY OF THE WEEK'S EVENTS

Railway Budget Discussion

(From our correspondent)

New Delhi, Feb. 27

It has been a strenuous week for New Delhi—the debate on the Railway Budget in the two Houses of the Central Legislature which though compared with previous years was a pitiful affair owing to the absence of practically the whole block of opposition members had its own surprises to offer, the week-end discussions of the Muslim League Council, and a series of moves behind the scenes for finding a way out of the political deadlock. The talk of the week has been the walkout of the Muslim League party in both the Houses of the Legislature as a protest against the Railway Member's policy. The main demand of the party, so far as one can see it, is that in the case of initial recruitment the communal ratio guaranteeing a certain percentage to Muslims should be applied also to appointments by promotion. This has been resisted by the present Railway Member, Sir Andrew Clow, who has repeatedly declared on behalf of the Government that so far as promotions are concerned merit and qualifications should be taken into consideration, and not colour or creed. The action taken by the Muslim League Party in walking out of the chamber and refusing to take part in the discussions on Railway Budget seems to have come as a great surprise to the Treasury Bench. As the D'Souza report which has gone into the question of the representation of minorities and made certain recommendations, is still under the consideration of the Government of India, one cannot say how this controversy will end. One important recommendation made in the D'Souza report was warmly supported by Dr Kunzru in the Council of State. And that is to the effect that an independent body, a separate Services Commission, should be established for controlling recruitment to the subordinate Railway Services in State Railways just as the Federal Services Commission is now doing for the superior Railway Services. There is a good deal to be said for this proposal as the present arrangement under which the General Managers of Railways hold the power of recruitment in their own hands is far from satisfactory.

Two Questions

Two questions received great prominence in the course of the discussions on the Railway Budget. One was the question of manufacturing broad gauge locomotives in this country upon which the Humphrey's Committee appointed by the Railway Board reported very favourably a few months ago. The Railway Member held out no hope of starting the industry on a large scale during the period of the war for the reason that Railway factories and all available technical personnel were required to help to the utmost extent possible in the production of munitions for war needs. The only comfort which he gave to the disappointed house was that after the war there will be a surplus of machine plant and technical personnel available which can be utilised for starting these and other heavy industries. On the question of the dismantling of Railway lines, very strong strictures were passed on the action of the Railway authorities in removing these lines without consulting the Legislature. In his reply the Railway Member frankly admitted that the fact that these lines were considered unremunerative was a secondary consideration as the main reason was that these lines were urgently needed overseas for war work. The announcement which he made that the war situation had so greatly improved that for the present there was no need to proceed with the dismantling of lines has been generally welcomed. A resolution has however been tabled by eight members of the Congress Nationalist party asking that no announcement to dismantle the railway line on any section or portion of the State-owned Railways should be made without the previous sanction of the Legislative Assembly and no dismantling of any State Railway line be started within six months of the date of such announcement.

Interesting Controversy

An interesting controversy has started as a side issue on the very fact of the huge surplus declared by the Railway Member. In the course of his budget speech the latter claimed that the increase in coaching earnings showed the increased prosperity of the masses. The accuracy of this statement was challenged by Mr.

SIND GOVERNOR'S ASSURANCE Durbar Incident Would Not Be Repeated

A. P. Karachi, March 3
Assurance from Sir Lancelot Graham, Governor of Sind that no occasion should arise in future for any such feeling to experience by any member of the house caused, following the incident at Durbar at Hyderabad (Sind) is contained in a communication addressed by the Government to the Speaker Miran Mahomed Shah. Letter was read in the Assembly by the Speaker.

ITALIAN PRISONERS
Yet Another Batch

A. P. Bombay, March 3.
Another batch of Italian prisoners numbering six hundred including officers arrived today. Shantidas Askuran, the Bombay businessman in the Council of State who gave four reasons for the increased surplus this year. The increase in rates and fares, the diversion of traffic from the coastal shipping lines to the Railways, decreasing competition from motor traffic which has become more costly and the additional traffic due to the war like troop movements etc. Mr. Shantidas Askuran went on to point out that the population in this country was preponderantly agricultural and challenged the Railway Member to show in what respect the lot of the agriculturists has improved in any part of the country. There was no reply to any of these questions from the Railway Member. The danger of allowing a statement of this kind in a budget speech to go unchallenged lies in the fact, this supposed increase in the prosperity of the masses, may be used as a justification for increasing duties on such commodities as salt which affect the masses.

It has been repeatedly affirmed by non-official members in the Central Legislature that the level of taxation in this country has already been so high that any further addition which directly touches the masses is unthinkable. Those who belong to the richer classes, and those who are making money as a result of the war itself, are in a different position, but so far as the masses are concerned their prosperity depends on the improvement in agricultural prices and the presence of a sufficiently large market for their products. As both these have been adversely affected by the war, there is no justification for the assumption that the masses are in a position now to give more as taxes or spend more.

IF GREECE IS INVADED—Government Ready To Move To Island

(By Cable) London.
The News Chronicle Sofia correspondent cables:-

Signs are multiplying that the military occupation of Bulgaria by Germany will not be much longer delayed.

Today more Gestapo agents could be recognised in the hotels and streets of Sofia. Some were assumed to have carried out the raid on the British Passport Office here on the 22nd when a safe was understood to have been forced open and desks were ransacked.

"Comparatively worthless" was the description applied by well-informed British circles to an out-of-date code book and documents seized and carried off.

The most disquieting aspect of the present situation, however, is the Bulgarian mobilisation whose continuation does not appear to have been influenced by the recent renewal of the pact of friendship with Turkey.

It is generally assumed that nine divisions (about 1,50,000 men) have been put on a war footing and reservists are still being called up. These troops have been directed mainly either from the Bulgaro-Turkish frontier or from the Bulgaro-Yugoslav frontier.

On the Bulgaro-Greek frontier vast stocks of war materials have been assembled but there are comparatively few troops there. This military disposition of the Bulgarian Army is understood to have been reached in an agreement of the German and Bulgarian General Staffs to keep Turkey and Yugoslavia in check.

Nazi agents and Bulgarian hirelings have spread a rumour that the Greeks are almost at the end of their power of resistance and ready to make an early peace with the Axis Powers. This rumour is denied in authoritative Greek circles here again today. From a high source at Athens the assurance has reached here that there was no truth in the report that a peace feeler had been put out.

It was added that, should the worst be realised and German forces overrun, the main land of Greece, the Greek Government would take up quarters in a neighbouring Island where it would be protected by the British fleet and the R. A. F. and could carry on its functions indefinitely.

This reply was given by Mr. Ogilvie in answer to a question of Mr. G. I. V. Desai, who stated showing allowance and accommodation received by Italian prisoners of war in India and Italian prisoners of war in Sudan and France.

A. P. New Delhi, Mar. 5.
Mr. L. C. Buss, Leader of the Opposition Group in the Central Assembly, opened general discussion on the budget today and said viewed against the background of war, the Finance Member has been able to present what might be termed a very favourable picture.

Sir Ziauddin Ahmed congratulated the Finance Member and the Reserve Bank on the soundness of the country's financial position. Sir Abdul Halim Ghaznavi would like to object to additional expenditure on war defence but wanted to know if it amounted to eighty four crores, which was now spent for defence purposes.

Maulana Zafar Ali said India which reached maximum taxable capacity could not bear fresh taxation.

Dr. Bannerji particularly objected to increased tax on matches.

Henry G. Dey said he had made the observation that on the budget which was to repeat a part of sermon on the mount.

Dr. Dalal described the budget as sensible and suggested it likely Finance Member might bring up supplementary budget.

Mr. Umashankar Shukla objected to the taxation proposals.

A. P. Madras, Mar. 5.
Only Indians who were here before certain years and settled in South Africa could go and come and in no other case settle there. No new emigration was permitted to Dominions, said the Rt. Hon. V. S. Srinivasa Sastri, presiding over public meeting.

MYSORE CONGRESS AND OFFICE ACCEPTANCE

The statement issued by Mr. K. T. Bhasyam, President, Mysore Congress, in respect of the Congressmen's attitude towards acceptance of Ministry deserves to be carefully considered by all concerned. The people are glad to note that the Congressmen would not stand out as cantankerous opponents but if Government came to an honourable understanding with the Congress they would not be averse to accept Office.

The public are aware of the sections of the Mysore Government Act 1940, in respect of appointment of Ministers. The Act says—

1. There shall be a Council of Ministers consisting of the Dewan and such number of Ministers, not being less than four, as His Highness the Maharaja may determine to aid and advise His Highness the Maharaja in the exercise of the Executive authority of the State.

2. The Dewan shall be appointed by His Highness the Maharaja and shall hold office during the pleasure of His Highness the Maharaja.

3. The Ministers shall be appointed by His Highness the Maharaja and shall be sworn as members of the Council of Ministers.

4. Two at least of the Ministers shall be chosen from among the elected members of the Representative Assembly or the Legislative Council.

5. The Council of Ministers shall not be disqualified for the transaction of business for reason of any vacancy or vacancies among the members thereof.

6. The Dewan shall preside at meetings of Council of Ministers.

7. The Ministers shall hold office during the pleasure of His Highness the Maharaja.

8. A Minister chosen from either chamber shall vacate office if he ceases to be a member of such Chamber.

9. His Highness the Maharaja may make rules for the convenient transaction of the business of the Government and for the allocation of the said business among the Dewan and the Ministers.

The above are the sections of the sub-sections from the first chapter of the new Act.

Nowhere is it mentioned that the Ministers should be only four. It is stated that it should be not less than four. And then as to the number to be chosen from among the elected members it is stated only "two at least".

In the matter of the appointment of the Dewan, His Highness may, if he chooses appoint a man either from the elected members of the Assembly or the Legislative Council.

Thus we find there is a good deal of scope for negotiation within the ambit of the Act. If we examine the Proclamation issued by His Highness the late Maharaja what is stated there is as follows: "My Executive Council will in future consist of My Dewan, and not less than four ministers of whom it is my desire that not less than two should be non-officials selected from among the elected Members of the Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council, such Ministers being eligible to hold any portfolio of the administration."

We would request our readers to mark this scope of the Proclamation and the Constitution Act. We find that there is a good deal of scope for understanding. Government cannot deny that they have powers to do so. The proclamation and the constitution Act have left enough scope for Government to move liberally in the matter.

The Mysore Congress has shown a good and commendable spirit in issuing the statement of the kind that was published in our columns yesterday. Everyone of us desire that the Government and the people of Mysore should work unitedly for the welfare of the State. All of us desire that Mysore's glory as a progressive State should rise higher in the Indian sky. What is wanted now is a spirit of mutual adjustment and accommodation. We find that the Congress have declared that they have always been reasonable and they would continue to be so. Times have changed. Events are moving fast in the world abroad. The Mysore of 1941 is not the Mysore of 1940. The Mysore of 1942 would not be the Mysore of 1941. The people of Mysore are pulsating with a new spirit. The Mysore Congress is, to a large extent, the mirror of that new spirit. We request Government to treat Congress with respect and deal with it in a friendly manner. Let the old things be forgotten. Let us have an eye only to the days to come. There is no earthly use of casting a regretful look on the past. The past is past. Let us embrace the future.

We have no desire to go into further details of the scope of understanding between the Government and the Congress. We have shown sufficiently from the Proclamation and the Act that there is scope for further understanding and liberalisation of the constitution. We hope those who have influence with the Government would advise them in a healthy manner.

SIR SHAFFAT AHMED KHAN

Bangalore, Mar. 4.

Sir Shaffat Ahmed Khan, Professor of Allahabad University had come to Bangalore on Sunday last. He had an interview with Sir Muza Ismail, the Dewan of Mysore. He left Bangalore last night for Madras.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Interesting details are now available of Mahatma Gandhi's visit to Allahabad in connection with the opening ceremony of the Kamala Nehru Memorial Hospital. It was a great event for Allahabad, the like of which does not very often happen. Wherever Mahatma Gandhi is there is a crowd. In order to avoid the crowd he has to get down from the train or get into the train at distant places. But the crowd somehow gets a scent of it and even there it would not be easy for Gandhiji to make his movements.

To avoid a crowd he got down at the Cheeki Railway Station where despite efforts to keep the arrival secret, a huge crowd had gathered to welcome him. As the train puffed in, loud shouts of Mahatma-Gandhi-ki-ji, raised by hundreds of throats, rent the air. Mrs. Huthee Singh entered the compartment and garlanded Babu, who came out and greeted the crowd with his usual smile. It was dark. With the help of a lantern and with a stick in his hand, he walked step by step towards the car. The crowd also moved with measured steps in solemn silence. Garlands of red roses were thrown in profusion round Gandhiji's neck. One by one he passed them on to Acharya Kripalani. He got into the car with Mrs. Huthee Singh and drove slowly to Ananda Bhavan followed by others.

At Ananda Bhavan as soon as he got down he went up to his room where he was soon surrounded by Mr. and Mrs. Pandit's daughters, Miss Naidu. Other also were there. After a few minutes he went for a stroll in the Swaraj Bhavan gardens with Mr. Kripalani. One could visibly see the cloud on Mahatma's face caused by the absence of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and his sister Mrs. Vijaya Laxmi Pandit. Wherever Gandhiji is, the big Congress guns would be there. Leaders from Bengal, Assam, Sind and other parts of India would gather. Newspapermen would be very vigilant to pickout suggestions and make sensational news out of them.

Mahatma Gandhiji's meeting with Sri Tej Bahadur Sapru excited a good deal of curiosity.

ENGLAND'S INTERESTS ARE INDIA'S-INDIA'S INTERESTS ARE ENGLAND'S.

European Association Address

A. P. Bombay, March 4.

An appeal to Britishers to discipline themselves in personal frugality so that in the years to come they should be better suited to understand the very language of those at home who would have borne the burden which those in India could no imagine was made by Mr. McIntosh presiding over the annual general meeting of European Association, Bombay, this evening.

He gave a brief resume of the progress of the war and turning

The contemplated Mahatma Gandhi to see Maulana Azad Pandit naturally aroused speculation. The reported of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru Dehara Dun Jail made some believe that it was in connection with some peace in a position to know what it was and inform public likewise.

The function at Allahabad was unique in several Mahatma Gandhi's visits to the Nehru family is so that one cannot do full justice by describing it.

Wherever Mahatma Gandhi you find these autographs. Now that he has laid price on his autographs the number of people that rush for him dwindled. All the same now Mahatma makes a collection out of his autographs all of which he credits to Harijan Fund. He has no price for boys or anybody who expect. Without a minimum of 5 for an autograph he would oblige anybody. Several papers have criticised him he does not mind it.

It is said that Mahatma Gandhi has autographed copies of the Kamala Nehru special supplement of the 'National Herald'. The authors of the paper have announced they would be sold by the highest bidder and the proceeds would be credited to the hospital fund.

News comes from Calcutta that a nautch girl was in Satyagraha. She declared her life of sin and made up her mind to dedicate her life to country's service. She came from a village in Cuddalore district. Her name is Nammamma. She is only 18 years old and has obtained permission from Mahatma Gandhiji to join Satyagraha. But her husband stood in her way. It is said when the daughter refused a life of sin, the mother put her in a room where a girl began to fast. The leaders of the District prevailed on the mother to let the daughter and the husband broken. Once for all she has decided to give up her life and offer Satyagraha.

MAHATMA'S TOUCHING SPEECH

50,000 ATTEND CEREMONY

WELCOME PRESENCE OF PANDIT MALAVIYA

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

ALLAHABAD, Friday.

Mahatma Gandhi performed the opening ceremony of the Kamala Nehru Memorial Hospital at 4.30 in the evening today. For two hours a huge crowd, estimated at 50,000, patiently waited in hot sun to have a 'darshan' of the Mahatma and hear him.

About a hundred cameras clicked as soon as the Mahatma came within view from Anand Bhavan, resting his hands on the shoulders of little Rita Pandit and accompanied by Babu Rajendra Prasad, Acharya Kripalani, Dr. Jivraj Mehta, Pandit Zutshi and others.

A most touching scene was witnessed when Mahatma Gandhi found that the veteran Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya was already present on the rostrum. The moment the Mahatma saluted, Malaviyajji patted him and embraced him, the crowd lustily cheered them.

Bapu was garlanded by the Pandit's daughters. He participated in the Havan ceremony and put the tilak on the foreheads of the Benares pandits and they in turn put the tilak on the Mahatma's forehead.

Bapu then stood up and Vande Mataram was sung. Mrs. Uma Shanker Dixit read messages from Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and several other leaders.

Dr. Mehta requesting the Mahatma to declare the hospital open, surveyed the progress of the hospital project and explained how generously people had responded to the appeal for funds.

Mahatma's Speech

Mahatma Gandhi then came down from the rostrum and opened the lock of the hospital over which a silver tri-colour was flying with a silver key. In hushed silence he spoke for about 45 minutes in firm and fluent tone. He began by saying that he was extremely lucky, to have Malaviyajji with him that day despite his extremely delicate health. Though only a message was expected from him, he could not resist the temptation of coming here.

"If he had not been able to be present on this occasion Jawahar and I both would have felt it," he said. "Previously it was thought that it was not necessary to perform the opening ceremony so formally but I felt that I could utilise this occasion for collecting some more funds for the hospital and the nation may know that this hospital in the memory of Kamala has been opened and was functioning. Later Jawahar also wrote to me agreeing with me as to the necessity of this formal ceremony. Despite the absence of India, Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit and Jawahar, it was decided to organise this function. The little daughters of Mrs. Pandit Krishna Hutheesing are only here. Krishna has arrived despite her son's illness. We all

DADABHOY'S GRAND DAUGHTER

Released And Immediately Served With Notice

A. P. Peshawar, March. 4 Miss Khurshid Ben grand daughter of the late Dadabhoi Naoriji was released today from Peshawar Central Jail on the expiry of the term of three months simple imprisonment.

She was immediately served with a notice on behalf of the Government of India under the Defence of India Rules directing her to remain in Bombay Presidency. Miss Khurshid Ben left for Bombay by Frontier Mail under police escort.

ITALIAN PRISONERS

Total No. Exceeds 32,000

A. P. Bombay, March. 4 Nearly eight thousand two hundred Italian prisoners of war arrived in Bombay from Western Desert during the last three days. The total number of Italian prisoners of war in India now exceeds thirtytwo thousand.

"Now, sisters and brothers, I have to tell you a thing of my heart and it is this that the hospital is essentially for the poor. Though even the princes can well accommodate themselves in it, the intention and the spirit with which this hospital has been built is to serve the poor. Here can be no partiality or concession to the relatives and friends of big people. It is not for any one community. It is for all, Hindus, Muslims or Christians.

For All

"Let Muslims know that it is their hospital as well as of anybody else's. Death and misery and harassment make no distinction between one community and another. They go to all alike. I have not met a single man in my life who is not the victim of all these. Then how this place of relief can be for any particular section or individuals?

"Jawahar is fighting to bring Swaraj for all and all the things with which his name is associated will always be for all. Dear Jawahar needs nothing from anybody. He has wealth and power. Wherever he goes in the country he would be helped and looked after."

"I wish to emphasise again that no favours will be shown to any one because he has in fluent relatives or friends. It is primarily for the poor whose only relative and friend is God."

After Bapu's speech collections were made on the spot and he sat there for about half an hour gratefully accepting donations. The donations were announced on the microphone by Dr. Mehta and Mr. Uma Shanker Dixit.

Though the crowd was more than 50,000, remarkable service was rendered by Desh Sevikas, volunteers, scouts and students. It must be said to the credit of the people gathered that they behaved extremely well.

After performing the opening ceremony, Mahatma Gandhi stayed on the scene for about half an hour collecting funds for the hospital.

MADRAS NOTES

Congress Members and Corporation

(From our correspondents)

Madras, March 4.

Out of the twenty-nine members belonging to the Congress Party in the Corporation, eighteen members have resigned following the mandate from the Congress High Command. These include the five members who are undergoing imprisonment, namely Mrs. Lakshmi-pathi, Messrs. Satyamuathi, Gadge Rangiah Naidu, Adikesavalu Naicker, and K. Venkatasami Naidu. Numerous meetings are being held in different parts of the City to demand the immediate resignations of the remaining eleven Councillors. The Tamil Nadu Congress Committee is considering the question of disciplinary action against these members.

Another Contribution to War Fund

The Corporation has sanctioned another Rs. 10,000 to the Governor's War Fund directing the amount to be spent on the defences of Singapore and strengthening the Royal Indian Navy (Rs. 7,500 for the defences of Singapore and the remaining amount to the R.I.N.)

Mr. M. N. Roy received a very cord reception in the City All the meetings addressed by him ended in utter confusion. He got some support from the deca-jury Justice Party. In his tirade against the Congress, he supported the movements for Pakistan and Dravidianism.

Political Prisoners' Day

A meeting was held at the old Congress House ground to demand the abolition of 'C' classification. Leaders belonging to various political parties addressed the monster meeting. Meeting between Dr. Naidu and C. R. I understand that the proposed meeting between Dr. P. V. Naidu, General Secretary of the All-India Hindu Maha Sabha and Sri. C. R. has been cancelled.

MYSORE AGRICULTURE IN 1939-40

Remissions Granted To Raiyats

Bangalore, March 4.

The year 1939-40 was a year of abundant crops in the Mysore State. The average rainfall was 114 inches more than that of the previous year and 175 inches more than the normal average for the five years. The Government's policy of affording relief to raiyats resulted in periodical remissions granted. For example, owing to untimely rainfall in some parts of the State, 2,32,000 acres of crops were not matured during the year for the grant of seasonal remissions aggregating Rs. 1,67,030-12-4 inclusive of remissions relating to previous years sanctioned during the year.

The area under all the principal crops showed an increase over the figures of the previous year and the output of crops was also better. There was no sign of distress in any part of the State. Agricultural stock was on the whole healthy and public health was generally good.

The revenue concessions relating to the recovery of revenue and miscellaneous demands were continued and were freely granted by the Deputy Commissioners. As a result of these concessions, Notice and Istihar fees amounting to Rs. 43,031 were remitted and Khates were remitted in 2018 cases without levying any penalty or upset price.

ALLEGED THEFT OF TOOLS

Bangalore, Mar. 4.

The Crime Branch Police have placed a charge sheet against one Abdul Rahiman, an old offender. It is stated that Abdul Rahiman on 16-2-1941, committed theft of some tools from a lorry in Makalabasavanna Gudi Road. He has eight convictions to his credit.

ALLEGED THEFT OF A CYCLE

Accused Caught Redhanded

Bangalore, Mar. 4.

The Crime Branch Police have placed a charge sheet against one Shamshudhin alias Shamanna. It is stated that Shamshudhin on 23-2-1941, committed theft of a cycle belonging to one Mr. Puttanna from the cool stand at Sri Lakshmi Bhavan Coffee Club in Basavangudi. While the accused was disposing of the cycle on the same day to one Mr. Muniappa a cycle keeper in Nagarthpet, the Police caught the accused redhanded with the property. It is learnt that the accused previously had committed theft of 26 cycles on various occasions.

ALLEGED THEFT OF MONEY

PURSE

Accused Sentenced to R. I. For Two Years

Bangalore, Mar. 4.

Mr. M. Ramaswamiya, City Magistrate, Bangalore convicted and sentenced one Rama to suffer R. I. for a period of two years and ordered him to notify his residence to the Police after release for a period of three years.

The prosecution alleged that the accused Rama on 2-2-41, at about 5-45 p.m. committed theft of a money purse containing cash of about Rs. 14 from the shirt pocket of one Mr. Ibrahim at the Bangalore Race Course and passed it on by throwing it to the second accused Chinnabhi.

The City Magistrate after hearing the case discharged the second accused and sentenced the first.

"PROFITEERING" BY CANTONMENT MUNICIPALITY

Judge Newsam's Criticism

BANGALORE, March 5

Mr. W. O. Newsam, Judge of the hon. the Resident's Court, Bangalore, delivering judgment in a land acquisition case, criticised "profiteering" by the Cantonment Municipality in a land selling transaction in respect of a land acquired for public purposes.

The Municipality had acquired a piece of land, owned by Mr. Lakshmaiah, in Ulsoor to provide a conservancy lane behind the Ramakrishna Mutt Road by paying Rs. 147-11-2, the price per square foot being 3 pies. As a portion of the land was not required, the Municipality sold it to the owners of houses adjoining it at 3 annas per square foot thus making a profit of Rs. 600.

His Honour disposing of the appeal observed that the land acquired and not required by the Municipality should have been returned to the original owner at the price paid by them, instead of a profiteering transaction being carried through with the land compulsorily acquired for public purposes. In the result, His Honour ordered that Mr. Lakshmaiah should be given the profit plus the compensation price of Rs. 147-11-2.

HABITUAL THIEVES

Resident's Court's Judge's

Strictures

Bangalore, March 5

Mr. W. O. Newsam, Judge of the Hon. the Resident's Court, Bangalore Cantonment, dismissing summarily an appeal preferred by Nagadu an old offender, against the sentence passed by the Sessions Judge, of 4 years rigorous imprisonment for offence of theft of a chair on 10-11-40 at 4, Old Poor House Road, observed— "Habitual thieves must be severely punished. Their promises are unstable. The certainty that they will be given a life sentence sooner or later is a greater deterrent. The appellant should take note of the fact that the theft by a habitual thief is punishable with transportation for life."

His Honour dismissed another appeal of the same kind. In this case, Appavoo was sentenced by the Sessions Judge for four years rigorous imprisonment for offence of theft of some clothes in a residential quarter attached to the Cadet College. His Honour confirmed the lower court's judgment, remarking that the appellant was clearly incorrigible and transportation for life might soon be the only sentence possible in his case.

There is every indication that Italian Somaliland would soon be taken over to the British administration.

Pandit Kunzru's Resolution

A.P., New Delhi, March. 4

The official attitude to Pandit Kunzru's resolution for Discretion in the Council of State recommending recruitment from all classes and areas for additional forces for war is indicated in a substitute resolution tabled by His Excellency, the Commander-in-Chief, which is as follows:—

"This Council while recognising that to begin with the army could be most speedily expanded only on the existing basis of recruitment recommends to the Governor-General-in-Council that the army authorities should now review the sources of manpower throughout the country and should exclude no class or area from consideration for recruitment in the formation of new units.

ANTI-INDIAN FEELING IN DOMINIONS AND COLONIES

The Rt. Hon. V.S.S. Sastry Expresses Regret

A.P., Madras, Mar. 5. Only Indians who were there before certain years and settled in South India could go and come and move else where. No new emigration was permitted to Dominions, said the Rt. Hon. V.S.S. Sastry, presiding over a public meeting.

Having excluded Indians from all cases of settling in Dominions, the Dominions went back to a condition precedent that while no new Indians was to be admitted, Indians already resident in the Dominions should be treated with every consideration and given all rights of citizenship. He regretted the anti-Indian feeling which had arisen in Ceylon, Burma and the Settlement.

ELDERS DISCUSS BUDGET

MAHARAJADHIRAJA OF DARBHANGA'S TRENCHANT CRITICISM

New Delhi, March 5

The Council of State held the general discussion on the budget today. Mr. E. M. Jenkins, Secretary, Department of Supply, took his seat.

Mr. Shantidas Askuram said that the Commander-in-Chief should appoint a special committee of the Central Legislature to scrutinise all defence expenditure.

Excess Profits Tax

The speaker complained it was unfair to industries that Excess Profits Tax should have been raised to 66 2/3 percent within three months of its levy. He particularly was critical of import duty on artificial silk yarn and thread as being so gravely detrimental to the newly started small industry and handloom weavers throughout India.

Sir A. P. Patro

Sir A. P. Patro expressed satisfaction that the gap between revenue and taxation and uncovered deficit was being covered by means of loans. He was glad to say that the increased rate of excess profits tax, supertax and other indirect taxes are such that they did not affect the masses and the lower middle classes of people. He expressed the view that Finance Member would be perfectly justified in asking them again to make additional sacrifices in the interests of defence of India in order to defeat Nazism.

Mr. Richardson, European Group, expressed general approval with the budget subject with the remark that since same sources of revenue are being further taxed it was obvious the time was approaching when serious consideration should have to be given to raising further sums which undoubtedly are necessary by other means and especially by the broadening basis.

Maharajadhiraja Of Darbhanga

Maharajadhiraja of Darbhanga complained that Government failed to produce war atmosphere in this country. He said there were quite a number of eminent men in India not belonging to Congress or Muslim League who could render valuable services and guide the affairs of their country. They were not allowed to share responsibilities for the defence of their country. They expected to put forth money and men and resources but are denied any voice in utilisation thereof. If such policy is pursued my apprehension is that even most of those who consider it to be a patriotic act will have lost all interest. Proceeding Maharajadhiraja asked that message has the Secretary of State or Viceroy given to four hundred millions of this country except that they are naughty children and unless they cease quarrelling they cannot have any place in the household. Is that the way to ward off aggression?

This simply shows mutual distrust and unless there is a feeling that their home is theirs and shall be theirs if they drive out aggressors how can they be expected to take any interest in protecting it? The Prime Minister has unhappily chosen to be discreetly silent about us. I think it is the deep-rooted traditional loyalty of Indians to the throne and the person of the King Emperor that alone is responsible for the response the country has given. He asserted that the present unrest and desperation on the part of the Indian public-men was due to the narrow-mindedness of those who had shaped the trend of British Administration in India.

Concluding, he supported the taxation proposals.

Lala Ramasarasandas

Lala Ramasarasandas asked the Finance Member not to impose further taxation as India is a poor country.

Sterling Debt

Both Mr. Hosain and Pandit Kunzru welcomed the repatriation of sterling debt to India and the Government's decision to purchase Calcutta, Bombay and Madras telephone systems.

Commander-in-Chief

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief said there were one or two matters about which misapprehension existed in the minds of members. The first was regarding the Viceroy's Commissioned Officers. Their interest he said was close to his heart and he would always watch them.

Finance Member's Reply

Sir Jeremy Raisman, Finance Member, replying to the points raised by non-official members said that Government had no option but to embark on a project of building a new mint in Calcutta.

Replying to Pandit Kunzru's request for information regarding debiting His Majesty's Government expenditure in this country the Finance Member explained the whole process of debiting the expenditure and said that the expenditure was not exhibited in sufficient detail in England and it would therefore be unfair if the details were made public here.

Replying to Pandit Kunzru's question of charging commission on purchases made in India by the Supplies Department for His Majesty's Government the Finance Member said that His Majesty's Government was purchasing for Indian Government considerable quantities of material which could not be possible to obtain from the open market particularly at a time when the industries that produced those articles were under the control of the Ministry of Supplies. The Government of India were getting those supplies at exactly the same price which His Majesty's Government paid for them although in many cases the organisations which made these purchases were much more elaborate and expensive than the one which purchased material for His Majesty's Government in India. His Majesty's Government did not recover from the Indian Government the cost of their organisation.

With regard to the complaint about assessments of excess profits Tax and Incometax, the Finance Member admitted that the Department was heavily worked and detailed the steps that Government had taken to expedite administration of excess profits tax. Government deserved sympathy in this matter. The House adjourned till tomorrow.

Biggest Conspiracy

Manufacturing Counterfeit Coins

Two Lakhs Circulated

A. P. Lahore, March, 6

One of the biggest conspiracies to manufacture counterfeit coins has been uncovered by the Punjab Police with the arrest of 25 persons who had regularly engaged themselves in this trade since 1929. They are alleged to have been responsible for putting into circulation about two lakhs of spurious rupee coins known as "Shunkersha" rupees after the name of the leader of the gang. Brokers were engaged to fetch customers from various places including Lahore and Amritsar. There are about eighty shops dealing in spurious coins. Account books which were recovered from one of these shops show seventy persons had dealings with these shops and over 65 thousand tolas of silver had been sold to gangsters. Altogether sixty houses were searched by the Police who recovered seven thousand spurious rupee coins.

EXTENSION TO SUPERANNUATED PEOPLE

A.P. New Delhi, March 5

Government do not agree to grant extensions beyond the age of superannuation except in very special circumstances. Superannuation does not depend on length of service but the age of the officer, said Sir Andrew Clow in the Assembly replying to Mr. H. M. Abdullah. Extensions only are granted when it is in public interest to do so he added. Extensions to Gazetted staff may only be sanctioned by the Railway Board. In the case of non-gazetted staff this power is vested in the Heads of Departments.

THE POOR MAN'S MATCHES

It is rather unfortunate that the Finance Member of Government of India thought it necessary to double the excise duty on matches. This would after all produce only Rs. 150 lakhs. This is not a big amount. By some other means it was possible to make up this amount. The non-member members, a large number of them, both in the Central Assembly and the Council of State opposed this duty. The pity of it is that before the members could give their opinion upon it, the duty came into force. The Mysore Government also in the issue of the Extraordinary Gazette of February 28, have announced the levy of this duty. The rates are as follows:—

"The duty payable under section 3 shall be levied at the following rates, namely:— (a) On matches in boxes or booklets containing on an average not more than eighty; (i) if the average number is forty or less, at the rate of two rupees per gross of boxes or booklets; (ii) if the average number is more than forty, but not more than sixty, at the rate of three rupees per gross of boxes or booklets; and (iii) if the average number is more than sixty, at the rate of four rupees per gross of boxes or booklets; and (b) On all other matches at such rate as the Government may prescribe."

This is bound to hit the poor man.

How the price of match has gone up in the Bangalore market can be known from below.

On Monday it is:

For 40 Sticks box 0 0 4
" 60 " 0 0 5
" 80 " 0 0 7

On Thursday it is:

0-0-5; 0-0-7 and 0-0-9 respectively.

A report from New Delhi states that the speculative prices at which matches are being sold in Delhi and other centres after the announcement of the Finance Member doubling the excise duty has caused some legislators to think that the Government has miscalculated the effect of the duty on the consumer, and that the poor man is hard hit.

The old excise duty was calculated so that one box of matches was sold for one pice retail. The cost of production was reckoned at Rs. 15 to a little over one rupee per gross. Before the Budget was presented one box had already become unprofitable for one pice. The next selling price was two annas for three pices and this meant that the Government was getting a loss of one pice. It has been suggested that even after doubling the excise duty, the Government would be able to sell two

PROPOSAL TO UNIVERSITY

(From a correspondent)

Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao, Member, Mysore University Senate, moved the following proposition: "That Post-Graduate Course of Aeronautics be instituted in the University for training Air Pilots." in the last meeting of the Senate and in requesting the House to accept it made the following speech:—

This proposition should not appear novel at all in the present stage of Industrial Progress in Mysore which, I am proud to say, has been quite phenomenal. The course which I am submitting to the house has already been instituted in the Allahabad University at great expense. The Great Allahabad University has determined to establish a similar Degree Course in Aeronautics and train 300 Air pilots. Other British Indian Universities are too poor to introduce such a costly course.

One thing should be borne in mind in considering the question of instituting such a course in our happy land of Mysore. Most of the Universities in British India are maintained out of fixed grants from Provincial Governments. Such grants are hardly sufficient to initiate any new course of study involving an amount of appreciable expense. In spite of the Sadler Commission Report the Universities have remained as they were before the Commission was formed and even to this day most of them continue to function as merely affiliating and examining Universities instead of as Teaching Universities which was the intention of the authors of the Sadler's Report. There is no doubt that any departure from the pre-existing system is only possible in an Indian State. Our State was the first to inaugurate a University. Hyderabad was the next and Travancore has been the third. In Indian States, finance can be found for developing a University more easily than in British India, since the Rulers are our countrymen with similar ideals and aspirations as ourselves. There are various reasons for this difference between an Indian State and British boxes for three pice. But the price has gone up very high now. You can no longer get the courtesy match stick from the panwalla. He refers you to the "gas"—the burning coils kept in an earthen pot, or to a bit of rope lighted at one end. An attempt at cornering last night by clever men who had heard the news on the radio brought them small fortunes. On the whole, it would appear that the small shop holders who had held up stocks rather than part with them, stand to make a few rupees more, though definitely the housewife will murmur and mutter at having to pay double the previous price. She will ignore fewer match sticks per day.

The whole matter deserves to be re-considered. We hope in Bangalore also, the Committee on prices would investigate into this matter and give a correct lead.

India. In the first place, some important items of revenue are taken away by the Central Government in India and the result is that the Provincial Governments find it difficult even to make both ends meet in most of the years. Any least departure in the ways of expending money will be enough to disturb the equilibrium; so, we find that in spite of insistent and urgent demands for improving University education, Provincial Governments have been unable to give adequate grants to the Universities. The reverse is the case with Indian States and especially in a State like Mysore, Government possess ample means to help provided they are convinced that any new course of study would help the young men of Mysore.

Take again the instance of Hyderabad. Though the Osmania University was late in coming into existence, it has marched from progress to progress in a manner undreamt of in British Indian Universities, which have been in existence for over half a century. In working out the policy of making Urdu the Medium of instruction, the Hyderabad Government has already incurred an expenditure which is equivalent to the total expenditure incurred in several of the British Indian Universities for ten years. New courses of study are frequently introduced and no expense is considered superfluous.

There is yet another instance of Travancore. The University of that State is the latest born baby. But yet the departure in establishing technological courses is simply admirable. The old rut of the existing Universities is ruthlessly discarded, thereby demonstrating to the world that possibilities there are in the development of University education in Indian States.

Let us come nearer and to our Mysore University. Here, we have already an Aerodrome on which Government have spent a lakh of rupees and improvements to the Aerodrome have been taken on hand costing about 50 or 60 thousand rupees. For purposes of training we have the Hindustan Air Craft, Ltd., a venture beyond the dreams of any of the British Indian Provinces or Indian States. It is reported in the papers that the first aeroplane to be delivered to the Government of India in pursuance of its contract with that Government would be on the 24th July 1941. The work of building the factory has already begun and even the most advanced Mysoreans will be surprised beyond expression at the tremendous progress which has been made within a short space of scarcely two months in constructing the factory. Our Government has invested 20 lakhs in that venture and has also placed facilities in the possession of the Company which the latter could never dream of getting even in the most advanced of British Indian Provinces. It is also said that already orders amounting to over 5 or 6 crores have been secured for the company aeroplanes. Can we

Interesting news is to hand from Rawalpindi. About three hundred goldsmiths employed by jewellers of Rawalpindi struck work to protest against the rules framed by the Bankers' Association to regulate the Bullion market in accordance with the Trade Employees Act which has come into force from March 1. Bankers and Jewellers are reported to have terminated their old agreements on February 28 and offered new terms from March 1, which the goldsmiths refused to accept. The Goldsmiths' Association at a meeting unanimously resolved to leave the shops immediately without giving any notice.

I understand negotiations are in progress for an amicable settlement. I do not know if this is the marriage season in Punjab. At any rate here it is the marriage season and if any such strike had taken place here, it would adversely affect the marriage parties. Thank God, goldsmiths here are more sensible.

Mr. Shiva Nath Katju writing in a Madras daily about the Sevagram, Gandhiji's abode, describes Mahatma's room. In the course of this description he says the following:—

"The Mahatma sat by a small window overlooking an equally small verandah. Over his head and in front of him were engraved in the mud plastered walls the signs of the 'Pranava' supported by 'tal' trees on either side. In front of me on the wall was a calendar with the picture of the young Maharaja of Mysore. That is a compliment to Princely India! I wonder if the Maharaja of Mysore knows it."

I am indeed delighted to learn that our Young Maharaja's picture is in the room of Gandhiji. May Mahatmaji bless Mysore and its young Ruler.

In these days of considering Sanskrit as a dead language and relegating it to a subordinate position, it is pleasing to hear eloquent tributes paid to that language. I was more than pleased to read the following:—

Rukmini Devi gave high praise to the beauty of Sanskrit. "To hear twenty or thirty people chanting Sanskrit really well is as good as hearing a marvellous concert. It has its own magic. Sanskrit is indeed a 'well planned' language. In Sanskrit everything sounds harmonious to the ear. Even the actual formation of words structure is modified to bring harmony in the relation of one word to another. Sanskrit authors were great artists with a fine percepimagine a better auspices than this to start a course of Aeronautics in our University?

That there will be ample scope for those who take Degrees in Aeronautics admits of no doubt whatever. Such a high authority as Mr. Amery, Secretary of State for India, in his broadcast speech of the 24th instant has stated as follows:— "The Indian Air Force is being expanded as rapidly as it is tion and understanding of the beautiful."

I hope every Hindu would be made to learn Sanskrit compulsorily. We are made to do so many things compulsorily. Why not learn Sanskrit also?

I give below an extract from the Amrit Bazaar Patrika of Feb. 28:—

In a Press Note issued yesterday, the Director of Public Information, Bengal, states:—

"A Calcutta newspaper published in its issue of the 25th instant a report under the heading 'Higher Class Travelling Minister Caught in The Act'. What happened was that the stenographer of the Hon'ble Finance Minister who was travelling to Rajshahi by the Siraganj Mail on the 19th February handed a 100 rupee note to the bookkeeper at Sealdah and asked for a first class ticket. The bookkeeper gave him a second class ticket and in his hurry the stenographer collected the ticket and the change and discovered the mistake just before the train started. He at once paid the difference to a railway official on the platform and had the ticket converted to the first class. The Hon'ble Finance Minister was unaware of the incident till the report in question appeared in the newspaper. The statement 'He was found occupying a reserved berth in a first class compartment but on being challenged he could produce only a second class ticket'—is an absolute lie. The Hon'ble Finance Minister was challenged by nobody."

"The petty minds responsible for the fabrication of this report were obviously in ignorance of the fact that when Hon'ble Ministers travel, it is the subordinate staff, usually the stenographer, who looks after the purchase of tickets and such other details. No railway official spoke to the Hon'ble Minister. It is equally a falsehood to say that the Hon'ble Minister 'Expressed his desire that the matter might not go abroad.' It is a matter of regret that a responsible newspaper should have published a report of this kind under such a headline without ascertaining the actual facts. This attempt to show that the Hon'ble Minister was trying deliberately to benefit himself to the extent of Rs. 8-11-3 at the expense of the railway, only serves to make the newspapers look ridiculous if not worse."

I have to add that this does not speak well of the Finance Minister of Bengal whoever he may be. Such lapses are bound to tell adversely on the people at large. People holding high positions ought to set an example of correct conduct. Anyway, strange are the ways of Bengal Ministers and Bengal politicians.

possible to provide the machine. That is the only limit on expansion, for, India is enthusiastic air-minded and young men of the right quality are ready to come forward in far larger numbers than can be trained at present."

[In view of the proximity of the aeroplane factory this position has a practical importance and we hope that the people would bestow their thought on the matter. Ed. D. N.]

THE LATE KAMALA NEHRU THOSE WHOM THE GODS LOVE DIE YOUNG

(By Mrs. KRISHNA HUTHEESING)

WINIFRED HOLTRY.
To cool May morning in a station, far away in the hills, a small group of assembled to bid bon-to Kamala who was go-to Europe for treat-For many months she in ill and looked but a
of her former self, but lay propped up with ready for her departure ed and talked cheerfully around her as if to dis-fears they might have her condition.

That morning a prison brought Jawaharlal from jail to bid farewell to her. As the car approached, she had jumped out immediately before it stopped and ran into Kamala's room. It was a brief visit and moment precious to both. They greeted each other with a brave smile but their hearts for the future were so uncertain, and they did not know what was in store for them. Often they had been before but the gloom of the future seemed to tear at their hearts with anguish, each tried to hide it from the other.
The moments flew by all too fast, and the time for departure drew near.

Kamala carried Kamala to the car as she was too weak to stand and then one by one the relations and friends came to her to wish her the good luck. Last of all came the father. He kissed his little daughter who was accompanying him to Europe and then handed her over to Kamala. With a clasp of the hand he tried to give her courage he so valued at that moment.
He understood and gave her a smile which he knew would be his last. The car started and gathering speed became a speck in the distance.

Once the small crowd leaving Jawaharlal could not follow the car as it was taking away all that most dear in the world. At that moment he was a terribly lonely man, and for once
his courage failed.
He turned away, his lips trembling with a super human effort to keep back the tears that were welling up in his eyes.

With an effort at smiling he returned towards his aged ailing mother who had not been able to stand the strain of parting and had collapsed.

Gently he put his arms around her in a brief good-bye, then he too walked away towards his waiting car which was to take him back to his prison home and utter loneliness. Once only he looked back then to wave to those left behind, and the tragic look on his face made one's heart bleed. The car started and soon disappeared among the winding roads of the mountains.

Nineteen years before this incident, on a bitterly cold morning in February, in the ancient city of Delhi, Kamala had come as a bride. I still remember vividly the seventeen-year old girl who stepped gracefully out of a decorated car, to confront a host of relatives and friends who had gathered together to welcome her to her new home.
She was lovely and unsophisticated; her smiling face glowed with radiant happiness as she stood by the side of her husband Jawaharlal.

They looked a fine couple, so young and so unafraid of the future. Looking at them standing at the threshold of a new life every one sent up a silent prayer that life should hold only happiness for them both. This wish seemed to have been granted for the years passed by and no cloud darkened their horizon.
To crown their happiness a little daughter was born to them.

Yet all unknown to the young couple dark clouds had been gathering overhead and suddenly the storm burst. Politics entered the calm unruffled atmosphere of their home and life became unsettled. The whole house was affected. Some were for and others against the new ideas that had crept in and had taken hold of the son and his wife. Some tried to dissuade him from joining the new movement, others kept silent. Only his young wife gave him the courage and understanding he needed at that time. She told him that whatever path he wished to tread, were it soft or easy, or difficult and full of thorns, she would willingly stand by his side and share his life. So with this assurance Jawaharlal went ahead to follow the dictates of his heart and head.

Life changed for all those who lived in the once luxurious house.
Fineries were discarded for coarse and simple khadi and Kamala gave up all comforts to follow in the footsteps of her husband. She accepted the change as though nothing had happened even though her carefully planned life had been turned topsy-turvy.

The first time Jawaharlal was arrested it came as rather a shock passed away.

COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF

Inspects Vital Centres of India's War Production

A.P. New Delhi, March 5

Sir Claud Auchinleck, new Commander-in-chief, has lost no time in seeing for himself some vital centres of India's war production and representative military units for various types in different parts of India. During a number of whirlwind tours Sir Auchinleck has seen the armour plate production-plant of undreamt of two years ago in India-guns and bombs respirators and many other items of war equipment all being in quantities turned out which was at one time thought impossible. He inspected Indian territorial force battalion, recruited solely from Bihar, newly raised India's regiment of field artillery, auxiliary force units, Calcutta heavy battery, Indian artillery recruited entirely from Bengal manning of big guns on India's coastal defences, Member of British units engaged in strenuous tactics exercises somewhere in India. Sir Auchinleck also visited prisoners of war camp at Ramgarh, Bihar where the immense task of arranging accommodation of twelve thousand in area until recently a virgin jungle is now being accomplished. It is understood Sir Auchinleck contemplates other visits whenever circumstances permit.

but though her own heart was filled with a dull pain and her mind with vague fears of the unknown, Kamala went about simply. This was the first of many partings. Kamala took up her husband's work in spite of bad health and worked with no understanding enthusiasm that put others to shame, but she never faltered.

Ill-health did not permit her to work as much as she wanted to and many weary months were passed lying critically ill in hospitals or at home. Each illness left her weaker and weaker, but her spirit remained unconquered.

Once when she was seriously ill Jawaharlal was released on parole to come to her. There were rumours that if he gave an undertaking to keep out of politics he would be released so as to enable him to stay with his wife. When Jawaharlal arrived home Kamala's eyes lighted up with happiness, but not for long.
She had heard the rumour and was distressed about it. Even though she longed to have Jawaharlal with her she could not let him give an undertaking, and begged him not to even think of it. Hovering between life and death, duty came first with her,
and she would accept no favours.

After several years the doctors advised her to go to Europe for treatment, assuring her she would benefit by it. Kamala consented but not because the doctors had convinced her that she would get well, for she seemed to have resigned herself to almost anything, so long had she suffered.

Many months in a foreign land
she suffered till at last her brave spirit could hold out no longer, and in the prime of life she passed away. The old home was never quite the same without her for the void created by her death could never be filled. We lost a beloved friend and comrade. India lost the fairest jewel in her diadem when Kamala passed away.

MAHATMA GANDHI AND CENSUS

Where Was He Enumerated? AN ALLAHABAD INCIDENT

(From our correspondent)

Allahabad, March 1.
Mahatma Gandhi was the dilemma of the Census Officer here. Whether he should be recorded in Allahabad or at Sevagram? It was the surprise of all at Anand Bhawan
when Mr. D.G.P. Anthony, City
Magistrate, who is also the District Census Officer, motored down there. The first impulse was: "Had he come to arrest the Mahatma" because a rumour had been current for a long time. With a smile, Mr. Anthony assured those present that he had come on a peaceful mission to find out whether Mahatma Gandhi would like to be recorded in the Census as resident of Allahabad. Gandhiji however stated that he had been enumerated in Sevagram.

MAHARASHTRA BYE-ELECTION

(From our correspondent)

Allahabad, March 2
Babu Rajendra Prasad member of the Parliamentary Sub-Committee has issued the following statement in connection with the Maharashtra bye-election.

The bye-election for filling two vacancies from Maharashtra in the Central Assembly has been forced upon the public for no particular reason. We all know that the Central Assembly has out-lived its normal course and should in normal course have been dissolved years ago.
The Government has been extending its term from year to year and now when it is in its seventh year of existence bye-elections have been ordered for filling vacancies which have been created. We would not have ordinarily thought it worth while to contest these bye-elections but it seems they have been forced upon us and we must show that the Congress holds the place of affection in the hearts by the people of Maharashtra. The absence of leaders and workers in jail and the similar absence of the two friends whose seats have been declared vacant will, I hope, make no difference and the Congress candidates will secure the overwhelming support of all voters in their respective constituencies. Let Maharashtra show once more that they misunderstand and misjudge her who think they can get her confidence by taking her unaware or by taking advantage of the absence of many of her servants.

CANTONMENT MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

Adjourned For Want Of Quorum

BANGALORE, March 6

ANTI-FASCIST ITALIAN

DEMONSTRATIONS IN NEW YORK WORK OF MAZZINI SOCIETY

(By Cable) London

A mass meeting of more than 2,000 Italians and Italo-Americans—80 percent of whom were men—was sponsored by the anti-Fascist Mazzini Society at the Cooper Union Hall on Feb.
17. Looking out on the crowded hall, Mazzascoli, the President, declared "The Italians of New York have come out of their shells. They are getting back their courage. Our next meeting will be at Madison Square Garden and we shall have 50,000."

Quoting the Italian Professor Salvatore Emme, speaker at the demonstration, he said:
"If Hitler wins, Europe will be German. Europe. The Italian people have not accepted
the Italian Fascist regime. It did not war. The Italian
people have not accepted to have their land to be troops. Not one soldier allowed to return home. What did not happen yesterday may happen tomorrow."

Mazzascoli said "The movement has come to act. The Mazzini Society as no status in it. It is not brand to the only out of America. Fascism has destroyed the world. The sorgimento and the freedom unity won by Italians has been taken away from her people who have been fooled by Fascism.
The only free Italians are in America and America is at the point of going to war, with the Axis. Now is the time for Italians in America to volunteer to aid Anglo-Saxon ideals. It is up to us who have known Anglo-Saxon liberty to teach the Italians of Italy what freedom is."

SHIMOGA NOTES

(From our correspondent)

Shimoga, March 5
Mr. M. Seshadri, Deputy, Commissioner, Shimoga, inspected the local civic guards today morning in the Police Ammunition field and appreciated their services in controlling the crowd during the visit of H. H. the Maharaja to this town.

Later he distributed awards to some policemen for their service in detection of some criminal cases.

Congress

Mr. Pattabhiraman, Secretary, Mysore Congress, arrived here yesterday. In the afternoon he discussed with local Congressmen the matter regarding filing appeals in respect of rejected candidates and submitting accounts of expenditure incurred by the candidates. In the evening he addressed a public meeting and left this place for Chitdroog this morning.

imaginary descriptions of such visits and the eagerness with which the public devour them show their desire for communal harmony and the solution of the political deadlock, but moreover, it will take us no nearer its goal. For fulfilment can come through common action on the part of those who desire. So far as the Congress is concerned, its policy

A Camp Costs 60 Lakhs

ITALIAN PRISONERS IN INDIA Total Now 30,000

A.P. New Delhi, March 6
During question hour in the Council of State today H. E. the Commander-in-Chief said that the total number of Italian prisoners in India on the 1st March 1941 was approximately 30,000 including 21 Generals and one Admiral. There were no German prisoners of war in India. His Excellency added that the total estimated cost of constructing each camp to hold twelve thousand prisoners of war was sixty lakhs of rupees, the entire cost to be debited to His Majesty's Government.

Indian Air Force

Replying to another question relating to expansion of Indian Air Force the Commander-in-Chief said, "In the past the figures showing the exact progress of expansion had been freely published. The time has however arrived when the advantage of such publicity will be outweighed by considerations of this country."

He added communal consideration however would not enter in any way into the question of selection or retention in Indian Air Force the only criteria being that the candidate should be an Indian likely to become an efficient pilot.

SIR JAGADISH PRASAD ON HIS MISSION

HIS VISIT TO THE IMPERIAL CAPITAL

A.P. New Delhi, March 7
Kunwar Sir Jagdish Prasad who is on a short visit to Delhi is engaged in informal talks with leading members of the Central Assembly in connection with the forthcoming Political Conference which it is now being definitely decided to be held in Bombay on the 13th March. No final agenda has been drawn up but it is believed that the conference will devote itself mainly to the question of construction of Central Government during the war. There will be informal meeting on the morning of the 13th March followed by an open meeting.

Raja of Parlatkemedi, Sir Cowasji Jehangir, Pt. H. N. Kunzru, Sir H. N. Haksar and Rao Bahadur G. A. Natesan have signified their intention to be present.

Working of the Supply Department

DEBATE IN THE ASSEMBLY

A.P. New Delhi, March 6
The working of the Supply Department and the relations between the Eastern Group Supply Council and the provision of officers was explained by Sir Mahomed Zafrullah Khan in the Assembly replying to the debate on a cut motion initiated by Sir Ziauddin.
Sir Mahomed disclaimed any attempt to pretend that there might not be or was not room for improvement in the Department in various directions. In fact changes continuously effected in the organisation and methods as improvements suggested themselves. He declared that except in one instance he had freely given information to members of the Advisory Committee on every matter whereon information been sought. As regards the question "what was the control exercised by Government of India over the Department" he pointed out two directorates of the department and those associated with them were in fact the Government of India men and he reminded the house that there was Financial Adviser for the whole department and his representatives attached to General Secretariat of directorate of munitions at Calcutta and Directorate of Supply, Delhi.
Earlier Sir Ziauddin moving the cut made clear that he was not against war effort but he wanted that India's limited resources should be well organised, well co-ordinated well economised.
Mr. Nauman pleaded for members of the Advisory Committee being given as much information as consistent with the successful prosecution of the war.

Mauzam Sahab said that Civil Supplies Department was not working properly. He said that the Government should take steps to improve the working of the department. He said that the Government should take steps to improve the working of the department. He said that the Government should take steps to improve the working of the department.

war "war profits" was misnomer in the present war. This he thought was tribute to the policy of total mobilisation of the department.

Sir Frederick James acknowledged the recent decentralisation of control of the Supply Department.

Mr. M. S. Anand asked many of the 100 officers for whom provision was made in the budget for the department were members of the Advisory Committee being given as much information as consistent with the successful prosecution of the war.

MEDICAL AND SANITARY CONFERENCE

The opening address delivered by Rameswaramma N. V. Anantaraman, Second Member of Council, on the occasion of the Thirteenth Session of the Mysore State Medical and Sanitary Conference makes an interesting and instructive reading. A Conference of this kind is very useful for stock taking of our activities. It is no doubt true that the medical department in the State has been steadily growing in size and usefulness, but also the institutions are getting more and more popular. The number of institutions has increased and the accommodation and equipment have been re-organised and greatly added to. While in Malas and Hembay they are spending Rs. 0-2-7 and Rs. 0-4-7 per head, in Mysore the Government are spending Rs. 0-4-6. Within these limits Bangalore and Mysore Clinics have been provided with modern hospitals and all the District Hospitals have been expanded and re-modelled so that facilities for treatment which were formerly available only in Bangalore are now available in the Districts. As it has been pointed out the duty of the State is not merely the provision of facilities for the treatment of disease but also the organization of measures for the elimination of disease and for the improvement of habits, living conditions and environment which lead to or cause ill-health. This is the work of the Sanitary and Health Department.

There is one very important point to which Mr. Anantaraman has rightly drawn the attention of medical men, and that is the problem of patent medicines. These are his words; "the amount of money that is being taken away from our country by foreign manufacturers of patent medicines is probably the biggest item of our loss. This objectionable activity is fast developing into huge proportions in our country also. In most cases, the articles are of doubtful efficacy, and in many cases they may also be of a deleterious nature." The learned speaker appeals to medical men to do something to control if not stop the craving for these nostrums, alike to save the loss of money and to avoid harm.

The Mysore hospitals have indeed acquired a high reputation in the whole of India, which is a source of great pride to all of us and it should be the ambition of every one to strive to the utmost to do his best and enhance that reputation to an even greater extent than he restores. In this connection it would be useful to quote what Mahatma Gandhi said at the opening of the famous Kamala Nehru Hospital at Allahabad. We give below only relevant portions of the speech to bring home to all those who are responsible for the management of our hospitals the necessity of bestowing equal attention on the rich and the poor. Big men, men with purse can get medical advice anywhere in the world. But the poor cannot do so. The public hospitals, or an asylum to them and when they go there they expect a kind word, a gentle treatment and softening environment which can alleviate their pain. Sometimes we are constrained to publish in the columns of our paper complaints of the neglected poor. We hope the authorities concerned would not mistake us, if we place before them the ideal which Mahatma Gandhi placed before the authorities of the Kamala Nehru Hospital:

"Now, sisters and brothers I have to tell you a thing of my heart and it is this that the hospital is essentially for the poor. Though even the Princes can well accommodate themselves in it, the intention and the spirit with which this hospital has been built is to serve the poor. Here can be no partiality or concession to the relatives and friends of big people. It is not for any one community. It is for all, Hindus, Muslims or Christians.

"Let Muslims know that it is their hospital as well as of anybody else's. Death and misery and harassment make no distinction between one community and another. They go to all alike. I have not met a single man in my life who is not the victim of all these. Then how this place of relief can be for any particular section or individuals?

"I wish to emphasise again that no favours will be shown to any one because he has influential relatives or friends. It is primarily for the poor whose only relative and friend is God."

MORE CHRISTIAN WOMEN THAN MEN

Census in Mysore

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, March 5. The following are some of the interesting features of the recent census in Mysore City.

There are 29,319 families in Mysore consisting of 1,18,186 Hindus, 25,668 Muhammadans, 5536 Christians, 37 Sikhs, 775 Jains and 121 others.

The total population is 1,50,323 including 79,109 males and 71,214 females.

Among Hindus 29,824 are Brahmins, 14,414 are of the depressed classes and 73,948 are of the other communities. There are in total 62,213 men and 55,973 women.

The Muhammadan population consists of 13,657 males and 12011 females.

There are more women than men among the Christians, the figures being 2891 and 2641 respectively.

There are 19 men and 18 women among Sikhs while the Jains have 472 men and 303 women.

The literates are as follows among the different communities: Brahmins 12564 men 7701 women; depressed classes 1234 men 100 women; other Hindus 16,198 men and 5138 women; Muhammadans 5734 men and 3103 women; Christians 1516 men and 1332 women; Sikhs 9 men and 1 woman; Jains 359 men and 157 women; others 52 men and 36 women.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

The general discussion on the Central Budget both in the Central Assembly and the Council of State was this time a dry and uninteresting affair. All the same speeches were made and replies were given. The columns of the newspapers were not vacant. Though one could miss the flare of Congressmen in the speeches, it cannot be said they were devoid of stuff. Messrs Iridayanatha Kunzru and Sapru maintained a high level. I enjoyed reading their speeches.

But the surprise of the day was the speech of Maharajadhiraja of Darbhanga. His speech was a hard hit. And I am sure the Finance Member would have felt it. His speech was neither modest nor moderate. Mark his words: "They were not allowed to share responsibilities for the defence of their country. They were expected to put forth money and men and resources but were denied any voice in utilization thereof. If such policy is to be pursued my apprehension is that even most of those who consider it to be a patriotic act to help Britain to win war will have lost all interest. What message has the Secretary of State or Viceroy given to four hundred million of this country excepting that they are naughty children and unless they cease quarrelling they cannot have any place in the house-hold."

I cannot but whole-heartedly congratulate Maharajadhiraja of Darbhanga on his manly speech. He asserted that the present unrest and desperation on the part of the Indian public men was due to the narrow-mindedness of those who had shaped the trend of British administration in India. Dadabhai Navroji of blessed memory could not have condemned the British administration in a better way than the Darbhanga. The Maharajadhiraja of Durbhanga is a scion of an ancient ruling family. His is a martial house. His father was a great Sanatani. He maintained several 'Agnihotri Brahmins'. There were in Benares who owned Maharajadhiraja of Darbhanga was the prime mover of the Benares Hindu University movement. He was a Maha Mandal. He gave Rs. Fifty lakhs or even more to the Hindu University. He indeed an ideal Raj Zamindar.

The son of such a distinguished Maharajadhiraja proved himself worthy of father. He is only 34 years old. He had very fine education under able tutors. He is in him all that is best in the East and West. He succeeded his father's gadi in 1929 when he was 22 years old. From very beginning he gave abundant proof of his commanding personality, administrative ability and sense of high purpose. He never swerved from the even under the most trying circumstances. He was a delegate to the first Round Table Conference in London in 1930, crossing of the seas was an achievement which created a furor in the community. His political views are liberal. Patriotic in and outlook his speeches in essence the nationalization of India. He says round progress of India must remain our watch word. In 1939 he presented a motion to the Council of State.

As a Zamindar he is benevolent. To him the thousands of ryots are the same as those of the Zamindars. More than anything he is a friend of Indian National Congress. He has not concealed his views to Government should come to terms with Congress.

I have taken much space today about the Maharajadhiraja of Darbhanga. In my opinion he deserves it.

In total the City has 37665 literate men and 17,396 literate women

The literates form about 36 per cent of the population.

Among Hindus about 36 per cent are literate while about 34 and 51 per cents are literates among the Muhammadans and Christians respectively.

About 68 per cent is the literacy among the Brahmins.

IMPORTS & EXPORTS

A. P. New Delhi, March 6. India's imports as well as exports for January—latest month for which figures available—showed increase over previous month but decreased to that of January last year. Imports for the month valued at Rs. 14 crores 71 lakhs being increase of 3 crores over January last year while exports totalled 21 crores 43 lakhs, about 4 crores more than December but 3 crores less than January last year.

TANK RESTORATION WORK

Bangalore, March 6. The problem of providing water facilities to the rural areas tackled methodically by the Government, year after year, repairing and restoring tanks in suitable places in Mysore State. About 235 major and minor tanks were attended to in a manner in 1939-40 at a cost of nearly Rs. 2,60,000. As many as 1,500 major tanks and 1,200 minor tanks were expected by the Deputy Commissioner and the Sub Divisional Officers. A triennial programme of restoration of major and minor tanks has been recently approved by the Government and the question of speeding up the restoration of tanks is under the attention of Government.

It is officially commended London that relations between Britain and Bulgaria have been broken off.

C-IN-C'S SPIRITED SPEECH

Elders Debate Army Expansion

A.P. New Delhi, March 6

Opening the debate on his resolution recommending "additional forces required to expand the army which had hitherto been recruited from few classes and areas only to be in future raised from all classes and Provinces in adequate numbers" Pandit H. N. Kunzru traced the history of Indian Army from time to time when a Committee known as the Simla Organisation Committee recommended that a mixed system should be given in the Bengal Army and that recruitment should be based on class system.

Pandit Kunzru said the result of resorting to class system of recruitment was that recruitment was confined more and more to certain areas. He quoted figures to show that recruitment at present carried on in connection with expansion of forces was on the same basis on which the main army was recruited. "If India is to be a Dominion," declared Pandit Kunzru, "the British Government should evolve such a policy as would enable all the Provinces to take part in defences. We are becoming responsible for the maintenance and integrity of our country. Is it not necessary that the area of recruitment should be widened? Caste system is breaking down throughout the country. Why not in the army?"

C-IN-C's Resolution

If E. Commander-in-Chief moved the following resolution: "This Council, while recognising that to begin with the army should be most speedily expanded only on the existing basis of recruitment, recommends to the Governor General-in-Council that the Army authorities should now review sources of man power throughout the country and should include 20 class or area from consideration for recruitment in the formation of new units."

No War Near India

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief briefly reviewed the existing situation and the view in which that situation had come about. He said: "For the last eighty years or so there has been war no worth the name civil or otherwise, within the frontiers of India proper. At the present time there were three distinct armies in India, namely, Bombay, Madras and Bengal. Cession of armed state in the country itself and the removal of war and the threat of war in north-western provinces resulted to some extent in rusting of the two southern armies, particularly perhaps the Madras army.

Opportunities Made Use Of

Proceeding he said that a large-scale conversion of Madras into Punjabi regiments was carried out by Lord Kitchner and he had considerable justification for his action. Soldiers of Northern India made the fullest use of the opportunities offered thus. India owes them great debt.

Class Composition

Sir Claude Auchinleck continued that in spite however of greater opportunities for service and training afforded to men of youth, the war of 1914-18 very clearly showed that many of the older, but by that time less well-known classes, had by no means lost their spirit. In the war of 1914-18 expansion generally followed the lines of existing class composition. Class composition at the beginning of this war did not differ very much from what it was in 1914. It soon became obvious in India as in other parts of the Commonwealth that a speedy and vast expansion of armed forces would be necessary.

The Running Order

His Excellency drew the attention of the House to technical and complicated process of expanding and raising of Army. A modern unit was a complicated and intricate fighting machine which took months to put together in running order. His Excellency cited the example of the Indian Military Academy, Dehradun, as an outstanding example of modification of class system recruitment and said the abolition of class exclusiveness among rank and file had also been made in the Royal Indian Navy and the Indian Air Force, but these services however, important as they were, were relatively small forces compared to the Indian army which moreover had traditions of its own in attempting to change and to introduce radical alterations in the middle of the war would be a hazardous experiment. In theory the common system of enlistment, irrespective of caste and creed, was undoubtedly much to be recommended, but for the moment they should build on what they knew to be a firm foundation.

His Personal View

H. E. the Commander-in-Chief continued "It is for these reasons that the expansion of the army followed traditional lines and consisted largely but by no means altogether in duplication of existing units of regular army and many additional men from classes already enlisted in the army.

But the progress made in enlistment of other classes H. E. the Commander-in-Chief instances first Bengali unit battery of heavy artillery which he saw last week during his tour of Bengal and Bihar and which was charged with the task of defending most important posts of our coastline. Also territorial force battalions of the Hyderabad regiment which enlisted solely from the province of Bihar.

Commander-in-Chief said he had also seen Madras Territorial Battalion. In this connection he said: "Since the war began the strength of Madras army had risen from something like four thousand to well over ten thousand beings which is till further increased at a rapid rate. Same process was proceeding with respect to other classes but it was also a slow process because there was no established units wherefrom nucleus of the Viceroy Commissioned Officers can be drawn. They must therefore be drawn from other classes and retained with newly raised units until these can find their own junior leader.

His Excellency announced that he had already issued instructions that Old Madras Regiment which finally disappeared in 1926 be revived and restored to its rightful place in the army. First Battalion of this regiment to be raised forthwith. I hope before long to be able to ensure permanent representation of other provinces hitherto not mentioned in army list in the same way.

Sir A. P. Patro Welcomes

Sir A. P. Patro welcomed the announcement of the Commander-in-Chief about revival of the Madras regiment. Nawab Zakhurhid Ali Khan said Punjab had no objection to recruitment from other provinces but hoped that the present strength of the Punjab army in the defence force would be maintained. He supported the Commander-in-Chief's amendment. He said from the point of view of post war reconstruction Commander-in-Chief's pronouncement was a distinct advance on the past attitude of the Defence Department.

The Hon'ble Mr. V. V. Khali- kar urged His Excellency to give effect to the policy he enunciated to-day as early as possible. Lieut Col Sir Hissamuddin said Commander-in-Chief's announcement would have far reaching effects.

Sir David Devadoss said that the Commander-in-Chief's assurance amply fulfilled the purpose wherefor resolution was moved. Rai Bahadur Lala Ramaswami had full sympathy with the view that all provinces should have equal opportunities in recruitment but emphasised in doing so that the efficiency should not suffer. Mr. Hassan Imam supporting the amendment wanted that Bengal should also have a battalion of its own as Madras was having now.

Mover's Reply

Pandit Kunzru replying to the debate said that the very fact that the C-in-C tabled an amendment made it clear that he meant to do something and that he wanted to take legislature with him and unite India in the prosecution of the war.

Replying to Pandit Kunzru Sir Auchinleck said Ratings to Royal Indian Navy at one time were recruited exclusively from sea-faring folk on the west coast of India. Finding sufficient supply of recruits possessing the requisite educational and physical qualifications not forthcoming from this source recourse had to be made in the Punjab for some time for recruitment mainly from that area. For the last year however recruitment had been from the whole of India and the proportion of ratings from the Punjab at present was fifty per cent.

Winding up the debate C-in-C said there was certain amount of misapprehension in the minds of certain members who had suggested that by recruitment in all provinces there would be even distribution of military expenditure. He explained that a very small part of military expenditure went to men in the form of salaries. Most of the money was spent on equipment of ammunition and clothing. This money was being spent in factories situated all over the country. He emphasised that his primary task was to get on with the war and that before he did anything which altered existing organisation or arrangement he must think about it very carefully. He assured the house that he would give every possible consideration to suggestions made by members. Resolution was thereupon withdrawn and the Commander-in-Chief's motion passed. The House adjourned till 10th March.

SIKANDER'S WARNING TO THE COUNTRY

Lahore, March, 7
The policy of the Punjab Government regarding recruitment in services was explained in a speech by Sir Sir Hyat Khan, Punjab Assembly. After giving the figures for various provinces in the Province, Sir Sikander said, taking consideration all gazetted positions in the Province, 40 per cent of Muslims was forty per cent, Hindus 36.2 per cent, Sikhs 19.6 per cent, Hindu Muslims 9 per cent and the rest went to non-agriculturists. The Premier assured that in future recruitment share would be given to agriculturist Hindus.

SIR TEJ ON BOMBAY CONFERENCE

Not Going To Find Panacea
A.P. Calcutta, March 7
The present interminable controversies are going to end in disaster and I feel we are very near that disaster said Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru speaking on the present political situation in India at a tea party given in his honour by Indian Association this evening. He said he felt that for the last 20 years their greatest contribution to the growth of India has been chaos and not constructive work. He added we have got to see things as they are and adjust ourselves to our conditions. I am most anxious that there should be an end to their controversies in our life and we must begin to settle down to constructive work leaving perfection to follow its own course. He emphasised that time had come when they must realise their responsibilities and should not hesitate to put up their demands on a broad basis. Referring to the coming Bombay Conference Sir Tej said it was not going to find a panacea for our countrymen. If the conference does not lead to any good result we shall have the satisfaction that we have one more failure to add to many other failures in the past. He urged that the time had come when each one should ask what was going to happen to this country and not to any particular community.

GANDHIJI AND STUDENTS FEDERATION

(From our own correspondent)
Allahabad, March. 1
Mr. T. K. Chaturvedi convenor U. P. Students Federation popularly known as the communist section, has submitted a memorandum to Mahatma Gandhi regarding students federation controversy.
The Memorandum says that Mahatma Gandhi had recognised the federation of which Mr. M. L. Shah is the General Secretary. This had naturally caused serious misunderstanding amongst students. He however believed that this rumour was false.
Mr. Chaturvedi contended that his section was prepared to abide by the democratic vote of the students. He also requested formation of a committee of five having two representatives from each sides to scrutinise Membership of the federation. After due scrutiny election should be held.
Not only this but his section was prepared to accept any plan by which the democratic vote of students was taken.
He stated they were not opposed to the present struggle as it was fighting imperialism. They loved the Congress as much as any other party.
He also refuted the charge that they were communists.

THE BOMBAY CONFERENCE

There is much speculation in the country as to the outcome of the Conference of political leaders that would be held in Bombay next week. The political leaders that take part in that Conference are noted men with great service to their credit. The President of the Conference, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru is a tireless worker in the cause of the nation. Though he is not of the Congress and in the Congress, Congressmen in general, have high respect for him. Mahatma Gandhi speaking of him in his latest statement said, "Sir Tej Bahadur is anxious to end the present deadlock. He would give anything to bring about Hindu-Muslim Unity. He ascribes no overmuch capacity for being about unity." This clearly shows how deep the friendship between Sir Sapru and Mahatma is.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru in his recent speech at Calcutta speaking about the Bombay Conference said "It was not going to find a panacea for our country men. If the Conference does not lead to any good result we shall have the satisfaction that we have one more failure to add to many other failures in the past". This shows the spirit with which Sir Sapru is going to conduct the proceedings of the Conference.

Though there is not much hope that anything surprising would result from this Conference this much can be said that there is an honest striving to improve the situation. The communal problem has been staring us in the face as ever. The antics of Mr. A. K. Fazal Huq, Premier of Bengal, have created disgust even in the minds of patient leaders like Sir N. N. Sircar. Sir N. N. Sircar went so far as to say "May we all earnestly request Mr. Fazal Huq to take leave and enjoy rest in a salubrious climate, until there is complete restoration of his mental equilibrium and the census battle is over. It is this course is not acceptable to him, then holding as he does his office during the Governor's pleasure, he should be relieved of the duties of his office, thus removing a continuing menace to the peace and tranquility of the Province of Bengal."

There are strong words but the situation in Bengal warrants them. And the Conference, His Excellency the Governor of Bengal is arranging on 14th instant unanimously grows how disgusted the people are with the present Ministry.

It is a pity that Mr. M. A.

Mysore, March 7. Two functions took place today at the Sri Choudhry Ashram Setty Free Boarding Hostel in Dodpet.

The portrait of Mahatma Gandhi was unveiled in the morning by Srimati B. Kameswaramma.

Mr. T. Mariappa, Municipal Vice-president presided. Mr. Changanaray Reddy and a number of local Congress leaders were present.

Both Srimati Kameswaramma and Mr. T. Mariappa explained the Gandhian principles and appealed to the youth to follow them and thus serve the country.

In the evening the first Anniversary of the hostel was celebrated under the distinguished presidency of Mr. B. S. N. Chavanendrao, Municipal President.

Prof. C. R. Narasimha Sastry addressed the gathering.

Bhagini Seva Samaj

The prize distribution in connection with the literary and sports competitions held early during last month under the auspices of the Bhagini Seva Samaj, took place this evening.

Mrs. K. Gopalrao Urs presided.

BOMBAY GOVERNOR

A.P. Bombay, Mar 7. H.E. the Governor of Bombay and Lady Lumley proposed leaving Bombay on Tuesday next for a brief visit to Delhi. They expect to be back in Bombay on Monday the 17th March.

Jinnah is blindly accentuating the differences. He is doing a positive disservice to the Muslim community by thus egging them on against all peace and unity efforts. The way in which he meddled in the Sind politics shows that he is out for mischief. It is high time that patriotic Muslims assert themselves and throw out his leadership.

Regarding the political problem, the attitude of the Secretary of State of India leaves much to be desired. His thoughtless and indifferent utterances have more than provoked India. In these discouraging circumstances it is heartening to find that Mahatma Gandhi has issued a statement which gives scope for further understanding.

He is not against any settlement. He has clearly stated "I fail to understand the consternation created by my statement that there can be no settlement short of Independence during the pendency of the war." He also stated "It is a gross misrepresentation to suggest that the Congress is out for securing terms for itself. Freedom of speech is for all even as Independence will be for all."

Our Delhi correspondent has wired to us that optimism prevails in the lobby circles in the matter of this Conference. Gandhi's statement has produced cheer. In view of the tense war situation it is expected that the Secretary of State and the Viceroy would reciprocate the feelings of those who are organising the Conference. Let us wait and watch.

APPOINT A FULL TIME FOOD CONTROLLER

PROFITEER HAS A FREE RUN

(T. L. A. Acharya)

I must return to this question of profiteering in prices of food-stuffs and administrative control. I hear the Secretariat is terribly agitated and communicates are in the painful throes of drafting. There is talk of price control but prices remain comfortably unaffected by threats of control and are behaving like rockets. Food control committees are meeting and dispersing but profiteer Judas is having a fine field day. The year of grace, 1941 A.B. (After Blitzkrieg) has become worse than 1940 A.B. and people are wondering what 1942 has in its womb for them. What with Japan, set on her yellow "civilising" mission and intent on promoting "incidents," Germany riding a new wave in the Balkans, Russia sitting alert and sphinx-like, even God does not know how long this war will last. If an army marches on its stomach, so do the non-combatants, the non-combatants have to feed the army and feed themselves, feed themselves to be able to feed the army.

Among the host of evils released by war, profiteering takes an honourable place. There really need be no scarcity save in gun-powder, gunny bags and bachelors in war-time. But scarcity in other things is engineered and prices are made to bloat up artificially. That is why even the freest of free democracies has to play the totalitarian game when it has a war on hand. Without State interference and drastic regulations, profiteering would become a veritable plague. And in a land of chronic malnutrition, profiteering in food-stuffs is just catastrophic.

See how crazy the position is! Fancy asafetida and brooms selling high. Britain has not gone asafetida-mad and the Italian prisoners will not take to it kindly. Surely the war is not being fought with brooms. Take the case of rice. Indian humanity's staple food. A bag of Nellore rice sold at Rs. 18-12-0 in Jan is now priced at Rs. 23. I can understand bad Burma rice going up in price because of the increase in duty. The Finance Member of the Government of India exercised his tortured mind and added a little more to the excise duty on matches. Even Prometheus who gave the world fire has to pay a big price and buy a box of matches, for his fire is imprisoned in the sulphur tipped end of the match stick. I can understand all this. But why on earth rice? We have had a very good paddy crop in Mysore this year. My grocer told me that some body had agreed to supply 25,000 bags of rice at Rs. 25 per bag to the Military Department. Because somebody is fool enough to pay a big price, why should I become his scape-goat? My grocer who is a small man like me also told me that the Mundi people had a way of circumventing the most rigorous administrative

I had gone on a private visit to Seringapatam. Many have been my visits to that ancient and historic town. I have spent my boyhood days sitting idly on the banks of the Cauvery and looking at the ruined fort. Even today my feeling towards Seringapatam is inexpressible. There is something great, something mysterious about it. History may give us some facts but the vision of Seringapatam can be found only in a man's contemplative mind.

The river Cauvery has been flowing as ever. The stream seems to say "men may come and men may go, but I go on for ever." It also seems to say "on my banks have ruled Vijayanagar Kings, Wadiyars, Hyder and Tippu. They have all come and gone but I go on for ever. Until yesterday Sri Krishnaraja Wadiyar the IV ruled over these banks and today young Sri Jayachamaraja Wadiyar rules over them. But I go on as ever streaming over the rocky bed."

When one sits on the banks of the Cauvery at Seringapatam and silently muses over the continuous flow of the stream and the gentle murmur of the waters, one partakes of the nature of the stream. Nature alone seems to hold imperishable sway and man's work is marked with ruin and the most wide-awake vigilance.

One thing is certain; there is no peace in Bangalore's kitchens now. You may say I should not talk of peace in times of war. I tell you the world will not see lasting peace till unbroken and unbreakable peace reigns in all the kitchens in the world.

Talking of rice, I must let you into the secret of a conversation I overheard the other day. The rumblings born of his profiteering racket seem to have penetrated the formidable walls of Bangalore's Central Jail. I must tell you that, at least five days in a week, I use the Palace Road to get to my place of work. You will find me on that road somewhere between 7-30 and 8-30 a.m. You will also find a work party of prisoners from the Central Jail on that road and just at that hour. I have observed that jail functionaries, who shepherd the work party, are quite friendly souls and allow quite a good amount of latitude to the prisoners. The conversation along the road is quite free and unhindered. The occasion, I have in mind, was a conversational debate with regard to the soaring price of rice. I am terribly tempted to give an account of the whole debate but I will not. There was general agreement that, before long, rice would sell at 2 seers a rupee. The finale of the debate was dramatic: two of the warders said that they would commit some crime and join the ranks of the flock they now tended, for as one said, even if rice came to be sold at a rupee a seer, the Government would feed its prisoners. The whole assembly thought it was a good joke and let out a huge guffaw in a two-minute chorus. It was infectious and I joined in.

and desolation. As if the achievements and the force of nature, the stand side by side. Ranganatha seems to be quite unconcerned about passing of man's work. There is an undying calm in that of that figure akin to the ingness of the stream of Lord Sri Ranganatha like an unconcerned with mundane transitory things.

Coming to the solid under my feet, I cast a moment look at the memorial tank, the place where the British seemed to have achieved a breach of the Fort. Take any number of names of a tablet but not one single name, as if there was no hero or valour shown by him. This is a sad commentary. Those who set up that there. It looks like a glorious thing perpetuated that vain glorious man. Wellington. A day may when people would recall the question of that tablet.

As a contrast to this, the so called Watergate, on the wall there is a neglected reminding of the fall of pointing to the locality. There are some thoughts that through my mind in my visit. I have something to write on another occasion.

Clearly, it is a case for action to scotch profiteering. We cannot let anti-social manipulation of prices of essentials of existence have free sway. Not being a professional administrator, I cannot how action should be taken. I can only say, like the Duke of Windsor before he became simple Duke, that "Something must be done." That something must happen immediately. I do not know what the Government has been planning to do. I suggest a full-time Food Controller with executive and control powers. One of the civilians, with a knowledge of economics, will come in. We must have a full-time controller because the trouble is in the Mysore State it involves long range thinking, stocking of materials. In a matter like this, non-co-operation will be a full measure. The Controller may be given a commission. What should be forthwith is price-fixing. Price lists must be made and all shops must be compelled to exhibit the lists prominently for the benefit of the people. The newspapers must display the price lists. The administration must do to do something more. In the two major cities, bigger towns, Government owned food stores should be opened. A Government food store will have the most effective control check on the profiteering dealer. A start could be taken with Bangalore for the most urgent and the biggest assemblage in the State.

The Government here and now

A press communique issued states, the Government of Bengal have for sometime viewed with increasing concern the deterioration in communal situation in the province. H.E. the Governor was long sharing with this concern and after consulting the Premier and his colleagues he has decided to summon a conference of parties in both the Houses of the Legislature for discussion of the political situation. Invitations have been issued for the conference to be held at Government House on March 10.

CENTRAL ASSEMBLY

CUT MOTIONS ON THE BUDGET

MR. ANEY'S PLEA FOR BETTER UNDERSTANDING WITH POLITICAL LEADERS

War Propaganda Efforts Discussed A.P. New Delhi, March 7

Mr. W. M. Yeats, Census Commissioner emphasised that no census in any country could rise above the level of the people of that country. The basis of any census record was a statement by citizens themselves and broadly speaking the quality of the census depended upon the attitude of the citizens. What he felt was that the general attitude of citizens in India was sound. He had great respect for Indian enumerators who were engaged in the work of the great social significance without any remuneration. But for him the cost of the census in India would have been enormously greater than Rs. 50 lakhs which is now spent on it. India he said had reached a very advanced position, one more advanced than those countries which were considered as leading us. He explained the details of the census organisation and pointed out that the work of enumeration has been made as open to check and scrutiny as possible. The Muslim League Party's motion was talked out.

The European Group's first cut motion was moved by Mr. Chapman Mortimer who discussed the financial policy with special reference to war finance.

Rise In Prices

Dr. Ziauddin reiterated his complaint that the greatest sinner in the matter of initiating rise in prices in India was the Supply Department and declared that fullest powers be given to the District Magistrate to regulate prices. He suggested that a straightforward war tax be levied on users of different forms of communications in the country.

Mr. Kazmi without claiming to speak on behalf of any organisation declared that Government's present policy had been accepted by no party in the country.

Understanding Needed

Mr. M. S. Aney emphasised the need for a strong body of opinion in support of war efforts and said it was better to concentrate on their efforts such as to bring about understanding in the country among various schools of political thought though it might be possible for the Government to make two people to make a combined effort to win war which was the matter of a common interest.

Finance Member's Reply

Sir Jeremy Bentham replied Mr. Aney's point that this was not the time for spectacular payment of debt. He explained that India was acquiring large resources in sterling by selling to His Majesty's Government large amounts of material and goods. These resources would not be available for expenditure in India except either to repay debt or purchase goods from abroad. Fortunately the adjustment position was ready at hand, in fact we had considerable amount of external debt to repay.

Referring to Government's taxation policy Sir Raisen explained the Government's expenditure increased the national income also increased. In an ideally perfect system of taxation they ought to be able to recover for the Treasury an ever-growing sum as the Treasury expenditure increased. That was, what was happening even in India where they had an imperfect tax system. Referring to the criticism of past sins of the present Government in the matter of war preparedness, Finance Member considered the question went to the root of moral position in this war. While Hitler was preparing for war five or six years ago it was the opinion of millions of people that nothing should be done on our side to precipitate an outbreak of war. The enemy got mechanical and technical advantage. Even in the matter of other industries than military equipment, they could not have been prepared to deal with the situation as it existed today unless they pursued a bad peace-time policy. Peace-time policy which would have left them in good position in war would have consisted in subsidising highly economic forms of production. In times of peace, there was no off take or regular demand for products in heavy industries whose cost was heavy and maintaining those heavy industries would have fallen on the tax-payer. The Finance Member refuted the allegation that Supply Department initiated the rise in price by 25 per cent. On the contrary, Supply Department widely criticised that the ground prices fixed thereby were too low.

War Propaganda

A spirited plea for more energy drive and more money for War Propaganda was made by Mr. Griffiths moving the next cut motion. He said Government of India had not yet begun to treat propaganda with seriousness it deserved. Neither the provincial nor the Central Government accepted propaganda as a vital weapon of modern warfare, second only to defence. He said the sum of fourteenth lakhs which the Government of India was spending on propaganda was hopelessly inadequate. He appealed to the Finance Member to consider seriously the need for making greater provision for propaganda purposes. He also

Muhurt of 'Mahatma Vidur'

The Muhurt of Mahatma Vidur was celebrated on Friday the 28th February 1941, at the circo studios. Vishnupant Pagnis looked inspiring in his make-up as Vidur, and in the small interior set where the first shot was taken, Director Gunjal managed to secure an excellent set-up. Under the musical direction of K. C. Dey, Pagnis recited a sloka. After tea, the function came to a close.

Sikander

Mr. Sohrah Modi is busy with 'Sikander.'

Gigantic sets have been erected at the Minerva Studios and the costumes are prepared with meticulous care. Mr. Modi hopes to make this a better one than his unforgettable 'Pukar.'

'Radhika'

'Radhika' was passed by the censors and was released at the Pathe Cinema on 1st of March.

Bravo Billimoria!

Last Tuesday a lady named Lakshmbai Parulkar was strolling along the Appolo Bunder. Suddenly she felt dizzy and unconsciously slipped in to the sea. Mr. D. Billimoria, who happened to be in the vicinity rushed to her rescue. His pluck was responsible in saving the woman from a watery grave. Bravo Billimoria!

Raj Nartaki

The Bengali version of 'Raj Nartaki' will be released at the 'Uttara' Cinema, Calcutta today.

'Padosi' Maintains its Popularity
Now in its 7th week, Prabhat's 'Padosi' is maintaining its popularity. The picture grossed over Rs. 50,000 in the first four weeks in Bombay.

Praise for 'Nartaki'

New Theatre's latest production "Nartaki" seems to have suggested methods for improving.

Home Members Reply

Sir Reginald Maxwell, Home Member, explained the propaganda wherefor Government of India was providing finance, was only the Central aspect of the question. Propaganda was essentially Provincial subject and stimulus in provinces had gone very far. He explained the working of Propaganda Department which was manned by the best experts which Government could get together though he agreed there was scope for improvement by associating non-officials with the Board of Information. That he was prepared to take up. He concluded with the assurance that the Government of India would be glad to give more funds for propaganda purposes.

The cut motion was withdrawn and the House adjourned till Monday.

taken a certain section of picture goers by storm and appreciation. 'Nartaki' is the best picture of 1940 and a kick to Babu Rao Patel. It would be more powerful a kick if the true and honest journalists of the Indian industry combine and give it their price under the banner of their Association.

Bimal Gupta of A. M. College Mymen Singh writes:

"For a long time I never enjoyed such film like N. T.'s 'Nartaki'. The story and its final climax are beautifully worked out on the screen. Lila Desai, Najam and Jagadis have portrayed their respective roles very nicely. The dance recitals by Lila Desai give the audience excessive joy. The back ground music by Panjag Mullick is very high class.

Khemani Prem of Karachi writes:

"Really it gives me pleasure to note that New Theatres, after a long series of flops, have again begun regaining their standard of pictures. Their 'Nartaki' fully justifies the remark 'Nartaki' being original in conception and novel in treatment is wonderful treat. It is a typical N. T. production with D. K. B. touch throughout and provides much food for thought. Debaki Bose's Direction and Scenerio are simply superb. The man who does not like it is either biased and prejudiced against the N. T. or he has no sense of judgement.

Current Picture Comments

"Banthan" At Prabhat, which is in 13th week from to-day has broken all the previous records of Hindi Pictures. It is likely to be withdrawn after this week and 'Narsi Bhagat' is to be released from 15th March.

The release of "Har-Ject" will be postponed for a considerably long time.

The next picture after "Narsi Bhagat" will be N.T.'s latest "Nartaki" let us all await the grand release of the Picture.

It is understood that "Raj Nartaki" is also booked by the Prabhat.

Pictures At Bombay

'Bandhan' at Roxy enters 31st week from to-day.

'Nartaki' and 'Punarmilan' both enter into their 12th week of run at Minerva and Majestic respectively.

'Narsi Bhagat' is likely to be withdrawn shortly which is now in its 26th week at Krishna Theatre.

'Fodosi' at Central, 'Raj Nartaki' at Opera, 'Madhusudan' at Imperial are more popular. While 'Pardesi' at Lamington is fresh.

'Radhika' at Pathe and 'Ghar Jawai' at New Westend are yet to begin their accounts.

MADRAS MARKET

Budget Speech and After
(From our correspondent)

Madras Market
The following weekly review is issued by Messrs. Kothari & Sons.

During the period under review the market conditions prevailed in the Madras market. The Budget speech of the Finance Minister, announcing an increase in Excess Profits Tax, was a surprise, but had no depressing effect on the market. There was a moderate and steady movement and speculative enquiries were not very active. The stock market appears to have discounted the word of the Budget. Cotton Mills and Flax shares were active and a large volume of business was possible. The market was quiet. Sugars were also quiet.

UNITED STATES DOLLAR SECURITIES

Government Of India Circular

A. P. New Delhi, March, 10
A notification has been issued today by the Government of India vesting certain United States dollar securities among those a return of which was called for in July last. The owners of such securities are required to make immediate arrangements to surrender them whether personally or through the medium of their bankers or stock brokers to the Reserve Bank in a negotiable form within a period of one month from the date of issue of vesting order.
The payment will be made by the Reserve Bank when it is satisfied that the securities have been delivered in an acceptable form in the place notified by it.
The payment is expected to be made by May 26th, 1941 and allowance has been made in prices specified in the schedule attached to the vesting order for delay involved in payment. All dividends that may be received on securities from the date of vesting order are the property of the Central Government and holders of securities will be required to refund to the Reserve Bank the value of any dividend paid or interest received by them between that day and the date on which the securities were transferred to the name of the Government. In order to ensure this the Reserve Bank will have the right to retain an amount sufficient to cover the value of dividends pending refund by holder unless the payee submits to the Bank a letter of undertaking from his own Bankers agreeing to refund amounts of such dividends.
It should not be reservation of seats on communal basis nor should there be separate electo-rates.

THE COMMUNAL SITUATION IN BENGAL

That the communal situation in Bengal is deteriorating and Mr. Fazlul Haq, Premier, is adding fuel to fire is more than proved by the facts disclosed so far. It was a wise move on the part of the Government. His Excellency Sir John Herbert to hold a conference of all parties on the 10th. The Bengal Government under the control of Mr. Fazlul Haq, is perpetrating one injustice on another, against the Hindu community. Sir N. N. Sircar, Ex-Law Member of Government of India, severely condemned in a public meeting in Calcutta, the antics of Mr. Haq and his colleagues. He advised Mr. Haq to resign and if he has no inclination to resign he requested the Governor to dismiss him. A gentleman like Sir N. N. Sircar would not go to this length unless the situation is very bad. About the census Mr. Haq has really gone mad. Otherwise he would not have indulged in the following outburst:

"What else would happen when lawyers, scientists, professors, lecturers, landlords, merchants, Brahmins, and non-Brahmins and all the medley castes and sub-castes have combined to tell lies and make false statements in order to inflame their figures? What better can I expect when I find men who have spent their whole life in the teaching of the youth making false statements with out the slightest qualm of conscience and indulging in the orgy of chicanery, perjury and falsehood, in order to defile the Muslim position?"

Does Mr. Fazlul Haq understand the meaning of what he has said? He has labelled the whole community, the Hindu community. Should this sort of thing be allowed we ask. Have not the things gone too far in Bengal to tolerate any further? Poor Lord Macaulay pales into insignificance before Mr. Fazlul Haq. He has threatened the Hindus of Bengal in the following words: "If dishonesty succeeds in Bengal, as it has so often succeeded in the past, and a mockery of figures is put forth as the census of the population, I will decide definitely in favour of Pakistan. My friends will then see whether I succeed or not."

We express our strong condemnation on Mr. Haq. We deplore that an absolutely atrocious and needlessly provoking and annoying personality is at the head of a responsible Government. It is a calamity to Bengal. We do not know how Bengal would get out of it. As Sir Mammabhantha Mukherjee said "Human patience has its limits and that patience of Hindus in Bengal has reached

GHASTLY MURDER

ARREST OF MOTOR-DRIVER

Love Intimacy Suspected

BANGALORE, March 10
A complaint has been received in the Police Court Police Station that one Balu, a motor driver employed in Race Course, was murdered on the night of 8th March in the house of Dr. (Miss) Albuquerque, Cenotaph Road.

On the information, the Police rushed to the spot. There they found the said Balu lying dead and a Christian woman (nurse) by name Puttamma who is working under Dr. Albuquerque was lying beside the dead person. It is said there were some slight animosities to the woman also. The dead person and the woman were found in the same bed.

Police held the inquest over the body of Balu and sent the body for Post-mortem examination.

In this connection one Syed Ahmed, motor driver who is also working under Dr. Albuquerque has been arrested by the Police. It is alleged that some blood-stained clothes which were in possession of him have been recovered by the Police.

It is suspected that both the murdered person and the person who is under arrest were loving the same woman and it is alleged that this has led to this unhappy incident.

Further investigation is proceeding.

RETURN OF DEPOSITS

Statement of Mysore Congress

BANGALORE, March 10
Mysore Congress Publicity Officer issues the following statement:

In connection with the return of deposits to the candidates whose notices of Candidature are rejected or who have not succeeded in the elections, though the Government seem to have issued instructions to return the deposits promptly, several Returning Officers in Kolar District are refusing to pay back the deposits. One of the excuses put forward is that the Government circular does not clearly apply to defeated candidates. In some other cases, as for example in Goribidanur Taluk, where the deposit is made by a third party for the benefit of the candidate, the Returning Officer refused to return the money to the person who deposited the amount. It is indeed surprising that in spite of repeated complaints in the Press, the Government has not yet pulled up these Officers who ought to be warned not to harass the people.

The public are entitled to know what steps if any, Government have taken or propose to take to see that the Candidates get back their deposits promptly and without all this harassment.

PERSONAL

BANGALORE, Mar. 10
Mr. S. G. Forbes, Chief Electrical Engineer, returned yesterday from Nagpur.

Mr. N. Sureshboja, Chief Engineer returned from Nagpur yesterday.

Rao Bahadur M. Ramaswamy arrived from Mysore yesterday.

It is breaking point. Mr. Haq should be called back. We hope the Government of Bengal would be able to do it successfully.

CONTROL OF ALUMINIUM

A. P. New Delhi, Mar. 10

Early in January import control was applied to Aluminium in order to reduce pressure of demand upon world supplies of metal which was greatly in request for manufacture of aircraft etc. for use of allied and friendly Governments, states a press note.

"In order to secure that the existing stocks in the country of unmanufactured and semi-manufactured aluminium are utilised to the best advantage, the Central Government have now decided to assume control over sale of such aluminium and over its use in any manufacturing process. Orders have been issued under the Defence of India Rules giving effect to this decision and also calling on all holders of stocks of metal to submit returns of their stocks not later than 31st March and thereafter on the last day of each month. The Commerce Department is in charge of these arrangements."

A PUFF OF SMOKE

The long awaited and the most highly advertised "Sakuntala" is being shown in Bangalore. Record houses have been witnessing this show. If one passes through "the Sagar" in the evening he is amazed at the crowd gathered there. Mrs. M. S. Subbalaakshmi's music is celestial and people would like to hear it again and again. That sweetness and charm of voice is not found elsewhere. I cannot say that the acting was perfect but people gathered there to see their favourite 'Star' Subbalaakshmi in the role of "Sakuntala".

The drama of Sakuntala in Sanskrit as written by Kalidasa is the most superb of its kind in the world. Great Western Poets have lost themselves in admiration of Sakuntala. The German Poet Goethe has somewhere said there is nothing in other classics of the world that can equal Sakuntala in conception and form. I wish Mr. Masti Venkatesa Iyengar would write about Kalidasa as he has written about Valmiki and educate our people as to the splendour of that poet. Kalidasa's 'Sakuntala' is something of the nature of the Indian Himalayas, Indian Ganges, and Indian imperishable civilization.

The late Asthana Vidwan Karibasavappa Sastry who was called "Abhinava Kalidasa" rendered into Kannada, Kalidasa's Sakuntala. The late Sri Chamarajendra Wadiyar Bahadur, who was a great patron of art, literature and music encouraged a few talented actors to stage Karibasavappa Sastry's Sakuntala. It was a marvellous success. And on the Kannada stage no other play has equalled Sakuntala. For a long number of years a dramatic company called Sakuntala Karnataka Nataka Sabha staged this drama. Among the actors were the late Bidaram Krishnappa, Lakshminarayana Sastry, Belakavadi Srinivasa Iyengar, Rachappa, Subbanna, Chickarama Rao, Puttari Sastry, Krishnamurthy, Mani Rao, and several others. The late A.V. Varadachari also staged 'Sakuntala' several times. He used to assume the role of Dushyanta and Bodha Rao of Sakuntala. It was a very fine combination. I had seen in Madras when Chamarajendra's Company staged Sakuntala, houses were full and Rachappa's songs and Subbanna's acting drew much appreciation from spectators. I do not know why actors in Mysore have now ceased to stage Sakuntala. It is an immortal piece of work. It is as precious as anything that we hold dear in India. I wish the Sanskrit Colleges of Bangalore and Mysore, would make it a point to stage the most important Sanskrit Dramas like Sakuntala, Uttararamacharita, Malavikagnimitra, Venisamhara and several others, at least once a year and popularise them.

Coming back to Tamil Sakuntala staged on the screen, it would have liked a few Sanskrit Slokas of Kalidasa along the course of the play. I may also say that I do not like an Indian girls assuming the role of Vanadvates. On the whole there is ample scope for improvement.

The London 'Times' reporter are coming to me some time three months late. I received the issue of 7th December, 1940, on 9th March 1941. This is all due to war. Much of what appears in the paper looks stale to me. All the same there were one or two items of news which I thought would interest my readers. One to bomb have several buildings are now in ruins. And some criminals intend to make headlines the sun shines. They look what is remained of the ruined buildings.

The London 'Times' is sometimes full of reports of Criminal cases in this connection. Here I give two typical examples.

Harold Rachmally, aged 30, a radio dealer, George Jones, and Albert Edward Lockren, labourer, all of whom pleaded "Guilty" were sentenced at Birmingham Assizes on Thursday to five years' penal servitude for stealing £40 from the Birmingham market hall which had been destroyed by enemy action.

It was stated that Rachmally was a member of the A.F.S. and the other prisoners were in the employment of the Markets and Fairs' Committee. All men were of good character, Jones had a distinguished record of service in the last War, and had saved the life of his commanding officer, Colonel Ponsonby.

Children accused of looting were before the Coventry Juvenile Court yesterday. Among them was a 16-year-old London boy, who was remanded in custody for 14 days. It was stated that with two men he travelled by car from London to Coventry, and had looted over £60 worth of property from damaged buildings. The police had not been able to trace the boy's parents, who spent each night in air raid shelters.

A 13 years old girl admitted a number of cases of looting, and it was stated that she had taken much stolen property to her home. The girl's mother denied any knowledge of what was going on, but the Chairman (Mrs. J. Camp) said: "We feel that you have been encouraging this girl, and we do not believe that you did not know that stolen property was in your home. We only wish we could do something with you." The girl was bound over and her parents were ordered to pay £30 at the rate of 15s. a week.

Two boys, aged 13 and 14, admitted 13 cases of looting, meters in a damaged house, the sun involved being fined £10. One was sent to an industrial school, the case against the other was adjourned.

for 1941—42, Mr. Carles said that he anticipated an increase in income from principal sources next year, a total of Rs. 11,10,710 against Rs. 10,08,782 anticipated in the 1940-41 estimates for this year. The expenditure for this year's venture was estimated at Rs. 10,72,322 against Rs. 10,72,322.

delayed and a sum of Rs. 8,800 is provided on this account and for sanitary improvements to existing sweepers' accommodation. It is also proposed to pave the channel in Shoolay Tank at a cost of Rs. 4,500 a necessary improvement from the public health point of view in the neighbourhood. The necessity or otherwise of the construction

WAR FUND COLLECTION

Karaikudi, March 10.

A Record collection of about one and a half of lakhs of rupees for the war fund has been made by I.L.E. the Governor of Madras during his visit to Chettinad and Sivaganga.

The President in his address complained that the Hindus always had been trying to undermine the racial integrity of the aborigines and claimed that the Adibasi would call himself Hindu. He added that the would in future stick to the name "Adibasi". At the same time he asserted, the Adibasis could have nothing to do with Pakistan of any variety.

THE DISTRICT SCOUT COUNCIL. MYSORE CITY AREA

(From a correspondent)

A Rally of all the cub packs of Mysore City was held at the Rangacharu Memorial Hall, Mysore, yesterday evening (8-3-41). Mr. B. S. Raghavendra Rao, M.A., (Hons) president of the City Municipal Council, Mysore, was in the chair.

About six hundred cubs and cubmasters were present in uniform. The cubs assembled at 3-30 P. M. Competitions in (Grandhow) and singing of the Mysore National Anthem were held. Smartness and wearing of the correct uniform were also judged and prizes were awarded.

The Cubs of the St. Joseph's School Pack and the Ittigegud Middle School Packs stood first and second respectively in the Competition held for "The Grand Howl." The Cubs of the Hardwick Middle School Pack were declared as first in singing of the National Anthem where the Mandi Ahmadiya Urdu School Pack got the second place. In the Event "Smartness" the Ittigegud Middle School Pack got the first place and the D. Banniah's Middle School Pack got the second place. The Krishna Moorthypuram Pack and the Balabodhini Pri. School Packs were declared as first and second respectively in Wearing of the correct uniform.

The President went round and reviewed the various packs. The District Scout Commissioner, Rao Bahadur M. Ramaswamy, welcomed the President and the guests of the evening. Display of cub crafts, formed a very interesting part of the evening's function. Mr. F. C. Devaraj Urs then addressed the gathering and expressed his great delight at the efficiency of scouting in Mysore City and advised the young cubs to develop the civic virtues and learn the "Safety First methods" Mr. M. Yamunacharya of the Mysore University speaking next advised the young cubs to remember their motto and learn to be worthy citizens of the Model State. The President addressing the large gathering expressed his satisfaction at the way in which the function was arranged and pointed out how cleanliness and smartness were essential to make Good Citizens. He added that cubs of Mysore City should remember to be respectful to God and always have as their model, their Patron, His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore and try to maintain the level of scouting in Mysore City very high.

The District Scout Commissioner thanked the President and the guests for their sympathy and co-operation.

The Cubs enjoyed the sweets which were distributed in many printed cloth bags which they

MYSORE HIGH COURT

Revision Petition in Alleged Defamation Limited

Bangalore, March 10

In the Mysore High Court, Mr Justice Abdul Ghani dismissed a revision petition filed by Mr. Kapanaiya, against the sentence of fine of Rs. 30 imposed on the petitioner for alleged defamation under section 500 I.P.C. by the Special Magistrate of Kolar Gold Fields.

The complainant, Mr. Sivanjanje Gowda, alleged that his cousin brother, Kapanaiya, uttered defamatory words. The accused offered even to prove the veracity of his statement before the Panchayattee that was held in respect of this matter.

His Honour, in dismissing the petition by the accused, observed that if an interference was called for it should be on the ground that the learned Magistrate had either used the statement of the accused for proving the case for the prosecution or based his conviction solely on that statement of the accused. Both in Mysore and outside, it was recognised that the statement of an accused person could not be used to fill up gaps in the prosecution case and to base a conviction upon when there was no other evidence. In this case, His Honour held that the lower Court had not made improper use of the statement of the accused.

ALLEGED USING A FALSE MEASURE

Petitioners Acquitted

Bangalore, March 10.

"There is not enough evidence to suggest that the petitioner knew that the measure was false and if that was so he could not have intended to use it fraudulently." Thus observing, Mr. Justice Abdul Ghani, in the Mysore High Court, passed orders on a criminal revision petition filed Mr. Parameswarappa, against the sentence of fine of Rs. 10 each for two offences, namely, being in possession of a false measure and having used it fraudulently, acquitting the petitioner.

It was alleged that Mr. Parameswarappa used a measure that was less by 1/32 of the standard measure.

Mr. B. N. Devaraya appeared for the petitioner and Mr. A. S. Ramachandra Rao for Advocate-General.

President Roosevelt will be asking for a sanction of 10,000 million dollars for the three year programme for active aid to Britain under the Lease and Lend Bill.

The function came to a close with the singing of the National Anthem and cheers.

INDIA OF 1785-87

INDIAN RULERS' RIVALRY FOR BRITISH FRIENDSHIP

Calendar of Persian Correspondence

New Delhi, March, 8

Everybody who was anybody in India in 1785-87 finds a place in the crowded canvas presented by the Calendar of Persian Correspondence, Volume VII, just issued by the Imperial Records Department. The Calendar comprises 1,935 letters which passed between some of the East India Company's servants and Indian Rulers and notables. Historical personages flit across its pages in endless succession, the frequency of their appearance depending on their degree of intimacy with the British power in India.

Troubles of Pensioners

Here we meet the august pensioner, Nawab Mubarak-ud-Daulah, the Nazim of Bengal, complete with all the outward symbols of sovereignty but utterly devoid of real power. He is frankly unable to adjust himself to his changed circumstances and is weighed down by the burden of supporting a large and growing number of dependents. While his court is still ringing with the accounts of the pomp and splendour of his forbears he is deeply mortified that he must exercise the common prudence of an ordinary household even on occasions when tradition demands lavish expenditure.

He is worried that he cannot repair his house or celebrate the marriage of his daughter. He made repeated appeals, but in vain, to the Governor General for financial relief and also petitioned the Court of Directors to increase his allowance. He got a rebuff from the Governor General for having approached the Court of Directors direct and, as for relief, the Company itself was passing through a financial crisis at the time and could not afford to be more generous.

Crushing Military Burden

His neighbour, Nawab Asaf-ud-Daulah, was the ruler of the extensive territories of Oudh and nominally the Grand Vizier of the Emperor of Delhi. Surrounded by the warlike Sikhs and the ambitious Mahartas as he was, he had learnt to rely for the defence of his frontiers on the prowess of the English forces whose superiority had been proved time and again. Naturally he had to bear the costs also, which as time went on, became more and more irksome. In 1781 and 1784 Asaf-ud-Daulah had asked Warren Hastings to recall the English forces and again, when Lord Cornwallis arrived as Governor General, he made the same request. At last in 1787 his minister, Haider Beg Khan, concluded an agreement with Lord Cornwallis at Calcutta whereby the Nawab's subsidy to the Company was fixed at fifty lakhs of rupees a year and some of the arrears were remitted.

The Puppet Emperor

The central figure of the picture, King Shah Alam, is however, the most tragic. Nominally the head of a vast empire, he was in reality the plaything of every wind that blew. His name was exploited for political ends by unscrupulous adventurers and every aspirant to power at Delhi tried to play up the emperor's traditional rights to the fullest extent in order to further his own personal interests. But when the emperor was faced with the worst crisis of his life in 1787 everybody forsook him and he was left at the mercy of the cruel monster, Ghulam Qadir Khan.

Mahadaji Sindhia, who could have saved the situation, happened to be involved in serious difficulties himself at the time and could not come to the emperor's rescue. The Lalset campaign had just ended in his discomfiture owing to the defection of his mercenary forces on the eve of the battle and he was preoccupied with effecting a masterly retreat. His alliance with the English stood him in good stead at this juncture. Lord Cornwallis did not offer him armed assistance, but remained neutral and exercised a restraining influence on the Nawab Vizier and through him on the Gosains, Umraogir and Himmat Bahadur, and the Nawab Fazlullah Khan, Ruler of Rampur.

The Sikh Confederacy

In the Punjab the Sikhs appeared as a military power and the present volume records their activities of the different Sardars. Their combined cavalry is said to have been 30,000 strong. They formed themselves into predatory hordes and overran Saharanpur and Chandausi. At the same time they were eager and anxious to form an alliance with some established power and to lend their armed support to the ambitious chiefs who could pay an adequate price. Thus we find them carrying on negotiations with Mahadaji Sindhia, Raja of Jaipur, Jahandhar Shah, Ghulam Qadir and even the English. Their confederacy, however, was not so compact and there was mutual jealousy among them over the spoils.

Tipu Sultan

In the South, fighting broke out between Tipu Sultan and the Mahartas, who had certain financial claims on the former. Tipu was assisted by the French and the Nizam and the Mahartas made this out as a reason for claiming military aid from the English. But Lord Cornwallis, the then Governor General, was not to be swayed from the path of neutrality and the Mahartas went under.

MYSORE BANK

ELECTION DISPUTE

JUDGE ORDERS RE-COUNTING Plaintiff to Recover Costs From Defendants 1 to 3

Bangalore, March 10

In the Mysore Bank Election Dispute Case, judgment was delivered today by Mr. S. Ramachandra Sastri, A.A., Additional District and Sessions Judge, holding that the election of Messrs. Mirle Lakshminarasappa, and V. S. Tiruvengadasamy Modaliyar are illegal and invalid. He directed the election to be set aside. And he ordered a re-counting of votes in conformity with the opinion expressed by the court as regards the points on which the rulings were given by the Chairman in the following lines: (1) Proxies affixed with only Mysore stamps are enough, (2) The Ruling of the Chairman as regards revocation of proxies is correct and letters of revocation ought to have been taken into consideration, (3) With regard to attestations, the plea of plaintiff is upheld (that is two attestations).

In this case Mr. G. K. Modaliyar is the Plaintiff The Defendants are (1) Mysore Bank (2) Mr. Mirle Lakshminarasappa (3) Rao Saheb Tiruvengadasamy Madaliar and (4) Dewan Bahadur K. Mathan.

The Plaintiff will recover the costs of the suit from Defendants 1 to 3. As regards the cost of the 4th Defendant, the court observed that he was not made a party at the instance of the Plaintiff, though it may be stated that it was the act of a first Defendant that necessitated his being made a party to the suit. He cannot therefore be made to his costs from the first Defendant. The Judge therefore considered it a proper order that he should bear his own cost.

A preliminary decree will be drawn up and after recounting votes and determination of the results as to who are the successful candidates, a final decree will be drawn up. Meanwhile, the election will be issued as proxy for in the plaintiff.

Messrs. B. Vasudeva Murthy and M. L. Srikanthappa appeared for the plaintiff. Mr. M. L. Hussain appeared for the Defendant. Mr. Nittoor Srinivasa Rao for second Defendant. Mr. Ramachandran for the third Defendant. Mr. G. S. Doraiswamy for the fourth Defendant.

In the Mysore High Court, an alleged forgery case against Mr. Venkatarangam arguments were heard today. Judgment will be delivered tomorrow.

WORKING OF DEFENCE OF INDIA ACT

GOVERNMENT'S TREATMENT OF SATYAGRAHIS CRITICISED

MR. KAZMI'S CUT-MOTION RE: REPRESSIVE POLICY OF GOVERNMENT

Repressive Policy
New Delhi, March 10
Mr. Kazmi moving the next day's motion to discuss the "repressive policy." He declared, "Government is using immoral means to crush moral revolt. He went on to give instances where he alleged a satyagrahi aged 60 years had been sentenced six years already and Government had interfered with elections. This House by arresting the Congressmen who stood as candidates and releasing them after the elections were over, he referred to cases wherein satyagrahi prisoners had been put in fetters and handcuffs while being removed from one place to another.

Sir Raza Ali
Sir Raza Ali said as regards the Complaint made by the Government regarding difficulties faced in the way of the friends and relatives obtaining interviews with the satyagrahi prisoners the Congress Government had behaved no better than the Government of India. He said certain important Muslim prisoners. Sir Raza Ali went on to ask if there was any country world which was involved in war and the people were to preach anti-war slogans.

Defence Of Civil Liberties
Mr. N. M. Joshi supporting the motion declared that he was interested in the defence of civil liberties in the country. Even if the Congress Government attacked civil liberties he would continue them as he had in fact done. Mr. Joshi asked whether there was any democracy in the world which was involved in war without its Parliament being consulted. If Government were convinced that they were involved in war rightly and that they were right in involving Government's own interests to prevent public discussion.

Sardar Sant Singh
Sardar Sant Singh wanted to know how much Sikhs were suffering in the Punjab at the hands of the Unionist Government and said the repressive policy, whether it was of a Provincial Government or Central Government must be condemned. Defence of India Powers were placed in the hands of those who were incapable of exercising them. Therefore time had come that a committee should be appointed to survey the situation arising out of the working of the Defence of India Act.

Home Member's Reply
Sir Reginald Maxwell, Home Member, characterising the debate as a confusing discussion said that the object of Defence of India Act according to its preamble was to "provide for special measure to ensure public safety and interests and Defence of British India". Government were interpreting it in the highest interests of the country. The Defence of India Act was not primarily penal enactment but it recognised the fact that in time of war national emergency, the liberties of ordinary citizens had to be circumscribed in certain directions. The Home Member gave the assurance to the House that in all matters connected with the Defence of India Act, Government were fully conscious of their responsibility. Turning to conscientious objectors the Home Member said that no restrictions were placed on a person who held conscientious objection to war as such and he was even at liberty to profess views openly but a line had been drawn against any attempt to interfere with others who were willingly giving services to war.

Treatment of Satyagrahis
Sir Reginald next dealt with the treatment of Satyagrahis. He said the total number of persons actually undergoing imprisonment under all sections of the Defence of India rules on 1st February 1941 was 3004 in the whole of India. Of this number 2012 were convicted in connection with the civil disobedience movement. These were persons, said the Home Member, who actually invited the Government to arrest them. The Home Member next gave some cases in which Satyagrahis made it a grievance that they had not been arrested. The Home Member assured the House that no distinction had been made between Satyagrahis and other convicts in the matter of classification. All were being classified according to their status and mode of life before their arrest. The Government of India had informed the Provincial Governments that Satyagrahis were eligible for A class. He opposed the motion which was rejected.

MYSORE FLAG TO FLY ONLY BETWEEN SUNRISE AND SUNSET

Bangalore, March, 11
A Government notification says:—
As the Mysore Flag has been occasionally observed to have been left flying throughout the night, it is hereby published for general information, that on the occasions on which it is flown, the flag should be kept flying only between sunrise and sunset and lowered before sunset.

LETTER FROM VICEROY REACHES HINDU MAHA SABHA

Bombay, March, 11
The Working Committee of the All India Hindu Mahasabha resumed session today at the residence of Mr. Savarkar its President. It is learnt the awaited communication from the Viceroy reached Mr. Savarkar today and it will be placed before the Committee.

It is understood Dr. Varadarajulu Naidu, General Secretary, Mahasabha is proceeding shortly to see Gandhiji at Wardha.

ADJOURNMENT MOTION DISALLOWED

New Delhi, March 11
The President ruled out of order Mr. Kazim's adjournment motion in the Assembly this morning to discuss the detention in C class of Mr. Khwaja Khaleel Ahmed Shah Ex-M.L.C. United Provinces. The President stated it was left to the discretion of the local authorities to classify different prisoners according to the rules laid down by the Government of India.

Guillotine was applied at 5 p.m. and all demands were voted.
The House adjourned till to-morrow.

ALLEGED FORGERY CASE

HIGH COURT JUDGMENT

Committal Order Upheld

Bangalore, March, 11
In the Mysore High Court, the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Singaravelu Mudaliar delivered judgment holding that the committal order of the Special Magistrate who held the preliminary enquiry of the Mohanram Krishnamurthy Murder Case against Mr. S. K. Venkataranga Ayyangar, Advocate, in respect of alleged forgery of the will of the late Mr. K. Marudappa, was legal and valid, and dismissing the reference of the Bangalore Sessions Judge to the effect that the committal order against Mr. S. K. Venkataranga Ayyangar for offence of forgery under section 467 I. P. C. be quashed under section 215 Cr. P. C.

Their Honours observed that the assigned tract known as Bangalore Tract and Military Station was part of the Mysore territory and no extradition process was necessary, and therefore proviso under section 188 Cr. P. C. was not a bar for the prosecution of the case.

COST OF LIVING AND GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

Cut Motion in Central Assembly

New Delhi, March 10.
Mr. N. M. Joshi by a cut motion raised a debate on the grievances of Government employees with particular reference to the cost of living.

He said that some Government industrial workers had been put in the same category as employees in the private sector.

Mr. Joshi said that the Government should consider the grievances of these workers.

(By Wire)

New Delhi, Mar. 11
Several telegrams have been received from Bombay and elsewhere urging counterbalancing duty on imports of silk piece-goods side by side with the proposed increase in duty on imports of artificial silk yarn.

Finance Member is expected to make another statement on the subject in the course of debate on Finance Bill.

New Delhi, Mar. 11

The Legislative Assembly began the General debate on the Finance Bill today. Sir Yousuf Khan opening the debate complained there was no proper control over expenditure and that a trade in general was contracting in wealth and decreasing. He objected to increased surcharge in cinema bringing purveyance, incomes which had to meet increased cost of living. He suggested Finance Member should have shown luxury like cigarette instead of matches when cost had increased. He expressed Muslim League's disapproval with the Government's policy in trying to please the party which could not be pleased and ignoring another party which was ready and willing to cooperate. He said as a protest the Muslim League party will oppose the consideration of the Finance Bill.

BOMBAY GOVERNMENT AND COTTAGE INDUSTRIES

From a Press note that we have received we find an account of the work done by the Government of Bombay in the matter of the development of the various cottage industries. It was only after the Congress Ministry took up the work of organising cottage industries that the Bombay Industries Department paid any attention to it. The assistance that was given to cottage industries was at various stages—technical services, co-operative parties, technical advice and survey and experimental work. The handloom industry—the premier cottage industry of the province—was helped with cotton and wool weaving schools, and demonstration in order to train workers in the use of improved appliances and methods. Dyers and calico printers were assisted in the use of improved appliances. Six tanning demonstration parties which had begun work in the previous year continued and visited eleven centres. The department provided help in cane and bamboo work, lacquer work, and handicrafts, arts and crafts, pottery, sericulture and match making. Marketing of handloom products also received attention. The activities of technical and industrial schools were satisfactory. Loans to the value of Rs. 54,000 were granted as State aid to industry. Concessions were also given for the establishment of paper and bamboo pulp factories in Kanara. On the whole, some commendable work is reported by the department. It is a pity that nowhere in the report is any mention of the hand spinning and khaddar activities. The picture of cottage industries would not be complete without hand spinning and khadi in it. After all that is the basis of all cottage industries.

In this respect Mysore, stands ahead of the Bombay Presidency Government here have been encouraging steadily and progressively the khadi industry. The appointment of Cottage Industries Committee is a commendable step in this direction. We congratulate the Mysore Government on this step. We wish the Director of Industries would devote much greater attention to cottage industries in general and khadi in particular than heretofore.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Gruesome news comes from Conjeevaram of a terrible tragedy, at a village called Magral, where the wheels of the temple car got stuck up in a small ditch and the super structure tilted forward and toppled down killing five persons. Five others were injured. The occasion was of the festival of the temple car. What to comment on this? The people who were responsible for the car ought to have taken proper care. Even God cannot excuse those who disobey the laws of nature. God works through nature. And anyone who disobeys nature has to pay a heavy penalty.

This reminds me of an incident in Ramakrishna Paramahansa's life. One day it so happened that a disciple of his, thinking that he was himself Parabrhamha and there was no distinction between God and himself, while going in a street dashed against a bull. The bull toppled him over. The disciple came to the Paramahansa and complained that the bull did not care for the god in him. The Paramahansa smilingly said "well my boy, there is Paramatma residing even in that bull. Why did you not mind that Paramatma and leave the way for him? Though this looks like a joke there is truth in it. God is omnipresent, omnipotent and omniscient. But He works through Nature. Nature is his Prakriti and the true devotee would understand Prakriti, that is Nature and adjust himself to it. Simply because one is a devotee and he has dedicated his life to God, he cannot afford to ignore Nature and her Laws. The devotees of Conjeevaram ought to have taken all the care necessary to run the temple car in a sound condition. They ought to have taken into account the laws of equilibrium and centre of gravity. The true worship of God has to follow the laws of Nature.

People who believe in miracles might feel that there would be no difference between God and man if God also should adhere to Natural laws. This is a point which requires consideration. What is Nature, who is super Nature? Mankind has not yet been able to find the border line. Man has not yet investigated Nature fully. There is a good lot that he has yet to understand. With the limited knowledge of Nature that man possesses today he cannot say as far as no further to Nature. All the same, there are some well established truths which are as certain as Nature. The law of equilibrium is one such. The law of centre of gravity is as profound as the law of Vedanta. In our country, we should get rid of a large number of wrong notions regarding God and Nature. Nature is God, Nature and He works through it. Nature is God's Law. A. Mahatma Gandhi says the Law and the Law-giver are one.

I am sorry I have indulged in a bit of philosophy. But the occasion warrants it.

The "Times of India" gives an interesting item of news under C. P. Census.

Siddi Wastad, whose story was featured in The Times of India at the time of the last census, is still alive. An extract from the report on the last census says that in Nagpur he is generally supposed to have passed his 150th year. Although slightly deaf, eyesight seems to be unimpaired and he talks in a steatorian voice.

I wish the Census Superintendent of Mysore also would try to find out from his enumerators the number of people in our State who are centenarians. It would be a very interesting item of information. It would not be difficult for him to find it out.

R. and SIR SAPRU DID ANYTHING PASS BETWEEN THEM? PRESS REPORTS CONTRADICTED HOPE OF BOMBAY CONFERENCE

(From our own correspondent)
NEW DELHI, Mar. 10
Press reports have appeared in certain sections of the Press which are contradicted by authoritative quarters. It is stated in one message that Mr. K. Sreenivasan, a Bombay Papers that the reports were conveyed to Mr. K. Sreenivasan, a Hindu, from Mr. C. Rajagopalachari to Sir T. B. Sapru. The session contained in this message that Mr. C. Rajagopalachari has made certain proposals resolving the deadlock and sought the assistance of Sir T. B. Sapru as intermediary. The only report unfounded. The only report these speculative reports by interested parties have created a wrong impression is that Mr. Srinivasan and Mr. C. Rajagopalachari are in jail. It has also been reported in the same message that Sir Jagdish Prasad came to seek an opportunity to see the Viceroy and went away without. I understand Sir Jagdish Prasad was not unware that the Viceroy would be away from Delhi at the time. The fact of his visit was to meet the leaders here including Mahadev Desai, G. D. Birla and others and not the Viceroy. He would have called earlier after fixing the date. The fact is that Mr. K. Srinivasan, Editor, HINDU, has been trying to ascertain what can be done for ending the deadlock and in this connection has been meeting various leaders in order to decide the course of action. According to reports current here the Conference may not be the question of bringing Mr. Gandhi and Mr. Jinnah together or any thing of that kind. It will address itself first to the question of what the British Government should do to end the political deadlock by a statement promising the use of power at the end of similar measures.

BOMBAY LEADERS CONFERENCE

ARRANGEMENTS PROGRESSING

Objects Of The Conference

A. P. Bombay, March 10
More than 25 leaders are attending the Leaders Conference in Bombay on March 13. With the arrival of the Convener Sir Jagdish Prasad in Bombay, arrangements are progressing. Sir Jagdish told the press the objects of the conference were fourfold, namely to consider how the present deadlock could be broken, to suggest measures to make Central Government more popular in order to get popular support for the war, make proposals for industrialisation of the country during the war and postwar conditions and fourthly consider the question of defence of the country.

The conference will be held at 11 A. M. in the Princes Room Taj Mahal Hotel and the first day's proceedings are informal and are not open to the press.

On March 14 the conference will resume discussions which will be open to the press.

MAGNIFICENT PART PLAYED BY INDIAN TROOPS

Commander-in-Chief's Praise in Council of State

A. P. New Delhi, March 10
Personal tribute to the magnificent part the troops of India played in destroying the threat of Italian aggression in and from North Africa was paid by Sir Claude Auchinleck, Commander-in-Chief in the Council of State in the course of a written reply to a question by the Raja Yuvaraj Dutta Singh with regard to the prominent part played by Indian troops in Africa. His Excellency said "The Brigades and divisions comprising both British and Indian troops sent from this country, some of them far back as summer 1939, have shown and continue to show quality of training and fighting spirit second to none. They faced the enemy immensely superior in numbers and possessed at that time overwhelming superiority in air."

Never Flagged in Zeal

In conditions far from inspiring our troops never flagged in their zeal and as more and more equipment of the most modern type were supplied to them they were trained day after day with remarkable will and cheerfulness. The result is already history. Gen. Wavell was able despite numerical superiority of the enemy to take initiative with confidence and turn defence into attack.

North African campaign will go down in history as one of the greatest achievements of armies of the Commonwealth. British troops had the honour of dealing initial blow which shattered Italian threat to Egypt. In one of the most carefully planned battles of all time the Italians found themselves overwhelmed. After a short well-earned rest many units from India who played so decisive part at Sidi Barrani were rapidly transferred to the South where their experience in northwest frontier of this country would be of special value. Their appearance in Sudan was the signal for general onslaught on Italian East Africa."

Gen. Wavell's Message

Sir Auchinleck then read out the following message from Gen. Wavell: "As detailed information of fighting in Eritrea reaches me it confirms the magnificent performance of Indian troops at Agordat, Barentu and Keren. India may well be proud of these fine troops."

Sir Auchinleck continued: "It does not require much imagination to visualise the difficulties of overcoming the enemy fully equipped with all modern weapons of war and firmly established on mountain fastness with his own internal lines of communication. When added to this we realise that here again Italians possess numerical superiority, the attack which had driven them back through Eritrea to defences of Keren can be fully appreciated."

Air-Force

Sir Auchinleck proceeded to pay a tribute to air forces who

BENGAL ASSEMBLY

Taken Grant

A. P. Calcutta, Mar. 10
In the Bengal Assembly the Chief Minister presented the Government's budget for the current financial year. It is the first time since the formation of the Government that the Chief Minister has presented the budget in the Bengal Assembly. The budget is estimated to be Rs. 1,000 lakhs. The Chief Minister said that the Government is determined to carry out its policy of economic reconstruction and to bring about a new era of prosperity in Bengal.

The campaign in North Africa can well be described as one of the greatest achievements of the Commonwealth. Indian and British troops cracked the Italian forces at Sidi Barrani. British and Dominion troops swept the Italians from Eastern Libya and Sudan. Dominion troops led the van of British and Indian assault on Eritrea while South African forces swept the Italians north from Keren. It is already captured capital of Italian Somaliland. I also am proud to state that the Indian troops are giving invaluable support to the heroic activities of the patriotic forces of Abyssinia who are now harassing the enemy in the heart of that country."

Africa Not Battle Front

Continuing His Excellency reminded the House that Africa was not the battle front. The Royal Indian Navy performed an arduous and dangerous task of closest co-operation with the Royal Navy. "Then we have our troops in Malaya and the Far East who though not actually in the theatre of war, many of them are doing under active service conditions and enduring hardships and discomfort as well as separation from their relations and homes. Lastly let us remember that in actual practice now as always they carry their lives in their hands and can never relax vigilance. We should be thankful that we have such soldiers and airmen."

HANDLOOM INDUSTRY
IN MYSORE

It is a welcome feature of the times that some attention is paid to the age-long basic industries of India. Of these, the handloom industry is the most ancient, as well as the most respected. From pre-historic times this industry is being transmitted from generation to generation. So to say several families are hereditary weavers. Some great saintly figures like Kabir were weavers by profession. There is a certain amount of sanctity attached to this industry. But today we find that in some parts of the country, this ancient industry is languishing. Several families are reduced to unemployment and resulting poverty. Their economic condition is very bad. Their material condition in general is not satisfactory. Their position in society they are gradually losing. In most cases they have become a prey to money lenders. Government have several times tried to improve their condition, but the result has not been satisfactory.

In these circumstances, it is encouraging to find the Fact Finding Committee appointed by the Government of India touring round the country to collect facts and figures. It is also a Fact-finding Committee. This Committee is with us here in present in Bangalore. At the Chamber of Commerce they met important representatives of the handloom industry. Some memorandums were presented to them. From these, the Committee would be in a position to realise the sorry condition of the handloom weaving industry in the State. Thanks to Mahatma Gandhi's Khadi movement, intellectual classes have now-a-days have been taking some interest in the matter of hand-spinning and hand-weaving. Mahatma Gandhi has so fully identified himself with the interests of farmers and weavers that in 1922 before the Ahmedabad Court he described himself as a farmer and weaver. We are sure the Fact-Finding Committee, with such a distinguished economist as Dr. P. J. Thomas as Chairman, would be able to ascertain all the facts needed to improve the industry.

Next to agriculture, it is the foremost of the industries in the country. According to 1931 census, 22,00,000 families with a population of 1,40,00,000 are weavers in the Mysore State. The memorandum submitted by the Mysore State Weavers' Association says, "The industry is very hard hit on account of over competition from mills."

HAND-LOOM INDUSTRY
IN THE STATEFACT FINDING COMMITTEE'S VISIT

Memorandums Submitted

Bangalore, Mar 12: Dr. P. J. Thomas and Mr. Adharkar, members of the Fact Finding Committee of the Handloom Industry in India, who are in Bangalore now, paid a visit to the Mysore Chamber of Commerce last evening and received three memorandums. Mr. B. G. Appadurai Modaliar, Director of Industries and Commerce was also with them.

Firstly Mr. Ramachandra Rao Scindhia, Vice-President of the Mysore Chamber of Commerce, presented a memorandum for the protection of the handloom industry in Mysore State, and said that India is one of the oldest countries in which this industry existed and it always received royal patronage in Mysore. He said there are about 60,000 handlooms and the Mysore Government are encouraging this industry and have opened many centres in the State for the production of khadi. He gave full facts and figures with regard to this industry. He also said that Mysore Government is helping this industry by establishing weaving schools in the State.

With the advent of powerloom industry, the handloom industry has suffered a great deal and unemployment has increased. He submitted a memorandum for greater protection of this industry in the State.

Secondly, on behalf of the Mysore State Handloom Weavers Association a memorandum was submitted.

Lastly, Mr. Ramanarayana Cheluram, on behalf of the Bangalore Piece Goods Merchants Association submitted a memorandum in which he said that there were about 300 powerlooms in the State. They were making coating cloths ranging in price from Rs. 4-4-0 to Rs. 12 per piece and in the City they were unable to manufacture yarn themselves and they have to depend upon the yarn dealers for their supply. So far as the members are concerned they are not manufacturing any qualities which come into clash with any products of the handloom industry, and a change in fashion may create a change in trade and a great deal depends upon marketing facilities for handloom products.

and powerlooms operating both within and outside the State and the people engaged in it are suffering from several kinds of handicaps. The use of powerloom throws out of employment 9 men and 18 women out of every 30 persons. There are nearly 100 powerloom factories, consequently 1,25,000 individuals comprising more than 25,000 families are thrown out of employment. Thus there is urgent need for protecting the industry against powerloom factories and mills.

We are sure the Committee would make suitable recommendations to Government in this matter.

ALLEGED FORGERY
CASESOME DETAILS OF HIGH COURT JUDGMENT

Question Of Extradition Discussed

Bangalore, March 11: The committal order against Mr. S. K. Venkataranga Iyyangar, Advocate, for offence of alleged forgery was declared legal and valid by the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Singaravelu Mudaliar, in the Mysore High Court, in their judgment delivered today dismissing the Bangalore Sessions Judge's reference that the committal order be quashed by the High Court under section 215 Cr. P. C.

In the Mokshagundam Krishnamurthy Murder Case, Mr. S. K. Venkataranga Iyyangar was one of the accused. At the trial court evidence was let in on behalf of the prosecution in respect of the alleged forged will of the late Mr. K. Muninanjappa, to prove the "motive" for the commission of murder. Though the forgery charge was treated as separate, the Second Additional Judge, on the "insistence" of the prosecution, gave a finding on this charge, which happened to be favourable to the accused. Soon after the final curtain was drawn on the murder case, the prosecution sought to proceed with the forgery charge. But on behalf of the accused, Mr. S. K. Venkataranga Ayyangar, objection was taken to the committal order of the Special Magistrate on the ground that it was ultra vires of the powers of the court. The Bangalore Sessions Judge, after hearing the objections and the reply thereon by the prosecution, made a reference to the High Court that the committal order be quashed.

On this reference, Their Honours delivered judgment today. Rejecting the objection that extradition proceedings had not been followed in this case though the offence of alleged forgery was committed in the Bangalore Cantonment area, Their Honours held that the usual extradition proceedings were not required in view of Article 15 of the Mysore Treaty of 1913, the Extradition Act of 1938 and the letter of 1884. The assigned tract known as Bangalore Civil and Military Station was a part of the Mysore territory and H.H. the Maharaja's predecessor had only renounced the jurisdiction over that part. The assigned tract was not British India within the meaning of the Acts in force in Mysore and therefore there was the arrangement of 1884, in place of extradition, that criminal warrants and processes issued by courts in the Civil and Military Station should be executed within the territories of H. H. the Maharaja and vice versa. As regards the present case, the Hon. the British Resident had no objection for the trial of Mr. S. K. Venkataranga Ayyangar in a Mysore Court. Their Honours, therefore, held that the proviso to section 188 Cr. P. C. was not a bar for the forgery case being tried in Mysore.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Sir Reginald Maxwell has excelled himself in ridiculing Satyagraha and Satyagrahis on the floor of the Central Assembly. Last time he used awful words against Security prisoners. It looks as if people like Sir Reginald from their sheltered positions may attach all and sundry in the country. His remarks are bound to create disgust in the minds of decent people. I do not know what sort of mentality it is to indulge in abuse of people behind their back. People like Bhula Bhai and Satyamurthy are not now in the Assembly to effectively answer Sir Reginald. And Gandhiji is too high to mind these gibes.

Sir Maxwell gave some instances of Satyagrahis who made it a grievance that they had not been arrested. A bidi maker of Behar was now on the road to Delhi walking three and a half miles a day imploring the local rural police to arrest him. The House laughed at it. And Sir James added to the laughter by saying "He may get here next session." My answer to Sir James is he may be earlier there and take his seat side by side with this worthy representative. What does it matter if that Satyagrahi is a bidi maker? In his own country Sir Maxwell would have respect for Labour and treat it with dignity but here in India because he belongs to the heaven-born service he decries a bidi maker.

Take another example of his. He spoke of a young girl Satyagrahi in Madras who was almost illiterate. She did not know what she was doing. She gave Their Honours proceeding examined the application of sections 195 1 (c) and 195 1 (b) Cr. P. C. as urged by the Counsel for the accused and held that the Court had taken proper cognisance of the alleged forgery charge.

Counsel for the accused had argued that the accused had virtually undergone before the Second Additional Judge the trial in respect of the alleged forgery charge and had obtained acquittal. Therefore the accused should not be submitted for another trial for the same charge after a finding had been obtained by a competent court on the basis of evidence adduced and when no further evidence would be forthcoming. But, in the opinion of Their Honours, the accused could not be treated as actually acquitted of that charge therefore section 403 Cr. P. C. could not be applied in this case.

Their Honours, concluding, refused to invoke the "supposed powers" conferred on them by section 561 (a) Cr. P. C. as the committal order was legal and valid for the above reasons. There was not the slightest reason to suppose that the accused deserved discharge.

In the result, Mr. S. K. Venkataranga Ayyangar would be tried in the Sessions Court on the basis of the Committal order.

her age to be 19. But appeared to be considerably younger. In court, who was asked to cross-examine prosecution witness, she did not understand what was being said. She began to shout slogans. To the Magistrate she admitted that she did not understand slogans and told him that the present war was between Britain and Poland.

The House laughed at it also. But this is a mischievous misrepresentation. Mr. B. Shankaran, Tamil Nadu Congress Secretary contradicted the story and gives some particulars. The name of the lady is Sumati Ranganayakiammal. She was tried by the Additional District Magistrate of Bangalore. She is literate and in her own writing intimated to the Magistrate her intention of offering Satyagraha. She is a middle-class village lady owning property and was tried within the premises where no lawyers and relatives were allowed. The prosecution was not allowed. What questions were put, what answers were given there is none to corroborate.

The Home Member on the floor of the Assembly gave another instance. In C. P. A. Satyagrahi was fined Rs. 60. His father sent a currency note for Rs. 100, of which he said rupees sixty was towards the fine and the balance as contribution to the war fund.

Who knows, even this story may be as false as the one about the lady of Madras. It is a pity that the Home Member should indulge in such unguilty exaggerations and untruths.

Mr. V. V. Srinivasa Ayyangar of the Madras Bar, assisted by Mr. H. S. Raja Ayyangar, appeared for the accused Mr. G. S. Doraiswamy Ayyar, Public Prosecutor, for Government.

CONVICTED FOR THEFT

Bangalore, March 11: The City Magistrate, Bangalore, convicted and sentenced the three accused Jadyappa, Chikjavara and Munivenkataswami to suffer R. I. for a period of 15 days each for the offence of theft.

It was alleged that the first accused on the night of 25-2-1941 committed theft of a gramophone, a camp cot, and big a carpet worth about Rs. 105 from the quarters of one Mr. Vittal Rao in Infantry Line near Munireddipalya and gave them to the custody of the second accused Chikjavara. Second accused Chikjavara and the third accused Munivenkataswami assisted the first accused in concealing the property in Jeevanaballi Tank knowing that it was stolen property.

STOP PRESS

New Delhi, Mar. 12
Associated Press learns that the Government of India have so far agreed to accommodate 44,000 Italian prisoners of war in this country. There are now approximately 30,000 Italian prisoners in this country who are confined in Rumagah camp which has a capacity of 12,000 and Bangalore camp which has a capacity of 24,000. Preparations are now being made to establish a third prisoners-war camp at Biopal which will have a capacity of 9,000. It is pointed out the question of increasing the number of camps in order to extend the capacity of the existing camps is susceptible to revision as the situation develops, but the cost of establishing and maintaining them as well as maintenance of the prisoners themselves is borne by His Majesty's Government.

Lahore, Mar. 12
Important concessions regarding eligibility for Government service for candidates who served in armed forces in the present war were announced by the Punjab Government. They are entitled to deduct from their service period the period spent in Government service. Government have decided to accept the general principle wherever possible that preference should be given to men with war service to their credit, that the rules prescribing educational qualifications for particular service or posts shall be, subject to proper safeguards, relaxed so as to permit recruitment of men who were prevented by their service in armed forces from acquiring those qualifications.

Bombay, Mar. 12
Different schemes for direct action announced on which such action should be taken, were discussed in detail at a meeting today of the Council of Action appointed by the All India Hindu Mahasabha to implement its Madras Resolution. Dr. Shyamasundar Mukherjee presided and senior members of the Central Council, representatives from various Provinces were also present. Reports of work done by the different Provincial Hindu Mahasabhas were reviewed and the Council decided to instruct Provincial Councils to go ahead with the work of forming District Councils of Action and enrolling volunteers. The Council also decided to welcome enrolment of members of other organisations who were in Hindu cause and were ready to pledge.

Madras, Mar. 12
Central Government formed on the principle of confederation as an alternative to the Scheme is suggested by Mr. C. R. Reddy, Vice-Chancellor of Andhra University in the course of a statement. The alternative he says, is "historically as well as logically better suited to the solution of Indian Constitutional problem."

QUEL TO RUSSIAN PROTEST

British Concessions to Moscow Advisable?

London
The News Chronicle writes regarding Russia's criticism of British concessions to Moscow. It doubts whether this protest will have any sequel as strengthening in London by the publication of suggestions that this direct reproach to Germany should be rewarded by British concessions in questions standing between London and Moscow. This paper has reiterated to criticise bluntly in British policy towards Moscow but the present general for attempts by other governments to drive a bargain. In London it is considered that the issue is quite clear. The British are already in control of the Dardanelles, the other important channel for Russia's foreign trade with the West. The Soviet Union is genuinely anxious to check Hitler's expansionist appetite. Anglo-Russian cooperation will quickly result in the ending of the Russian civil war.

At 5 hours' discussion the meeting approved the main outlines of the resolution. The resolution placed on record profound admiration of the Conference for the heroism and unflinching steadfastness with which the British people are meeting enemy attacks, whether land, air or sea and the spirit of unity and self-sacrifice animating them. After paying a glowing tribute to the glorious achievements of the Indian soldiers in the Middle East and declaring confidence in the martial qualities of the people of India, the resolution says that the Conference is anxious that India should be put on her feet in the matters of defence and the resources of India in men and material should be used to the fullest advantage not only in defending its own frontiers but in helping the British people to the fullest extent possible.

FRIDAY—MARCH 14, 1941

HAIL SIDDAIYA!

We offer our sincere congratulations to Mr. H. Siddaiya on his elevation to the Congress and as its President. This is the highest honour that the people of Mysore can shower upon anybody whom they love and respect most. It is not only the position of the highest honour but also of the highest responsibility. Mr. Siddaiya has been in public life for over a dozen years. He has done very good work as the President of the District Board Shimoga and also as a member of the Legislative Council from that District. He is a well-meaning man with malice to none. Though his superficial communal outlook made people think otherwise about him they knew that he was a frank and open-minded person. They knew also that there was no guile in him. His entry into Congress was a great event of public note. There were not people who wondered at it. That such an ardent communalist to turn over night a whole-hearted nationalist was a transformation beyond the ordinary course of events. But the whole face of the State politics had changed. There was something like a momentous impetus to the Congress movement in the year 1937 and Mr. Siddaiya along with others got into the Congress boat. On the day he entered the Congress boat he burnt the communal boat, and entered heart and soul into the Congress movement. At Shivapur he plumped into Flag satyagraha and his subsequent sentence for alleged sedition was very harsh and severe. He was made to grind ragi by the unkind bureaucracy. He bore it all cheerfully. And today he has risen much nobler and higher than those who persecuted him. And the Mysore Congress has honoured itself by honouring Mr. Siddaiya. He is a great asset to the Mysore Congress. And we are confident that under his Presidentship the Mysore Congress would take another forward step in the direction of its goal. We wish Mr. Siddaiya all success in his career as the President of the Mysore State Congress.

Hail Siddaiya!

PARTY TO Dr. MONTIERO

Shimoga, March 12

The public of Shimoga got up a tea party yesterday in the Town Hall, to honour Dr. Montiero on his elevation as Senior Shimoga. Permanent citizens meeting officers were invited. Mr. A. Narayanaiah offered thanks to Dr. Montiero and wished him all success during his office as Senior Shimoga. Dr. Montiero replied suitably.

His Holiness of Sri Vyasa Raja Mutt

ERODE MADHYAS HONOUR

(From a correspondent)

Erode, Mar. 10
The Madhya residents of Erode presented an address to His Holiness Sri Vidya Sri Prasanna Theertha Sreepadanga of Sri Vyasa Raja Mutt at Erode on March 6th. The address was as follows:-

We, the Madhya residents of Erode, beg leave to offer your holiness our dutiful homage and tender your Holiness our respectful greetings, on this, your Holiness' first visit, to this ancient City of Andra Kapala, after your Holiness' accession to the Eminent throne of the immortal Sri Vyasa Raja, whose name and glory will eternally endure.

We realise that it requires Divine strength to come to the headship of Sri Vyasa Raja Mutt, as the Mutt was established by Sri Madhavacharya an incarnation of Sri Vyasa, and claimed by Sri Vyasa in incarnation of Sri Mahabharata, and on and on in its long history. Parana Purush has guided its destinies. The responsibilities of guiding the destinies of such an institution, with such glorious traditions, are therefore very great indeed.

Your Holiness' liberal western education, which with all its faults, has its own very good effect; your Holiness' profound learning in Sanskrit, your Holiness' wide and rich experience of men and things which your Holiness has acquired during the years that your Holiness practised at the Bar, in your Holiness' Poorva Ashrama, have all stood in very good stead; and it now transpires, that your Holiness, the fittest person to occupy the throne of Sri Vyasa Raja; and the throne of Sri Vyasa Raja has found its best fitted occupant, in your Holiness.

At a period in human history when the religious influence on human conduct is slackening, when man's thoughts are turning Mammun-ward, instead of God-ward; when all the evil influences for dividing man from man, mutt from mutt, community from community, and Nation from Nation, are all at work, simultaneously, and when man has begun to despair, your Holiness has been called upon by Providence, to re-enthroned Sanatan Dharma, on its original highest pedestal. We assure your Holiness that in your Holiness' attempt to do so, your Holiness can always count upon the willing and obedient co-operation, from your Holiness' disciples, and others.

We pray to the Almighty to bless your Holiness with long life and strength to achieve your Holiness' object, which is the most difficult for any one single individual, so that posterity may say that among the land marks in the long history of Sri Vyasa Raja Mutt, the period of your Holiness' Presidentship, was glorious, unexcelled, and has not only to that of Sri Vyasa Raja.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

To,

The Editor,
'Daily News',
Bangalore City.

Sir,
Mr. K. T. Bhashyam Iyengar, the President of the Mysore Congress, has, in a statement issued recently expressed himself in favour of acceptance of offices in the Reformed Government of Mysore, if honourable terms are offered. I have some doubts on the issue. Will the President of the Mysore Congress clear them?

1. What will be the attitude of the Mysore Congress towards war? The State will be risking itself, especially under the present critical circumstances, if it entrusts its administration to hands who are avowedly anti-war, be they pacifist or otherwise.

2. Can the Congress under the guidance of Gandhiji with his creed of non-violence consistently accept offices and support the participation of the State in the war?

3. If they are prepared to accept offices, does it not mean throwing overboard the leadership of Gandhiji (In other words Gandhism) whereby they will be acting against their own resolution passed at the last session of the Mysore Congress, which entrusted Gandhiji with the virtual guidance of the movement here?

Besides, members of the Mysore Congress must necessarily be members of the Indian National Congress. Then again the Mysore Congress will have to remove the dual membership from its constitution, which again means indirectly getting out of Gandhiji's influence in the movement.

4. If the Congress in office, prefers to be neutral, what will be its position vis-a-vis the general policy of the Government in regard to war? As Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru once said 'If you are not with us you are against us.' That means the Congress position of neutrality will be untenable in the cabinet. That too involves a compromise between non-violence, their professed means and their being in office.

Ultimately, the question resolves itself into this. The adherence of the Congress to the policy of non-violence is either pragmatic or opportunistic. And as regards their attitude towards war, that must be guided either by opportunism or pure conviction. One can't have both ways.

Yours truly,
N. N. CHANDUR,

Bangalore,
12th March, 1941.

The Swamiji appreciated the kindly attitude of the Madhya residents. While at Salem His Holiness constructed his newly built Mutt and took possession and control of the same. He permitted his local agent to manage the affairs of the Mutt. He returns to Sosaal next week after visiting Gopichettypalayam and Chamarajapuram. He will resume his tour in South in the cold season.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

I am writing this on Thursday morning. This is the day of the Holi festival which is observed in all India. In every part of India Hindus observe this as a colourful day, colourful in the literal sense of the word. They throw powdered colour and colour water on one another. Some people use their tongue as licentiously as possible. This is a day of privilege for them. No body should take offence at this. In the South people only throw coloured water and not powdered colour. The bon fire in the night is a common thing all over India.

Below the surface of this All India festival, there is a commonness of purpose and meaning. The story is known to everyone. The festival is a symbolic manifestation of an incident which seems to have happened in the life of God Shiva. It is said that God Shiva after he lost his first wife, Dakshinai, got disgusted with the way of the world, retired to the Himalayas and lost himself in Himalayas and meditation. The story goes that the tribe of gods got into difficulties and they wanted the aid of God Shiva. They had somehow to drag him again into family life. The daughter of Himalayas, Parvati, who was supposed to be an incarnation of the Goddess was of the marriageable age and they induced her to marry Lord Shiva. This could not be done unless Lord Shiva broke his Tapas. Who could successfully achieve this but Lord Desire who in other words was known as Kamadeva. It is said that Lord Desire successfully disturbed Lord Shiva from his Tapas. The story goes that Lord Shiva was inflamed with anger and by simply looking at Lord Desire consumed him to ashes. I need not continue the story further for it is well known that the Puranic story says that Lord Shiva fell in love with Parvati and married her. Since then Lord Shiva continues to lead a family life.

It is in commemoration of the incident of Lord Shiva consuming Lord Desire to ashes that the festival of Kamadahana is observed. In the night the picture or the effigy of Lord Desire is burnt to ashes. This is the popular story. Any interpretation may be given to it. Whether rational people believe in the story as such or not, the observance of Kamadahana festival has been continuing since time immemorial. One ought to observe the season in which this is observed. This is observed just at the close of the winter and on the eve of the spring in India specially during this season the vegetation including big trees cast off their dried leaves and are about to be clothed in tender young leaves.

It is something like the old dying out and the new getting in. In the south of India this festival falls on the eve of the new year. Whether this festival is symbolic of the coming in of the new season or whether it is symbolic of an ancient historic event it is difficult to say definitely. People attach spiritual significance to this festival. Desire rises in every heart. And Lord Shiva is said to be symbolic of soul force which kills desire. It is no use running out vague and indefinite. This observance has been known down to us since a long time. It is an All India Hindu festival. The masses take part very enthusiastically. They lose themselves in it.

It is true that some religions in keeping with the times should be introduced in the manner of observance of festival. Some crude observances may be given up. Licentious loose observances may be dropped. We need not do anything to take away from the essence of the festival. I find that educated people keep away from the observance of this festival. In my opinion this is the right policy. If they desire to raise the tone and level of the festival it is absolutely essential that it mix with the crowd and induce necessary reforms. Otherwise the masses will be left themselves and the festival would be degraded and lost. This is only one of my thoughts.

I find that as years roll, the festival has been losing some of its attractions. It is time that leaders of the society make use of this India festival to cement Hindu society much more. There are four or five All India Hindu festivals which are national character of which the most important is the Holi festival. The other All India festivals are, Sri Rama Navami, Sri Krishnastami, Navaratri, Shivaratri and the Sankranti. The New Year or Yugadi differs from place to place. The Ugadi in the New Year day is different, the New Year day is different, the New Year day is different, the New Year day is different. As to Ganesh Chaturthi it is only in Maharashtra, Andhra, Karnataka and Tamil Nadu that it is observed in U.P. and the Bengal it is observed. It is up to the Mahasabha to consider the merits of these several festivals and use them for All India Unity of Hindus.

I would close this with a cautioning some undesirable of the Holi festival. The District Magistrate of Shimoga given special instructions to local police to prevent disorderly or dangerous behaviour in the streets during the Holi festival. Any person who is in such conduct or who is in mischief will be removed from the police station forthwith. Magistrate orders that taking part in the celebration in public should in no words to or from the water at any person or gentleman, who is obviously also taking part in the celebrations. I think it is a healthy rule to observe. I hope our observance of the festival will be free from others. Taking too much with others and indulging in disorderly conduct on their own is bad. It is no use running against others.

BOLSHEVISATION OF GERMANY?
LITHUANIAN CAPITAL AN ARMED CAMP
Disputed Hostility Of Soviet To Germany

Hope To Invade Defeated Reich
London
The Lisbon Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphed on March 4.
The party of Roman Catholic priests, who have just reached from Kovno, Lithuania, is the first information of a country which has been completely cut off from the world as a news centre since the Lithuanian annexation.
They described the Lithuanian capital as an armed camp. All the buildings have been taken over for military purpose. At the northern end of the German frontier, they tell me, the two nations facing one another with unbroken hostility. Both are completing fortifications, evacuating the frontier. Russian officials are boasting of the approach when the Bolsheviks over-run a defeated Reich.
Fifteen miles on the Lithuanian side of the frontier, all Lithuanians have been evacuated. On the other side the Nazis have reached the frontier to a depth of more than a mile. Both sides are thousands of workers employed in completing concrete defence works.

Travellers are told by local agents that the Germans have bought various portable defences from the Magnot Line and incorporated them in the Lithuanian frontier works. Soviet officers, according to officers in Lithuania, believe that Britain will achieve a military victory over Germany within a comparatively short time. This would be followed by a Russian invasion and the Bolshevisation of Germany.

The Chief of the OGPU in the District of Turgai told one of our informants "The Soviet will attack the Germans as soon as they are beaten by the British. When the Red Flag will be flying over Berlin There will be a revolution in Germany. Every thing is already arranged."

SRIMATI M. S. SUBBULAKSHMI

Her Divine Voice

SAKA writes in 'Indian Express' Let me have music dying and I seek no more delight-Keats.

Enormous expectations have been roused by "Sakunthala" and the picture has at last come to the City. M.S. Subbulakshmi as Sakunthala is the picture's widely publicised attraction. M. S. has a pull with people as a songstress. What a songstress she is! Her voice is her glory. I have seen nothing like it whether on the stage or from the screen, or in music halls or gramophone records. Deanna Durbin is the western world's greatest musical prodigy, but Deanna's is a cultivated perfection. She must have passed through much drill to have arrived where she is. The stress of it makes her delight occasionally in vocal gymnastics.

M.S. too has had her training, but it has left no visible strains. Proficiency in music cannot be reached without hard work and intensive application. Natural gifts do no doubt count. But untutored rugged genius by itself can make no great headway; it will drop down in the middle before it reaches the front rank. But the musical sense which is a gift of perception concerning sound-harmonies and discords, is an inborn faculty and cannot be imparted. Ideal results are reached when with it is combined a voice of melody and strength, and both are hammered into form by a master of training on the anvil of continual experiment, research and practice. M.S. seems to have had the advantage of all the three.

Her voice is a magnificent instrument. It has a vast range of sweet and charming cadences and is blessed both by power of volume and tensile strength. It can taper into a single thread of long-drawn exquisite melody, or gush out expansively into widespread sound. It can rise high to any intensity of concentrated intonation, or go low into a barely audible diffusion of harmony, it can disappear into a very dot of sound, or take space itself captive within its enveloping fold. Or with lightning interchanges from the one to the other, it can work magic effects. It has power, delicacy, polish and sweetness. She has a divine voice admirably cultivated and just to hear it vast crowds will always make long journeys.

Among the stars of the screen none has the musical perfection of Subbulakshmi. Kannanbala is much more widely advertised, but she has not M.S.'s richness of tone. Devika Rani has a comparatively weak voice. There is more of artifice than of natural harmony in her musical efforts. But with all her musical talent, M.S. does not seem to have either the gifts or the temperament for first-class screen acting. She does not always photograph well. Unselfconsciousness is an essential requisite for looking one's best in a picture, since it will release the perfection of outward impressions, much precious energy that otherwise would run to waste in exhausting reconciliations with the embarrassing exactions of the camera. But with M.S., varying margins of self-conscious sensitiveness seem to be always taking their toll from the ease and freedom indispensable for successful posing.

Leela Desai, for instance, is hardly ever perturbed, and is her own self-assured self through all exposures to publicity and probing eyes. She is superb in petulance and angry scenes. Her eyelids narrow into mere slits, and from the dark inside flash forth forks of lightning to wither and scorch the unlucky object of her wrath. It is as if you actually see her fiery temper incarnating before you in a quickly appearing and disappearing line of fire in the ether. Or take Shanta Apte. There are no reserves of sentiment in her, detracting from the adjustability available for the character of the moment in which she appears on the scene. She made a mark in "Amar Jyoti" because she abandoned herself with the full blooded gusto of adolescence to the passion of the play unhindered by the oppressive squeamishness of neighbourly judgments. But M.S. as Sakunthala gives the impression of a helpless being in the throes of orthodox inhibitions, snatched from a congenial house wifely duties to make love to a stranger. What passed between her and the hero of the picture may be anything; it certainly was not love.

Top-notch celebrities of the silver screen have each some outstanding advantage serving as a valuable ingredient to popularity. Sheer beauty of person is Naseem's distinction. She has no first-rate acting ability, but merely to look at her, people pay, and box offices are stamped. Kanchanamala holds the allegiance of cinema fans with the magnetism of a singularly lustrous pair of eyes. Vasant is liked for her charming tomboyishness. Surya Kumari is just beginning to win appreciation for a certain ease and unaffected grace of movement discernible in her work. But Leela Chitnis possesses a combination of many excellences which produce a high level of artistic achievement, without leaving any obtrusive mark of explanatory causation. She is the Greta Garbo of the Indian screen, though more fascinating physically than Greta. Like Greta, her artistic handwork is an intangible entity fashioned from a multitude of invisible springs of personality. They some how succeed in producing an impression of cent per cent naturalness, balancing, with consummate comprehension temptations to over-emphasise against risks of lapsing into consequence. There can be no higher water-mark of artistic perfection than this, whether on the stage or screen.

Subbulakshmi seems to suffer from diminished stature on the screen. (By "stature," I mean not dimensions of being, but quality of individuality.) Perhaps there is something ungenial in her temperament to

MILITARY LORRY CAPSIZED

FIVE PERSONS SEVERELY INJURED

Driver Died In The Hospital Bangalore, March 13

In consequence of the capsizing of a military lorry No 1512 yesterday afternoon in Bangalore-Tumkur Road, five persons including the lorry driver Govindaswamy Naidu were severely injured. Immediately they were admitted to the Indian Military Hospital where subsequently the driver succumbed.

It is stated that about 1-30 P.M. on 12-3-1931 a military lorry No. 1. 51/2 belonging to 51 M. T. Company, Hebbal driven by one Govindaswamy Naidu was proceeding along the Bangalore-Tumkur Road from Italian Prisoners Camp towards the City. At the 6th mile stone, the driver observed a pleasure car coming in the opposite direction. To afford clear passage to the pleasure car the lorry driver turned his lorry to his left. In doing so the lorry ran on to the loose sand track and in attempting to bring on to the centre of the road once again his steering became fixed and the vehicle capsized on its left side and the lorry ran to a ditch about 24 feet deep, on the right side of the road for a distance of 25 yards. There were five persons in the lorry including the driver and all of them were seriously injured. The lorry was badly damaged. The injured persons were immediately admitted to the Indian Military Hospital where subsequently the driver succumbed to his injuries.

Hearing the capsizing of the Military lorry, Mr. Brown, Traffic Inspector hurried to the spot immediately and investigated.

ISSUE OF PASSPORTS AND VISAS

Bangalore, March 13
The following press note is issued from the Honble the Resident's office—

Under present circumstances, it is not possible to dispose of applications for passports and visas with the same expedition as in the past. In order to avoid inconvenience to themselves, prospective travellers from the Civil and Military Station at Bangalore and the Mysore State are advised to apply for the grant of travel facilities to the authorities concerned well in advance of the date of their proposed journey.

The concentrated light and glare of the millions of can't pass under which cinema stardom is to function. Her music is the outstanding attraction. So long as she retains that wonderful timbre of voice, the spell of her songs will not cease to intoxicate the music loving world and carry it off its feet. But in the actual craftsmanship of any histrionic star she will never rise above a mediocre performance. Cinema stars should be judged in capitalising into captivating forms or maximum appeal all charms and other presentable assets of personality that they may happen to be endowed with. This M.S. seems never able to do. Her sovereignty belongs to the realm of song, and not of dance or drama or any kind of play acting.

INDUSTRIAL JUSTICE THROUGH BANKING LEGISLATION
IN MYSORE

(By Banco)

This is a subject of the utmost importance just now, and it will pay us to consider it in its several aspects. It is, indeed, a very old subject, having been a subject of concern for centuries ago. The Government of the day, Sir M. Visvesvaraya's Government, to wit, who had vast industrial projects under consideration and even given effect to some, expected to minimise the heavy charge on their revenues under this head by entering into an arrangement, a scheme, was possible, with the Bank of Mysore, in the matter of financing industries in general. The Bank, infant as it was, needed the nerve to counterbalance any proposed in this behalf, in the hope that it could not depart from Banking practice. The danger did was that the capital lent would be locked up for long periods and worse still, the bank had to deal with an enterprising people. The correspondence prolonged for several years until, in 1932, the depression prevalent drove the Government into appointing a Committee to suggest improvements in the working of the Bank with a view to the expansion of industrial operations in the State. The Committee, presided over by Rajamantrapravina Dewan Bahadur K.R. Srinivasalingar, a few months after their appointment, recommended, among other things,

(1) That the Bank's capital be raised to Rs. 40 lakhs.

(2) That Government grant to it a Cash Credit of Rs. 10 lakhs the account being renewed every three years.

(3) That the Bank be authorised with the previous sanction of Government, to issue its own debentures as and when required.

(4) That an industrial section be formed in the Bank, for the disposal of offers for industrial loans in sums of more than Rs. 1000 but not exceeding Rs. 10,000 that all offers be invariably scrutinised in the Department of Industries and Commerce and thereafter recommended for accommodation in each case that all offers for Rs. 1,000 and less be treated categorically as business offered in the ordinary course.

As regards legislation, the Committee thought that Government, and twice such banking development in India.

Banking Conditions Changed
Banco continues to change, as all know, so changed now, that they spell legislation and Mysore must soon have an enactment to control all Banks and Banking Companies. The recent South Indian Banking crisis and the failure of a few small banks in the State show how the spirit of adventure in Banking will bring disaster in the end and endanger the stability of well-managed banks. In order that the several banks in the State shall work well, and be useful in enhancing the prosperity of the State, there must be done, Vice-Chancellor to Scheme under which the Bank of Mysore, can finance all industries without prejudice to its legitimate functions, an inquiry into the working of the smaller banks registered under the Companies Regulation, with a view to ascertain the extent to which these banks can finance small-sized industries in their respective districts, and finally an Act under which the Bank of Mysore shall become the parent institution controlling the rest of the subsidiary scheme, all these, must soon come to happen.

There is one strong reason why Government must pass a law for the control of banks in Mysore. The incidence of taxation in the State is indeed heavy having regard to the poverty of the Mysorean. This burden can be lifted only when there is adequate capital to run the various industries in the country which, at present, are either half-starved or are dead owing to lack of money. Irregular periods of idleness followed by equally irregular periods of work are the characteristic of skilled labour in Mysore, and the absence of the enterpriser only adds to the gloom prevalent. But under a law, there should be work for industrialists all the year round, enough to eat and drink, and live contentedly.

Suggestions To Mysore Bank

The writer's suggestions are that the Bank of Mysore's Capital be raised to Rs. 50 lakhs; that all treasury work be entrusted to it; that all the other banks be compelled to keep in it a remunerative balance; that it had better open, as a tentative measure, a branch or two in such of the British Indian Provinces where its dealings are substantial; that the Bank be raised to the status of an Exchange Bank, and come, in due course, to have a London Office, when the present war ends and peace reigns once more; that all the sterling transactions of Government be done through the Bank without reservations, and Government by degrees discontinue dealings with their continental bankers; that the dividend declared by the Bank be limited by law to 8 percent; that the Savings in the profits be used in a profitable manner for the bank to create an industrial Fund, an agreed nation of the profits being added on to it from year to year to finance large undertakings and retain confidence as well.

As regards the smaller banks, it is peremptory that such of them as may be found on inquiry, to be irresponsibly managed, be ordered to be wound up, so that, under the law to be introduced eventually, their number may not be too unwieldy to manage; or two or more small banks may amalgamate if such a step be deemed more prudent, due importance being attached to the industries peculiar to the districts wherein they function. These banks require immediately to be weaned from bad business, and they can be eminently useful in affording the relief that Government need after thirty years' strenuous labour. A reasonable fraction of these banks' capital can be most advantageously employed in financing home industries as well, and thus be largely helpful in minimising unemployment among the middle classes. It is a truth, duly acknowledged by Government, that co-operation in Mysore, even after thirty-five years, has not been as useful to agriculture and industry as it ought to have been. Apart from providing the capital that industry requires, the Act tends to Banking capital in general being evenly divided between Commerce and Industry. Indeed, most women, who are skilled in several Cottage Industries and by birth, practical economists, ought to appreciate the Scheme very much, and strive to enliven the domestic atmosphere in which depression now prevails. If a certain percentage of the capital assigned for Industry in general, be earmarked for women, it must produce glorious results. There can be no doubt that, in five years from the date the Law comes into force, it will not only have restored strength to industries, but also imparted longevity to them. It may not be very sanguine to expect that the capital in circulation thus increased and concentrated will facilitate colonisation or make our towns and villages look like Colonies.

Under the new constitution whose inauguration every Mysorean has been looking forward to with great anxiety and interest great problems will come up before the public. Our representative men, to whichever party they may belong, must shoulder the task of preparing a draft measure for consideration and its eventual passage into law, and the writer is sure that all merchants and industrialists in Mysore will accord to it their heartiest support.

Industrial Production

The writer need not add here that industrial production at home will diminish the imports, and that exports will increase, thus enabling local products to become popular on the outside market.

It must be stated here, honestly, that what the writer has said so far is by no means a scheme, but an idea for experts in the line, and our public men to consider. The writer would like our political parties to take a live interest in this subject and acquaint themselves, in the first instance with the several industries at work in the State, and ascertain the amount of capital invested, the extent to which industries have received financial assistance so far, how many are self-supporting, and how many need all the help that they deserve, the habits and means of small industrialists and their general outlook. This step is so essential that without the necessary data, any scheme on the lines suggested would be unworkable. All political aspirations have, under the present circumstances of public life, to be subordinated to a serious consideration of industrial and financial problems.

Non-Party Political Leaders' Conference

Sir N.N. Sircar Moves Main Resolution

Immediate Need For Reconstruction of Viceroy's Executive Council

Making Simultaneous Declaration Regarding Time-limit and Status

A.P. BOMBAY, March 13
Non-party Political Leaders' Conference discussed the present political situation in the country for over 5 hours today with a view to suggesting ways and means to intensify India's war effort and end the present political deadlock. The main subject of discussion in today's informal meeting was the draft resolution on the question of the removal of the present deadlock and the consideration of changes to be made in the position of the present Government during the period of the war and other matters incidental thereto.

After 5 hours' discussion the meeting approved the main outlines of the resolution and appointed a sub-committee to give final touches to draft before the plenary session.

After paying a glowing tribute to the glorious achievements of the Indian soldiers in the Middle East and declaring confidence in the martial qualities of the people of India, the resolution says that the Conference is anxious that India should be put on her feet in the matters of defence and the resources of India in men and material should be used to the fullest advantage not only in defending its own frontiers but in helping the British people to the fullest extent possible.

To this end the Conference put forward the following proposals with the full sense of grave perils that confront this country and other parts of the Empire. There is no desire in India to take advantage of Britain's difficulties, but the Conference wishes equally that India's domestic difficulties should not be pressed to her disadvantage.

The Conference admits that there are serious internal problems to face before the final constitution of the country can be settled. It has, therefore, limited its immediate objective to re-construction of Governor General's Executive Council with joint responsibility for the period of the war. In the opinion of the Conference a peace time Council composed of the Viceroy, the Commander-in-Chief, three I.C.S. European members and three Indians, two of whom are non-officials, is neither adequate nor sufficiently representative to organise direct war efforts of over 400 million people.

The British Government's offer of August 1940 to increase the number of non-official Indian members of Governor General's Executive Council had given recognition to this fact. In the opinion of the Conference, therefore the needs of war require immediate reconstruction of Governor General's Executive Council to enable the Government to get the utmost help from the people of India in men and money and material.

Defence And Finance Portfolio

The Conference suggests that the Defence Portfolio should be in charge of an Indian with proper safeguards to maintain the position of the Commander-in-Chief as the executive head of the army.

The Finance Portfolio should also be put in charge of an Indian.

As regards the Executive Council itself, in the opinion of the Conference, the whole Council should consist only of non-official Indians drawn from, or connected with public life. The Conference is however prepared to be content for the duration of the war that the reconstructed Central Government remains responsible to the Crown but it is strongly of opinion that such a Government should not be a collection of mere departmental heads but "should deal jointly with all important matters of policy" with a view to creating a proper and favourable atmosphere for the successful working of the reconstructed Central Government.

Time Limit For Status

It is the considered view of the Conference that it is necessary to remove doubts and misgivings of the people of India with regard to the genuineness of the intentions of the British Government and to this end the Conference suggests that the British Government should make a declaration simultaneously with the reconstruction of the Central Government that within a definite time limit after the conclusion of War "India will attain the constitutional status such as will be attained for example by the Dominions of Australia and Canada after the war."

DRAFT RESOLUTION

A. P. BOMBAY, March 13
The drafting sub-committee, appointed by the Leaders' Conference met to night at Sir Jagdish Prasad's residence and gave final touches to the resolution which is not being officially released until it is shown to the Chairman of the Conference Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru.

A.P. BOMBAY, March 14

The Non-party Political Leaders' Conference reassembled today in the Princes Room in Taj Mahal Hotel, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru presiding.

Sir N. N. Sircar moved the main resolution on the lines of the draft resolution: While India should not take advantage of Britain's difficulties in her heroic struggle the conference is equally desirous that India's domestic problems should not be pressed to her disadvantage. As the first step towards removal of the present deadlock and until permanent Constitution is brought into force the conference desires to emphasise the immediate need for reconstruction of the Governor General's Executive Council.

The Conference considers that the present Council which consists of three European members from Indian Civil Service and three Indians where of two nonofficials and one member of Indian Civil Service in addition to the Viceroy and Commander-in-Chief, is neither adequate nor sufficiently representative to organise and direct India's war efforts at this moment of grave peril.

This Conference is anxious that India's Defences should be put on a firm basis and that the resources of this great country in men and material should be used to the full advantage not only for defending her own frontiers but for helping British people to the fullest extent possible consistently with the best interests of India. For reasons mentioned above, this Conference is of the opinion that the whole Executive Council should consist of non-official Indians drawn from important elements in the public life of the country. This would naturally involve a transfer of all portfolios including the vital ones of Finance and Defence to Indians. The Conference would be content during the period of war that the reconstructed Centre remains responsible to the Crown and so far as the Government is concerned the position of the Executive Council should not in any way be prejudicial. At the same time the Conference is of the opinion that Reconstructed Government should not be making a declaration of departmental responsibilities should not, with an important matter of policy, on the basis of joint constructive responsibility is required for reconstruction.

As a result of the conference, the Executive Council will be reconstituted and the Government will be reorganised.

The Conference also decided upon the need for the reconstruction of the Central Government and it is necessary to remove doubts and misgivings of the people of the country as to the genuineness of intentions of His Majesty's Government by making a declaration simultaneously with the reconstruction of Government that within a specified time limit after the conclusion of the war India will enjoy same measure of freedom as will be enjoyed by Britain and Dominions.

The Conference also desires to re-emphasise the immediate need for reconstruction of the Governor General's Executive Council.

An earnest appeal to the Government of India to take the initiative in attaining the objectives of the Congress and Muslim League in a united front to resolve the present deadlock and that a temporary committee be set up to study the proposals and large mass of constructive work in the country was made by Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, President of the Non-party Leaders' Conference.

THE REVENUE DEPARTMENT

There are some interesting facts and figures published in the Administration report of the Revenue Department for the year 1939-40 and the Government review there upon. This is the most important department and on its proper and satisfactory working depends the welfare of the ryot population. It comes into the closest contact with the ryot and as such would be able to sympathise with his difficulties and do something to improve his lot. In olden days the Taluk Amildars were morally Mabap of the rural population. We have heard it said that some Amildars would devote their whole time for the improvement of the village and successfully contribute to the welfare of the population. They kept the villagers not only in monetary fear of law and the Government machinery, but also inspired confidence and self reliance in them. They used to take personal interest in almost every ryot and contributed to his welfare. We are writing about the rural economy in the olden days. In those days the Revenue Department meant the Government and the Government meant the Revenue Department as far as the villagers were concerned.

But now the circumstances have changed. The Amildars have become birds of passage. And the most vital interest that they take is now in the collection of Revenue. Along with the spread of education and enlightenment in the rural part, the taluk officers instead of being drawn nearer to the people, the opposite process has been at work and the cleavage between the ryot and the village officer is widening. It cannot be said that this is all the result of some agitation. But the fact is the rural people have been more awakened than in the past and they expect much more from Government. They have realised as never before that they are the back bone of the State and the Land Revenue is the most vital part of the Govt Revenue. They also feel that the Government are not paying as much attention to the rural parts as to the capital Cities. In matters of education, medical aid, sanitation, road improvement and several other things the villagers find that their needs have not been attended to as much as those of the Cities.

In these circumstances, it is necessary to realise that the functioning of the Revenue Department in the rural parts is fundamental for the progress of the country. The officers who are in the improvement of the lot of the people. The days of "Jubardast" are gone. They have to treat the villagers with respect and courtesy and induce them in a friendly manner to a better standard of living. The officers cannot order the villagers. In addition to the general dilapidated condition of villages, the confusion of modern political ideas and slogans has had its reactions in villages. The rural peace and idealism that poets sing of is not to be found there. The condition of life has become very difficult. The problem of light and drinking water have assumed very big proportions. And they ought to assume big proportions. The problem of tanks is the most important one in the villages. They supply water not only to their lands but to cattle and men. The general economic condition is hopeless. The rural industries have gone out of existence, so much so that the problem of villages and their improvement have been occupying the foremost attention of the administrator and the politician. The test of an administrator lies in his efficiency in improvement of villages. The popularity of a politician rests on his sincerity to the well-being of the villager.

With this back-ground in view we have to judge the working of the Revenue Department. It is useful in this connection to acquaint our readers with some salient facts and figures. The report of the department gives a review under several heads. With the small space available to us we cannot deal with all the heads. Let us notice some of them briefly. 3,125 Patels and 1,151 Shanbhogs were punished during the year and of these 83 Patels and 36 Shanbhogs were dismissed. There were 86 illiterate Patels who were replaced by literate men.

The report says that the year under review was on the whole fairly prosperous to the agriculturists. The average rainfall during the year was 11.62 inches more than that of the previous year and 3.95 inches more than the normal average for 35 years. Owing to untimely rainfall in some parts of the State, 2,329 tanks and rainfed tracks were notified during the year for the grant of seasonal remissions aggregating to Rs 1,67,030-12-4 inclusive of remissions relating to the previous year sanctioned during the year. There was no sign of distress in any part of the State. Agricultural stock was on the whole healthy. There was a general tendency to rise in the prices of principal food grains due to the outbreak of war.

The question of accidental fires is one of the items of the report. During the year of the report the number of accidental fires decreased from 713 in the previous year to 566 during the year under report and the value of property lost fell from Rs 2,65,000 to Rs 1,99,748.

Shocking over items such as dandakast, jamdandak, coercive measures etc., are coming to the attention of tanks. 166 major tanks and 67 minor tanks were restored or repaired during the year. There are over 2100 major and minor tanks in need of urgent repairs.

The Government have some pungent observations to make under the head Tours and inspections.

They are as follows:

Government are constrained to observe that in spite of the observations in this connection in the previous reviews the work of intensive hobi inspections has not received that amount of sustained interest as was required of the Sub-Division Officers and that the attempts made by these officers to carry out the instructions of Government in this behalf have been sporadic and haphazard. This tendency could easily have been checked if only the Deputy Commissioners had scrutinised the tour programme of these officers and issued timely instructions. The Revenue Commissioner is requested to impress on these officers that this work should be done systematically and that neglect on their part in adhering to the instructions of Government will be very severely noticed. The amount of interest evinced in this branch of work should be taken as a test of efficiency of the officers concerned.

We thank the Government for these remarks. We agree with them that the amount of interest evinced in touring and inspection work should be taken as a test of efficiency of the officers concerned. We would add that the interest that they take should be evidenced not by the travelling allowance that they draw but by the quantity of work that they do in the shape of amelioration of the lot of the Villager.

There is a good lot that we have yet to write in connection with the working of the revenue department but we reserve it for a future occasion.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Here is an interesting item of news.

"A cabinet containing 2,400 selected cigars has been publicly presented to the British Minister in Havana for Mr. Churchill on behalf of his Cuban admirers.

The cigars were bought from funds raised by public subscription each limited to 20 cents."

I offer my congratulations both to the givers and the receiver of the present.

We had so far heard of the strike of students. But in the Presidency of Bombay some teachers had struck. This is an account of the strike as it appears in a Bombay Daily.

"By their prompt intervention in the Gujarat teachers' strike, the Bombay Government have ended an embarrassing situation which did no credit to the Local Boards of this district.

"In the wider interests of education, Government's action will also be welcomed. The obligations of local authorities in the matter of "duty pay" to teachers under training are clearly defined; and the Gujarat Local Boards' attempts to evade their obligations were indefensible. Government have not merely done where this was denied, they have established a salutary precedent which should serve as a warning against similar evasions in the future."

"It is in the interest of bodies that schools in the districts should be conducted by trained efficient teachers. The action of the Gujarat Local Boards will be generally condemned as lacking both in principle and ordinary foresight."

In the death of Sir Sulaiman the country has lost a great judge and a great lawyer. It is a rare combination in a judge to be a worker of science. His contributions, it is said, attracted the widest notice abroad. Had he lived a few years more he might have received some high honours at the hands of foreign universities.

A gentleman asked me why I thought of the Leaders' Conference that has been going on in Bombay. Another friend sitting by me promptly replied they are contributing to the effort (Laughter).

PRINCE PAUL CONFERS WITH YUGOSLAV LEADERS

Will Country Resist Axis Pressure?

(By Cable) London
The News Chronicle Belgrade Correspondent cabled on March 6:

For five hours today Prince Paul, the Yugoslav Regent, conferred with state leaders.

Besides the Premier, Foreign Minister and War Secretary and Chief of General Staff, two members of the Council of Regency and the Croat leader were present.

A radio communique tonight said, the ministers kept constantly before their eyes the independence and entity of the state.

Rumours persist that Ribbentrop and Ciano, the Axis foreign ministers, secretly visited Prince Paul on the 4th at his summer residence at Brdo in Slovenia.

Official circles here, however, deny that such meetings took place, but the facts that Brdo is only 30 miles from the German frontier and that Prince Paul made a trip at this particular moment give credence to this report.

It is believed here that Yugoslavia had been offered by Germany to have her integrity and independence guaranteed by all signatories to the Three-Power Pact if she was ready to sign that pact.

The belief that this country, under pressure, might be forced to join the Axis Pact, which seemed impossible two weeks ago, is gaining ground.

However, there is hardly anybody here who would admit the possibility that Yugoslavia would allow German troops to come into the country without a struggle.

OUR NEW DELHI LETTER

A Weekly Political Review

Some Sidelights in Assembly Proceedings

(From our correspondent)

New Delhi, March 12

New Delhi was crowded with conferences and meetings of newspaper editors, business men and public men to mention the two most important of the Central Legislative Assembly which were engaged in discussing the Budget proposals. The Budget proposals of Sir Jagdish Prasad, which were only for the brief period of five days, has brought again to the fore the political dead end of the past several months. The Budget proposals, now out of the hands of the Cabinet and free from the influence of the Government, has been exerting a strong influence on the minds of non-party leaders and has found a new formula for the India's political difficulties. The efforts have resulted in a conference which is to take place later in the week in Bombay. What the fate of this conference is going to be, neither Sir Jagdish Prasad nor any one else can tell us yet. Their talks, however, did not show any feeling of optimism that the efforts would succeed in bringing any big change in the Government's policy. It is probably the reason why distinguished public men, some of them being ex-Members of the Viceroy's Executive Council have preferred to meet in Bombay and not in the Imperial Palace which, in this matter at least, has a barren record. If the subject of the conference is to touch with the official policy of the Government of India and how far they are prepared to go if they have any desire to give at all-New Delhi has advantages as a meeting place. The continued success of the Viceroy's Conference, which has now become a permanent institution with a constitution of its own may be a point in New Delhi's favour, but, as due more to the unity which Indian press has maintained success must be taken as the reason and not the rule. The subject of the Bombay conference, we take it, to see how the public men, belonging to particular party or to particular than the Congress and Muslim League, can succeed in bringing together their ideas around an agreed formula. The communities are properly represented and, though the number of delegates has been strictly restricted, the names of the delegates are such as to draw the measure of public confidence to its proceedings. Any suggestion that it may take its place to attract attention both in the country and in England cannot be able to persuade the Government to alter their policy, but if its resolutions are courageous and free from any hesitation and strengthen the people's case for a full Government, Bombay will claim credit for the success of its conference.

Maharaja's Warning

It is known fully early in the week that Mr. Kalikar's resolution, though mild, moderate and non-controversial, it was the fate of Sir Jagdish Prasad's resolution. From the view of the progress of the Council of State it did not go far enough to state their demand and there was the additional consideration that just on the eve of the Bombay Conference it was not at all wise to whittle down the nation's demand even for the sake of showing that the Government were not prepared to go even to this extent. There was also the danger that the Muslim League might seize this occasion also for another communal outburst and spoil the effect of the debate. Though the party as such did not table any amendment, it was apparent from lobby talks that its speakers would import communalism into the debate as they did even on so inoffensive a question as the stoppage of London recruitment to the I.C.S. A Muslim nominated member, Sir Mahomed Yakub had already an amendment in his name to delete that portion of Mr. Kalikar's resolution which demanded that the portfolios of Defence and Finance should be in the hands of Indian members. What exactly the attitude of the Government would have been in the debate was not quite clear, but it may be recalled that only in November last the Leader of the House Sir G. S. Bajpai said, "if the Executive Council were expanded in the form in which His Excellency the Viceroy suggested that it should be expanded is it any one's contention that there would not have been a majority of Indians on the Executive Council; it is even contended that there would not have been a majority of politically minded Indians on the Executive Council?" We may have had another apology or explanation on the subject of the August declaration raising a few more ambiguous possibilities, but that would have hardly served the purpose of the debate. In any case, it would appear that as the constitutional question is going to be raised both in the Assembly and in the Council of State there would be ample opportunities for the Government's spokesman if they wanted to. Already a good beginning was made by the Maharaja of Darbhanga in the speech which he made on the Budget proposals. As one anxious to support the Government's war effort, he warned the Government of the consequences of persisting in their present policy.

Great Expectations

It was the new Commander-in-Chief, General Auchinleck, who was prominent in the week's debates in the Central Legislature. He has shown a keen desire to appreciate the Opposition's point of view and try to meet their wishes. He has agreed in principle to three long-standing claims of Opposition members which for years the Defence Department has resisted—the appointment of a committee of the Central Legislature to advise the Defence Department, the re-organization of the University Training Corps, and recruitment on a wider basis so as to give a fair chance to all provinces and all classes. It may be some time before the actual proposals decided by the Commander-in-Chief are made known to the public, but his speeches showed a new spirit altogether—not the old spirit of aloofness and disregard for the wishes of the House which used to be characteristic of the Defence Department's answers on these very subjects in the past, but a new spirit of conciliation and respect for non-official opinion. It is that way that the Commander-in-Chief has not only taken into his own hands the task of answering questions and making speeches on behalf of the Defence Department but is also spending some time in the lobby to meet nonofficial members and get to know them in the lobby. The principle which he enunciated for selection to the Air Force, viz. that the candidate should be an "Indian and he should be likely to become an efficient member of the service," brought a series of supplementary questions from Sir Mahomed Yakub, who was for making selection committees, "representative of all communities," but not all this terrific fire of communal questions from Sir Mahomed had any effect on the Commander-in-Chief. The House burst into laughter when the Commander-in-Chief told Sir Mahomed that the type of committee suggested by him would have "great difficulty in reaching any decisions." Lobby comments express regret that the new Commander-in-Chief could not take charge of his office earlier. Had the change been made at the very beginning of the war or even earlier, it might have been possible to effect substantial reforms by this time anyway, the change has come at least now, and one hopes that the large expectations raised by the Commander-in-Chief's speeches will be fully and quickly realized.

Nature's Help

The Budget debates in the two Houses proved even less eventful than was anticipated—not even a walk-out by the Muslim League Party to create some diversion. A walk-out has often interesting sequels. Last week it was noticed after the Muslim League Party's walk-out as a protest against Sir Andrew Clow that one or two of that party strayed into the Council of State's galleries and comfortably began to sleep and snore there—an unusual kind of punctuation for Mr. P. N. Sapru who was speaking at the time. Not even this kind of diversion was available this week. In the Assembly the most notable speech was that of Sir Cowasji Jehangir who, speaking with as much effectiveness as the Maharaja of Darbhanga in the other House, said: "We are called upon to subscribe to war loans and contribute to war funds and knit stockings but nothing more." Sir Homi Mody seemed either too busy or too disgusted to speak. Only once he brightened the proceedings with an effective interruption which the House greatly enjoyed. When Sir M. Zafarullah, as the Supply Member, was describing how assiduously he was on the "look-out" for suitable Indians to fill vacancies in the Supply Department, Sir Zia-ud-Din Ahmed stared in wonder at this extraordinary claim, but Sir Homi asked sweetly: "How do you look out? With a telescope?" In the laughter that followed it was not possible to hear the Supply Member's answer and know how he was "looking out." The subject of Biluchistan proved too warm a subject, for even Mr. Aneer, usually calm and unruffled, spoke with some vehemence. The division-list dis-

HITLER'S MESSAGE TO PRESIDENT INEUNU

TURKEY CONTINUES HER PREPARATIONS

Precautions at the Dardanelles (By cable) London

The Ankara correspondent of 'The Times' cabled on March 6. The text of Hitler's message to President Ineunu remains an official secret. It is gathered, however, that the letter was upon the lines that were expected that is to say that Hitler expressed the desire of Germany to remain on friendly terms with Turkey. Similar assurances in respect of Greece have not been given.

German intentions after the occupation of Bulgaria are still obscure. It is worth noting, however, that in Turkish political circles it is taken for granted that the German army intends to push on farther. In this connection there is some vague talk emanating from German circles to the effect that Germany wants a corridor to the Aegean Sea, not necessarily at Salonika. Possibly the idea is to cut Turkish communications with Greece as a preliminary move to an attack on Salonika.

At any rate, it is clear that nothing happened at the conversation on the 4th between the President and Herr Von Papen which would justify Turkey relaxing her military precautions and preparations. On the contrary, these are being intensified. The muddy condition of the ground in Thrace should protect Greece and Turkey from an attack for another two or three weeks.

Reports that the Dardanelles have been closed are inaccurate. Turkey has taken at each entrance to the Dardanelles certain naval precautions which will make compulsory pilotage necessary. Pilotage at Turkish expense is provided under the Montreux Convention. Turkey has not yet, however, invoked her right under the same clause to compel all shipping to give six hours notice of their desire to enter or leave the Straits.

closed, as they say, "strange bedfellows." The European Group did not want to meddle in this controversy and refrained from voting, but the Congress Nationalists walked into the Government lobby—one may almost say "ran," for they seemed more eager than the Government members themselves to go to the Noes lobby and record their votes against the "cut" motion. The debate on the Census complaints, which was started by Mr. Abdul Ghani, found the latter in a bitterly complaining mood against enumerators. Though he had a wife, five daughters and two sons, no enumerator had gone to him! "What is the good of raising a large family?" Asked Mr. Ghia-suddin jokingly, but even these good-humoured jokes of his party men did not lessen the flow of his complaints. He hinted at some deep conspiracy to "minimize the Muslim population" but he told the Government that all these devices would not help them as "Nature was helping the Muslim population." Sir Jerome had an easy time this year, for too many were the points raised by his enemies this year and even those not so taxing as to cause any great worry to him.

BRITAIN ASKS YUGOSLAVIA TO STATE HER POLICY

People And Armed Forces Against Surrender

(By cable) London

The Daily Mail Diplomatic Correspondent writes: Britain has asked Yugoslavia to 'declare her position. The Yugoslavians have been told courteously but firmly that it is important that their policy should be known. They are warned that they cannot be "on both sides."

This, I understand, is the effect of the communication made to the Yugoslav Government by Mr. Ronald Campbell, British Minister at Belgrade.

Mr Campbell will undoubtedly add that any giving way to German pressure in the way Rumania and Bulgaria gave way must eventually mean a break with Britain.

The Belgrade radio last night read the text of a joint communique issued by the Yugoslav Prime Minister and Foreign Minister. It said: "We are following present developments closely. The independence and unity of our country are ever before our eyes."

The Yugoslav Government has been asked to state its policy in regard to the Axis Powers. The Yugoslavians have been told that they cannot be "on both sides."

Britain, while not asking the Yugoslavians to state their policy, respects Yugoslavia's right to do so.

"WE HATE MUSSOLINI"

Italian Prisoners Say

(By Cable) London

The Daily Telegraph Athens correspondent cabled on March 7.

Although the Italians, aided by bad weather and by constant reinforcements which have raised their army's strength in Albania to over 4,00,000, have so far been able to prevent the Greek Army from completely breaking through, the prisoners captured in the last few days say that Italian morale is very low.

"We were constantly deceived," they added. We hate Mussolini, although we are all Fascists. Most of us wished to surrender, but we were told that the Greeks would cut out our tongues and kill us. We were deceived even on this point."

It is pointed out here that the Italian plea that their defeats were due to their soldiers' inability to stand the cold of the Albanian mountains is unfounded as most of them come from Northern Italy and many are Alpinists.

BUTTER MAKING INDUSTRY

Proposals For Instructing Indian Firms

New Delhi

Investigations are being made in India to ascertain, if possible, the cost of technique to firms producing butter to enable them to stand up to the "keeping" test imposed by the Government. Several firms in India produce butter under which a fat content of 16 per cent is required, but these products will not keep for any length of time.

BOMBAY CONFERENCE AND ITS REACTIONS

NEW DELHI SPECULATIONS

"LITTLE HOPE OF CHANGE IN GOVERNMENT'S ATTITUDE"

Bombay, March 14.—The Non-party Political Conference concluded at 4 P.M. after passing unanimously the resolution wired to Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru winding up the Conference declared that it was absurd to believe that the fortunes of 400 million people could be settled by radio broadcast and frequent statements.

He invited the Secretary of State and half a dozen members of the British Parliament to India and see things for themselves.

(From our own correspondent)
New Delhi, Mar. 14.—No enthusiasm is to be found in New Delhi on the subject of the draft resolution of the Bombay Conference though it has attracted considerable dissection in lobbies. It is pointed out that in one respect it differs from Liberal Federation's resolution and tries to meet Government's viewpoint. Liberal Federation demanded cabinet should be responsible to Central Legislature but the Bombay resolution concedes that for a period it may be responsible to the Viceroy. In another respect also it has not gone as far as Liberal Federation's resolution, for while the latter asked for Full Dominion Constitution within two years, the present resolution only demands declaration that "within definite period" India will attain constitutional status, such as that of Australia, Canada Etc. The resolution however Executive Council wholly on non-official basis, which is a slight advance on the former resolution of Liberal Federation.

According to lobby criticism the Bombay resolution has asked that Cabinet should deal jointly with all important matters of policy but there is no demand for gentleman's agreement that the Viceroy nor the Secretary of State will ordinarily interfere with decisions of Cabinet. One point in favour of the Bombay resolution is that change is needed in the Government of India Act for giving effect to the resolution except in minor matter, present resolution that three should be bay Conference has been anxious to give no room for possible objection from the Government that the proposal goes against the present terms of Government of India Act.

The old objection from the official side still remains that without agreement between the main political parties, Congress and Muslim League, no useful purpose will be served by expansion. The implication of the resolution on is that even if Congress and Muslim League decline, British Government should proceed with reconstruction on the lines suggested by appointing non-official Indians drawn from or connected with public life. The Congress attitude is contained in an interview which Mr. Purushottamas Tanjani has given to a press representative. "We have told them (Dominion Conference Organisers) that if they can carry on noncongress government they may have it. Congress will not stand in the way out we should not be dragged into it." In Muslim League circle however there is talk of offering opposition to any expansion without their consent. So far as talks go, there is very little hope of change in Government's attitude.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI RELEASED ON GROUNDS OF HEALTH

From Yerawada Central Prison
Poona, Mar. 15.—Mr. K. M. Munshi, Ex-Home Minister, Bombay has been released on grounds of health from Yerawada Central Jail.

FIVE STUDENTS ARRESTED

FOR ENTRY INTO A COMPARTMENT

Re-ulting Clash
Calcutta, March, 14.—Five students of a suburban engineering institution were taken into custody by the Railway Police on a charge of rioting following a clash between a number of students and passengers of an evening train coming from Diamond-Harbour to Sealdah.

It is stated the students were refused accommodation in a train on the ground that the train was running full complement, the passengers being mostly Muslim pilgrims returning from Diamond Harbour. Some of the students thereupon forced entrance into one pilgrim compartment and there ensued a clash between the intruders and the passengers. Stones are alleged to have been pelted at the train by a crowd outside during the clash and several persons including a woman were injured. The police arrived on the spot and brought the situation under control and arrested five students in this connection.

STOP PRESS

(From our own correspondent)
New Delhi Mar. 15.—It is now revealed that Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru recently entered into correspondence with Gandhiji and Mr. Jinnah in order to bring them together for a friendly talk. Sir Sapru's efforts failed as Mr. Jinnah wrote to Sir Sapru that he could only talk to Gandhiji as a leader of the Hindu community. It is believed that Bombay Governor had a long discussion with the Viceroy on the political situation arising from the Bombay Conference.

Poona, Mar. 15.—Interview by the Associated Press Mr. K. M. Munshi said that he had been suffering from Diarrhoea and acute attack of colitis for the last fortnight. He became extremely weak since yesterday and the Jail Superintendent released him on grounds of ill-health according to the orders from the Government. He added Mrs. Munshi is also likely to be released soon to enable her to be with him.

SIR M. VISVESVARAYA'S ADDRESS

Fourth Annual Meeting Of Court Of Indian Institute

POST-WAR RE-CONSTRUCTION AND SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH

Bangalore, March 15.—"This is a time of war, the great majority and the people of this country deeply sympathetic with the risk of suffering of the people of Great Britain. They are willing and anxious to help Britain and humanity in this emergency. Our failure to take advantage of the present opportunity to give a fillip to industries will mean a tragic waste of a chance which occurs only once in several generations"—thus appealed Sir M. Visvesvaraya delivering his opening address as the President of the Court of the Indian Institute of Science at its Fourth Annual General Meeting held this noon in the Institute.

He spoke upon the new problems that will arise in connection with post-war reconstruction in Science and Industry. He said:—
"When peace comes upon us, it will be our duty to scrap structures which have ceased to function and rebuild new edifices which have to fulfil new duties. Some studies in this connection are already overdue, but I doubt if in the present state of its staff and finances, it would be possible for the Institute to think of such work."

He referred in conclusion to the work of the Institute in the following words:—
"The Institute has been in existence for 30 years. The work done by the professors and the choice of subjects for research have been varying to some extent according to the wishes of the men in control. The chief defect is that the primary aim of the Institute, namely, industrial research, was not properly attended to. Subjects were chosen either because the men in control knew them better or the subjects themselves involved comparatively smaller outlay. If we are agreed that there has been a departure from the right functions of the Institute and that results commensurate with the resources have not been obtained in the past, every effort should be made now to modify and improve them in the direction of the original correct aim. This can be done if investigations into the aspects and problems I have ventured to submit to you are kept up. The responsibility and leadership should be declined. The Court in my opinion might entrust this work to the joint-committee of Judge.

The Hon. the President of the Court were present.

Lucknow, March, 14.—About half a dozen persons were arrested in Lucknow for sprinkling coloured water on a Muslim. The police arrived on the scene and the situation is now quiet.

A LAND ACQUISITION CASE

Bangalore, March 15.—Mr. W. O. Newsam, Judge of the Hon. the Resident's Court, delivered judgment in a land acquisition case of the Bangalore Municipal Commission. Some time before 1923 the Municipality had thought of acquiring a piece of land measuring 1.85 acres but later it had given up the idea. In 1934 Mrs. Sampoorammal bought the land for Rs. 3,800. In 1937 the Municipality acquired this land from Mrs. Sampoorammal paying compensation of Rs. 3,191-4-0. It is 1303 per acre, to provide playground for the New Pottery Town Municipal School Mrs. Sampoorammal petitioned to the Hon. the Resident's Court His Honour disposing of the appeal held that the land should be valued at Rs. 2,200 per acre and directed Mrs. Sampoorammal to refund the excess amount awarded by the District Judge.

MYSORE GARDENS DEPARTMENT

The latest issue of the Mysore Gazette publishes a summary of the Administration Report of the Government Gardens Department and Hill Stations in Mysore for the year 1939-40. The Government have also received this report.

It is necessary that the public should know what this department has been doing and what its utility is. As far as we remember, at no time has a very discussion taken place either in the House or in the Assembly or on that of the Legislative Council with regard to the working of this department. It is necessary that the people in general should take greater interest in the matter.

The report discloses the work that the department has been doing under several heads. The services of the Garden Assistant and the District Staff were availed of by the Municipal and other private bodies. Several private gardens and village panchayat parks were visited and advice given for their improvement. A large number of plants were supplied to public bodies for planting the main avenues and village panchayat parks. Many economic plants were introduced, propagated and accumulated. Experimental work on fruit plants was carried on at the Central Fruit Nursery, Lalbag, Krishnaraja Sagar Orchard and Fruit Research Station, Hessarghatta. It is reported that the Bokhari and the Khandari varieties of grapes were fruited for the first time. Four varieties of bananas which are popular in Australia were imported and tried here. The fruits are reported to be good. Numerous plants of scientific interest were also introduced and acclimatised.

As usual, the Lalbag, Bangalore, maintained its popularity both for recreation as well as for horticultural interest. Notable among the various improvements effected is the erection of a gate lodge between the two gates on the western side at a cost of Rs. 5,230.

The Gubbon Park with the fairy fountain continued to be popular. Many improvements were effected to the Durai Daulat Bag and the Gumbaz gardens. A stadium has been built by the P. W. D. in the Samaga Tank bed and the work of laying out a track has been taken up.

One important contribution of the Department is the cultivation of Cinchona. The plants are all bearing well and the yield is considered satisfactory.

At the Fruit Research Station, Hessarghatta, the work is progressing satisfactorily and the reports have been placed before the Advisory Board of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research.

The report would not be complete without mentioning the fact that the Mysore Horticultural Society has been gaining in popularity and the shows held by it have proved a great success.

The Nandi Hill Station has maintained its popularity as a health resort and attracted over 1000 visitors besides a large number of pilgrims, sight-seers, and excursionists.

The Government express satisfaction that the work of the Department continued to be satisfactory.

It may be mentioned that this department under the administration of Rao Bahadur H. C. Javahar is bound to show greater progress in course of time. As the members are aware, Sir Mirza Asf-ud-Din, the Dewan of Mysore, takes personal interest in the work of this department. The motor road to Nandi Hills, the improvement of the Lalbag, the beautification of the Gubbon Park are due to the personal interest that the Dewan has been taking. For a progressive State like Mysore, such a department is necessary and we are glad to find that it has been doing commendable work.

As per the report of 1938-39 the total expenditure of the department was Rs. 1,91,720 and the income amounted to Rs. 20,000. We do not know why the income and the expenditure of the department has not been shown in the summary of the report published in the latest Mysore Gazette. After all the net expenditure comes to Rs. 1,71,720. This is not a big amount considering the number of gardens that the Government have to maintain. We once again request the public to take greater interest in the working of this department.

HARNAHALI MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

Congress Disapproves Supersession

BANGALORE, March 15. The Mysore Congress Publicity Office writes:

The Minor Municipal Council of Harnahalli in Hassan District was reconstituted on 1st January, 1941. Elections to the same were held about the month of October 1940 and all the seats open to election were captured by the Congress. Ever since the results were known, the people of the town are agitated to see a variety of hardships and privations such as wholesale attachment of crops as a precautionary measure for the recovery of land revenue, issuing prohibitory orders not to remove crops etc. In spite of all this the people of the locality have evinced a great interest in the Congress movement and do not allow a penny for the building of a Congress house in the place.

It has now been notified that the minor Municipal Council will cease to exist from the 1st of April, 1941. It is stated that the Government had asked the Municipality to survey some new taxes which were not favoured by the people and the Municipal Council were unable to accept the proposal. The Government, it is stated in the terms that the order of supersession is based on this ground.

The people are not prepared to accept the reason given as the real ground for the supersession. It has naturally created great indignation in the Village and the Government are not well advised in taking the step they did.

HINDI SUMMER SCHOOLS

Mr. K. T. Bhashyam's Opening Address

Bangalore, March, 14

In the stirring times ahead of us we will need a common language to keep us together and to prevent us from getting away from each other. Let us also remember that a divided India will mean a disaster to world peace and that a strong United India will not only be Free India but a storehouse of universal peace and security. A common language is the first requisite of a strong United India" thus observed Mr. K. T. Bhashyam, President, Mysore Congress, speaking on the need of a common language for India on the occasion of the opening ceremony of Hindi Summer Class at Visveswarapuram. Shrinath Lokasundari Raman presided over the occasion.

The following is the text of the speech by Shri K. T. Bhashyam, President, Mysore Congress, on the occasion:—

The need for a common language for India is obvious. Those of us who have travelled in Northern India will have felt how handy a knowledge of Hindi helps us over there. A common language will facilitate not only travel but also internal trade and commerce, exchange of thoughts, assimilation of culture and a closer understanding of each other. It is a great unifying force, an essential feature for a strong, united people. Today when there is a greater awakening all over the country the need for a common language to keep us together is greater than ever. Consciousness of rights leads naturally to assertiveness and individualism, personal, communal, provincial and the like. Unless these powerful forces are co-ordinated and canalised towards a common ideal there is danger of fissiparous tendencies setting in and disintegration overtaking the people. We are seeing the beginnings of it already. We need a strong unifying force to bind us together. Till now we had a powerful political administration which held us all together. We have to replace it by a National Government. And it must be quite strong and united; otherwise we will break into provincial powers at loggerheads with each other—a divided India, a prey to conquest and slavery. We need to have implicit faith in each other; and such understanding comes easier with a common language than without one.

Differences in Language

I am free to confess that this aspect of the matter can easily be exaggerated, that differences in language need not create differences in thoughts and feelings and that mere speaking a common language have fought among themselves. But all that is logic. Life is not quite so simple. Differences in language do create differences in thoughts and feelings and commonness of language does make it easier to

INDO-BURMA TA'KS

A.P. New Delhi, March 14. There was a meeting today of representatives of the Commerce Department and non-official advisers to the Indo-Burma Trade Negotiations today. The counter proposals of the Government recently received from the advisers are expected to be discussed. The non-official advisers are expected to discuss the proposals and submit a report shortly.

unite and be strong. Since we must take things as they are and not as they should be we must minimise the points of conflict arising out of the diversity of languages. In the stirring times ahead of us we will need a common language to keep us together and to prevent us from getting away from each other.

Let us also remember that a divided India will mean a disaster to world peace and that a strong United India will not only be Free India but a storehouse of universal peace and security. A common language is the first requisite of a strong United India.

Prominence of Hindi

Undoubtedly Hindi is the language. It is spoken by about 70 per cent of the people. The remaining 30 per cent have more than 30 different languages, one of which can be learnt by the rest of India as easily as Hindi. All these are so well known that I feel I should apologise referring to them at any length. We all have to encourage the spread of Hindi as much as we can.

I am glad we are doing it. I wish to dispel the fear that the spread of Hindi will prejudice the mother tongue. Far from prejudicing, it will enrich the local language. I ask that we should learn Hindi so far as we can as to possess what is called working knowledge. There can be no danger to the local language in it.

Never Too Late to Learn

It is never too late for any of us to learn Hindi. It is about the easiest language to learn containing just about a couple of thousand words. It is easy to learn it but what is required is perseverance in talking Hindi. We are so few yet that even those of us who know the language do not talk in it and eventually become unable to do so. I would ask young men and women to learn Hindi and to talk in it until they are able freely to express their ideas.

Lady Prize-Winners

It is curious as you can notice it that most of the prize-winners are Ladies. They are in the spread of Hindi and in all progressive movements in the country. Honour to them. The President of this evening is a Lady. For example I appeal for support to the Hindi School which has opened now. I thank you.

Sir Saju recalled what was done in 1917 when even Mahatma Gandhi was present. He added it was impossible to understand the present policy of the Government of India. They argued that however good and estimable other people might be they had no large following and that the Congress and Muslim League were the only two bodies which had the following. The answer to that was that there was a vast mass of unattached opinion in the country which could have been mobilised by the Government of India if they had put themselves at the head of a movement. If any leaders were worth their salt, they could create a following of their own. Things like that had happened in the country in the past as well as in other countries.

Seconding the resolution Sir Jagdish Prasad said that the feeling of frustration and helplessness was one of the root causes of the present discontent in the country. He also pointed out lack of industrial development and said if Indians are to be empowered to make the utmost sacrifices to save India and the commonwealth from Nazi domination the Government of India

Messrs. G. A. Natesan, T. T. Krishnamachari and Sultan Chinnoy also supported the resolution.

Smashed Blackshirt Battalion
A. P. New Delhi, March 14.

Paying public tribute to Indian troops in East Africa His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief said since the battle of Barentu in which the Indian troops captured nearly 2,500 prisoners, smashed the Black-shirt battalion and routed an Italian Brigade, our fighters and bombers have been increasingly harassing the retreating enemy. Hundreds of tons of bombs were rained on the fleeing Italians who were forced to jettison much of their material in the hurried flight. It can emphatically be stated that we have established an unimpaired in Britain. Comparative estimate of enemy losses than ever; since the beginning of the operations in 1941 they have to the middle of 1942 they are mounting at least 25,000 men and 10,000 bombers. In losses were three aircraft, pilots were also shot.

INDIAN INSTITUTE OF SCIENCE

We have published in our Sunday issue a brief extract from Sir M. Visvesvaraya's address made on the occasion of opening the Fourth Annual Meeting of the Court of the Indian Institute of Science. The address as expected makes a fervent appeal for industrialisation of India. The Indian Institute of Science when was founded with the definite idea of promoting the industrial welfare of India expected to concentrate on applied research bearing on industries. That should be the first and most responsible duty of the Institute. We agree with Sir M. Visvesvaraya that although some advance was made towards this view, we are nowhere near attaining the main object of the Founder. It is pleasing to learn, however, that an appreciable beginning has been made in this direction. This is mainly due to the efforts of the Council and the Director, Dr. J. C. Ghose.

As the learned President of the Court mentioned in his address, it is a matter for consideration whether it would not be desirable to appoint another joint Committee of the Council and of the Court to define with precision the policy and aims of the Institute and to build up a plan of work to five years. It is an urgent duty to be undertaken and no time is to be lost. As the address mentions, new problems will arise in connection with post-war reconstruction in science and industry and some organised efforts are necessary in this direction. We are glad to learn that a resolution was passed in the Court recommending to the Council that the Indian Science Congress, Federation of Industries, Chambers of Commerce, and other allied bodies be approached with a view to appointing a Committee with the Director of the Science Institute as Secretary to go into and prepare a report on the problems in science and industry connected with post-war period.

Now that the Air Craft Industry is located in Bangalore, it is necessary to start a section of work of department in the Institute for studies and research in Automobile Industry including Engineering. A department of studies in research in metallurgical science is also one of the needs of the time. Sir M. V. suggested that a proper engineering workshop should be located in the Institute with an efficient mechanical or industrial Engineer in charge to carry out experiments and researches in engineering industry.

MYSORE NOTES

H. H. THE MAHARAJA BAGS A TIGER

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, March, 16
It is learnt that His Highness the Maharaja bagged a huge tiger yesterday when he had been for shikar into the forest near Arepura.

Mr. H. C. Dasappa

Mr. H. C. Dasappa who is now in Mahatma Gandhi's Ashram at Wardha, it is expected, will attend the ensuing annual session of the Mysore State Congress that will take place at Vinobanagar next month. It is further learnt that he will accompany Baba Rajendra Prasanna from Wardha when the latter will be going over to Vinobanagar to open the Congress exhibition.

Congress Municipal Party

A Meeting of the members of the Mysore Congress Municipal party took place last evening under the presidency of Mr. P. Sitaramiah.

Mr. L. L. Kamachandra Rao, Municipal Councillor, Mysore, invited the members of the Congress Municipal party and some other friends to a delightful dinner that was held last night at Vithal Vilas, his new residence in Vontivoppal extension.

We are happy to note that the Court also recommended to the Governing Council that the Government of India, Provincial Governments, Indian States, and industrialists be approached for funds to equip the institute for giving advanced instructions in Aeronautical Engineering, Metallurgical Science and research in Automobile Engineering.

The remarks which the President has made in connection with the future work of the Institute in the matter of research deserve immediate consideration. "The chief defect is that the primary aim of the Institute viz Industrial research, was not properly attended to. Subjects were chosen either because the men in control knew them better or the subjects themselves involved comparatively smaller outlay. If we are agreed that there has been a departure from the right functions of the Institute and that results commensurate with the resources have not obtained in the past, every effort should be made now to modify and improve them in the direction of the original correct aim."

We are not against advancement of pure science and research in pure science. That was its place and a vital place elsewhere. But as far as the Indian Institute is concerned and as far as the intentions of the Founder are concerned, it is but right that precedence should be given to industrial research and that is what Sir M. Visvesvaraya has been hammering all these years. There is no cause for misunderstanding anywhere on this insistence on industrial research in the Institute.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Save or Shave—This Funny English—A murder a day—Release Nehru Campaign.

Here is an interesting letter to the Editor of a Calcutta daily under the heading "Save or Shave." I had a few days ago published a similar letter in these columns. The following is of further interest because it gives amusing statistics. Here it is.

Sir—We are asked to save for victory. I suggest that each man should grow a beard. "Why?" Well, shaving is a waste and a worry; and worry and waste are wicked, especially in war-time.

I have been making calculations. Assuming a man begins shaving at 17, and carries on till 70, he will, in those 53 years, have grown and discarded 43 miles, 7 furlongs of whiskers. He will moreover have spent from Rs. 700 to Rs. 7,000—according to whether he has done the job himself or visited the barber—on this long-drawn-out affair, this completely futile effort to get the better of a natural growth.

He will also have spent 6 months out of his all-too-short life in trying to keep his visage smooth; six months that could have been devoted to business or pleasure. Six utterly wasted months.

Then I am assured, there is 1/4 ton of pure steel in every 1/4 million razor blades. Think what wastage this means! Such steel could be turned into grand machines to blast "Hitler and his Crooks" out of existence.

Then there's to be considered the soap, and towels, and brushes. Not to mention to cost of sticking-plaster when the razor slips.

In short, millions could be saved every year by going about as Nature intended us. I wonder how many like this idea? None perhaps, but facts are facts.—Yours, etc.

Here is another interesting extract from a Lucknow daily. Under the heading 'This Funny English.' Here it is:

We'll begin with box, the plural is boxes.

But the plural of ox should be oxen, not oxes.

One fowl is a goose but two are called geese.

Yet the plural of mouse should never be meese.

You may find a lone mouse or a whole nest of mice.

But the plural of house is houses not hie.

If the plural of man is always called men,

Why shouldn't the plural of pan be called pen?

The cow in the plural may be called cows or kine,

But a bow if repeated is never called bine;

And the plural of vow is vows never vine.

If I speak of a foot and you show me two feet,

And I give you a boot would a pair be called beet?

It one is a tooth and a whole set are teeth,

Why shouldn't the plural of booth be called beeth?

If the singular's this, and the plural is these,

Should the plural of kiss ever be written keese?

Then one may be that and the two would be those,

Yet hat in the plural would never be hose,

And the plural of cat is cats and not cose.

We speak of a brother and also of brethren,

But though we say mother we never say methren,

Then the masculine pronouns are he, his and him.

But imagine the feminine she shis and shim.

So the English I think you all will agree,

Is the funniest language you ever did see.

A report about the Northwest Frontier is published in which it is stated that the Province recorded a murder a day during the month of January.

The report further adds "this figure shows a decrease of 15 murders on the murders during the corresponding month of the preceding year". It is also stated that all forms of crime decreased.

It is rather interesting to find that there is a certain kind of complacency with regard to the fact that there was a record of only one murder a day. It looks as if the value of life in the Frontier Province is not so high as in other provinces. This is perhaps the attitude of the Civilising mission.

TORN OR DETERIORATED ONE-RUPEE NOTES

PEOPLE SELLING AT EIGHT ANNAS AND TEN ANNAS TO BROKERS

PLIGHT OF PEOPLE IN MOFUSSIL DISTRICTS

A. P. New Delhi, March, 18.

At question time in the Central Assembly today Mr. Sheikh Rafiuddin Ahmed Siddique pointed out that in mofussil districts people were selling their torn or deteriorated (in use) one rupee notes at eight annas or ten annas to brokers where there was no branch of Reserve Bank.

Sir Jeremy Raisman replied, Government were not aware of one rupee notes being sold at eight annas or ten annas. The suggestion regarding exchanging one rupee notes at Reserve Banks and treasuries is already receiving attention of the Government.

The Assembly continued general debate on finance Bill. Resuming his unfinished speech Sir F. E. James referred to observations made by Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru at Bombay conference wherein he pleaded for personal contact between the representatives of Britain and India. Sir James said contact should be made not in India but in Britain.

A. P. New Delhi, March 18.

The Bill to continue for another year the existing protective duties on iron and steel manufactures, silverthread, and wire, and sugar was introduced by Sir Ramaswamy Mudaliar in the Assembly this morning.

BOMBAY CONFERENCE

Referred to in Central Assembly

A. P. New Delhi, March 17.

Continuing the general discussion on the Finance Bill in the House, Mr. A. C. Dutta dealt at length with the controversy of borrowing and taxation to meet the deficit. The whole country, he asserted, insisted that the question should first be settled whether by due economy of Civil expenditure the whole deficit of Rs. 20 crores could not have been avoided or at least reduced. He contended that the whole money on this particular occasion should have been borrowed, adding deficit should not be attempted to be covered by one year's budget.

Commending the results of the Bombay Conference he said that the authors of the resolution passed and the President of the Conference were not vapouring extremists or ultra radicals, but men who had held responsible positions. This Conference had made clear that the offer of August 8 was unacceptable to any party in the country. He charged the Government with failure to implement the declared policy of developing and expanding Indian mercantile marine. He complained against the working of the Defence of India Act in Bengal declaring that under the cloak of the Act even constitutional agitation was made impossible.

Sir Jehangir

Sir Cowaji Jehangir elaborated further the arguments in favour of borrowing to meet the deficit. He instanced a number of figures to prove that the amount of deficit was met from loans in England was 116 percent of revenues, compared with the corresponding figure in India of 7-3/4 percent of revenue. He contended that extra taxation was unnecessary. Government had money to pay the whole deficit of Rs. 20 crores.

Continuing he said, by loans, it was certainly spreading the burden over two or more generations instead of the present generation alone adding that any one who contended that the present generation should bear the whole burden must be out of his senses.

Sir A. R. Mudaliar

Sir Ramaswamy Mudaliar, Commerce Member, in a speech made a number of announcements. Among these were the proposal to set up a Central Advisory Committee on sugar, inter-departmental Committee to plan adjustment of industries and industrial labour to meet conditions which must come with the restoration of peace, a small Committee to survey the situation with regard to gaps in the industrial fabric and report to Government from month to month, a machinery to examine during the period of protection whether the progress of protected industry was in accordance with the Tariff Boards' recommendation and whether revision of quantum of protection was necessary. He also said he was prepared to examine whether it was possible to turn Indian Trade Commissioners in different parts of the world into self contained service so that their experience may not be frittered away. He uttered a note of warning against industries protected or otherwise frittering away their resources now and asserted that all resources which they could accumulate now would be necessary to meet post-war conditions and if it was found that industries had not dispensed with their profits wisely now, no Government would be justified in giving it help if they were in difficulties after the war. He appealed to industrial magnates to contribute liberally funds to the Industries and Research Board and said he was prepared to open a fund for the purpose.

Meek-Gregory Mission

Replying to the critics of Meek-Gregory Mission to the United States, Sir Mudaliar explained that on information given by the Mission about America's plan to build up stock piles mica agreement had been entered into between India and United States whereby large quantities of mica would be sent from India to America. On that one commodity, he said, the expenses of the Mission had been met a thousand-fold.

Discriminating Protection

Proceeding he commended the wisdom of adopting discriminating protection for key industries and said that protection and yet more protection was not a panacea for all the country's economic ills. Nor was the slogan economic national self-sufficiency to be blindly adopted. Further, industrial nations during the last ten years suddenly found deficiencies in their agriculture and started a policy of agricultural development and the whole agricultural countries started on a path of industrialisation. He believed that a call would come to India to make a contribution to world effort that would be made for greater and more scientific adjustment of resources in different parts of the world. For that we must prepare ourselves. He was against extreme nationalism that insisted that everything possible should be made in India and that trade should be carried on a system of one way traffic.

Trade Commissioners

Dwelling on the appointment of trade Commissioners Sir Ramaswamy said that the Government of India had those in London, Japan, Australia, East Africa, Egypt and United States. Trade Commissioners would shortly be appointed in Canada and South America. After dealing with the Meek-Gregory report he said that war was giving to industries opportunities for capturing export market; and domestic market; but industries must integrate themselves to co-ordinate their effort both in home and export markets.

Sir F. E. James

Sir F. E. James expressed satisfaction at the appointment of representatives by the Government of India and hoped that the question of appointing such representatives in would not be overlooked.

Referring to the political situation Sir James said the policies of major political parties have been aiming or already aimed a vital blow at the settled policy of successive British Government in the last 25 years, namely the achievement of organic constitutional unity as the whole and the establishment of representative institutions on a democratic basis.

Mr. Jinnah: "Both are dead" Sir James admitted that constitutional adjustments were needed, but felt it would be a tragedy in days of power politics, Central unity in this country was shattered.

Sir James had not concluded when the House adjourned till to-morrow.

HINDU WOMEN'S RIGHTS TO PROPERTY

A questionnaire has been issued by the Committee set up by Government of India to examine certain aspects of Hindu law. The plan of this questionnaire is to explain how each question arises and then to state the question. This is done with a view to facilitating the task of those who have to answer it.

The questions that have been issued are indeed very interesting. They are as many as sixteen. And to answer them requires a thorough knowledge of the present working of the laws in this connection. An ordinary lay man, may not be able to go into all the ramifications of this intricate law. But it is essential that our legislators and would be legislators should be conversant with this Law. And we are sure every lawyer worth his salt, would have a working knowledge of the Law regarding Hindu women, in operation. As our readers are aware the Government of Mysore has amended the Law in question and a few years ago a learned committee was appointed with Dewan Bahadur, Rajadharapravina K. S. Chandra Sekhara Iyer as the Chairman. We are informed that the Law in Mysore is better in certain respects than the Law operating in British India.

With the ideas of equality of rights and privileges to women it is imperative that the Law relating to Hindu Women's Rights to Properties should be modernised in conformity with the modern conditions of life.

At the outset we find that there are certain constitutional difficulties standing in the way of immediate legislation. Under the present distribution of powers between the Central and the provincial legislatures the Centre can legislate in respect of succession of property, other than agricultural land; but not with respect to succession to agricultural land. The result is that central legislation is supplemented by provincial legislation there will be one Law of succession in regard to agricultural land and another in regard to property other than agricultural land. This is a real difficulty. But we feel that any immediate legislation is necessary in this connection the centre may pass the Law which is within its scope and wait for the provincial legislatures to enact the Law within their scope. Any immediate legislation seems to be a good idea. These are a number of

THE BANGALORE CITY CONGRESS COMMITTEE

Bangalore, March 17

The City Congress Executive Committee meeting is arranged to be held on Wednesday the 19th March 1941 at 6 p.m. at the City Congress Office. All the Committee members are requested to be present. Agenda includes Report and Accounts for the year 1940-41 and other matters.

Shris K. J. Satyanarayana Setty and T. Gangadharaswamy have been appointed to form Ward Committees before 20th of this month.

A Sub-Committee, including Shris K. J. Satyanarayana Setty, K. R. Sridhara Murthy and the New Secretary for the City Congress Committee for the year 1941-42, has been appointed to make arrangements for the City Congress Committee Stall Exhibition to be held at Vinobanagar.

A meeting of the Delegates of Bangalore City (General Body of the City Congress Committee) will be held on 23rd March 1941 at 5 p.m. to take part in the following Elections: 1. To elect the City Congress Committee for the year 1941-42. 2. To elect the Working Committee member to the Mysore Congress Working Committee.

Election of the City Congress Committee Office bearers from among the Executive Committee Members, by the City Congress Committee Members, will also be held.

questions which for want of space we cannot deal with exhaustively in these columns. Take the following case.

A Hindu dies leaving only a widowed daughter-in-law and a daughter. On one interpretation of the Act of 1917, as amended by the Act of 1938 (leaving out for the moment the distinction between agricultural land and property other than agricultural land already mentioned), the daughter-in-law takes the estate during her life-time and the daughter gets no share. It was probably thought that a daughter, if unmarried, would be entitled to maintenance and marriage expenses out of the estate, and if married, she would be provided for in her husband's family; and it was probably on these grounds that she was not given a share of her father's estate.

The question in this connection is "What would you desire to be the position as between the widowed daughter-in-law and the daughter in such a case?"

As sub-questions under this question—

(a) Should there be different rules according as the daughter is unmarried or married, rich or poor? (at present Hindu Law makes those distinctions).

(b) Should a daughter who is a widow without immediate issue be excluded? (She is at present excluded under the Bengal School).

There are similar questions. And the Hindu community of the Hindu Madras Sabha should consider these questions and give a guidance in this matter.

As far as Mysore is concerned this questionnaire deserves wide attention and our Law Association has round do well to consider these questions.

We hope our suggestion would be considered by them.

CONVICTED FOR THEFT

(Before Mr. T. S. Ananthamurthy)

Bangalore, March 18

His Honour found sufficient reason, convicted and sentenced Chinnaswamy alias Pandaram to undergo rigorous imprisonment for two years for an offence of theft.

The prosecution alleged that the accused when trying to get into the bus at about 8-30 P.M. on 10-2-41 in the City market, committed theft of a money bag containing about Rs. 214-8-0 from the coat pocket of Mr. Hajee Mohudhin Khan.

The accused has three previous convictions to his credit.

His Honour found sufficient reason, convicted and sentenced Rama and Mada to suffer R.I. for a period of six months each for an offence of theft.

The prosecution alleged that the accused between 19-1-41 and 26-1-41 committed theft of a bundle of iron rods from the house of Mr. Venkataraniiah, Ramannapet.

The second accused has one previous conviction to his credit.

ALLEGED KIDNAPING

Accused Acquitted

Bangalore, March 18

In the Mysore High Court, the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Venkataranga Ayyangar allowed yesterday an appeal preferred by Venkataramayya against the sentence of 18 months R.I. passed on him for offence of abduction, by the lower court. Their Honours held that the girl was not minor and therefore Venkataramayya was entitled to be acquitted.

Venkataramayya was alleged to have kidnapped a girl named Kamalamma, living with her guardian at Akkipet, Bangalore City, on the night of 7-2-1940. They were together for about 2 months. The Sessions Judge of Bangalore, who tried the case, sentenced Venkataramayya as stated above and acquitted two others who had been charged for abetment of abduction.

On appeal. Venkataramayya was acquitted.

Mr. Krishna Ayyangar appeared for the appellant and the Advocate-General for Government.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Indian Leaders and Indian Reporters—Woes of Indian Reporter

In the State of Mysore, the reporter's profession is a new one and he has met with different kinds of treatment from different people. It must be said to the credit of the local Congress leaders that they have always been very kind and considerate to the reporters. The same does not seem to be the case elsewhere. I have in my file several extracts detailing the woes of reporters. Here is one which is published in the "Journalist." My idea in publishing it is not that the situation here is as bad as that, but that we should prevent such a situation developing here.

"The woes of a reporter" published in your last issue interested me a great deal. With a decade's experience as a journalist, I can vouchsafe for every word contained in that article. The reporter's life is certainly not a bed of roses while that of a junior reporter is still worse.

The life of a special correspondent, one who has to deal and interpret the political happenings in the country, is worse still. I am confining myself to the special correspondent employed in an Indian newspaper. Many possibly do not know that the Indian leaders, especially the Congress leaders who show avowed preference for every-thing Indian, invariably treated those journalists employed in Indian newspapers worse than a high-class Brahmin treated a Pariah, and yet, this newspaperman has to bottle up his feelings because he is working for an Indian paper and for a nationalist cause. He has to bear up all this humiliation meted out to him by the very same nationalist leaders and work and strive in furtherance of their cause.

Despite the advances that we have made in the political field during the last twenty years and more practically all Indian leaders have not yet got over a certain amount of inferiority complex. Their mouth waters when they see a representative of an Anglo Indian paper or a foreign correspondent call on them. While they are not able to spare a few minutes to an Indian journalist they forget that they are very "busy" when they hear that a representative of an Anglo Indian paper or a foreign correspondent has come to interview them.

There have been numerous instances when representatives of Indian newspapers have been "done in the eye" despite their hanging around these nationalist leaders for hours together, by the "precious copy" being coolly handed over to representatives of Anglo-Indian papers or the foreign correspondents. These Indian newspaper representatives who had hung on for hours together have been told that copies are getting ready for them and that they "have to wait for minutes more." There have been occasions when the nationalist newspaper representatives have phoned up Anglo-Indian newspaper representatives and take away copies out worrying about those Indian newspaper representatives who have waited for hours for to get copies of their important decisions. Is it any wonder the Indian journalist works feel very bitter with the manner in which they are treated by their own leaders? I am surprised at the bitter and remarks made by certain nationalists about the "State editorial and Mr. M. D. Desai's reply to it." That Gandhi and his lieutenants deserved such editorial

When the Congress office, every Congressman the attitude of the various in the country towards the nationalist movement. I know it better than those who had become ministers and there had been hundreds of instances where these ministers who were "busy" to see representatives of Indian newspapers could devote hours and together in discussing important news items with representatives of Anglo-Indian papers. The representatives of the newspapers went to see with the avowed purpose of writing in support of the try and the ministry's schemes, these men belong to newspapers which had consistently supporting the Congress and every one of them received from these Congress ministers a treatment worse than what a Northern White meted out to a Southern U.S.A. The only one can arrive at is that others have not yet got rid of the inferiority complex that the Indian leaders suffered from some twenty years ago. At least the Congress and other Indian leaders should have realised that their friends and well-wishers are the Indian journalists. It is easier to worship a sun as many newspapers do than to be consistent and enter through thick and thin the latter were neglected the Congress was in a slog and those very people were their "enemies" preferred!

When such is the situation of the country and such the caps under which the newspapermen have to work how can Indian newspapermen thrive and develop? All the news is doled out by the leaders to only Anglo-Indian foreign controlled newspapers. It is absolutely wrong to say that Indian newspapermen do not work hard. They work ten times harder than the representatives of other newspapers and are equally efficient. What can they do prefer to feel intensely on my part I could give hundreds of examples but it is impossible. I think not only in circumstances but in Indian newspapermen in a slog on despite their hard work. Their day is not yet

MARCH 19, 1941.

AMENDMENT TO MYSORE INCOME TAX MYSORE CHAMBER'S LETTER TO GOVERNMENT

The following letter is addressed to the Secretary to the Government of Mysore, Development Department, Bangalore, from the Secretary, Mysore Chamber of Commerce, Bangalore.

I am directed by the Committee of the Mysore Chamber of Commerce to bring to your attention certain difficulties which are being experienced by employers of labour, in the working of Section 10 of the Mysore Income-Tax Act. That Section, as is well known, lays down the law that the income shall be payable by an assessee under the head of "Business" in respect of the profits or gains of any business carried on, and states that such profits or gains shall be computed after making certain allowances. The Act of 1923 nine in number, and states that down from (i) to (ix) Roman figures. After item (viii) down as Clause (viii) the Government of India added by Act XXIII of 1930 a new clause numbered (viii-a) which ran as follows:

"(viii-a) any sum paid to an employee as bonus or commission for services rendered, where such sum would not have been payable to him as profit or dividend if it had not been paid as bonus or commission."

"Provided that the amount of bonus or commission is of reasonable amount with reference to—

(a) the pay of the employee and the conditions of his service;
(b) the profits of the business for the year in question; and
(c) the general practice in similar businesses."

The insertion of this new clause was necessitated by a ruling given by the Madras High Court in what is known as the R. E. Mohammad Kasim Rowther's case (see (12-a) 2 Income Tax Cases, 482) which has thus been rendered legislatively obsolete now. As this amendment of 1930 does not appear to have been adopted in this State, the State Income-Tax Department is not inclined to sanction it by it. As there are public Companies registered under the Mysore Companies Act, working in the State and whose lines analogous to labour in British India, the payment of bonus from year to year is found to be a great necessity. The payment of an additional month's wages as bonus every year—on the well understood principle of 1 month for 12 months of service too well rooted here in practice to be easily refused recognition to labour. It is also well known to what difficulties employers are being subjected by the bonus referred to is not mentioned in their favour at the date at which it is paid. Nor is it necessary to add that the bonus has to be set down as additional wages and paid and rendered free from income-tax. It is just here that the State Income-Tax Department should be directed to help employers by its allowing them to pay the bonus normal to the industry and businesses concerned in amount, and proportionate to the pay and conditions of the services of the employer's concerned, and to the amount of the profits earned in the year, such bonus being a sum being not payable to such employees as profits or dividend if it had not been paid as bonus. It may be added that this payment was usually allowed under the Indian Income-Tax Act of 1923 (on which our own Act is based) until the Madras High Court gave its ruling referred to above in the R. E. Mohammad Kasim Rowther's case.

So far as British India is concerned, the Government of India promptly restored the old law by legislatively introducing the necessary amendment. The result has been that while in British India, under the amended section 10 Bonus is legally payable to employees, under our existing unamended Section such payment is being made increasingly difficult of payment by the attitude taken up by the local Income-Tax Department. In these circumstances, I am to request Government that they should forthwith issue instructions to the State Income-Tax Department to permit the payment of bonus on the old basis and allow employers to debit it to the head wages and make the amount thus paid not amendable to Income-Tax as of old and take very early steps to modify the letter of the existing law by introducing into the local legislature an amendment giving effect to the amendment introduced by act XXIII of 1930 into the British Indian Legislature.

Section 60

In this connection, I am also to invite reference to section 60 of the Mysore Income-Tax Act which is based on the Indian Income-Tax Act, which has also been amended while our section has not so far undergone a similar change. Section 60, as is known, empowers Government to make exemptions in certain cases. Under this section, supplementary to the power given by Clause (viii-a) the Government of India has retained the power to exempt double taxation under its notification No. 8 dated 24th March 1928, because it applies to cases not covered by this Clause. Government might also take action under this section and issue the necessary order in regard to payment of bonus without making the amount involved subject to the tax until the amendment proposed above is put through. It may not be out of place to mention that Sec. 60 has also undergone amendment by the addition of a Clause to it which runs as follows, a clause which has not been adopted yet in our own State. That the adoption of this Clause also would prove advantageous will be clear from a perusal of it. The Clause runs as follows:

"60 (2) where, by reason of any portion of an assessee's salary (for payment in arrears or in advance (or by reason of his having received in any one Financial year salary for more than 12 months) his income is assessed at a rate higher than that at which it would otherwise have been assessed; the Governor-General in Council may grant such relief as he may think fit."

In the above Clause, the portion in brackets was inserted by Act XVIII of 1933. This Clause is one that should be introduced into the local Act, as otherwise income-tax would be leviable at an higher rate in cases where such levy would not be justifiable.

BRITISH PARLIAMENTARIANS

Cable To Indi in Liberals

A.P. Bombay, March 17
Mr. V.N. Chandavarkar, President, National Liberal Federation, has received the following cable from Sir George Schuster a signatory to British Parliamentary manifesto to the people of India. We have studied carefully and with interest the Indian Liberals' message in reply to ours. We are grateful for this response which has helped us to understand your position. We want you also to understand ours. We think further discussion would be had better by correspondence than by exchange of formal published messages. We hope to send you a considered communication shortly. We regret delay in replying but please remember discussions are in the present circumstances difficult.

Perhaps Government would be pleased to look into the matter and have it examined also with a view to suitable action.

I am to request that necessary steps may be taken from time to time to the introduction of amendments of this character which mean much to employers of labour, especially as the registration of public companies is becoming popular under the policy of active industrialisation that has been adopted in the State for some years now.

PRINCES' CHAMBER

VICEROY'S TRIBUTE

A.P. New Delhi, March 17.

The following the continuation of the Viceroy's speech (part of which was published yesterday):

The Viceroy pointed out States obtained representation on Export Advisory Committee, Petrol Rationing Conference six local Advisory War Supply Committees, and many other organisations established by Central Government and it was his hope that steps which had been taken to bring about the closest co-operation between the States and the British India would be of mutual benefit and secure the true interests of India as a whole.

Touching upon military training given by the Indian States to the British Indian Army, the Viceroy said that the British Indian Army must be able to rely upon the States for the supply of trained troops. The Viceroy said that the British Indian Army must be able to rely upon the States for the supply of trained troops.

"For, this is a time of changing ideas and of changing conceptions, and important taking such measures, and doing them in time, needs no argument from me. In previous address to the Chamber I had made certain suggestions. Those suggestions had been welcomed by many Princes and steps are being taken to adopt them in many instances. India with visible, though not yet spectacular results. I do propose to repeat those suggestions today or to enlarge upon the subject save to say once more that union and co-operation are the foundation and source of strength. But to Your Highnesses and to the Princely Order I would make one earnest appeal, an appeal to which I know I can look with confidence for ready response. That appeal is that you should not allow yourselves or your advisers to be diverted by any considerations of personal character for ensuring that where co-operation is necessary it shall take a form which no reasonable critic can assail on the ground that it is half-hearted."

The Viceroy's speech, in the course of which he spoke of the Princes' Chamber, paid tribute to the memory of the late Rulers of Mysore, Marathas of Kolhapur and Madhwa of Mysore.

COUNCIL OF STATE

APPELLATE JURISDICTION OF FEDERAL COURT

Mr. Sapru Withdraws Resolution

New Delhi March 17
The Council of State rejected today Mr. Hossein Imams resolution recommending the formation of Committee of members of Indian Legislature to scrutinise and suggest apportionment of defence expenses between the Government of India and His Majesty's Government and submit a report on transactions since the war began.

Mr. Hossein Imam quoted figures from Finance Member's Budget speech to show that in war expenditure, vast amount were involved which required correct apportionment between the British Government and the Government of India. People of India did not object to expenditure but wanted to be satisfied it was being incurred in the interests of India. Appointment of a Committee would dispel misgivings in the minds of the people.

Lala Ramsarandas moved an amendment to the effect that the Committee should scrutinise and suggest apportionment of defence expenses. The Amendment was accepted by the mover and allowed by the President.

Mr. Jones speaking on behalf of the Government characterised it as unfounded apprehension that war expenditure was not being properly allocated between the Government of India and His Majesty's Government in accordance with the settlement reached between the two countries. He detailed the advantages which the Government of India derived from the settlement. Government were not unsympathetic to the demand of mover but in day to day allocations of expenditure, committee of the kind proposed could not be associated for practical reasons. The Committee would have to put in long hours every day in order to deal with nearly a hundred cases per week.

Mr. Hossein Imam said difficulties outlined by the Finance Secretary could be surmounted by restricting the activities of the committee to broad principles and not day-to-day allocation of expenditure. The Resolution was put to the house and rejected.

Mr. P.N. Sapru moved the next resolution recommending to the Governor General in Council to take such steps as might be necessary to enlarge the appellate jurisdiction of Federal Court to the extent permitted by Sec. 206 of the Government of India Act of 1935. Before speaking on the resolution Mr. Sapru expressed deep sorrow at the premature demise of Sir Shah Suleman. Turning to the resolution, Mr. Sapru said the principle of establishing Supreme Court of civil appeals has been accepted by the Government of India Act. But Indians experienced hardships particularly in war time in going up to Privy Councils whose machine in many cases found expensive. Indian Judicial system improved very considerably. India had sufficient talent for Supreme Court Appeal.

Mr. Richardson opposing the resolution sought an assurance that commerce and industry should be consulted before any decision prejudicial to their rights was arrived at because they constituted the largest body of litigants.

Rai Bahadur Lala Ramsarandas supporting the resolution said that under the present economic conditions it was highly expensive for litigants to go to the Privy Council.

Syed Mahomed Padshah observed it was premature to accept the proposition laid down by the resolution as Federal part of India Act had not yet been brought into operation.

Mr. Conran Smith, Home Secretary, explained that the matter had been engaging the attention of the Government of India and reference had been made to the Secretary of State for India. Consultations were still in a preliminary stage and therefore it was not possible for him to divulge their nature. He assured the house that when concrete proposals emerged from the present preliminary consultations, Government would consult the public opinion including commercial interests.

Mr. P.N. Sapru replying expressed his readiness to withdraw the resolution provided Government agreed to forward the debate to the Secretary of State.

On Mr. Conran Smith accepting the suggestion, Mr. Sapru withdrew the resolution.

The Council adjourned till 24th March.

PARTING OF THE WAYS

PT. JAWAHAR'S ARTICLE Mahatma's Foreword

A.P. Nagpur, March 18

A.I.C.C. today published an article entitled "Parting of the Ways" (Between Britain and India) by Pandit Jawahar Nehru written on 10-6-40.

Mahatma Gandhi who in course of a foreword written 16-3-41 says, he believes the article correctly represents the Congress position in modern India though in forcible language and quotes four key paragraphs from the article—

Firstly, showing what we have been, secondly the author's love for British people, thirdly, showing how the British Government in India is sustaining the article correctly represents the Congress position in modern India though in forcible language and quotes four key paragraphs from the article—

Continuing, Mahatma says, though the author has no word about nonviolence, was led to reach the inevitable conclusion that the Independence of Pandit Jawahar's concept of Congress cannot be won except through unadulterated nonviolence of the present struggle is an attempt to keep the spirit of nonviolence alive in the midst of fratricidal inhuman carnage. It is a contribution to India's freedom, no less a contribution to world peace.

CENTRAL ASSEMBLY DISCUSSION ON FINANCE BILL

Sir James On Political Preamble
New Delhi, March 18
P. The Assembly continued the general debate on finance Bill. Sir F. E. James referred to observations made by Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru at Bombay conference wherein he pleaded for personal contact between the representatives of Britain and India. James said contact should be made not in India but in Britain. He suggested that Government of India should send some one with undoubted authority, patriotism and integrity and with positive view in this country at the same time enjoying the confidence of the British people. Such person was the late Mr. C. R. S. Meantime, it was the duty of all to try on seizing every opportunity to guide and educate the opinion in India. If it necessary he added the Executive Council should be strengthened so that some members might be released from their burden. People in the country would be glad to see more often outside Delhi. Having Government policies would personally like to see establishment of Advisory Council suggested in declaration of His Majesty's Government.

Sir Ziauddin
Sir Ziauddin Ahmed said: We should pay what we can; balance should be left to our generations. He urged an attempt should be made to determine the maximum capacity of the country. He said there was in an inevitable tax, namely expenditure incurred by the employed man in India. He said a number of unemployed and relations — a tax on connection European countries. He said Sir Ziauddin referred to one estimate putting burden of this tax between ten and ten annas in the rupee. Sir Ziauddin continuing advised levy of excise duty on salt and iron and steel industries, which, he said, were at present greatly prospering. He said the prices of staple commodities he suggested that wide in this matter should be referred to the local authorities. He said the District Magistrates and the local authorities should be announced over the radio. He also suggested where cotton dealers more than 25 percent over the price paid to the cultivators, steps should be taken to see that the excess was utilised for establishment of the census. He said in view of the instances of the Bengal Premier, it would be taken to correct

"NO SUCH THING AS IMPERIAL CITIZENSHIP"

IT IS ONLY FIGMENT OF IMAGINATION

Rt. Hon'ble Sastry's Bitter Reference to Indians Abroad

The figures or census figures should be declared null and void. He urged that at the beginning of every Assembly session members should be given an idea of Government's legislative programme and thus give time to study and consult the constituencies on important Government proposals and instanced in this regard the two tariff bills introduced today.

Concluding Sir Ziauddin suggested a number of methods to improve the working of the Supply Department so that the public confidence in it might be improved.

Mr. Amarendranath
Mr. Amarendranath Chattopadhyaya dwelt on the anomaly of having autonomous provinces and irresponsible Centre at the same time. He asked the Commerce Member for an undertaking that a programme of economic uplift would be ready within a short time. He appealed to those in charge of Government to take steps to stop exploitation so that India might be more helpful in war. Was the Supply Department, he asked, using India's resources so much for helping others that India was in danger of being left without much for herself?

Nawab Siddiq Ali
Nawab Siddiq Ali after giving an account of the negotiations between the Viceroy and Indian leaders culminating in the Viceroy's offer of 8/8/40 said Government's present silence or indifference made Muslim League believe Government did not wish to part with power. In Governors' provinces where administration was being run with the help of official advisers there was a rule of despotism. He was sure that such a state of affairs could not continue very long.

He had not concluded when the house adjourned to Thursday.

CO-ORDINATING WAR-EFFORTS

A.P. Lucknow, March, 19
Proposal for co-ordinating war activities and furthering war efforts in the Province is understood to be under consideration of the Government. Special Officers will be appointed in important towns in the province to eliminate wastefulness and diffusion of enterprise of various groups engaged in war efforts.

A.P. Madras, March 19
Whatever be our differences and grievances and sufferings it would be right to remember that a solemn duty rested upon us to strengthen the hands of those who are engaged in defence of human liberty and human welfare, declared the Rt. Hon. V. S. Srinivasa Sastry addressing the Y.M.C.A. meeting to day.

Referring to Indian nationals abroad Mr. Sastry said without equality of status with other parts of the Empire, India has no means of protecting her nationals abroad. There was no such thing as "Imperial citizenship" which he said was only a figment of imagination. Such laws as existed allowed legislatures of each self-governing unit to make laws determining who they would include in their population and gave them power to discriminate even among sections of their own population.

He added: We have got to work for equality. Once we attain it, Dominions won't have guts to discriminate against us.

ANDREWS MEMORIAL

Gandhi's Appeal For Funds

A.P. Wardhagani, March 18
Mahatma Gandhi in the course of an appeal for collection to Andrews Memorial Fund says, that Charlie Andrews was every body's friend in need. He made no distinction between high and poor or Christians and non-Christians or Englishmen and others. He ungrudgingly assisted all who were in need of his help.

Gandhiji adds Mr. Andrews found his home and self-expression in Santiniketan and no more fitting memorial could therefore be conceived than that his home should never be in want and that it should have additional funds for expansion. He makes special appeal to students, teachers, friends of labour and lovers of art to raise among them the Rs. 5 lakhs required before 15th April, the day of Andrews, death.

MR PYARELAL SENTENCED

Six Months S. I.
A.P. Wardha, Mar 19
Mr. Pyarelal, Mahatma Gandhi's Secretary, has been sentenced to six months' simple imprisonment under the Defence of India Rules. He has been recommended to be placed in B class.

DEMAND FOR INCREASE IN WAGES

'STAY-IN-STRIKE' IN MINERVA MILLS

Labourers Resume Work
Bangalore, Mar. 19
About 1600 labourers belonging to the Minerva Mills demanded an increase in their wages and sent a notice to the Management yesterday.

The Management after receipt of the notice, replied to the effect that the demand would be considered sympathetically within eight days.

It is understood that there was a "Stay-in-Strike" in the Mills throughout yesterday afternoon.

In the evening the labourers met at a gathering and decided to wait for eight days as stipulated in the reply.

Immigration to Ceylon

REGULATION AND CONTROL OF NON-CYLONESE

Bill in Ceylon State Council

A.P. Ceylon, March, 18
The State Council discussed the second reading of the Bill for regulation and control of immigration to non-Ceylonese. Messrs H. E. Newham, (nominated), and S. Nathan opposed the bill, while Mr. W. E. De Silva, Minister of Health and Mr. A. E. Goonesinghe supported. Mr. Newham declared that no section of the people of the island had a right to impose restrictions on the other. Pleading that the economic and social implications of the bill should be thoroughly examined he reiterated the suggestion that non-Ceylonese had taken away trade and commerce from the hands of Ceylonese. The non-Ceylonese, in fact, created trade and commerce in the island. Mr. Nathan declared there was no difference of opinion on this question in India that the opinion was "that Ceylon Ministers are unreasonable in their demands."

Mr. De Silva referred to the fact that the Indian Government imposed unilateral ban on emigration of labour to Ceylon. He declared the Board of Ministers stand to fight and felt sure that the people of the island would be behind them. Mr. Goonesinghe stated that the question was purely an economic one and there was no animosity toward India. He quoted statistics to show that Indians had completely captured the trade from Ceylonese and also found employment in many avenues.

The Council adjourned till tomorrow.

According to French Official News Agency there are persistent rumours that the Yugoslav Prime Minister and Foreign Minister are leaving for Berlin this afternoon by train.

DACCA DISTURBANCES

TROUBLE IN TODDY SHOP

Results in 3 Deaths and Several Injuries

A.P. Dacca, March, 18
Three persons were killed and 26 injured as a result of communal clashes and riotous assaults which began last night. The trouble is reported to have started in a toddy shop and spread to other parts of the city where communal riots broke out between the communities took place. The situation became worse in the afternoon today, when almost all shops were closed. A strong police guard is now patrolling the affected areas.

EIGHT PEOPLE DEAD

A. P. Dacca, March, 19

Total casualties in communal clashes hitherto, are eight killed and 60 injured. Rioters set fire to the goods shed of Joint Steamer Company at Baidya Tai, which was well guarded after considerable damage had been done. Several cabinet shops at Navasara also were set fire to. Almost all of them are completely gutted. Armed police are now posted at all the affected areas and the District Magistrate and Superintendent of Police and other officials are constantly touring the disturbed areas.

The rioting affected several areas this morning and clashes are reported to have occurred in many places resulting in one killed and eighteen sent to the hospital with serious injuries. One injured medical student has since died in the hospital bringing the total number of deaths to eight. Total injured are now about sixty. Casualties are also reported from different quarters of the town. Almost all educational institutions, banks and shops and other commercial concerns remain closed and streets are deserted. Sec 144 Cr. P. C. was promulgated prohibiting assembly of five or more persons.

FIRST BATCH OF VOLUNTEERS

LEFT PONDICHERY TO JOIN FREE FRENCH FORCES

A.P. Pondicherry, March 19

First batch of volunteers recruited by Government of French India to Free French forces left Pondicherry last night. The Batch which contained 37 volunteers met at Government House prior to departure where they were greeted by the Governor of French India. In the course of a message to volunteers the Governor said that they should fight with courage and optimism for ultimate success of allied nations and for early liberation of France.

THURSDAY—MARCH 20, 1941

THE POSITION OF COORG

—102—

Whether Coorg should stand alone or join any other neighbouring province, has been agitating the minds of the people of Coorg for a long time. The finances of Coorg are such that they do not suffice to enable her to stand as a separate province. It cannot be denied that there is a good deal of scope for bettering the finances of the area, by exploiting the natural resources available there. It cannot also be denied that there is a certain kind of individuality in the people of Coorg which distinguishes them from the people of neighbouring provinces. That there is administrative ability and talent in the territory cannot be disputed. In the wake of Provincial autonomy in other Indian Provinces it is but natural that people of Coorg should yearn for a province of their own. There is nothing wrong or unreasonable in this aspiration. It deserves to be encouraged by all possible means. Coorg is not in the nature of a district of a province. They are a martial race with distinct individuality in them. They may not have bulk but there is enough scope for continuing them as a unit.

Recently in the budget session of the Coorg Legislative Council the Finance Member made a reasonable proposition "Coorg has progressed materially, economically and morally since a century, which none can deny. The future of Coorg must be decided by the people of Coorg, and the Government cannot take any active part in it." We think this is reasonable. Neither the people of Mysore nor the people of North Karnataka can by their decision incorporate Coorg into Mysore or what is vaguely called as Karnataka Province. Unity of language itself is not a criterion for lumping together several districts into one province. After all, there is something which is more important than language necessary for incorporation of one district into another. Geographical convenience, transportation facilities, amenities of trade and commerce are more important than other considerations such as of culture or language. After all, all of us are of one culture. We may under a broad head call it Hindu culture. And therefore, much need not be made of language. Surely there is greater affinity between Mysore and Coorg. And Mysore would gladly welcome Coorg into her fold but the consideration should not be merely of language as we mentioned above. Other vital considerations ought to influence Coorg to join Mysore. Surely by joining Mysore, Coorg would not

MR. H. SIDDAIYA

ARRIVES IN BANGALORE

BANGALORE, March 19. Mr. H. Siddaiya, the newly elected president of the Mysore Congress arrived here this morning.

At the City Railway Station he was received by Mr. K. Pattabhiraman, General Secretary, Mr. K. Hanumanthaiya, the Municipal Councillor and other Congress Workers. Mr. Hanumanthaiya garlanded him.

Proceeds To Wardha

Mr. H. Siddaiya will proceed to Wardha to night where he will see Mahatma Gandhi and get his blessings to discharge his duties as President of the Congress. He will be back by about 23rd of March.

Mr. K. T. Bhashyam, the outgoing president of the Mysore Congress will also proceed to Wardha with the newly elected president.

lose its individuality. There is something imperishable in the characteristics of the people of Coorg which Mysore would like to preserve and foster.

More than all, the future of India and the provinces in it, is a matter which requires collective consideration of various provinces and integral units. When India blossoms into an independent country with an army of its own, there would be one All-India Government holding its sway from the Himalayas to the Cape Camorin and the Provinces and Districts would be reduced only to the position of divisions of administrative convenience. The time has come for Indians, be they Coorgies of Malayalees, or Andhras or Tamilians, or Bengales or Punjabis, to consider India as one whole and consider Indian culture and Indian civilisation as one whole. This does not mean that provinces or smaller integral unit would perish. This does not mean that Indian provincial languages would decay. This joint ought to be borne in mind in our readjustment of Indian affairs. Smaller units have to incorporate themselves in a bigger whole. History says that Coorg lost her independence because it could not successfully resist the attacks of Tipu Sultan. What we see in Europe today was enacted in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Century of India. Smaller units perished as smaller states have been perishing today in Europe. The moral leads us only to one goal and that is United India. Even when we consider the problem of Coorg let us consider of India and not of smaller units.

These ideas have occurred to us and we have given expression to them in view of undue stress on administrative unification of all the Kannada districts into one province. We understand language unification but we have to admit administrative unification is not practical under the circumstances prevailing at present. Whether it will be practicable in future is also a matter for reconsideration when the time for it comes.

SHIMOGA NOTES

(From our correspondent)

Shimoga, March, 18. Mr. H. Siddaiya, President-elect of the Mysore Congress, left for Bangalore enroute to Wardha.

On a reference made by the Sessions Court, Gourappa was tried under Section 193 I. P. C. in the first court Shimoga for giving false evidence in a certain case and the Magistrate sentenced him to undergo 4 months R. I.

A sum of Rs. 133-0-0 was collected during the week ending with 15th March towards the Mysore War Fund and the total collection so far made amounts to Rs. 48,886-8-6.

MYSORE HIGH COURT

Conviction Confirmed

Bangalore, March, 19. In the Mysore High Court, the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Venkataranga Ayyangar delivered judgement in an appeal preferred by Pashupathayya of Channapatna taluk against the conviction and sentence passed on him by the Sessions Judge for offence of grievous hurt under Section 326 I. P. C. Their Honours confirmed the conviction but reduced the sentence to the extent of setting aside the imposition of fine of Rs. 200. Pashupathayya had been sentenced by the Sessions Judge to undergo 18 months rigorous imprisonment and to pay Rs. 200 fine.

The prosecution alleged that Pashupathayya caused injuries on 26-6-40 as a result of quarrel, to his cousin, Subbarayappa, who succumbed, and therefore charged him for culpable homicide not amounting to murder under Section 304 I. P. C. The Sessions Judge held that the accused had caused grievous hurt only and sentenced him. On appeal, the sentence was reduced by the High Court as stated above.

An Abduction Appeal Disposed of

Bangalore, March, 19. In the Mysore High Court, the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Venkataranga Ayyangar delivered judgement in an abduction appeal case.

The prosecution alleged that Kariya alias Krishnappa of Mooravalli, Mudiger taluk, Kador district, abducted, on the night of 2-11-40, Chickamma, aged 17 while she was spreading her bed, and attempted to force her to marry him. The Sessions Judge, who tried the case, sentenced the accused for 4 years rigorous imprisonment under Section 366 I. P. C.

On appeal to the High Court, their Honours quashed the lower court's judgement on the ground that there was no substantial evidence to show that Chickamma did go with the accused against her will.

Mr. P. Raghavendra Rao appeared for the appellant and the Advocate-General for Government.

DEWAN

BANGALORE, Mar. 19. The Dewan regrets that he will not be able to see visitors at the Public Offices on the morning of Friday the 21st instant owing to other engagements.

SRI KRISHNARAJENDRA WODEYAR

IS SCRUPULOUS LOYALTY TO TRADITIONS OF CONSTITUTIONAL MONARCHY

(By D. V. GUNDAPPA)

In view of the high tribute paid to our late Maharaja in the Chamber of Princes by H.E. the Viceroy and Jam Sahab of Nawabpur, the following article would make a timely reading:—

Warm-hearted tributes have been paid to the qualities that shone in the life and character of the late Maharaja of Mysore. His love for the Motherland, his devotion to his people, his keeness of eye for the good and the noble in the lives of the East and the West, his sensitiveness to the call of music and sculpture, his delight in the beauties of nature, his devotion to the religion of his ancestors, his understanding sympathy for the best in the life of all men, his private life, all have evoked praise from all quarters. I should like to refer to two traits of his character, the Sovereign and Ruler of a State.

Traditions of Constitutional Monarchy

The first was his scrupulous loyalty to the traditions of constitutional monarchy bequeathed him by his great father. The Government of Mysore, as conceived and instituted at the time of the resuscitation of her self in 1881, was a constitutional monarchy. It was no doubt a elementary kind of constitution; there could be no missing of constitutional character. The Sovereign was to act in all public matters on the advice and under the agency of duly appointed Ministers; and these Ministers had to work in consultation with a body representative of the people. The elements of a Cabinet system were thus unmistakably, though not guarantee of permanence for further development. No more important could be done by the Sovereign without the immutability of the Ministers without reference through them to the Assembly representative of the public. In other words, the Ministry became the principal means for the expression of the power of the State, accepting guidance and control from the Sovereign on the one hand, and guided by suggestion and criticism from popular representatives on the other side, the Ministry was to be the chief of the Ministry to bear the burden of public administration, exercising initiative and judgement on its own responsibility in a major part of the work of governance. It was not the Sovereign to make himself personally responsible, in the eyes of the public, for any commission or omission. This responsibility was, in practice, to be shouldered by his Ministers. It was his privilege to advise them, to caution them and to smoothen their path. But he was neither to compel their hands, nor to interfere with them. Subject to his general supervision and control, their movement was to be free and spontaneous. They were not bound to obey his commands, but it was expected of him that he should so moderate his individuality, so restrain his impulses, so act by himself, and so organize the use of authority that his character as free and unimpaired. Sovereign authority and Ministerial liberty had to work in a delicate state of mutual understanding and adjustment. It was impossible to define their respective spheres in terms so precise and so exhaustive that there could be no need for personal equations and temperamental accommodations. Great thus was the need for imaginative understanding and trustful goodwill on both sides. This psychological demand of the situation, it may naturally be expected to have been more easy for the Minister to meet than it was for the Sovereign. The Minister was after all the servant, appointed and removable from office at will. The Ruler was the complete master of the situation. And yet, such was the good sense and such the regard for constitutional rectitude and such also the capacity for self-restraint which characterized the two Sovereigns who preceded the late Maharaja, that the administration of Sir K. Seshadri Iyer could go on without a hitch for nearly 18 years, and carry out many courageous projects for the building up of the country. There was, however, something special in the circumstances of that period to induce an attitude of self-restraint on the part of the Sovereign. The administration was in a formative stage for a larger part of the reign of Sri Chamaraja Wodeyar (1881-94). Previous policies had to be revised, and programmes had to be framed anew. Everything was in a state of transition. The Maharaja was young. It was thus only natural that he showed much deference to the more experienced Dewan. After him, his Queen who became the Regent was a lady of remarkable shrewdness and circumspection; and she appreciated the need there was for accepting guidance from the zealous Dewan who had already proved his worth. But no such special circumstances were there to recommend a policy of self-restraint to the Sovereign in his relations with the Minister when his late Highness Sri Krishnaraja Wodeyar came to the throne (1902). The administration had by then come into good working order, like a well-oiled and carefully handled machine. The Departments had been rationally organized; and their laws and regulations had been elaborated. The policies and purposes of the Government had come to be generally understood and appreciated. Traditions had been formed both for the Government and for the public. The Maharaja came to his great office perfectly fitted for it by education and training. He was full of energy and enthusiasm for his exalted duties, and had a serious sense of his own "individual responsibility" for the Government of the State, as may be seen from the speech he delivered to the first session of the Representative Assembly that met in his time. Everything thus was conducive to a course of self-assertion on his part in the work of Government. And yet he preferred to tread the path of constitutional self-restraint in the manner of his illustrious parents. The State knows not a single instance of his having acted otherwise than through his Ministers, or of his having interfered with the freedom of their judgment or arbitrarily overruled their recommendations. No doubt, he did often enough see things from points of view different from theirs. His sense of the relative values of things did not always coincide with theirs. But when such differences arose on important issues, he was content with indicating his personal views to the Dewan and asking the Ministers to re-examine the matter in the light of those views and submit their own independent recommendations once again. The responsibility of advising and cautioning was his; but that of deciding after a full consideration was usually theirs. The orders that issued finally represented not the individual opinion of the Sovereign, but the considered opinion of the Council.

Confidence To The Ministers

He was able to give so much of his confidence to the ministers because of the very great care he had exercised in selecting them for office. It was at this initial point in the forming of an administration that all his insight into the character of men, his evaluation of their merits and his sense of their suitability to the circumstances of the time came into full play. That his choice fell on men not of the usual type and not in the running according to public expectation for the Dewanship, on an engineer like Sir M. Visvesvaraya and on one not in the regular line of general administration like Sir Mirza Ismail, is eloquent testimony to the independence of his judgment as well as to the keenness of his capacity for evaluation. Having selected men with so much care and judgment, he saw that simple fairness required him to give them free scope to put forth the very best they had in them for the service of his State. Carefully to choose and wakefully to trust was his motto.

Importance of the Ministry

This unflinching sense, in the late Maharaja, of the importance of the Ministry as the instrument of Government appears as something unique when we remember how Ministers have fared in many Indian States. There are Rulers who have tried to do without a Dewan at all. In many States the tenure of the Dewan is a precarious one; and in many others, the functions of that office are barely those of a Secretary. If Mysore in this respect has differed from Bikaner and Baroda, we owe it altogether to the Mysore Maharaja's ingrained sense of constitutional propriety. It is to this sense that we have to attribute the Mysore Maharaja's refusal of the seat offered him in the Chamber of Princes in 1919. His instinct led him to see the wisdom of Bagehot's dictum that the monarch should "never seem to struggle."

"When a monarch can bless, it is best that he should not be touched. It should be evident that he does no wrong. He should not be brought too closely to real measurement. He should be aloof and solitary. The Nation is divided into parties, but the Crown is of no party. Its apparent separation from business is that which removes it both from enemies and from desecration, which preserves its mystery, which enables it to combine the affection of conflicting parties to be a viable symbol of unity to those still so imperfectly educated as to need a symbol."

The late Maharaja of Mysore had a firm hold on the truth of this observation and that saved him from being betrayed into positions that would have exposed him and his actions to the corrosive blasts of public controversy. He realized that the Minister held a place as distinct and vital as the Sovereign in the mechanism of the State, and would not put himself forward to fill the role that properly belonged to the Minister. His part rather was to strengthen the Minister for his ministerial role. All the public approbation and prestige which his own personal virtues had earned for him, he was glad to lend to the support of the Ministers. Not unoften when the Government's popularity had for one reason or another waned or there were premonitions of a demonstration of public disapproval, such as might damage the Government's prestige, it was the Maharaja's personal prestige that kept the Ministers in countenance and helped them to ride over the situation. The Ministers' own deserts were a separate matter. If they had done badly, they were dealt with duly, but in a manner that could not affect the standing and reputation of the Government as Government.

All Indian Range Of Patriotism

The second distinguishing trait of the late Maharaja was the All-Indian range of his patriotism. His own beloved State of Mysore was to him but a single room, though his own room in the vast mansion of Mother India. He had made a pilgrimage to the Motherland from Kailas to Kanyakumari, and felt the charm of every part of it. He had formed personal contacts with representative public men and leaders of thought and culture in various Provinces. The finest blossoming of Mysore's life was to him in her fulfilling a worthy life in the larger life of India. It was in this view that he, naturally a shy man whose one great anxiety at all times was to avoid publicity, persuaded himself into accepting the Chancellorship of the Benares Hindu University at its inception. This is what he said, addressing the first Convocation of that University in 1919:

"This University is the most striking manifestation of India's effort at self-determination and self-expression..... The Benares University should develop such a culture in its widest sense as the embodiment of a New and United India, and should aim at a definite preparation for future citizenship in the largest sense of the term."

The same spirit actuated the Maharaja in his thoughts about political reforms for his own State. In inaugurating the 1924 Reforms he observed:

"India..... is shaping into a Federation. We in Mysore from, as it were, a nation within a nation. While co-operating with both the Government of India and the rest of the Indian public in measures which lead to the prosperity of the country as a whole, we in our local sphere should promote education etc.,

Faith in Destiny of India

It was the faith of his in the destiny of India as one nation that impelled him to stand up for the idea of Federation earlier than other members of the Princely Order. In July 1921, when no Round Table Conferences had been dreamt of, the late Maharaja, addressing Viceroy Lord Irwin at a banquet in Mysore, said:

"I and my brother Princes have long felt that one of the most urgent, if not the most urgent problem in India today, is the place the Indian States are to fill in the constitution of the future. We had felt, until your Excellency's advent on the scene, that there was a disinclination to grapple with a problem that seemed to present innumerable difficulties..... And we sincerely hope that, as a result of the conversations which your Excellency is inaugurating in this matter..... a way may be found in which it will be open to us to play an honourable part as partners with the British Provinces in whatever form of Federal Government may hereafter be decided upon."

Cause of Federation

It is tempting to exaggerate claim on his behalf to say that the strength and persistence of the late Maharaja's advocacy of the cause of Federation helped to make it a live issue and secured for it the serious attention of the British Government and of the Princely Order.

Constitutionalist and Nationalist

Constitutionalist and Nationalist as he was, his politics had for its basis a certain upward looking disposition of the soul. He was ever on a quest after Dharma. Life's experiences had filled him with a vivid and constant sense of the limited values of the things of this world. He was a boy of ten years when he lost his father. Cares fell on him thick with the process of years. Loneliness must be the lot of any serious-minded man in circumstances so trying, and doubly so the lot of one born to sit on a throne. Fancy would like to speculate what might have been his future if his father Sri Chamarajendra Wodeyar of blessed memory, instead of meeting with an untimely death in 1894 (in his 31st year), had lived on to 1904, and had been persuaded to leave the son free to choose his career. Would not the son have expressed preference for a life of enlightened leisure and reposeful contemplation for himself, recommending his more active-natured younger brother for the onerous duties of kingship? The late Maharaja was a lover of great solitudes and great silences, a man who loved to brood and to penetrate to the mystery of Life, one who sought to commune with Nature and realize the One Essence behind her phantasmagoria. He was such a one among Princes as might have been singled out by Plato for approbation. He belongs to the company of Asoka and Aurelius, with the splendour of the Crown made mellow by the wrinkles on the brow.

BANGALORE CITY—THURSDAY MARCH 20, 1941

(FOUR PAGES)

THE CHAMBER OF PRINCES

Deliberations Conclude

Various Knotty Problems Discussed
A.P. New Delhi, March 18

On the motion of the Chancellor Jam Saheb of Nawanagar who was supported by Rajah of Bhor the Chamber adopted amendments first to regulations as an appendix to Constitution of Chamber. The Chamber next considered the resolution relating to the demand of Princes for closer association with Centre in War Effort Jam Saheb moving the resolution said exigencies of the situation demanded liaison States with war effort of the Central, particularly spheres of defence, supplies and industries might be ensured on a regular basis and not through Adhoc Committees set up for the specific purposes Jam Saheb said while British India might be said to have liaison with war activities at the Centre through the Government of India, States were out of the picture. He requested that in the best interests of British India and States and the Empire such a state of affairs should not be allowed to continue any longer. The Resolution was supported by Nawab of Rampur and Maharaja of Dewas (Junior) and adopted. The Chamber of Princes heard a statement from its Chancellor on the work performed by the Chamber during the last year. In the course of the statement the Chancellor referred to the administrative reforms and beneficent activities of States and said that States with 87.4 percent of the total population of States who were members of Chamber had local bodies in their territories States with 67.9 percent population got Legislative Assemblies where of 35.3 percent have majority elected members and 3.9 percent had equality of elected and nominated members of Assemblies. 89.9 percent population already got benefit of High Courts while States representing 93.3 percent of total population had efficient police forces supervised by competent officers. General incidence of taxation in States has also been compared and found to be lower than that of adjoining British Indian Provinces.

Referring to other activities of the Chamber, Jam Saheb said difficulties arising out of Indian Income Tax Amendment Act so far as it affected the States were under negotiation with the Government of India.

The Chancellor next referred to the question of eligibility of Indian States subjects for service in British India and said negotiations were in progress to secure general declaration of eligibility for States for appointments under the Central Government and Secretary of State. On the motion of the Ruler of Rampur the Chamber adopted a resolution thanking the Chancellor for his working during year.

PRINCES WELCOME DECLARATION OF AUGUST 8

They Will Not Be Found Wanting
A.P. New Delhi, March 18

Princes in their reply to the Viceroy's inaugural address said they were not averse to ordered progress in India. We wish however to avoid raising any big controversial matters during the present crisis and concentrate all energies on the main purpose of successful prosecution of war. We have accordingly decided not to pass any formal resolution this year on the political situation so far as it affects the States. At the same time we whole-heartedly welcome the declaration made by His Excellency on 8-8-40 and its elucidation in the House of Commons by the Secretary of State for India. Indian Princes will not be found wanting in any reasonable contribution which they might be called on to make for the discharge of their obligations to the Crown and towards ordered progress in their States and in their mother land.

Referring to the Viceroy's suggestions regarding desirability of smaller States co-operating and combining in matters of administration, they said this question had been receiving careful and active consideration. We take it that Your Excellency's suggestions are intended to encourage co-operation on a voluntary basis having due regard to local conditions, in certain services of administration without impairing integrity and sovereignty of the States concerned. We regard to this it is essential that the proposed combination should proceed on free consent and voluntary co-operation of Rulers themselves and it would not be rigidly limited to geographical boundaries, if a group order it, it may inspire mutual confidence and trust. At the same time there should not be a fetish for any rigidity of pattern in the matter of such importance.

Princes Chamber adjourned sine die.

CHAMBER OF PRINCES

Resolution About War Effort

A.P. New Delhi, March 18

The Chamber of Princes concluded its two-day-session after passing two resolutions, the first recording its heartfelt gratification at the recent brilliant victories of Imperial and Allied forces in Africa and Albania and the inspiring stand of England against brutal Nazi air raids. The Chamber recorded the pride that Indian troops played such magnificent part in these achievements and requested Lord Linlithgow to convey to His Majesty's Government and that "dauntless soldier-statesman, the Prime Minister of United Kingdom" the Chamber's sincere congratulations and reiterated the Chamber's determination to continue to put forth best effort.

The second resolution recommended to the Viceroy that "in order to further enhance the value of war effort of States and India as a whole, necessary action may be taken without delay with a view to associating the representatives of States with the activities at the Centre through reviving the proposal for the establishment of War Advisory Council with representatives of States and Provincial Governments or through any other alternative.

The Chancellor, Jam Saheb moving the war resolution said that the inspiring stand of England against the brutal Nazi air raids and the brilliant victories of imperial and allied troops in Africa and Albania wherein Indian troops played such magnificent part caused widespread gratification and he felt we were entitled to share these rejoicings with the rest of the Empire. He said the resolution reiterated the determination of the Indian Princes to continue to put forth their best efforts for the achievement of the final victory. This declaration had been already translated into action. Up-to-date collections from States in cash for the various war purposes fund upto the end of January 1941 amounted approximately to Rs. 181,92,000 non-recurring and Rs. 41,71,000 recurring. In addition contributions to interest-free bonds amounted Rs. 113 lakhs and to three percent defence bonds to Rs. 66 lakhs.

He concluded: "To my mind it will be denial of the best traditions of States and the history of India if in the face of this clarion call of duty from the suffering humanity India faltered or hesitated."

The Ruler of Patiala seconding the resolution and said that the courage of the British people was a living monument of the glory of Great Britain.

MILITARY CONFERENCE OF RULERS

A.P. New Delhi, March, 18

A communique states: Military Conference of Rulers and representatives of States maintaining Indian State Forces was held today in the Committee Room of the Chamber of Princes.

His Highness the Maharaja Jamsaheb of Nawanagar, Chancellor of the Chamber of Princes, presided at the beginning and later His Highness the Maharaja Saheb of Patiala presided.

The Conference discussed certain matters relating to Indian States Forces with a view to enhance the value of their co-operation during the war. A unanimous decision was reached which will be taken up by His Highness the Chancellor with the authorities concerned.

FRIDAY—MARCH 21, 1941

THE CHAMBER OF PRINCES

We have persued with great interest the proceedings of the Chamber of Princes with the speeches that were delivered there including that of His Excellency the Viceroy. We are very grateful to the appreciative references made by His Excellency the Viceroy and His Highness the Chancellor Jam Sahab of Nawanganar, to our late Maharaja Sri Krishnarajendra Wodeyar Bahadur. We hope our readers would have read with interest and attention the learned article by Mr. D. V. Gundappa on the late Maharaja published in our yesterday's issue. It is a reprint from the well-known periodical "Triveni". We consider that article to be a masterpiece of Mr. D. V. Gundappa. It is an article full of instruction to all the Rulers of Indian States. If it were possible we would make copies of Mr. D. V. Gundappa's article available to every Ruling Prince of India and his advisers. It is not with any sense of false patriotism that we say so. An intelligent man who would read that article cannot but come to the same conclusion. As days pass on and as months roll by the life of the late Krishnaraja Wodeyar casts an ever lengthening shadow on the face of this land. The loss that India has suffered by his death will be increasingly felt in the days ahead of us. We wish a copy of Mr. D. V. Gundappa's article were placed in the hands of Lord Linlithgow. It would do even him good to go through it.

Now to come back to the proceedings of the Chamber of Princes, we have to express our sense of disappointment at it. There is nothing of outstanding interest in it excepting that the Chamber has reaffirmed its faith in all that the British Government has been doing with not as much as a breath of dissent from it. They have welcomed the declaration of August 8. Of what value is that welcome we ask? Have not the Princes been observing what has been going on in India? Have they been reading newspapers? Have they been alive to the controversy that has been raging in the Press and on the platform about India and the War? Do the Princes sincerely believe that there is nothing for them to bother about, as to the national movement going on under Mahatma Gandhi's guidance? Are they not aware of the proceedings of the Indian National Congress? Leaders of Congress where a man like Sir Tej Bahadur

STATE EMERGENCY COMMISSIONS

BANGALORE, Mar. 19. Applications are invited from candidates of the Mysore State who are desirous of applying for State Emergency Commissions in the Indian States forces units of States other than Mysore. Appointments will be for the duration of war and six months after. Candidates should have at least passed the S. S. L. C. examination (or any other equivalent examination.)

Their ages should be between 19 and 30 years.

Applications should reach the undersigned on or before the 29th March 1941 in the prescribed form.

Terms and conditions of service may be ascertained by the intending candidates from the Assistant Secretary to Government, General and Miscellaneous Branch (General and Revenue Secretariat) during office hours.

Mr. Sapru deplored the attitude of British Government. Coming nearer home, their own people, how have some of these Princes been dealing with them? It is not for us in this article to dwell at length on the agitation of the States people for responsible Government. We would only ask these Princes who participated in the deliberations of the Chamber to give a straight answer to the question if they have responded to the aspirations of their people? The answer is clear. There can be no doubt about it.

Considering all these aspects we are filled with a sense of grief about the attitude of the Princely order in general. They think only of their paraphernalia and their salute guns. They have no thought, even if they have any, they have not shown it in their actions, for their people. The people of the States have been looking forward in vain for a gesture from the Princes. The times are being changing, the clocks are striking, the hour has come for them to take a forward step in identifying themselves with their people and marching with them shoulder to shoulder with British India towards the goal of free India. Will the Princes respond to the call of the hour? We shall wait and watch.

Tahsildar and Satyagrahis—Hot-weather wear—No Marriage with College Students—Cinema Tickets Lead to Arrest—Menace Pathans and Loudspeakers.

The following conversation is published in a Madras daily. It took place between the Tahsildar of Proddatur taluk and anti-war Satyagrahis of the place.

Tahsildar:—Why have you come here?

Satyagrahis:—For doing anti-war-propaganda.

Tahsildar: (With some abusive epithet)

You will be booted if you move in my taluk.

Satyagrahis:—It does not matter.

Tah:—You rogues, to beat you is no worse than beating dogs. Get out from my presence.

Satyagrahis:—Come what may, we shall do our duty and we will risk our lives and all in doing our duty.

At this stage there were about two hundred villagers present on the spot and they were getting angry with the ungentlemanly behaviour of the Tahsildar. The Satyagrahis, at this point, begged and persuaded the villagers to non-violent and the villagers immediately responded. The Tahsildar left the place immediately.

The attitude of the Tahsildar is indeed very offensive. I do not know if the Government should allow their tahsildars to run riot in this fashion. The Satyagrahis cannot of course take offence at this, but the average man in the street cannot put up with this nonsense. I hope the Governor of Madras would put down his foot promptly on such attitudes of his tahsildars.

The following letter to the Editor of a Calcutta paper makes an interesting reading:

Sir—As a woman, who during the hot weather can discard stockings, and at all times enjoys a bare neck, I plead for the men of Calcutta, who continue to wear what Ling Yutung in "The Importance of Living" quaintly calls "The dog-collar of the West."

Through the hot weather one sees collars and ties. One also sees boils on men's necks. Sports shirts with open neck might prevent that sight. For some of the Lordly Ones in aircooled offices the sports shirt idea is outrageous. They think men would seem slovenly if so dressed. Surely they should realize that less fortunate males would be healthier and work better if dressed suitably for the climate.

Must there be so much uniformity? Is it vanity, or lack of self confidence, that makes men cling ridiculously to old conventions?

I trust that some men with personality may now have courage to show an open neck. They might then throw glances of pity on the old staggers, still consciously miserable in Bond Street neckwear during the scorching months.

Such unconventionality would not affect "prestige" one iota. On the contrary, like anything really sensible, it would evoke admiration—Yours, etc.

DECOLLETTÉ

This tyranny of fashion is responsible for a good deal of human misery. Not to speak of waste, wearing neckwear in hot season is indeed unbearable, that too in the Calcutta. Our young men would to discard the western dress, at least, in summer, to protect Bengal's health in this respect. Mostly, as to their provincial attitude.

Here is an interesting news which, I am sure, will make our College Students and think. The news is Sakur in Sind:

The death of a young girl of a College student, under suspicious circumstances had been reported today when H. H. of Sukkur met in the Nari and passed a resolution that girl should ever come forward marry the College student—Vishindas, so that he should main single all his life.

By a second resolution, it was decided that Saturday was observed as a day of atonement when the women of the town should fast and pray for the parted soul who might not find peace.

The police have arrested Vishindas on suspicion.

It is stated that the daughter was not very fair, and that account the husband's love her.

In big cities wonderful things happen. There are thieves who steal shoes, quite new as well as old shoes. Cycle theft is very common. Pickpocketing is rampant. More so in city like Calcutta. Here in instance of two men who Cinema tickets and were arrested with three months imprisonment. Here is the story:

Samuel Biswas and Roy have been sentenced three months rigorous imprisonment each by Mr. J. B. Fifth Presidency Magistrate on charges of pick-pocketing, abetment, respectively, in a complaint of Mr. N. D. Roy.

Mr. Rosario stated that on evening of November 18, he was travelling in Lower Circular Road, containing a ten-rupee note and two cinema tickets were taken from his pocket. He accused was standing by in the bus. He immediately went to the cinema concerned and reported the matter. Under advice of the cinema management, he again went to cinema for the 9-30 p.m. performance and found the seats occupied by the two men who had reserved. He immediately had the two men arrested and constable.

I congratulate the management of Madras on its purported to deal with "menace" of Pathan lenders in the City and to prevent the "menace" caused by the "menace" by loud speakers in public both in the City and Mofussil.

One can write about the "menace" of Pathan lenders. They threaten intimidation and personal violence and (See page 1)

well-known public men in Mr. Jazadish Prasad, Mr.

have been interesting themselves in the question of finding means to end the political crises has been discussed. According to reports current here, Mr.

acity as a public man not identified with any political party has just communicated to the Government a tentative plan for reconstruction of the Government on national lines. The Government

his attitude was one of sympathy in any efforts may be made to bring together for ending the deadlock evidently the Viceroy will commit himself on any points raised by Mr. Srinivasan formula. After this Mr. Srinivasan went to Bombay to meet Mr. C. P. Rajagopalachari. Later he met B. Sapur at Allahabad and returned to New Delhi he had long talk with Mr. Jinnah and was pleased from him of view. This talk, it was, very satisfactory, it was told that Mr. Jinnah was in a conciliatory mood and had a desire to come to an understanding with other part from New Delhi Mr. K.

The zeal and initiative shown by the new Commander-in-Chief, General Auchinleck, has greatly impressed the members of the Central Legislature. Expression was given to it by Sardar Sant Singh in the Assembly in the Budget debate early this week. As the request has been publicly made in the Assembly to the Commander-in-Chief that he should visit the Commander-in-Chief will break another existing practice and show his readiness to address the members of the Assembly also whenever he finds it possible. A suitable opportunity may present itself when the resolution congratulating the Indian troops in the Middle East on their brilliant successes is discussed in the Assembly. So far we have had only assurances from the Commander-in-Chief no definite schemes yet for implementing these assurances. For instance it is not yet known what exactly is proposed to be done for bringing the Defence Department and the Central Legislature together to facilitate a closer understanding. Still a few speeches of the Commander-in-Chief have shown an underlying feeling of sincerity and earnestness, the members are content to wait for the present and hope for the best. His Excellency's desire to meet members personally and discuss Defence questions with them has been particularly appreciated. It is in pleasant contrast to the policy of aloofness adopted by his predecessor who used to keep himself away even from the sittings of the Council.

Let me now turn to the Budget debates which have been going on for nearly two weeks in the two Houses. With reference to the new taxation proposals one constructive suggestion which has been made is that the Government should take necessary steps to prevent the dumping by Japan of artificial silk piece goods into India. It appears that Japanese manufacturers have not been slow to take advantage of the position created by the enhancement of the duty on artificial silk yarn. They have raised the price of nearly fifteen percent of the artificial silk yarn exported to India in an indirect form of subsidy for the Japanese manufacturer of artificial silk piece goods. As the combined effect of the enhancement of the duty and the increase in price of artificial silk yarn works out to about forty percent this makes a big difference for the handloom weaver dealing in imported artificial silk yarn as against the imported artificial silk piece goods. The demand has therefore been made that a corresponding duty should be imposed on imports of artificial silk piece goods. The reply of the Finance Member on this point though it could not be described as a decided negative showed that he was not willing to admit that the handloom industry would suffer materially. Since then representations have been made to him by various commercial bodies explaining the need and the urgency of a corresponding duty on artificial silk piece goods. It is not therefore unlikely that which the clauses of the Finance Bill are discussed the Finance Member will promise to reconsider the matter and see what can be done.

As already indicated in your columns, the Government of India have now decided to appoint two more Trade Commissioners in foreign countries. One will have his headquarters in Canada, and the other in South America both the appointments for the period of the war. There is also the likelihood that very soon a Trade Commissioner will be attached to the Office of the Indian High Commissioner in South Africa. Though these appointments have been considerably delayed, the general feeling in Assembly circles is that it is 'better late than never'. It is hoped that these appointments will not be allowed to be appropriated by the Services, idly if they are to serve their purpose effectively, persons with commercial experience who understand the problems of export trade and are in close touch with the trading community should be preferred. As men with such experience are available in large numbers their claims deserve the attention of the Commerce Department. Another suggestion which has been made is that the representative of the Government of India in the Eastern Group Council should have an unofficial committee of businessmen and industrialists associated with him for advice and consultation on the important problems coming before the Council.

In this connection the City Police have filed a petty Case under the Police Act against Mr. Lakshminarayananappa before the Second City Magistrate.

The Sri Thyagaraja San'ee'ta Sabha, Mysore held a meeting on last Saturday and constituted a committee with the following members to make necessary arrangements to hold the Sri Thyagaraja Aradhanotsava regularly every week

Mr. T. S. Ananthamurthy, the Second City Magistrate convicted and sentenced one Abdul Rahim alias Sheik for an offence of theft in three different places within eight days.

The prosecution alleged that the accused on 11-2-41, 16-2-41 and 19-2-41 committed theft of metal maund from the fuel depot of Mr. Krishnaswami Naidu at Dharmaraja Temple, and Iron jack and cutting flyer from a lorry in Makkalabasavannagudi Road and original ornamental radiator cap from a car in Shantaveerappa Lane respectively.

The Magistrate hearing the case sentenced the accused to suffer R. I. for a period of two years in each case and ordered the sentences to run concurrently.

Mr. S. Srikantaiya, the First Class, Magistrate convicted and sentenced one Narasimhamurthy for an offence of theft.

The prosecution alleged that the accused on 19-12-40 committed theft of a Blackbird Fountainpen from the coat pocket of Periyanna and was subsequently caught by one Mr. Gangadharaiya at Kumbarpet.

The Magistrate hearing the case sentenced the accused to suffer R. I. for six months.

The Methodist Mission, Boston, Boston, Massachusetts, presented a document to the Mr. H. L. Linscott, president of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and urged the adoption of the same.

Among other items of programme the students staged 'Mano tappodavani' a social play.

The function came to a close with the singing of 'Mare Anthem'.

BENARES CONSTITUTIONAL REFORMS

—101—

The newspapers have published a summary of the constitutional reforms of the Benares State. We are interested in that, because Dr. Sachindranath Sinha, has been responsible for these reforms. At one stage, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru had something to do with them. But subsequently, he kept out of it. The important recommendations of the Committee are the following:

The executive authority in the Benares State shall vest in the Maharaja who will be assisted by a Cabinet composed of (1) a Dewan and will be the President of the Cabinet, (2) a Councillor and (3) a Minister. The Dewan and the Councillor will be appointed by the Maharaja and will be ex-officio members of the Praja Mandal.

The Minister will be selected by the Maharaja from amongst the elected members of the Mandal and the Maharaja will have the power to remove him.

There will be a Legislature for the State which will consist of the Maharaja and a chamber called the Praja Mandal. The Praja Mandal will be composed of 26 members. The Dewan and the Councillor will be ex-officio members, five will be nominated by the Maharaja and 19, including four Muslims, will be elected.

Elections to the Praja Mandal will be by a joint electorate with reservation of seats for Muslims.

For each village or group of villages comprising 2,000 inhabitants there will be a village panchayat consisting of five members elected from amongst the villagers residing therein. Village panchayats will have statutory powers to deal with petty civil and criminal cases, village sanitation and other cognate matters. For each district there will be a zila panchayat which will replace the present district board.

For each town there will be a nagar panchayat which will replace the present Municipal board.

The ordinary terms of the Praja Mandal will be three years. The Dewan will be ex-officio president of the Praja Mandal. The members of the Mandal will elect a deputy president from amongst themselves.

It will not be lawful without the previous sanction of the Maharaja to introduce at any meeting of the Praja Mandal, any measures affecting the public debt or public revenues, the discipline and maintenance of

MYSORE ROYAL PRINCESS TO WED

ALLIANCE WITH A RULING FAMILY IN INDIA

Wedding on June 12th

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, March 21. The Marriage of our First Royal Princess Vijayalakshamma Wodeyar with the Thakore Sahib of Kotda Sanghani will be celebrated on a grand scale on Thursday June 12th 1941 at the Palace, Mysore.

This is the first time in the history of Mysore that a Royal Princess is given in marriage to a Ruling Prince in Northern India.

His Highness the Thakore Sahib of Kotda Sanghani is familiar to the people of Mysore. He underwent his administrative training here and is known for his sweet temper, affability and high-mindedness.

Kotda Sanghani belongs to the Western India group of States.

H. H. THE MAHARAJA Arrives In Bangalore

Bangalore, March 21. H. H. the Maharaja arrived this morning from Mysore by car. It is understood that he will receive H. E. Sir Claude Auchinleck the Commander-in-Chief, in audience.

HER HIGHNESS THE MAHARANI Leaves For Mysore

Bangalore, March 21. Her Highness the Maharani Sri Satyaprema Devi arrived here this morning from Bombay by Madras Mail. Rajasentalaka A. V. Subramanyarajus and Camp Officer Mr. A. Venkatasubbaiah also arrived in the same train.

It will be recalled that Her Highness the Maharani had accompanied His Highness to Delhi and Bombay. Her Highness stayed at Bombay for a week more and she now returned to Bangalore.

Her Highness the Maharani of Mysore left for Mysore by car.

the police force of the State, or the relations with Paramount Power or other States.

The most important recommendation is that with regard to the Dewan and other Ministers. From what we see above, the Dewan and a Councillor will be appointed by the Maharaja. The Minister will be selected by the Maharaja from amongst the elected members of the Praja Mandal. And the Maharaja will have the power to remove him.

This constitution is more reactionary than the New Mysore constitution. And as such we have no enthusiasm to deal at length with the Benares Reforms.

In the matter of Village Panchayats, we are told that they will have statutory powers to deal with petty Civil and Criminal cases, village sanitation and other cognate matters.

We appreciate the recommendation in respect of village panchayats regarding the statutory powers to deal with petty Civil and Criminal cases. This is a very healthy reform. We hope the Mysore authorities also would introduce a reform of this nature in respect of village Panchayats.

Mr. ELLIS. R. DUNGAN

READ WHAT 'NAGARA SANCHARI' WRITES ABOUT HIM

Bangalore, Mar. 21

The following is a translation of "TANUADU" Nagarasanchari Diary of yesterday's issue about Mr. Ellis Dungan the Film Director.

Thursday, 20-3-1941

To sit at a table with Film-folk and partake of the dainty luscious dishes that are spread there is a pleasure that anyone would love immensely. I had the unique opportunity of meeting Mr. Ellis R. Dungan, the celebrated Director of our popular Tamil films at a nice dinner party in a friend's house. The gentleman who got up this party was a film enthusiast himself. He is Mr. K. V. Nagaraja Rao the Proprietor of the Indo Foreign Film Exchange. Nice Dinner, nice chat and added to these charms all about Film Stars were the highlights of our spree. Who has it and who has not. The provocations of a Film Heroine the love lorns of a raging star and thousand other items of the romantic Silver Screen formed the subject of our "conversation."

x x x

Mr. Dungan looks young. I don't think he has passed 30 or 32 summers. He has a fine personality. To behold his sweet youthful look is a pleasure indeed. Personality goes hand in hand with his versatility. This has been true with the honoured guest of the evening. From America to Japan, and from there to India. Again from India to England. From there across the Atlantic—such Globe—Trotting has been Mr. Dungan's pleasurable pastime. He has wandered round the World several times. His scintillant English fascinates those who hear him. He can speak to you in calm measured tone or race like the Tootan Express. He knows Tamil also, having directed five or six Tamil Films.

Americans to eat Happala and Sandige and Indians like me to begin dinner with Tomato soup are jokes that would fill the mythical columns of the "Punch". The western mode of dinners begin with the soup of the soup. After the soup course other things follow and the finale of the dinner is brought about by a steaming cup of coffee. But in our "Samaradhana" we arrange the courses with Rice, Toffee, Kolambu, Sattu, Chutnam, Payasa and lastly rice with curds.

Student Cyclist's Tragic End—A Bullock Cart Drowning Tragedy—Fatal Faint in a Bus—Dining Hall Distinctions Abolished

When one opens a morning newspaper it is not often that he comes across accounts of tragic happenings. They are small happenings but all the same give a clue to the tragic aspect of life. Men and women boarding a bus in great enthusiasm to attend a marriage party and on the way due to an ugly accident being killed, has happened more than once and it brings home once again the poet's saying, "plans of men and mice gang a-gley."

Here are one or two incidents that I read in the morning paper. A student was the victim of a traffic accident in Madras. How it happened is really tragic. It is stated that a lorry loaded with gravel was proceeding towards Tanjaval Park and the student was riding a bicycle in the opposite direction. When he found that the wheel chain came off, he got down to set it right. But, finding that the lorry was approaching him, it is stated the student wanted to get to the extreme right of the road. The lorry, too, is stated to have swerved to the left in an effort to avoid him with the result that it dashed against the bicycle. The student, who was pushed down, was caught under the right rear wheel of the lorry and sustained severe injuries. He was immediately rushed to a hospital but on the way he collapsed. The poor fellow tried to avoid death and in the attempt got straight into it.

Here is an account of a drowning tragedy which occurred at a village near Chidambaram. A bullock cart which was coming towards Chidambaram from Lalpet with a Muslim woman and her two children being unable to get over the bridge, across the Khan Saheb Channel plunged into the channel about 5 feet deep. The woman escaped with her child in her arms but missed her son aged about 4. A search was immediately made and the boy was picked up dead.

If we have a mixture of the English and Indian we have the International type of quenching our appetite. Yesterday's dinner belonged to this category.

"I like M. S. best. She is very sincere. She is coming up with great potentialities," said Mr. Dungan paying a tribute to Mrs. Sulabaxmi. This is indeed a great appreciation from one who shaped the destinies of the Tamil Film "Sakuntalai." I hope M. S. will present one of her sweet "O' Jagadamba" records to me in return for this Shahabab or else sing one of those nice Mukhari variety. This is purely personal. Pardon oh readers!

Mr. Dungan is a sweet silver tongued conversationalist. As we were dining we pictured within ourselves the lovely Boulevards of Paris the gaiety and mirth of Berlin, Budapest and Vienna and also the pinching Hotel Bills. Mr. Dungan revealed that one can live like a Prince in America for Rs. 6/-! I wish I had the wealth to cross the Pacific.

about 50 feet away from spot where the cart got into channel. Is this not a case of undeserving death? But can man do it? Fate had laid it like that? Of course a bullock cart driver ought to have taken greater care.

There is another instance unexpected and unprepared death. One Mr. Koroop, was on leave for some time returning to his house in Tellicherry—Male bus when a particular point he was. He was rushed to the hospital in the same bus but he expired on the way.

News is published that the South Indian Railway authorities have issued telegraphic orders to the stall managers of the Indian Refreshment Rooms managed by the Company to remove caste indication boards and provide common dining to Brahmins and Non-Brahmins from March 20, thus falling in line with other railways. It is understood that the two sides of each stall will be for marked Hindus and non-Hindus. On this matter the modern works only in one way. In public places and public hotels this distinction ought to vanish. In private managed hotels this distinction has been vanishing. Where food is served in the orthodox manner and where orthodox people would like to stick to their own customs the distinctions may continue. In railway stalls there need no objection for the abolition of this distinction. The difficulties arise when the distinction between Hindu and non-Hindu hotels is sought to be abolished. The more reasonable distinction would be vegetarian and non-vegetarian. As time passes even this distinction may vanish. In the Punjab hotels is very difficult to make which is a vegetarian hotel which a non-vegetarian.

Mr. Dungan was critical about English Hotels in India. He said that these were prohibitive in cost. Even after spending 20 chips he said that the amenities offered fell short of the demand. Perhaps Mr. Dungan hadn't had the pleasure of a battle with bed bugs in Indian Hotels.

I talked many things with Mr. Dungan. Pressure on space bids be to scribble all that I talked about personalities, exterior and so on. We resatiric about Film Stars, not know whether I stood before to him. Having met invasion of the American Pressmen Mr. Dungan said he was on safe ground. This pleasant acquaintance with a Film Director, the fine dinner had, and the chat to follow were all due to Mr. Dungan. My hearty thanks. I wish he keeps his tale daily so that I can get a monthly salary as it is me by my property. Mysore Bank to balance. I long for that day.

VEHEMENT ATTACK OF GANDHIJI AND CONGRESS NAWABZADA'S SIXTY-MINUTE SPEECH EULOGISING MUSLIM LEAGUE ANEY SAYS "BRING GANDHI AND JINNAH TOGETHER"

Associated Press of India
New Delhi, March 20.
Maulana Zafar Ali addressed a session for an adjournment in the Central Assembly this morning to dissmis the "unwarranted interference" of local police with the local activities of Khaksars at Jama Masjid yesterday.

In answer to the President's question, Maulana Zafar Ali extended to Khaksars under the Government of India had allowed to move in single file and carry their belchashes. He said police yesterday interfered with a group of Khaksars who were so marching.

The Leader of the House said the Chief Commissioner of the Province to whom a reference had been made said he had no objection and that he was enquiring and would let the Government know.

The Chair ruled that the question would, in these circumstances, stand over till tomorrow.

Railway Accidents

Question time in the Assembly. Andrew Clow stated that a man injured in the railway crash on 5th August 1940 at Jamrampur (E.B.Ry.) was 85 and 11 died in hospital. He said 50 claims for compensation were received by the railway. No compensation had been paid by the Railway which is no way responsible for accident.

Grand Trunk Express

Replying to another question Clow gave details of improvement in the running of the Grand Trunk Express and said that supply of food to lower class passengers was generally satisfactory.

Maulana Zafar Ali Khan stated that there were no facilities for providing good food to Muslims.

Mr. Clow replied that there was an Indian Refreshment Car which supplied food.

Discussion on Finance Bill

In the Assembly today Nazab Ali Khan concluding his speech on the Finance Bill said the Mussalmans first knocked at the door of the Congress but were repelled. They then approached the Viceroy for the sake of his special powers in order to protect them. Government, he said, should not drive Mussalmans to desperation. Government should accept the Muslim demands and reach a settlement with Mr. Jinnah who alone could deliver the goods on behalf of the Mussalmans.

Mr. Joshi

Mr. Joshi confined his remarks to Government's decisions announced earlier this week in regard to dearness allowance for Railwaymen. He said he did not know if Railwaymen's Association had agreed to the modifications made by Government in the Rau report but presumed that if an agreement had been reached with the Railwaymen's Federation it must have been "at the point of bayonet". He asserted that Government's decision was totally unjust to the most poorly paid employees of Railways who were the least vocal.

Sir Gidney

Sir Henry Gidney vigorously protested against what he alleged to be sudden stoppage of recruitment of Anglo-Indians to Postal department. He said in 1925 he took deputation to the Secretary of State and in 1928 received a reply that reduction of Anglo-Indian personnel from the Postal Department would be gradual. Instead of implementing that promise Government of India had completely cut off their recruitment. By their action he said Government violated Sec. 242 of the Government of India Act. He gave a warning that he would take the matter to the Federal Court if Government did not take action at an early date to remove the injustice.

Sir Raza Ali

Sir Raza Ali suggested that the Commerce Member should immediately settle down to tackling the problems of post-war industries. He said that the match industry enjoyed protection but four-fifths of it was controlled by the foreign capital. He asked why should duty of ten per cent be imposed on tubes and tyres without imposing countervailing duty on their imports. Dealing with the question of Indians overseas, Sir Raza characterised as highly objectionable the two bills now pending before the Ceylon State Council. He said nobody at this juncture wanted to do anything which might further embitter the feelings between the two parties of the British Commonwealth. At the same time if even in the present world crisis if a part of the Commonwealth is hitting us we should hit it back. I would ask the Government to get a bill ready so that Government should bring the bill before the House if the course of events in Ceylon go against us.

Giving his personal views on the present political deadlock Sir Raza Ali made two suggestions, firstly establishment in London of Commonwealth Advisory Committee with representatives of the Congress and Muslim League, Indian States and the Government of India with representatives of other Commonwealth countries. Congress and Muslim League members should be nominated by their respective bodies. Secondly he urged setting up in India of Defence Advisory Committee with representatives of Assembly and nominees of Indian States with the object of assisting the Commander-in-Chief in the conduct of war.

Dr. Desouza

Dr. F. X. Desouza dealing with the present political deadlock and the position of Indian Christians in relation to it, said that members of the community who had contributed largely to the national uplift by means of education were left in cold. Viceroy had not even cared to call one leader of that community among fifty-two he called before making his declaration of last year. He wanted the Government to include his community as an important element of national life in this country.

Syed Murtuza Saheb

Mr. Syed Murtuza Saheb strongly complained against the reduction of expenditure on pilgrims department from about Rs. 30,000 a year to about Rs. 12,000 and contrasted this fact with that of Rs. 36 lakhs being spent on Ecclesiastical department which was a nonvotable subject. Referring to Ceylon he thanked the Government of India on the bold stand they had taken against the recent anti-Indian measures.

Mr. Piracha replied in detail to Sardar Sant Singh's allegations against the District Magistrate of Sardogha on action taken by him in stopping Sikh's procession on Guru Govind Singh day. Mr. Piracha declared that Sant Singh's statement was influenced by considerations of propaganda.

Muslim League's Attitude

Mr. Nawabzada Liaquatlikhan in a sixty-minute speech explained the Muslim League's opposition to the Finance Bill.

Referring to the political deadlock, Nawabzada said it was incorrect to say that the League had created the deadlock and that the responsibility lay at the door of the Congress and the British Government. The League only said that no constitution should be forced on 90 million Mussalmans without their approval. He claimed that no constitution could be successfully worked in this country without the consent and approval both of Hindus and Mussalmans.

Proceeding he said that the League did not try to embarrass the British Government or hinder their war effort. "If we wanted to do so we could have demanded immediate granting of Pakistan. Our attitude could not be called bargaining or taking advantage of Britain's difficulty. What we said was that it is difficult to create a right type of atmosphere and make people feel it is their war unless and until the representatives of the principal political parties had a real share in the administration of the country.

Analysing the Congress position he said that the Congress wanted that India must be made free at once and that she should be given the right to frame her own constitution through a Constituent Assembly. So far as the League is concerned it was not prepared to accept the Congress demand because that would have been prejudging the whole issue of future constitution of India. The Congress despite its repeated assurances was embarrassing the British Government.

Proceeding he dealt with the question of freedom of speech on which Gandhiji launched civil disobedience and asked "What was that freedom of speech intended to be used for? It is clear from the statement of Gandhiji himself that it would be used to invite Hitler to take possession of India. If you give this type of freedom of speech to the Congress there are millions in the country who will resist it."

Proceeding he said when Gandhiji was asked to reach a constitutional settlement he told the Viceroy that those were subsidiary issues. He demanded the freedom for India immediately. Now Gandhiji had declared there could not be any settlement with the Congress during the war, short of granting the demands of the Congress and yet people alleged that the League and Mr. Jinnah stood in the way of settlement. Mr. Jinnah, as late as last November had invited the leader of the Congress Party in the Assembly to reach a settlement.

Authoritative Body Of Muslims

Continuing he referred to the suggestion that the claim of the League to be the only authoritative body of Mussalmans of India stood in the way of settlement. "It was not a claim. It was a matter of fact. If not on whose behalf were we invited to negotiate and reach a settlement?"

Referring to Pakistan he said that the League never made this a condition precedent for any settlement. Dealing with the Viceroy's offer of August 8 he said as far as the principle was concerned it was exactly the same as demanded by the League. Differences arose in regard to giving effect to the offer. It was evident that the attitude of the Viceroy clearly indicated that the Government had no intention to part with power. According to him there were two reasons for the attitude of the Government either they were unwilling to part with power or they were too much afraid of the Congress.

Concluding Nawabzada said You rejected Mussalmans' offer of cooperation and hoping to win back Congress. We do not know how your departments are administered or how the money asked for defence is going to be spent. No political party can follow you blindly. Get on with your work and grasp the hand of friendship offered to you by those willing to march with you as equal partners, but not as camp followers.

Mr. Aney

Mr. Aney complained of inaccuracies and confusion in the conduct of census operations in some Provinces.

Dealing with the present political situation Mr. Aney declared if the sense of the House were taken it would be found that everyone was in agreement that war must be fought and won, but the question was how to secure co-operation of the people. People must be convinced that at the end of the war, India's position in the Commonwealth would be the same as that of any member thereof and as an immediate step the defence of the country must be placed in charge of an Indian. The Executive Council of Viceroy in such circumstances must consist of Indians. Mr. Aney believed that the suggestions made by the Bombay Conference were of practical nature and unless some steps were taken to part with real power it would be difficult to get from India that measure of assistance which must be received if war was to be won. Government must bring Gandhiji and Jinnah together and bring about a settlement. He believed that Mr. Jinnah and members of Congress and others could go together and engage in a common effort to meet the existing

AGRICULTURAL "FEATURES" OF MYSORE

Growing Economic Plants

BOMBAY, March 19

The State Mysore ought to be not unworthy to boast that there are many things in it which are not known, and that the Agricultural Department has helped it to earn more and spend more. The efforts of this Department in evolving improved strains by scientific methods of plant-breeding and later trying the laboratory results in rayats' holdings in order to introduce them into general cultivation, have been attended with marked success, thus improving the economic condition of the Mysore rayat.

What has the State done in recent years? With the rapid growth of several industries in the State, the Department has encouraged the rayat to grow useful economic plants in order to make his fields yield more.

Some of the suggestions for the improvement of the rayat's condition in an improved manner are: (1) The wide area of the State. The Irwin Canal, the principal water source, is designed to irrigate 120,000 acres so that wet crops such as rice and semi-wet crops such as sugarcane can be grown. Experiments in the cultivation of sugarcane have resulted in the evolution of better varieties of cane and several canes far superior to the existing varieties are under bulk multiplication. The Chemical Section of the Department has investigated the optimum manurial requirements of sugarcane. They have found that a combination of half organic and half inorganic nitrogen produces best results.

Tobacco is another crop which is becoming equally important in the agricultural economy of the State. In all, about 25,000 acres are under cultivation. Varietal tests of indigenous and imported varieties at Hunsur have shown that the selections from the local varieties, Pusa selections and Harrison Special are suited to the locality. Harrison Special variety has given very good yields of good quality in the light soils of Gorbindpur under controlled irrigation. As a result of manurial experiments on this crop, a particular mixture has been discovered which is more effective than the mixture in vogue in foreign countries in addition to being much cheaper.

situation, probably the demand for Pakistan might not arise.

He concluded by saying that the problem had to be solved by taking a courageous stand and by taking some risks.

Sir Raiman

Sir Jeremy Raiman, Finance Member, replying to the debate, emphasised that there was an important distinction between the two ideas of economy and retrenchment.

The House divided and passed a resolution of motion by 46 votes to 28, the Muslim League and the Congress Nationalists voting against the motion.

The Assembly adjourned tomorrow.

MADRAS MARKET REPORT

(From our correspondent)

MADRAS, Mar. 20

The following Market Report is issued by Messrs Kothari & Sons:-

During the period under review the market in all sections displayed a good activity. Prices have responded well to the enquiries received, but still there has been a dearth of scrip in some sections due to which the volume of business, though has shown an expansion, has not been up to the expectation. Looking to the enquiries received, there still seems to be possible, further modest improvement in prices although they will not be without any set-backs.

Gilted Securities have tended to be firmer. Banks have received very poor support. Textiles have been active with buyers over. The hunt for first class tax-free preference shares still continues. Planting issues have fully maintained their level, especially Tea shares in the Rubber shares, though there was a break in price improvement, towards the close, the section received some sustained enquiries. Engineerings have been steady. Sugars were sluggish, especially Mysore Sugars. Chemicals were barely steady and Papers uninteresting. Electrics unchanged, and other miscellaneous issues were of a quieter nature.

In Securities 3% 1963-65 resulted in business at Rs. 95.2. 3 1/2% 1947-53 at Rs. 102.5 and 102.6, 4% 1960-70 at Rs. 108.10 and 5% 1945-55 at Rs. 111.14. There has been persistent enquiries for Tax-free Loans of Mysore. Transactions were recorded in 3% 1956-61 at Rs. 103.15, 3 1/2% 1951 at Rs. 107.13, 4% 1953-63 at Rs. 115.7, 5% 1943-53 Cochin Loan at Rs. 105.4, 4% Mysore at Rs. 126.5. Due to good enquiries 3% 1952 and 1953 Madras Loans have been put up by as. 2/- at Rs. 97.10.

In Bank Reserve Banks came to business at Rs. 104.8. Bank of Hindustan at Rs.

NEW SACRIFICES OF BLOOD

Muslims Suspi ions of French's Move

(By Cable) London
The Madrid Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph cabled on March, 17.

According to the Tangier Correspondent of the official Spanish News Agency, Muslim circles in French Morocco suspect that the Vichy Government's decision to appoint leading native personalities as members of the French Consultative Assembly may be followed by a call on the Muslim people for "new sacrifices of blood".

It is pointed out the Muslim population did not support France in 1939 and 1940 with the same faith and sincerity as in 1914. Although the new measure is partly satisfying to Algerian and Moroccan Muslims, it is generally regarded as a tardy reform.

It is learnt from Belgrade that conversations between Yugoslavia and Germany continue according to Reuter correspondent and it is not known when they will end.

27/4. Indian Overseas at Rs. 5 3/6, 1 do Commercial Bank at Rs. 2 1/4, and Indian Bank Mills at Rs. 3 3/8 CD.

In Textiles, Radhakrishna on gold buying have appreciated to Rs. 133/ CD and V-suits at Rs. 113.8 XD. Combos have advanced to Rs. 9.6, Metall Industries at Rs. 136.8 and Siamas at Rs. 53.8. Pandkajas are now quoted Rs. 92. XD.

In Planting Shares, Cochin Malabar are steady at Rs. 6.12, Tropicals at 19.7, M'slands at Rs. 5.1, Ud-agiris at Rs. 6, Panarapally at Rs. 8.8, Travancore Rubbers at Rs. 9.2, Niliri Neerugundi have advanced to Rs. 1.8, Kalpettas are slightly lower at Rs. 16.10. Peermade are now quoted at Rs. 27/- ex the 2nd lot in Dividend of 5% making a total of 15% for the year. Vallamattams are at Rs. 19.0, Rajagiris at Rs. 5.3, Vaikundams at Rs. 8.0 and Thirumalai at Rs. 1.15 and Be Be Rubbers at Rs. 5.11.

Mysore Sugars have been on the quiet since at Rs. 49.8, but there was a sustained enquiry for Travancore Sugars at Rs. 14. South India Sugars are at Rs. 9.4, but Indian Sugars were neglected at Rs. 9.12. United Tea varieties have shown little change at Rs. 92.0.

In Chemicals, Tata Chemicals were quoted at Rs. 13.12, Matar Chemicals at Rs. 9.10 Mysore Chemical Manufacturers at Rs. 14.0 and Mysore Chemicals & Fertilisers at Rs. 17.12.

Mysore Papers were interesting at Rs. 14.2, and Orissa Papers at about Rs. 10.2. Andhra Cement are unchanged at Rs. 68.12 for Ordinary and Rs. 110.0 for Preference. Indian Copper were dealt with at Rs. 2.1, and Singapore Cops at Rs. 10.4. Mysore Tobacco are at Rs. 9.10, and Spencer Ord. at Rs. 5.12. Brewsters have been steady at Rs. 6.12. There has been some enquiry for A.V. Thomas at Rs. 15.12. Cochin State Powers are quoted about Rs. 9.2. Indian Steel Rollings have been of ring at Rs. 7.12.

The Market is closed with a better under one.

ALLEGED CONTEMPT OF COURT

Advocate And His Clients Fined

Bangalore, March 21

In the Mysore High Court, the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Venkataranga Ayyangar passed orders yesterday in a contempt of Court case in which three persons, including an advocate of Bangalore, had been charged.

In the file of the Bangalore First Munsiff's Court was a petition of Mr. Prabhushamappa under the Wards and Guardianship Act Against Messrs. Veerappa and Chikkannappa. Mr. Prabhushamappa had made allegations as to the status and means of his opponents, who caused a notice of "threat" to be issued to him through their counsel, Mr. M. Muniswamyva, Advocate.

The learned Munsiff holding this clearly contempt of court, the advocate and his clients expressed regret and submitted apologies. The learned Munsiff however, made an application to the High Court, detailing the incidents.

This application came up before Their Honours yesterday. All the three respondents, through their counsels, submitted apologies to this Court also.

Their Honours, in the course of their order, observed that the rules did not provide for the payment of costs by the party and therefore directed that respondents 1 and 2 to pay a fine of Rs. 25 each and respondent 3 a fine of Rs. 50.

Mr. Devadas appeared for respondents 1 and 2 Mr. M.P. Somasekhararao for respondent 3 and the Advocate General for Government.

Thought For The Day

There is no sadder or uglier sight in this world than to see the women of a land grasping the ignoble honour, and rejecting the noble; leading the men, whom they should guide into high thought and active sacrifice, into petty slander of gossip, in conversation; and into discussion of dangerous and unhealthy feeling.

MARRIAGE BETWEEN SAGOTRA HINDUS

Mr. Govind Deshmukh has proposed a bill in the Central Assembly with a view to removing the ban among Hindus in respect of marriages between two persons of the same gotra. This bill is now before the public for their consideration. The Government are not going to rush the bill without ascertaining the view of the Hindus, whom it concerns most. It is no doubt an ancient and sacred custom among upper classes of Hindus. The lower classes do not observe this custom. But it has been said that this custom is a healthy one according to the modern scientific laws of eugenics. It is no doubt a fact that among Mahomedans and Christians there is no such ban. The marriage takes place between paternal cousins. But in the Hindu Society this is strictly banned.

There was considerable opposition on the floor of the Assembly. Mr. Deshmukh who, replied to the opponents of the bill said that great difficulty was felt by Hindus in respect of marriage of their daughters owing to restrictions regarding gotras and the like.

We are sorry we cannot agree with Mr. Deshmukh, that for this one reason, the ban on marriage between Sagotras should be removed. This is not a question of one's individual conscience or conviction. This is a matter profoundly affecting the beliefs of Hindus. Reformers may throw to winds these ancient customs. But the rock bed of Hinduism is not there. Those who profoundly believe in the Shastras and swear by them should be taken into account. Their opinion should be respected. It is no doubt true that several ancient Shastric customs have been relaxed, but the ban in question does not belong to that class. It is a vital Shastric injunction which we cannot trifle with.

Anyway, our Pandits and Acharyas should not sleep over the matter now. It is for them to wake up and study the question dispassionately. If they fail to do their duty, they will be swept out of existence. Time cannot wait for them to wake up. We sound a timely warning. Let Mysore Pandits also wake up. Because, what is in Delhi today will travel to Mysore in 50 days.

MELODY OF "M. S. S."

NAGARASANCHARI ON SHAKUNTALA

(Translation from 'TAI NADU')
"M. S." in "Shakuntala" has amazed me beyond all expectations. I have been fascinated by her enchanting voice in several music halls. I have seen her role in "Seva Sadan." But in "Shakuntala" she has ascended the dizzy heights of fame. Her wonderful accomplishments have been revealed to its very best in this performance. The music that pours out from her good self is something that is divine. If the producers had the necessary courage to oust the Hindu-taint touch in the music, the picture would have been crowned as an unparalleled one. In the pieces "Engum Nirai Nada Brahman" and "Anandmen Sholva," M. S. has risen to her best with her soul stirring cadences which reveal what a good music is and how enervating it will be on those who hear it. Music soothes the jaded and if one likes to judge himself in the divine Nadabrahman, the music that is sung by M. S. affords a fine opportunity.

To adapt Kalidasa's immortal drama to the Silver Screen is a task in itself and Mr. T. Sadasivam has outclassed himself by his successful attempt to translate the Sanskrit passages into Tamil. His erudition has resulted in some of the finest dialogues and is crowned as a glorious success by the sweet-tongued M. S.

In "Shakuntala" acting runs side by side with music. Music has not been allowed to dominate. To those who blindly think that "M.S." is nothing but melody, this picture is a revelation. The principles of true art combined with what is necessary by way of music has been observed to its very core. What an actress M.S. is can very well be perceived by fixing our eyes on the screen for well nigh three long hours. Anger, Pain, Joy, feeling of separation from her lover have been very well portrayed to the zenith of ability. Shakuntala when she takes leave of the Ashram and when she sings that Kagalalika "Manam Kulira" reveals how well she can portray the feelings of a damsel in distress.

"You drew me to your side by calling me 'Dharma Ratni.' You married me according to Gandharva rites of wedlock but on this unlucky day you reproached me as a prostitute oh Mother!" with these ringing words Shakuntala swoons in the court of Dushyantha. M. S. S. has outclassed herself specially in this scene. The word "Dharmaratni" keep her spirits buoyant and when she utters the accursed word 'prostitute' she feels the piercing prick of an ungodly pain as expressed by the pathetic variations in her lovely lute. She falls to the ground crying 'Amma! M.S.S. has risen to her histrionic heights when this awe-inspiring scene is enacted before our tear-laden eyes.

The manifestations of love between two opposite sexes as portrayed by King Dushyantha and Shakuntala has been subjected to varying criticisms. One often hears the jarring note that the love scenes depicted in this picture conform to the domesticated type in which the housewife after a hard day's toil before the blinding smoke of the kitchen oven, comes out to meet her husband though modestly. I can never offer that criticism after seeing this picture. The love that emanates from Shakuntala should never be compared to intimated and intoxicated love.

Love-making as understood from our ancient classics differs from those night-club varieties of enmeshing infatuated youths. We need not imitate the dance hall type at all. Film fans have different mental make-ups. Merely the crowd that pine for sex-appeal in films no doubt need all the gingering up, but it is criminal folly to sink so low a type in classical dramas.

Shakuntala was the Foster-child of Kanwa Maharishi. She was brought up in the serene atmosphere of a saintly abode. She was a girl of high educational and cultural attainments. Her mind was pure and unsullied. All these accomplishments she owed to Kanwarishi. Having been brought up in that pure Ashram atmosphere how could Shakuntala descend to the baser level of sexual intimation to get the applause of the gallery? True. Shakuntala married Dushyantha after which the wedlock consummation took place attendant with all the developments of youthful urge. But these are things which at all events should be understood by the all-knowing audience. To castigate M. S. S. as one not knowing how to portray a love scene is less than fair to her extraordinary histrionic capabilities.

I have seen Hindi pictures in plenty. I am known for my lapses to attach superlatives where it is not wanted. The bodily jerks of a sweet girl may invigorate the cinema-goers and they might applaud it as a piece of class acting but I can never tolerate such baseness of human mind. Acting should conform to the requirements of the role and should never exceed the bounds of propriety. A girl who aspires to be the Queen of a Kingdom like Shakuntala should never descend to the baser instincts of love acting. Those who expect sex-appeal from this film should do well not to waste their hard earned rupees. M. S. S. has strictly conformed to the theme which Kalidasa laid down and I congratulate her for that.

T. A. Maduram has shown some fine histrionic principles as Priyamvada. Her enervating humour is something superb. Her pathos when the boat was going to the other end is also a piece of accomplished acting.

G. N. Balasubramaniam is thoroughly a misfit. I would have preferred M. K. Tyagaraja Bhagavathar instead of G. N. B. He is poor and falls flat whenever he is brought together with M. S. S. I do not know why Mr. Sadasivam fancied this gentleman when Tamil Nad was bristling with class actors.

Shyama's role is pleasing. Krishna Dorairaj side-splitting comedy has been very well adapted to this theme. The photography is good and the Direction in the able hands of Mr. B. R. Dungan is a class by itself.

One word about M.S.S.'s melodious outpourings. Words

A PUFF OF SMOKE

Jean Jacques Rousseau—Romance of his Life Wanderings and Adventures—India of Those Days—Ribbon Incident—Incident of Peasant and Barbarous tax gatherers

A friend of mine has placed in my hands a copy of "Jean-Jacques Rousseau" by Prof. R. W. Mowat. It is a recent book published in 1938. Before this I have read, several books dealing with the life of that great man. I am sure my readers also will have read his life. But the book in my hand deals with some aspects of his life, hitherto unnoticed. John Morley, when he wrote the long study of Jean Jacques Rousseau (1873) which has become classic was without the "Correspondence" that magnificent collection of Rousseau letters in 20 volumes, edited by M. Dufour (Paris 1924-1934). Many other works have been recently published which help to clear up many of the dark places in Jean Jacques' glowing romance of life.

Every one is now familiar with the main events of Rousseau's life (1712-1778). The Europe of those days was in a ferment of Revolution. Rousseau's home-land France leapt down the precipice in the last years of his life. His writings were mostly responsible for the revolution in the minds of the people. Exercising a bit of imagination, let us look to the India of those days. Even here, people were in a ferment. The Moghul Empire had decayed. The Marathas were on the high way to success. In the South Hyder Ali and Tippu Sultan led their victorious armies on one territory after another. It was indeed a period of revolution in India. And the shrewd Englishman availed himself of the opportunity and established his empire here.

Now to go back to Rousseau! His early life is full of romantic adventures. He lost his mother when he was only a child. He was brought up in a haphazard fashion. More than once, during his boyhood he ran away from his house, to escape from the "cruelty" of his uncle. His wanderings and adventures read like a romance. In his "Confessions" he has narrated some of them. He has not concealed from his readers his lapses from the strict code of morals. The famous incident of the theft of a ribbon of which he accused a girl fellow-servant is unforgettable.

There are quite a number of incidents in his life, which I would like to narrate. But there is no space in these columns. However, there is one incident fit to describe her divine voice. It is indeed a national asset that she has such a voice. If they had respected the wishes of the South-Indian Music Lovers, "Shakuntala" would have attained a place of honour in the films of the South. The Hindustani touches are rather jarring on the ears. People should see Shakuntala critically and form their own opinion.

Mr. Churchill told the House of Commons that budget will be introduced in Commons before Easter.

which I would like my readers to share with me.

One day, having strayed away from the road to a better view of an alpine scene, he really did lose his bearings. After several hours of wandering over mountains of hunger and thirst, he came at a substantial cottage, where one in sight. He asked the peasant in it to give him a return for payment. The peasant brought out some skim milk and barley bread. Jean-Jacques drank the milk with gusto and ate up the bread, husk and all, but this was little enough for the exhausted man. The peasant who was examining him closely and asking questions, suddenly convinced that he could not trust the stranger, opened a little door in the kitchen, went in and came back in a moment with a large loaf of moist wheaten bread, a very appetizing ham, already cut into, and still a bottle of wine. With the addition of a omelette, made a dinner better than any way-farer had known.

When Jean-Jacques, who had dined opened the subject of payment, the man's disgust and fears returned. He would take no money and repeated it with surprising vehemence. Jacques was at a loss to understand. At last he uttered the terrible words "missionaries and cellar-rats!" he explained that he had wine, because of the tax on aides, and his bread because of the tax called Taille, and he would be a lost man if it suspected that he was not in want of hunger. What the peasant told him made an indelible impression upon Jean-Jacques. This was the germ of an inextinguishable hate which subsequently developed in his life against the vexations placed against their oppressors. The man, although prosperous, did not eat the bread with a good conscience, and could not avoid except by displaying the misery as prevailed around him. "I came out of my house with much indignation as pity, depicting the lot of these peasants, lands where nature has made them the prey of barous tax-gatherers."

This incident, it is said, is mainly responsible for his "trist social"

exposed owing to lack of medical assistance. Thanks to the generosity of Mr. Kusuma Ananthiah Chetty, the women of Kyalanoor and the surrounding parts were assured of efficient medical aid in the future. What was specially praiseworthy was that Mr. Ananthiah Chetty should have come forward to provide his native village with these amenities, though he himself resided in Bangalore.

He was, however not content with constructing a building for the dispensary. He had gone even further and offered to donate a sum of Rs. 1000 for a building for the Middle School. The Dewan said that Mr. Ananthiah Chetty deserved the abiding gratitude of the inhabitants of Kyalanoor for this additional act of generosity.

The Dewan took the opportunity to remind the people of Kyalanoor that prevention was always better than cure. To keep the village clean and tidy, to learn the elementary rules of health and observe them, to drink pure water always; these, he said, were some simple but important elements in the prevention of disease. He concluded by expressing the hope that the dispensary and the Maternity Ward which he was opening would contribute in full measure to the alleviation of human suffering and the promotion of health in Kyalanoor and its neighbourhood in the years to come.

In the evening the Dewan and the party returned to Bangalore.

E. STERN GROUP COUNCIL

AUSTRALIA'S POSITION AND OBJECTIVE

(Associated Press of India) New Delhi, Mar. 21

Australia's position and objective in the Eastern Group Council was clarified this morning by Sir Bertram Stevens at a Press Conference given by the Members of Council. Sir Bertram said:

"Australia's essential aim in participating wholeheartedly in the work of the Council is to improve the organisation of war supplies within the group and supply equipment to troops who are defending our cause."

Australia is, of course, the most developed country from the manufacturing view point in the Eastern Group. Intense efforts have been made to build up tremendous munition industry out of great industries which have grown up in Australia in the last twenty years. We are deeply thankful that this effort can be put to good use at this time and we are glad to place our effort and our experience at the disposal of the Group as a whole for use in any way which the Council indicates will show the best results from the military and strategic view point."

Mutual Assistance

Adding that Australia conceived of the Council as an organisation promoting mutual assistance and cooperation and the orderly use of all our resources. Sir Bertram said, it is not inappropriate to add that Australia expects much of the Council and believes that it can progressively develop in scope and usefulness, particularly in stimulating mutual contact, mutual understanding and mutual exchange. Thus, while India is supplying practically the entire requirement of the Group with cotton goods, three Dominions of Australia, New Zealand and South Africa have joined the Supply Group with need of woolen. This is the kind of spirit and kind of material results we anticipate that the working of the Council can bring about."

Sir Bertram emphasised that while they anticipated every country in the Group according to its position of economy be called on to make its contribution, they certainly were not labouring under any impression that orders would flow in any country in an exclusive way.

"There is no idea of limiting drawing of supplies from India in order to get it from some other part of the Eastern Group. The whole problem is one of stimulating production of every country of the Group."

Detailed Explanation

This authoritative statement was made at the Press Conference given this morning by Members of Eastern Group Supply Council at which a detailed explanation was made of the working of the Council and its relations with the Central Provision Office.

It is explained that the Council has been formed to facilitate the practical carrying out of the policy laid down by the Eastern Group Conference so that the task of supplying troops in the Eastern Group area (whether on the field in their own countries under training or for local defence) may proceed as smoothly and with as small a drain upon shipping as possible. MARRIAGE BETWEEN SAGOTRAS

BILL TO REMOVE RESTRICTION

Profoundly Affecting Hindu Society
(Associated Press of India)

New Delhi, March 21

At question time, in the Assembly Sir Mahomed Zafrul Khan stated that within the limits of practicability he was prepared to give effect to the suggestion that Government should at the commencement of the session of the Assembly, supply members with indication of probable legislative programme for the session.

Mr. J. D. Tyson informed the house that the average annual expenditure for maintenance of Pilgrims Department in Bombay, Karachi and Calcutta when the same was under Commissioners of Police or Collector was Rs 35,846.

Hindu law prohibiting marriage between two persons of the same gotra (spiritual ancestry) and between persons belonging to different subdivisions of the same caste was sought to be removed by a bill whereof Mr. Govind Deshmukh moved reference to the Select Committee. Mr. Deshmukh explained that the rules had become archaic and did not subserve any eugenic purpose. It did not prevail among sudras and it was modified by custom between certain sections of Brahmins and Kshatriyas. It is pointed out the legislation removing the ban has been passed in Baroda and Indor states.

Sir Reginald Maxwell, Home Member, moving circulation of the bill observed that the measure was not only possibly controversial but would profoundly affect the Hindu social life and structure of Hindu law. It dealt with item, on concurrent legislative list and it had been a rule when legislating in that field, public opinion should be called in before the house deals with the bill.

Opposition To Hindu Bill

Seth Baijnath Bajoria opposing both motions declared that the bill was an obnoxious one repugnant to Hindu ideas. He had no sympathy with those who wanted to contract sacramental marriage under the shastras and at the same time flout the authority of those shastras.

Mr. Aney

Mr. Aney supporting circulation and the motion was actuated by a laudable desire to bring about the reforms in the system of marriage, because of the difficulty of contracting marriages strictly under shastraic rules. He supported the view that views should be got of the vast bulk of people who believed in shastras and not only of educated classes who chafed against shastras and who were an insignificant portion of population.

Mr. Sheodas Dhaga opposed the bill declaring the ban was in consonance with advanced eugenic principles.

Maluana Zafar Ali Opposes

Maulana Zafar Ali opposing the bill declared there was a tendency in modern age to flout religion and the sooner the people of India joined together in opposing this tendency the better it would be for them and for their moral development. He said:—I oppose the bill as a believer in religion myself and as a preceptor of religious sentiments to others, because I believe Pakistan which respects rights and even prejudices of Hindus.

Mr. Deshmukh's Reply

Mr. Deshmukh replying to the debate referred to the great difficulty felt by Hindus in the marrying of their daughters owing to restrictions regarding gotras and the like.

The House agreed to the circulation of the bill.

Before adjourning till tomorrow the Assembly allowed introduction of four non-official bills namely the bill to amend dissolution of Muslim Marriages Act of 1937, bill further to amend Indian Evidence Act of 1872, bill to limit Maximum Rupees to fifty per annum amount payable in respect of any person by way of tax and Professions, Trades, Callings, Employments and Bill to simplify Appeals to Federal Court.

The Assembly adjourned till tomorrow when the Finance bill is to be disposed of.

Independent Party

A New party called the Independent party has been formed in the Legislative Assembly with Sir Henry Gidney as Leader Sir A.H. Ghuznavi as Deputy Leader, Mr. Hosseinbhai Laljee as whip. Mr. Kazmi till recently of the Congress is also a member.

Hungarian Foreign Minister was received by Herr Hitler at Munich, says a German report.

SRI H. SIDDIAIYA

A CHAMPION OF THE POOR AND THE DOWNTRODDEN

Sri K. Virabhadrapa, M.A., LL.B., writes:—

Sri H. Siddaiah was born on 27-7-1901 in a town called Channagiri, in Shimoga District. He comes of a very respectable family of Veerasiva Community. After passing the S.S.L.C. examination in the Wesleyan Mission High School, Bangalore, he entered the portals of the University of Mysore in the year 1920 and he took his B.A. degree in the year 1923. He then studied Law in both the Bombay and Poona Law Colleges and took his Law Degree in the year 1925.

While he was in the Mysore Maharaja's College, he was a very keen and prominent member of the College Union, constantly figuring in debates, and he has been a Prize Winner in the Elocution Competition of the Poona Law College. The present distinguished Vice Chancellor of the Mysore University Rajakaryapavina N. S. Subba Rao, as the Principal of the Maharaja's College once stated: "I have reason to believe that his sense of duty and transparent sincerity will enable him to make his mark in life etc."

Sri H. Siddaiah entered the Legal Profession in the year 1925 at Shimoga as an Advocate and has had an extensive practice.

He was the 1st Non-Official President of the Shimoga District Board from 1930 to 1933, and was an Elected Member of the Shimoga Town Municipal Council from 1929 to 1939. He has done meritorious service to the public in both these capacities and it was during this period that a highly placed officer in the State appreciated his work while observing "That there has been considerable improvement in the administration of the District Board under the able guidance of Mr. H. Siddaiah. He has endeavoured himself to bring a high level of efficiency etc."

He was elected to the Mysore Legislative Council in 1930 and continued to be its member till he resigned his membership, according to the resolution of the famous Mallewarum Session of A.M.C.C. in 1939. He also resigned his membership to all the constitutional bodies of the State and obeyed the mandate of the Mysore State Congress faithfully.

He was a member of the Senate of the University of Mysore being elected from the Legislative Council. He was also a member of the Bhadra Reservoir Committee—the expansion of this project which is under the contemplation of the Government is estimated at Rupees 6½ crores. He has served the public either as a member or as Chairman of numerous Committees during the last 10 to 12 years.

Sri H. Siddaiah was the President of the Youth Conference of the All India Veerasiva Mahasabha at Hubli in December 1938.

His 1st conviction for a political offence was in April 1938. His 2nd conviction was for a charge under section 124 (A) I. P. C. He was prosecuted in April 1939 for an alleged sedition speech which he delivered at Sagar, and was sentenced to 18 months rigorous imprisonment with a fine of 300 rupees. He served the full sentence awarded and was released on 1—9—1940.

Sri H. Siddaiah has all along championed the cause of the poor and the down-trodden, and has never swerved from his unflinching adherence to the cause of the Ryots. He is particularly known for his impassioned speeches and thrashing question on the floor of the Legislative Council. In his mastery of fact and figures, he is second to none in the State. His service and self-sacrifice have endeared him much to the hearts of the citizens of the State.

His unopposed election to the Presidentship of the Mysore State Congress, which will hold its annual session on the Banks of the Tunga Bhadra River at Vinobanagar is significant of his great popularity he enjoys among the people of the State.

PROHIBITORY ORDER IN JUBBULPORE

Extended For Two Months More

A.P. Jubbulpore, March 22
An order prohibiting the public from carrying lethal weapons within the Municipal limits for a further period of two months has been passed by the District Magistrate. It will be recalled that prohibitory orders were issued in March last year in view of the communal disturbances and since then it has been extended.

Three Ministers of Yugoslavian Government have resigned and another is about to do so because they oppose the acceptance of German terms.

KILLED AND 150 INJURED Dacca Tragedy

Dacca, March 23
Although there has been considerable improvement in the reduction of stray assaults, mobbing still continues to be a problem in different localities. Casualties so far are 25 killed and 147 injured. Shops and other business concerns are closed.

Sarat Chandra Bose met leading citizens yesterday & made a non-official enquiry committee and also met the British Consul at Dacca this morning. He met the Divisional Commissioner and suggested that Muslim and Hindu students form a joint squad and patrol the affected areas of the city.

More persons are reported to have been injured in minor clashes which occurred in different parts of the city this morning, one whereof died in hospital. Total casualties are 26 Killed and 150 injured. About 230 persons have been arrested in this connection and a large number of Police have been brought from the neighbouring Districts. It is reported that the situation is not today except for some assaults.

Dacca, March 22
A lull for nearly 12 hours in the assaults is reported to have occurred again in some parts this morning. Several of the injured have been referred to the hospital from the quarters bringing the total number of injured to 142 since the commencement of the riots. Several persons were delivered for the time today in some quarters a number of shops opened in certain localities.

Sarat Chandra Bose, leader of the Bengal Congress Parliamentary Party, arrived in Dacca and met the District Magistrate and discussed the situation.

Calcutta, March 22
The Government of Bengal is expected to check further deterioration in the situation affecting communal relations in the Province as expressed in an official communique issued this morning.

Mr. JINNAH'S NEW DISCOVERY!

MUSLIMS AND HINDUS COULD NOT RULE JOINTLY

GREAT DIFFERENCE IN MODE OF LIVING, DRESS, AND LANGUAGE

A.P. New Delhi, March, 23
A largely attended meeting of Muslims was held to night in connection with observance of Pakistan Day.

Mr. M. A. Jinnah explaining the Pakistan Scheme said that Muslims and Hindus could not rule jointly as there was a great difference in their mode of living, dress and language.

Mr. Jinnah explained at great length why the Muslim League wanted Pakistan and said that Pakistan was the only solution to achieve freedom for the country not only for Muslims, but also for Hindus. He appealed to Muslims to become literate, take more interest in business and industry and gather under one flag to fight for their cause.

Pakistan Day was also observed in Lahore, Madras and other places.

A.P. New Delhi, March 23
Resolutions on the subjects of Eastern Group Council, taxation on incomes by provincial Governments, export and import quotas, and surcharge on railway freights on food grains and fodder, were passed by the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry which concluded its session today.

HITLER RAISING ANTI-BOLSHEVIST ARMY? Chief Quisling For Russia Already Chosen

(By Cable) London
The Foreign Editor of the Daily Express writes:

Herr Hitler is raising an anti-Bolshevist army. Behind his screen of a million and a half troops on the Russian frontier, he is training thousands of Russians, Poles, Slovaks, and Ukrainians to form the backbone of military Fifth Column for the day when he strikes at Stalin.

The chief Quisling for Russia has already been chosen. He is General Wojciechowski, former leader of the Czech legions which thrust their way across the whole length of Russia in 1918-1919.

Gen. Wojciechowski returned to Prague after the last war and became a Czech citizen. When Hitler seized Czechoslovakia, he agreed to work for the Nazis.

From former Austrian officials, who still keep intermittent contact with Vienna, I learn that Wojciechowski's headquarters, as the nominal Commander-in-Chief of anti-Bolshevist army, are at Cracow, the southern capital of German-occupied Poland.

A.P. Benares, March 22

About 100 persons, men and women, were injured when a party of about 200 armed Muslims attacked the village of Azamgarh and looted Hindu shops and houses on the night of March 20 according to an unconfirmed report appearing in a local daily. The Circle Inspector and the District Magistrate arrived on the spot with armed police in response to a telegram from the Sub-Inspector. Armed police patrolled the disturbed area throughout the night.

Section 144 Cr. P. C. has been promulgated and Hindu shops are observing ban.

PAKISTAN DAY CELEBRATION POSTPONED IN BENGAL

A.P. Calcutta, March, 23
The Hon. A. K. Fazlul Huq, Chief Minister, Bengal, H. S. Suhrawardy, Finance Minister, President and Secretary respectively of Provincial Muslim League, in a joint statement issued to the Press have explained the reason for postponing the celebration of the Pakistan day in Bengal "to prevent the communal situation from worsening."

They added: "We on behalf of Muslims in Bengal confirm the deep conviction that the Pakistan principle adopted in the Lahore session of the All-India Muslim League is the only principal basis on which the future constitution of India can be settled and we wish to make it absolutely clear that the Muslims of Bengal solidly stand by the Pakistan demand."

It is announced that the fresh date for observance of Pakistan day in Bengal will be announced as the situation permits.

A.P. Calcutta, March, 22
Mr. A. K. Fazlul Huq, Premier, as the President of the Bengal Provincial Muslim League, has sent a telegram to all League branches in Bengal stating that in view of possible misunderstanding and danger to communal harmony owing to recent riots, the Provincial Muslim League decided not to hold Pakistan meetings on 23rd.

BOMBAY'S WAR WEEK Impressive Solemn Parade

A.P. Bombay, March 23
Bombay's war week concluded this evening with a grand military display. The Government made it a fitting finale to a highly successful week's programme of celebrations. The impressive solemnity of the parade was heightened by the fact that the Commander-in-Chief Sir Claude Auchinleck was present with His Excellency the Governor to take the salute at the march past. The parade was held at a spot overlooking the sea. The British and Indian troops, including the Indian Army, were in full dress. The parade was a most impressive one. Other items during the day included a tennis match between Bombay and the Rest of India which the Governor witnessed for sometime and a relay race which was held at the Camp. The parade which provided an extremely attractive and popular spectacle.

BUSINESSMEN'S WARNING

The speech delivered by Mr. Amrit Lal Ojha as President of the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industries has many useful suggestions to offer in matters concerning Industry and Commerce and is deserving of careful consideration by businessmen and industrialists. In addition to matters dealing with industries, the President made a pointed reference to the political situation in the country and said that British statesmanship had failed to inspire any confidence in the minds of the Indian public about its intentions towards India. In saying so, Mr. Ojha has really echoed the feelings of businessmen all over India. He urged that the Government should take immediate steps to end the present constitutional deadlock and respond to the demand for the establishment of a National Government at the centre. We are firmly of the opinion that unless the political situation improves in India, there can be no hope of better business. The following remarks of the President of All India gathering of businessmen deserve to be sympathetically considered by the Government.

British statesmanship, I must candidly say, has failed to inspire any confidence in the minds of the Indian public about its intentions towards India, and if genuine efforts are not made by His Majesty's Government to solve the Indian problem, it would lead to grave reactions on Indo-British relationship and prejudicially affect the interest of Britain and the British Commonwealth itself. If India has to bear the burden and obligations of a component unit of the British Commonwealth, she is surely entitled to demand and insist that the rights and powers enjoyed by the other Dominions should be vested in her. The demand for self-government amounts in the ultimate analysis to the demand for the right to control our own destiny, social, economic and political in the interests of the country. The need for a transitional arrangement is demanded by no responsible person but it is essential that this process should be purely and automatically. In my opinion, I would, therefore, impress upon His Excellency the Viceroy the importance and necessity of taking immediate steps to end the present constitutional deadlock by con-

MYSORE PLANTERS' ASSOCIATION

GENERAL MEETING AT CHIKMAGALUR

(From our correspondent)

Chikmagalur, March 23. Mr. A. Middleton Chairman of the Mysore Planters' Association presiding, the annual general body meeting of the Mysore Planters' Association was held last evening in the Kador Club, Chikmagalur. A large number of planters who are members of the Association were present at the meeting. The Association mainly consists of European Planters and the Association having passed a useful life of seventy six years held its seventy seventh annual meeting yesterday.

Mr. A. L. Hill, the Secretary of the Association first read out the notice calling the meeting and then presented the report of the Executive Committee for the last year and the same was adopted by the Association. Mr. A. Middleton then read out his address. First the Chairman referred to the complicated situation in international politics and later stated that the passing of the Lease and Lend Bill would make the turning point in the war towards their side and wished the British all success.

Turning to the position of the Coffee Industry during the last year the planters not only passed through a period of hardship owing to the failure of crop. This season's crop was considered by the chairman to be the least for the last twenty years and he attributed it to untimely showers of last year followed by a heavy and continuous monsoon. The president thanked the originator of the Coffee Control Scheme and also Sir Fredrick James for shaping it and thanked the various Governments for putting it on the statute book. The Chairman also made a passing remark about the constitutional reforms in Mysore and stated that though the Association lost its franchise its influence on the election of their representatives would still be retained by them. The Association's nominees were elected this year to the Assembly and the Council and the president hoped that the same would continue.

The chairman complimented the English Planters for the generous help they were giving in aid of the several War Funds.

ponding to the demand for the establishment of national Government at the centre pending the final settlement of the wider constitutional problems. I am confident that such a declaration alone can solve the present deadlock and I trust His Excellency will appreciate the gravity of the situation and take immediate steps to bring about a change of atmosphere.

Such a feeling is shared by even moderate public opinion in the country. The Bombay Conference eloquently proves this.

We are happy to note that the business men in British India have sounded the right note of warning to the Government. If the Government does not heed this, they will be doing a grave disservice not only to India but to the world at large.

MYSORE NOTES

H. H. The Maharaja

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, March 22. His Highness the Maharaja who had been to Bangalore returned to the capital today.

Candidates For Bye-Election

The Mysore Congress has put up Messrs Agaram Rangiah and Bhogappa as its candidates for the bye-election from the Yalander and Gundalpet taluks respectively to the Representative Assembly, to fill up the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. B. S. Puttaswamy who had been elected from those constituencies.

From Yalander Mr. Basavanna Devaru is contesting the election as an independent candidate while for the Gundalpet taluk Messrs Sriyappa and Madappa are the two independent candidates.

The bye-election will take place on April 21st.

Alleged Illegal Betting

Mr. B. S. Sadasiva Rao, B. Division Police Inspector, and the Sub Inspector of Krishnaraja Police Station, with proper police help, it is reported, raided the Ramakrishna Restaurant in Krishnaraja Mohalla. It is alleged that Mr. Krishnaraja 'the proprietor of the restaurant, one Srikanthiah, a server in the restaurant, and two others by name Messrs Puttaswamy and Balaji Singh were found to be in possession of illegal betting tickets on horse races. The police arrested them and they were later released on bail. It is learnt that necessary legal proceedings will be instituted against them.

The ladies of the District who took keen interest in the collection of wool and tobacco for despatch to the war front and also the collection of books to sea war Library were also appreciated by Mr. Middleton.

"The Mysore State was plunged in a great and irreparable loss during the last year owing to the death of His Late Highness Sir Sri Krishnaraja Wadiar who had the welfare of his subjects always at his heart" observed the president and stated that they had a consolation in having a worthy successor who has already shown his intention of following the footsteps of his revered uncle. Before concluding the chairman thanked Mr. A. L. Hill, the Secretary of the Association for the efficient way in which he conducted the office during the last year and tendered his resignation.

Mr. H. Browne, of Alegevura Estate was elected Chairman for the coming year. Messrs. A. Middleton, R. C. Lake, L. P. Kent, J. S. H. Morgan, M. C. E. D., were elected members of the Executive Committee.

The meeting passed a resolution protesting against any of the portions of the Indian Coffee Market Expansion Board's amount being used for Scientific purposes. It also protested against any of the sums of the Balehonnur Coffee Experimental Farm being used for Anti Coffee Stem Borer work under the Pest Act.

The meeting dispersed after passing many other resolutions relating to the Coffee Industry.

In the evening the planters played a hockey match against the Chikmagalur Gymkhana in which the Europeans were successful by scoring three goals to one.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

SHOULD WE LIVE FRIVOLOUSLY?—DAYLIGHT SAVING SCHEME
CALCUTTA—PILFERING AND LYING OF A GREAT MANY ASSERTION OF SCAVENGERS—PRIVILEGE OF YOUNGER DAUGHTERS-IN-LAW DURING HOLI

Here is an interesting item of news about a debate.

"That we should live frivolously", was the subject of a debate held at the Cosmo Circle Bandra, last Saturday.

The proposer, Mr. N. J. Mistry contended that the way of frivolity was that of ripe—even decadent—living; the infinite stupidity of mankind, their myths, fables and illusions, deserved a smile; indeed we must smile; even if only to keep ourselves from weeping.

The seconder, Mr. S. Padamse held that frivolous living meant spontaneous...living, seriousness marred things by being sedulous. The opposition led by Mr. S. A. Neemchuala and supported by Messrs. G. Noronha and V. Hurry, pointed out that we must have both the serious and the frivolous things in a really full life. To be spontaneous one should not check the serious side of one's nature.

Misses Z. Parpia and K. S. Samant supported the proposition. Wit, humour and levity were held up as the essential means of successful living.

Mr. V. A. da Silva presided. The House rejected the proposition by a narrow margin.

Debates even on such light and frivolous subjects would sometimes do good and they put people into a lighter mood.

The following is from a Calcutta daily:

Daylight saving is now something that Calcutta and other places in India must think about. War forces on many changes of habits. It may be sensible to contemplate and perhaps practice some of these changes in advance. Britain laughed in advance at summer time, found it useful and pleasant when it came (though the dew on the fields and the cows in them have still not adjusted themselves to the clock), and now as a war time advantage has one hour advance in winter and two in summer. Representatives of commercial bodies in Calcutta have suggested that Calcutta's time should be put a further 36 minutes ahead of standard, making an hour in all, and that the ordinary day's work should be 9 or 9-30 a.m. to 4-30 or 5 p.m. These proposals will be discussed by various bodies in the next few weeks, and will probably receive private attention round what corresponds to the fireside. A clever boy in England is said to be examining the problem how by adjustments of the clock the country can get rid of the dark hours. India's need is not so urgent, but it is sensible to think about daylight saving as a necessity in certain circumstances.

Interesting are the problems which we have to consider during this war period.

A friend has asked me to publish in these columns the benefit of my readers of a remarkable incident in Kolar life in connection with a bon. Here it is:—Jean was in the service of a dame de Verceil.

It was a well-managed household of servants who respected their mistress. When household effects were coming with the inventory, missing, except a two-silvered ribbon. It was a particular value of Jean Jacques had stolen it. He did not even conceal the fact and when taxed with it he impudently said that a maid servant of the house of a Savoyard called Mar had given it to him. Mar denied the charges but with calmness and modesty, told with Jean Jacques and passionate assertion her conscientiousness was ed. So the master's household dismissed them, saying that the conscience-guilt one would even innocent. Jean Jacques heard about Marianne again he writes that for the next days, the suffered agonies her account. His remorse, averted, cured him for pilfering and lying; and a desire to deliver his soul burden was a principal reason for writing the "Confession".

Interesting, nevertheless, news comes from the where Municipal Savoy Thoties and other men gone on strike demanding other things a minimum wage of Rs. 15 per head, with pay for 15 days per in addition to holidays on important festival days, and benefit for 2 months with pay for women, well-lit lighting conveniences, reduction of scavenging work from 40 houses per head and brooms and sticks at minimum cost.

This is the sign of the and the Tirupur Municipal Council would do well to comply with as many demands possible and set an example to the other Municipalities. The Calcutta City Municipal Council has also an ambitious proposal with regard to the payment of the lot of scavengers. Let me wait and see.

The Holi festival on several people say, is a Hindu can sprinkle water on another's face with smear his face with To a South Indian it is sight to see the poor join in the merry interesting Holi is the privilege of young daughters-in-law and brothers-in-law and parents. The on them without retaliation.

EXAMINATION SYSTEM TAKES TOLL OF A YOUNG LIFE

Suicide indicts our out-moded Educational Technique

WHERE ARE MYSORE'S PIONEER EDUCATIONAL REFORMERS?

(T. L. A. ACHARYA)

You are falling open-eyed into the danger-trap of generalisation. You dare not condemn a whole system because a crazy child chose to take her own life. This is just a solitary instance? Ahalya is just a solitary instance? You are sure this is what most people will tell me. But I will not let them gag me. Neurotic? Was Ahalya crazy? Neurotic? Neurological?

A little girl on the threshold of life, just sweet sixteen, a student of the Vanivilas Institute, ended her life with her own tender little hands. Poor little soul! Poor innocent doe!

Why did she do it? Ahalya lost her life. She failed in her earnest endeavour to scale the examination-hurdle. She was not promoted and she demoted herself out of life.

This is not a solitary instance. It has happened here before and elsewhere and the educational authorities willing, will happen again.

Why did Ahalya choose to terminate her existence so abruptly, so young and in that fashion? She had been taught to look at a pass in an examination as the hall-mark of intellectual prowess and even social respectability and marriageability! She had lost a year in the race and life became a burden. Darkness was closing in.

Ahalya, poor dear, could not, for the life of her, remember the taste of a battle that one of the East India company's Empire Builders fought and the names of half a dozen of the first class profligate European monarchs of the Seventeenth century. If you do not remember dates and names, history is not history in an examination.

Ahalya, poor girl, could never get a grip over the fine nuances of the English language and master its crazy spelling and word knows she tried! The spelling was crazy not she.

She had a five hundred new recipes for palatable dishes that would have placed her in the front rank of experts in culinary science. But that did not help her in mastering the metaphysical mysteries of algebra.

She could embroider, in a tick a portrait of Mahatma Gandhi or Mr. Jinnah's shervani, before Mr. Jinnah spelt out Pakistan. She could draw too, our Ahalya. Her note-books were full of caricatures of her head-mistress. But who cares? Caricatures cannot pull you through from the Fourth form to the Fifth.

She could sing too. She had a divine voice. But there is no music in mathematics. She did not understand why when she she should slave at mathematics. But who cares? Mathematics first, Mr. dear. She was the star-performer at last year's school theatricals. But how did that matter?

She had been told that if she desired marriage with the son of a rich family she must get through the S.S.L.C. not with an E.P.S. But with the four lettered distinction, E.C.P.S. She did try, poor thing. She was beaten. She was not destined to marry into a rich home after all. Marriage meant so much to Ahalya. Then, why live?

I accuse the system which killed her. She craved for education in womanhood, in bridehood and in wifehood. The system did not give it her. The system was out to beat her into a regimented standardised product. She killed herself in protest. She felt a prey. I shall not call it murder for the simple reason that I hate to go into the box as a prosecution witness.

The beggar, the prostitute and the suicide, I say, are standing commentaries on society, on the social forces at work in the community, on the social ideals that in spire social organisations, on the process of social development or the lack of social development ending in stagnation and in an inelastic system. If education, for instance, ceases to be a process, a self developing and constantly developing process, it becomes soulless drill. The beggar, the prostitute, the suicide and the educated suffer are unequivocal, unignorable, challenging and disturbing comments on the way we run the show.

You cannot be philosophical about the tragic human waste that our educational system produces. You cannot resign yourself and say: It is pre-ordained. God said 'Let there be frustration.' What can you do? Mr. H. G. Wells is fond of saying that civilisation is a race between education and disaster. I cannot give a better idea of what education ought to be. If education is planless, disaster will overtake man, and we want education for so many things. As such, education never is a measure of defence for a community. Education must always be the vigorous counter-offensive against stagnation, against the blinding forces of conservatism.

The examinations in our schools are conducted in a terribly totalitarian manner, in the spirit of a robot-gardener pulling out the weeds and throwing them on the scrap heap. These weeds, these human weeds, these little hopefuls, dropped on the road-side, are they not fit for anything? Unless it is demonstrably and convincingly proved that they are not fit, does it not mean that there is something wrong with the way things are taught, something wrong with educational technique, something wrong with educational ideals? If examinations are a yard-stick, is it not necessary to put the yard-stick, too, to a test now and then, as well as test the fitness of the man who wields that yard-stick? Where are our institutions for the pre-school child? Our schools for delinquents, for problem children, our agricultural schools, our industrial schools, our art schools? What is the record of our educational research, our contribution to the technique of education? We, in this country, need a multiple attack, simultaneous educational offensive on a thousand fronts. Where is the evidence of such a move? More than anything else we must hunch a blitzkrieg against fatalism, superstition, social apathy and continental ignorance. What are we doing about it? I know our means are circumscribed and small. But social and educational amelioration cannot wait and should not be postponed even in times of war. What we have, what is doled out to us is not education, but a travestied semblance of education.

Speaking of education we are still grovelling in the insidious fashion set by Macaulay. It is still a goose-step, our education. The world is moving fast and ideas are boiling; but the educational system has been left behind, blunting the edge of whatever progress we have been able to achieve. The progress in educational technique in other lands has passed by and we have remained untouched by it because we have remained absolutely untouchable.

I shall not throw the whole blame on the heads of our Governments. Their's is the primary responsibility. The parents are responsible, too. I know that in the hearts and minds of our parents there is a growing distrust of educational methods. But they send their children to the very same schools to which they went while young. This distrust, fortunately, is mounting. We must learn to lose patience with educational stagnation, with educational marking-time. Our States must become more than tax-collecting and policing States.

We, in India, talk of democracy now. But real democracy, live democracy, healthful democracy, cannot be built on a sub-structure of ignorance. If it is introduced anyhow, it will be like the Co-operative Department starting Societies without education in co-operation. O! Disrespectable Democracy! I love you," shouted Edward Carpenter. Democracy will for ever remain disrespectful if the people are not given a respectable education. Our democracies have ceased to be honest. That has created a terrible soil for dictatorship and totalitarianism. The New Democracy daily admits that universal education is a disintegrating reason. Education is the enemy of dictatorship. Education for democracy has to be education in the art of living together, education in purposeful social behaviour. We have our politicians talking of democracy. I would rather start a school. John Buchan said: "Phrases which held a world of idealism and poetry have been spoilt by their use in bad verse and in after-dinner perorations. Even that which is generally accepted has become a platitude". No wonder that a good man felt like that.

I wish Mysore would set an example in educational solventy. Mysore is a go-ahead State and has in it to set an example. Progress will mean nothing to the people of Mysore, industries will not be their salvation, without the type of education that alone can give point to progress and industrialisation. We have a head of the administration who has the capacity to give a fine building to any person who asks for one. Yes. Let him give us buildings, but more school buildings, a liberal sprinkling of school buildings all over the State. While giving buildings he must force people into schools, all sorts of schools. We must dig the foundations of progress. We want an educational Attaturk in Mysore, a Mr. H. E. Allen, writing about what he calls "Turkish Transformation," says that the whole of "Turkey" "looks like a classroom." We want somebody to tell Mysoreans the following, in the words of Ismet Inonu, the present President of Turkey: "The first characteristic of the first living man was language. So the characteristic of human society is reading and writing." Achieve this and build an educational structure designed to raise the stature of the Mysorean.

Ahalya would have been a great mother. Our educational system never gave her a chance. Let us forget Ahalya!

Where are our educational pioneers? Where are our dedicated school masters?

I am about to enter early middle age. The school is just what it was when I was at school. If my father were to desire to go back to school he would, I tell you, find it just as it was when he left it. My father is eighty-one today. My son is now at school, what is called the middle school. The only difference I find in my days it was styled the Anglo-Vernacular School is that my son has no teacher who punishes his pupils with a whip. I had one whom we used to call Wali Sahib. I do not know if that educationist ever gave the taste of his whip to a visiting Inspector. He would have done it, but no Inspector dared come near him. He must have ruined generation after generation of young men. The teachers now appear to be little more human. Some of them even have kind faces.

But my son would make me stand up on the bench. This infamous form of torture is still there. My son gulped up his food at 9.30 a.m. and rushed to school an hour before time. He tells me that he would have to squat on the floor if he went late as the school does not provide benches for all. The first in the race get the seats of honour, the runners-up wooden planks and the also-ran just floor, rather unpleasantly dusty and unwashed. Mysore and I have made our home in Malleswaram.

This school houses over a hundred future hopes of Mysore. There are two boys in my son's class who suffer from epilepsy and when they have an attack the progress of education in Mysore is held up. This school has a lavatory which is really the biggest disgrace to the Bangalore Municipality. We have a University in Mysore and I think the Head-master is the only graduate. Most of the teachers, I am told, are graduates of S.S.L.C. and trained or Entrance or Intermediate passed or failed. What are all our universities doing? Surely, the Secretariat and the colleges have not devoured them.

I submit the Middle School is a racket. The English alphabet is taught in the first year. In the second year, the children have to struggle with words like, "earthquake," "discontentment," "preposition" & so on—the first two words you will find in the text-book of translation prescribed for the Second year. The Kannada course can be described as the sheer unadulterated ecstasy of vernacularisation of the medium of instruction. The language of the Kannada text-books is terribly high and pedantic, inexcusably Sanskritic. The selection of poetry is a cruel joke! Grammar is not taught with the language. I mean the language text-books. Separate books are prescribed for grammar. I do not know if there is a single person in the whole army of Middle School teachers who is qualified to make Geography and History teaching interesting. The children are made to commit the text-books to memory. Arithmetic, well, unless the method of teaching is humanised, some of Mysore's children will acquire a hatred complex for abstract sciences. It is the same story with other subjects. No effort is made to get the young people to develop their faculties or their initiative.

I have read somewhere, in some book on psychology, that the human mind — I should say brain — develops till the age of fourteen and after that it is a question of adaptation and technique. In the Middle School the children are mostly under twelve.

In spite of it all, it is an amazing fact, Mysore does turn out some brilliant men and good leadership. But there is a waste of considerable waste at the

I think the problem of education must be considered forthwith and with thoroughness and urgency.

Declaration of Harijan

PROTECTIVE DUTIES ON IRON AND STEEL MANUFACTURES

SILVER THREAD AND WIRE AND SUGAR

COMMERCE MEMBER'S EXPLANATION

[Associated Press of India]

New Delhi, Mar 24

The debate on Sir Ramsay Mudaliar's bill to continue for another year the existing protective duties on Iron and Steel manufactures, Silver Thread and wire and Sugar was continued in the Assembly today.

Sir Ziauddin moved its reference to the Select Committee. He declared it was unfair to the opposition that an omnibus bill of this kind should have been brought in at the fag end of the session. Articles dealt with in the bill were not released and by taking them together the opposition had been prevented from discussing each on its merits. He charged the Government with failure to carry out the Fiscal Commission's recommendations that the Tariff Board should report on the working protection.

Referring to sugar, Sir Ziauddin said since the local Governments of U. P. and Behar had interfered with the observance of the Fiscal Commission's recommendations regarding protection it was necessary that protection granted should be stopped.

Mr. Ramsay Scott opposing the select committee motion urged that instead of a year of protection for commodities, mentioned in the bill it should be continued for a longer period.

Mr. Hussainbhai Lalji criticised Government for failing to act on the first principle of all modern governments namely the encouragement of export.

Sir Abdullah Haroon supporting the select committee motion said that nobody in the House opposed protective duty, but he wanted to urge that protection given to industry should not be used by provinces to which the industry was at present confined to prevent other provinces developing sugar industry of their own.

Mr. Chapman Mortimer drawing attention to the Commerce Member's remarks earlier in the session on proposal to set up an Advisory Body to assist him in connection with problems arising out of sugar industry said that his group would strongly oppose the suggestion of setting up of any kind of purely official body to organise the industry.

Dr. Bannerjee suggested that the Commerce Member should give certain assurances with regard to questions whether protection should or should not be granted or what should be the amount of protection.

Mr. Jamsadas Mehta

Mr. Jamsadas Mehta expressed sympathy with the Select Committee motion for the simple reason that the House was called upon to continue its great responsibility on the consumers' head in the interests of industries without being taken into confidence as to what the present needs of industries were. Government could not ask the House to agree to the bill without giving further facts. On the other hand the fact was that this protection expired this month and it was renewed certain industries would find it hard to carry on. He was not prepared to take the risk of harming any industry although it was just a grievance that Government had been late.

Sir Mody

Sir Homi Mody speaking for Tatas replied that certain criticisms made in regard to protection to steel industry and said it was true that the Tata Steel Company was not in need of further protection. He pointed out the achievements of the company and declared that Tatas fulfilled all that was expected of it by the country as a result of protection. He revealed this year the company's output was expected to be 8,00,000 tons. He emphasised the achievements of the company were still greater in war time. He mentioned a number of articles which the company was now making including bullet-resisting steel. In addition, the company was training Indian young men for airforce.

Sir Ramsawmy Modaliyar

Replying to the debate, Sir Ramsawmy Mudaliar referred to the charge of joining unrelated subjects in one blanket bill and pointed out that under the present circumstances the Government were unable to assess the exact quantum of protection for these commodities and therefore asked the legislature to continue the same protection for another specified period.

GANDHIJI'S HARIJAN WEEKLIES

DECLARATION OF PRINTER

A. P. Ahmedabad, March, 25
Mr. Jivanji Desai declared himself before the District Magistrate as Printer and Publisher of Gandhiji's three weeklies "Harijan," "Harijan Bandhu" and "Harijan Sevak"

With reference to the possibility of protective duties being altogether off and being replaced by venue duties he had already given a warning to industrialists and commercial people that they would be well advised to conserve their resources that they must look forward after war to a time of difficulty. The extent to which they could claim help from Government would depend largely on the way in which they conserved their resources. He would address that warning particularly to the company producing iron and steel.

Referring to sugar the Commerce Member said that he in July 1940 had emphasised the principle that the industry's growth should be watched, that internal competition should be brought about and that the interests of the consumer should be safeguarded. He had attempted to dispel the impression of which a reference had been made, namely that his proposals to set up a Central Advisory Council would hamper the growth of sugar industry. He would be satisfied with the establishment of an advisory board based on representation of various Provincial and State Governments which would watch the growth and development of the industry and place facts before the various States and Provincial Governments which might enable them to organise the industry in their respective spheres on more rational basis and thus any danger to sugar industry might be avoided.

As regards the demand for a select committee he could not see any advantage it only the object was to acquaint him with views of members on the various problems.

The Commerce member next moving consideration of the second tariff bill referred to rice and said owing to bad crop of rice, Government had decided not to extend import duty on broken rice this year. He warned rice trade not to take advantage of rice shortage by raising prices.

As for wheat, he reiterated what he announced last year, namely that Government would carefully watch the prices of wheat and would not hesitate to remove or lower the quantum of import duty or take other steps to bring down the prices if they were satisfied that speculative tendencies were responsible for higher prices of wheat at any time during the year.

The House adjourned till tomorrow.

INDIAN MERCANTILE MARINE

GOVERNMENT POLICY TO GIVE ALL REASONABLE ASSISTANCE

COMMERCE MEMBER'S ASSURANCE IN CENTRAL ASSEMBLY

INDIAN RED CROSS SOCIETY

Vicroy's Address

A. P. New Delhi, March 24

Presiding over the general meeting of the Indian Ambulance Association and Indian Red Cross Society and Joint War Committee today His Excellency the Viceroy referred to the fine record of the Central Joint War Committee's achievements in catering for the needs of the Indian East and other areas overseas in assistance to our prisoners of war and lastly through the introduction of the system of Indian Red Cross postal messages enabling people to communicate with their relatives in enemy territory or enemy occupied territory.

Lt. General Moberly in the course of a statement on the activities of the Joint War Committee said:

"It is most unfortunate that there seems to be no general realisation in India that the war might affect us closely and that the comparatively quiet period which followed on its original outbreak was a heaven-sent opportunity to prepare for what might come. Consequently when a heavy demand for stores were received from the Middle East in autumn we had practically no means of meeting it and we had then set to work to make good leeway which had been lost."

He mentioned the splendid work that was being done by ladies' work parties throughout India and the great assistance given by Indian Railway administrations.

INDO-BURMA TRADE TALKS

Resumed This Afternoon

A. P. New Delhi, March, 25

Indo-Burma trade negotiations will be resumed this afternoon when the Burmese delegates who arrived here yesterday will meet Indian Delegation.

A. P. New Delhi, March 24

The Government has decided to give all reasonable assistance to the Indian Mercantile Marine in the form of subsidies and other measures.

Reference to another question Sir Ramsawmy said that Government of India had not received final clearance from the British Government in respect of the proposed war damage.

A. P. New Delhi, March 24

Mr. Ramsawmy said that the Government had decided to give all reasonable assistance to the Indian Mercantile Marine in the form of subsidies and other measures.

SUPPLY OF FOODSTUFFS

Calcutta Corporation's Suggestions

A. P. Calcutta, March, 24

The only thing that can be done to ensure supply of foodstuffs in the city is to make it self-sufficient in absolutely necessary articles such as rice, dal, atta, ghee, potato, mustard oil and kerosene oil in sufficiently large quantities in Hogg Market, College Street market and Entall Market where safe rooms may be available and can be utilised for the purpose free of rent was the suggestion put forward by Calcutta Corporation in a letter to the Bengal Government regarding the question of maintenance of adequate food supply in the city and suburbs in case of actual air raid or emergency.

ARTICLES OF ORDNANCE

As Many As 20,000 Made In India

A. P. New Delhi, March 24

How efforts are being made for the manufacture in India as many as possible of the 20,000 articles of ordnance hitherto imported is shown by the number of samples recently approved by the Department of Supply. Ordnance stores consist of 40,000 articles whereof 20,000 are already being made in India. Surveys have been made and a number of new sources of supplies have been found. Most of the supplies of ordnance, such as safety stoppers for bottles, rubber stoppers for bottles, and other articles, are being manufactured in India and abroad.

Thought For The Day

To try too hard to make people good is one way to make them worse; the only way to make them good is to be good.

Daily News

WEDNESDAY—MARCH 26, 1941

MR. JINNAH'S
MENTALITY

We are surprised at the speech made by Mr. Mahomed Jinnah in New Delhi on March 25, in connection with the observance of Pakistan Day. He seems to have said that Muslims and Hindus could not rule jointly as there was a great difference in their mode of living, dress and language. This is an extraordinary statement to make. Hindus and Muslims have been living in India for over a thousand years. They have ruled jointly. It may be there have been quarrels and fights, but can Mr. Jinnah say that there has been no quarrel among the people having the same mode of living, dress and language? A right reading of Indian history shows that we have been evolving a new nation in India, with a new culture. It is a harmonious blending of the two great cultures. It may be that the process is yet in the making and has not been complete. The relations between the Hindus and Muslims that obtain today are not the same as those that obtained in the past centuries. There has been a deliberate, conscious, benevolent attempt at the fusion of the two great cultures. Even in outward forms of life conscious unity is observable. Except in the political field the Hindu Muslim cleavage has not assumed any proportions. It is only in the political field, in the matter of Government appointments, seats in the Assemblies and Councils and Ministers, positions that this cleavage sometimes raises its ugly head. As far as the common people are concerned, the Hindu Muslim differences in mode of living, dress and language have not seriously affected their life. In these circumstances, it is indeed very strange for Mr. Jinnah to speak of these differences with a view to widening them. We are sorry for him. We hope the Muslim community is shrewd enough to take Mr. Jinnah's statements at the value at which they are to be taken.

AWARD OF SERVICE MEDAL

A. P. New Delhi, March 24
His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief of India has approved the immediate award of Indian Distinguished Service Medal for services rendered in action in the Northwest Frontier during February 1941 to No. 8958 Supply Murthy Jadhav, Fifth Madras Light Infantry, and No. 11448, Supply Fazal Dad, 6th Punjab Regiment.

Mr. K. T. BHASHYAM

HIS NAME SPELLS MAGIC IN MYSORE

(By His Admirer)

Greatness and austerity always go together and in Mr. Bhashyam's case it is revealed in all its pristine purity. His tranquil abode amidst the din and bustle of a crowded city is the centre of pilgrimage to those who seek his intervention for knitting together diffused human nature.

"K. T. Bhashyam" in Mysore is a magic name entrancing the rich and the poor alike. He is loved by all who come near him. He knows no enemies. His melodious voice, with its delicate cadences pour forth the song of sympathy to those who need it. His heart overflows with genuine sadness whenever he looks at rear drops rolling down on the cheeks of the listless humanity. People young and old have gathered around him to voice their woes of life to get a soft answer from his mellow tongue.

Mr. Bhashyam is an adept in bridging gulfs of unknown extremities. From a street quarrel to that of a serious political crisis he has offered his helping hand and in each event, success has been the outcome of his efforts.

I know of many instances when his soft talk has transformed rock-like personalities into meek submission for a known principle. His smiling face is his magic and his melody is his wand. A person who has shed his brilliance everywhere, must feel the easiness of the life's toil and Mr. Bhashyam has shown what a man of grit he is.

Mr. Bhashyam has to his credit the richness and humour of life. He could smile over his troubles as well as rejoice over his triumphs. There is an inexpressible glamour about him which draws people of all sorts. They come to him assured of his sympathy and abundant kindness. Never have I seen him nodding his head negatively. His effulgent intelligence, radiant exterior, unbounded enthusiasm, excellent repartee, sparkling wit have made him what he is today.

Mr. Bhashyam is a person of great forensic abilities but not allowed to practice it by the authority of the supreme court in the land. He paid this price for his patriotism. The country is aware of it and deeply stricken for what the authority has done for his political foible if you may call it.

He has lighted the lamp of Responsible Government in Mysore by throwing away a lucrative practice, made easy by the High Court's disenrolment order. He has spent a good number of days in the dingy dismal prison cell for uttering the slogan of Responsible Government and has come out of it though temporarily.

The creature vile which greets one as he enters his office room, branded by none keeps off that lurking fear of a close proximity to a great man.

This agent is President of the Mysore Congress bristled with great political events and he managed all these with signal success. These several statements he has issued by virtue of his authority as President, is a little history of the State's Political events of the day. It is a compendium of the vagaries of our bureaucracy who perceive something bad in every thing.

I know Mr. Bhashyam as a friend, philosopher and guide to my many-sided lapses which he has condoned with his richness of soul. I have disagreed with him on several subjects but still he receives me with his pleasant smile. As a Journalist I have incessantly argued with him and on several occasions he has put me on my heels hinting how weak is my case. In political advocacy he is capable of outwitting the cleverest diplomat.

Though devoid of a "Drawing Room" in his rather serene abode a talk with him reveals how correct mannered he is when dealing with people of opposite views. He could radiate Drawing Room manners without having one in his house. West has been blended with the East and Mr. Bhashyam is the shining example of it.

I have talked many things over a cup of coffee in his cosy room and never has the atmosphere been stuffy with political acerbities. He knows your point of view and adjusts it according to the mood prevailing.

Mr. Bhashyam is a man who hates reserve, but loves tranquility. His estate not far from this city with lovely ridges all round provides him peace in plenty. I have shared with him the pleasures of pastoral life whenever I feel like getting away from the hectic life of the city. He is an agriculturist himself with the keenness of improving the hard lot of villagers. His method of approach when dealing with the ryots and their problem is unsurpassed.

Mr. Bhashyam has a great future before him. He has to shape the destinies of a vast and listless multitude and I am sure his shall be the final voice when humanity has to surge forward in the path of progress. God bless him.

School Board Meeting
(From our correspondent)

Mysore, Mar 23
An Ordinary General Meeting of the Mysore District School Board took place today. Mr. Y. V. Gundu Rao presided. Some subjects relating to the administration of the Board were considered.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

SULTRINESS OF BANGALORE WEATHER—ALL INDIA WEATHER COMPARED—NO TALK OF MINISTRY—WAR AND THE COMMUNIST MAN—COST OF NEWS PRINT—CODE OF MERCY.

In the course of my usual morning walk I heard people complaining about the sultriness of the weather. It was usual in the years past for rains to appear on the day succeeding the Kamadahana festival. This year on that day there was no rain. The Maximum temperature of Bangalore on March 24 was 93°. It is 3° higher than the 45 years' average. The minimum temperature also is 3° higher than the 45 years' average. The quantity of rain fall has been nil in the month of March, but the 45 years' average shows 0.33. From the 1st January also the rainfall has been 0.16 whereas the 45 years' average is 0.94.

In Chitaldurg the maximum temperature on March 23 was 97°. At Bhadravati it was 97° on the Nandi Hill on March 23 the maximum temperature was 86°. The days have been unbearable and the nights have been oppressive. Added to the summer heat the mosquitos have been contributing their quota of trouble.

If we look at the All India Weather table on March 24, the highest temperature was at Cuddappa 104°. Next came Kurnool, Cawnpur, Lucknow, Nagpur at 103°. Next came Calcutta Bellary, Gwalior, Poona, at 102°. The lowest maximum temperature recorded was at Simla 70°. Next came Kodaikanal 72°. At Ooty it was 75° on March 24. Places more or less of the same temperature as of Bangalore are Bombay 91°, Calicut 90°, Mangalore 90° Masulipatam 91°, Panbani 91°, Lahore 94° and Karachi is 82°. I have given these figures for our people to compare the maximum and minimum temperature with reference to Bangalore.

There is not so much talk of the Ministry today as it was a few days ago. The people seem to be some what indifferent. Excepting the prospective candidates others do not seem to be thinking about it. All thoughts and all talks are now about the war. People have begun asking when this war would end. The situation has become unbearable. Business has been failing. Prices have been soaring up. And an atmosphere of uncertainty surrounds us. This war has been felt as a personal calamity by a large number of people. Everyone's life has been affected by it.

WARD CONGRESS COMMITTEE

Bangalore, March, 24
A meeting of the Bangalore City VIII Ward Congress Committee was held on Friday last at the residence of Mr. M. A. Gopalaswami Iyenger. The Office-bearers were elected for the coming year.

Mr. L. S. Raju-President, Mr. M. R. Honnappa-Vice-President, Mr. S. Rama Rao-Secretary,

We do not see the ambition has thrown into a whirlpool of disaster, end of which we have been able to foresee.

In these days the newspaper proprietor is miserable. The price of print has been soaring and seems to be no relief to people who run newspapers. It is felt that unless the press is more sympathetic towards newspapers it will be hard for them to serve the people in the same condition. Mysore readers may point fingers to the outside papers, compare the local papers, all it is much easier and less costly to produce a paper in Madras than in Bangalore. There is no paper which has reduced in Madras having a circulation less than 5 or 6 thousand. The Madras City is so big it is so cosmopolitan that a paper there would have a circulation of not less than a thousand per day. The same is not true of Bangalore. In circumstances our Mysore Factory can give some idea of the local papers in the market supply of newspaper.

In my scrap heap I found following:

A novel application reached the Court to make arrangements for his examination by a list in heart disease was before the Chief Presidency Magistrate by Himatlal Chand, a clerk.

The application had no in law, argued the complainant counsel. He relied on the "code of mercy".

The applicant, among other things, stated that since he had been suffering from disease and had been treated at all the free hospitals of the city. He complained that no doctor was able to diagnose his disease.

The applicant had brought the attention of the authorities to the doctors' failure to diagnose his case. He had also distributed leaflets among the members of the legal profession requesting them to champion his case.

As a last resort, he made present application.

The Magistrate remarked that he would pass orders later.

I keenly await the decision of the Magistrate.

tary, Mr. M. A. Gopalaswami Iyenger Treasurer.

The Committee elected K. R. Sridharanmurti as representative of the ward to serve on the City Congress Committee.

The Committee recommended to the City Congress Committee to invite the Fifth Ward of the Mysore Congress to Bangalore City.

CHIKMAGALUR COFFEE MARKET

(From our correspondent)

CHIKMAGALUR, Mar. 21

The improvement in the market reported in our last circular continued during this week as well and prices both for Plantation and Native have risen sharply. We understand forward sellers have contracts to fulfil by the end of this month and thanks to Coffee Cost of Ordinance, stocks of coffee available in the market are very limited and this is the reason ascribed for the sudden rise now appearing on the market.

The current prices are as follows:—
Plantation Assortment Rs. 43.14 to Rs. 46 per cwt. "A" Rs. 45; per cwt. "B" Rs. 42; per cwt. "C" Rs. 41; per cwt. "PB" 62; per cwt. "B" Rs. 40.8.0 per cwt. Native Es. limited: Rs. 17.1.1 per cwt. Peppercorn: Rs. 171.1 per cwt. Pepper: Rs. 70.1 per cwt. Cardamom: Rs. 60.65 per cwt.

N. S. Srinivasan Pool Coffee was sold during the week in Chikmagalur.

COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF'S APPRECIATION

Growing Military Effort

A. P. BOMBAY, March 24

"I am delighted to hear that the Bombay War Week was such an outstanding success" says the Commander-in-Chief replying in a message from the Governor of Bombay. The Commander-in-Chief after referring to the huge crowds which watched the march past yesterday said: "I am sure those who took part therein must have been greatly encouraged and gratified by the interest the public showed in them and the cordial welcome they received. I shall always be ready and willing to do all I can to let people in India see as much as they can of growing military effort the country is making whenever troops and equipment can be spared from their vital task of training for battle."

The Governor in his message to the Commander-in-Chief had thanked Sir Claude Auchinleck for the assistance given to the War Week by troops and navy and by armoured fighting vehicle.

INDIAN TRADERS IN AFGHANISTAN

Difficulties Over Rupee Exchange

A. P. NEW DELHI, March 24

"The Government of India have given careful consideration to the representation made by Indian traders in Afghanistan in respect of their difficulties over rupee exchange and it is intended that this matter should find a place in certain forthcoming discussions with the Afghan Government" said Mr. O. K. Caroe, Foreign Secretary, at question time in the Central Assembly today.

To supplementary questions Mr. Caroe replied that present discussions were carried on by correspondence through His Majesty's legations at Kabul with the Afghan Government.

Sir Andrew Clow informed the House that a rebate of 50 per cent was granted on Afghan cotton moving to Karachi in order to secure traffic.

"UNITE AND JOIN HANDS"

Appeal To Hindus And Muslims

A. P. NAGPUR, March 24

An appeal to Hindus and Muslims to unite and join hands with the Congress in order to achieve freedom was made by Maulana Mohamad Qasim Shahjahanpuri, Vice President of Majlis Ahl-e-United Provinces, addressing a public meeting last night. The Maulana criticised the policy of the Hindu Mahasabha which was striving for a "Hindu Raj" and the Muslim League which was fighting for Pakistan. Maulana Hafiz Mohamad Siddiq, Secretary of All-India Jamiatul Ulama, also addressed the gathering and appealed for unity.

COUNCIL OF STATE

STRENGTH OF I.C.S. POSTS

House Adjourns Until March 27

A. P. NEW DELHI, March 24

In the Council of State today a resolution recommending the appointment of a Committee of officials and non-officials to examine the question of strength of and posts reserved for I.C.S. was moved by Mr. Hossain Imam and was withdrawn after Government's point of view was explained by Mr. E. Conran Smith.

Mr. Hossain Imam said that too large a number of superior posts in the Central and Provincial Governments were being given to I.C.S., further the strength of I.C.S. was too far beyond requirement.

Mr. Conran Smith opposed the resolution and revealed that the strength of the service was fixed after taking fully into consideration the actual calculations. He advised the mover to withdraw the resolution as it was not proper to suggest reduction in I.C.S. at a time like this when the strain on the services was admittedly high. The resolution was withdrawn.

Replying to a question Mr. Conran Smith said that the total actual strength of I.C.S. on 12-12-40 was 1081 whereof 585 were Europeans and 496 Indians. Home Secretary told Mr. P. N. Saprta that the present sanctioned strength of the Indian Police cadre was 632, the number in service on January 1940 was 422 Europeans and 194 Indians.

Pandit Kunzru's resolution recommending planning of a comprehensive coordinated industrial development in this country was postponed to a later date on the suggestion of Sir Bajpai. The House referred to a joint committee of twelve members of the Council and Assembly, Mr. Hossain Imam's bill to make better provision for administration of Masjid and endowment of Juma Masjid, Fatehpuri Masjid Kalan Masjid, Delhi.

Mr. Chidambaram Chettiyar's bill to amend the Indian Limitation Act IX of 1908 was referred to a select committee of the council.

The House adjourned till March 27 when the Finance Bill will be taken up.

Mr. Wendel Wilkie made a broadcast speech at Taranto in which he referred to the establishment of new order after the war which would give freedom to every nation.

Mr. Matsuoka, Japanese Foreign Minister, left for Berlin after one hour's meeting with Molotov, Soviet Foreign Commissioner.

NAZI DIPLOMATS ENTER TANGIER

Move To Restrict Entry Or Exit Of Foreigners

(By Cable) LONDON

The Tangier Correspondent of the Daily Express cabled on March 17:

As Nazi diplomats to-day marched with typical Teuton ceremony into their new headquarters in Tangier, the Spanish police announced new restrictions on the entry and exit to and from the city of all foreigners.

The move is obviously designed to trap many refugees from Nazism and Fascism who hoped to find sanctuary in the once international city.

Crowds watching the pompous Nazi march, refused to "Heil" the elevation of the Swastika flag and noted with glee its failure to respond immediately to the signal for its hoisting given by one of the uniformed Nazi diplomats in the grand stand.

SOVIET NOTE TO YUGOSLAVIA

Promise of Help if Attacked?

(By Cable) LONDON

The Ankara correspondent of the Daily Telegraph cabled on March 17:

According to information from authoritative sources here, the Soviet Government have sent a note to Yugoslavia on the subject of the German demands.

Its terms give the explanation of the delay on the part of the Yugoslav Government in acceding to what the Nazis are urging.

The Yugoslavs are advised by the Russian note not to join the Axis Tripartite Pact on the ground that to do so would mean the extending of the war in the Balkans.

The note, I am also informed, gives a promise of aid to the Yugoslavs if they are attacked—military, technical and financial assistance being separately mentioned.

The note, according to my information, explains that by military help is meant assistance in the air.

CENTRAL PROVINCES BUDGET

A. P. NAGPUR, March 24

The budget estimates of Central Provinces Government for the year 1941/42 provides a revenue surplus of Rs. 1.98 lakhs.

The revenue is estimated at Rs. 510.76 lakhs and expenditure Rs. 508.78 lakhs. Provision has been made for education, Rs. 48.708 lakhs. Medical Rs. 63.643 lakhs and Agriculture Rs. 33.659 lakhs. The percentage of revenue contributed by Berar is 34.3 as against 35.2 in the budget for the current year. The year 1939/40 closed with a revenue surplus of Rs. 32.90 lakhs. This was the first surplus year after series of deficit years.

NO ABSOLUTE MERIT IN JAIL-GOING

Gandhiji's Letter to Bengal Congress Secretary
Calcutta, March 26

"There is no absolute merit in jail going. It is only a means to attain the end. One should welcome every means which is recommended by the Secretary of the Provincial Congress Committee, Gandhiji, in connection with Satyagraha movement and the Congress work in the Province."

Gandhiji has been in the outside world and he has said just as a matter of fact, "In any event," he points out, "the vast majority will always be outside. If they organised fully, more need exact imprisonment."

Referring to Maulana Abul Kalam Azad and arrested Gandhiji, the Maulana's arrest, at least, was unfortunate but this arrest had to come. Every one who is in contact with work puts them on their mettle.

COL SIR K. N. HAKSAR
AND INDIAN STATES

A copy of an article entitled "The Indian States—what about them?" written by Col Sir K. N. Haksar, a reprint from "The Twentieth Century," is made available to us. We have perused with interest, and respect due to the author, the above article. There are views and sentiments expressed in it with which we cannot agree in any manner. The writer's attitude to the movements of Responsible Government in Indian States is one of criticism and contempt. Here are some of his words: "Whatever may be the responsibility for the backwardness of education, particularly at political education, in the States, the fact remains that the popular leaders and those who enter the legislative bodies in the States today are for the most part devoid of administrative experience and political education. It is sad that people get the Government that they deserve. Whether or not it be any satisfaction to political idealists that the people of the States have been formed into constituencies for electing their representatives and that the elected representatives sit in legislatures when the States' Governments have created, it must be admitted that except for criticising and opposing every single act and measure of the Government, no constructive work is done by these legislative bodies nor is likely to be done for a long time to come. They are artificial creations in the States and as such are bogus institutions. And this for the reason that there are no political parties, no civic sense, and indeed no motive power force beyond love of power and aspiration to hold office. In these conditions—which, though deplorable, must improve with time to talk of Responsible Government for the States is enough to make the angels weep."

These are extraordinary views expressed by one who had and has something to do with Indian States. Col Haksar is like a Rip Van Winkle. The world has progressed much further than he imagines. The Indian States people have made rapid strides in the past few years in the matter of political progress. Col Haksar is indeed ignorant of the modern popular movements in Indian States.

We cannot see how it is possible for any knowledge of the world around him. It cannot be that he is ignorant of the movements of the people of Indian States. He cannot be ignorant of the facts and circumstances.

SUICIDE BY HANGING

INQUEST HELD OVER THE BODY

Body Sent To Post-Mortem

Examination

BANGALORE, March 26.—One Baker Sheriff, a resident of Panvel, near Bombay, India, was found hanging with a rope yesterday evening at about 7 p.m. in one of the rooms of his house. He was aged about 50 years. He is a married man with six children. The door of the room had been bolted from inside.

The Karnataka State Police held the inquest over the body and sent the body for post-mortem examination. Investigation is proceeding. It is also stated that none of the inmates of the house were present in the house when the above incident took place.

PRIZE DISTRIBUTION

Bangalore, March 26.—Rajakumari Desharaj Urs will distribute the prizes to the winners in the H.H. the Maharaja's cup Tennis Tournament & other sports, on Saturday the 29th March at Mahatma Seva Samaja.

Princes. Princes recognise the aspirations of their people for power. We do not see anything wrong in anybody possessing love of power and aspiration to hold office. Col. Haksar treats this aspiration with contempt, but as far as he himself is personally concerned he seems to think himself to be a high born individual to whom it is not wrong to aspire for power. In Indian States there are people who are of equal capacity to Saprus, Jayakars and Haksars. It is a shame on people of Indian States to say they have no civic sense and are not fit for power.

We would request in all politeness Col. Haksar to make a fresh study of Indian States' problems, specially the popular movements in Indian States. He cannot sweepingly decry the Mysore Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council as artificial creations and bogus institutions. He cannot say there are no political parties and no civic sense in Mysore. To talk of Responsible Government in Mysore will not make angels weep. It anybody says so, it is nothing but arrant nonsense and deserves to be treated as such.

The Princes have recognised the genuineness of the popularity in their States. They have appointed committees with a view to granting Constitutional Reforms. However inadequate and unsatisfactory those reforms may be, they prove one thing beyond a shadow of doubt that the people of Indian States are not a whit behind the people of British India and what British Indians get today in Indian States people should get at least tomorrow. Without sacrificing the status of Indian Princes it is possible to remove the artificial difference between the status of people of British India and of Indian States. We are indeed sorry that a gentleman of Col. Haksar's position should air a narrow view which has no connection with the existing facts and circumstances.

MYSORE NOTES

Municipal Council Meeting

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, March 25.—As reported earlier an ordinary General meeting of the Mysore City Municipal Council will be held on Monday the 31st instant at 4 p.m.

The agenda, among other subjects include the consideration of Managing Committee's resolution that it is in favour of giving only Badanaval Khadi uniforms to the peons and Duffedars of the Municipal Office although it may be more costly (with a view to encourage Indian Industries), and that the extra cost on this account be met by reappropriation of grants and that Government may be addressed in the matter.

A number of resolutions have been tabled for consideration at the meeting.

Mr P. S. Ramanaiah and six other Municipal Councillors have tabled a resolution about starting a provident fund scheme for the municipal staff including scavengers of the Municipality and all others in non-pensionable posts.

Mr. E. P. Nanjappa's resolution relates to the removing of certain Toddy and Arrack shops from their present position and be opened if found necessary outside the City limits as they are located in the interior portions of the City where family people are residing, and also thickly populated.

Making necessary arrangements to prevent monkey nuisance, providing good sanitary houses to Adhikarnatakas of Padavarahalli, providing of play materials for children in Eranga, are some of the other subjects on which resolutions have been tabled.

Some interpellations have been tabled about the Revenue Officer.

The letter from the President of the Mysore University Union requesting for at least a grant of Rs. 500 from the Municipal funds towards the Expenditure of the Summer Literacy Campaign organized by the Union to help at least 500 citizens to become literate during two months, is also placed on the agenda for consideration.

Resolution For The Congress

It is informed that Messrs A. Ramanna and N. Gopal Rao, two congressmen of Mysore City have tabled a resolution for consideration at the ensuing annual session of the Mysore Congress that such of the members as have been elected to the Legislative Council, Representative Assembly and other Local bodies should not hold offices in the Working Committee and Parliamentary Sub Committees of the Mysore Congress and if some of those members are at present holding such offices they should immediately resign from one of them.

Trust Board Meeting

Mr B. S. Raghavendra Rao presiding, an ordinary meeting of the Board of Trustees for the Improvement of the City of Mysore was held this evening, when some estimates were approved and some routine subjects were considered.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

WAR VOCABULARY RAMESWARAM TEMPLE DROWNING TRAGEDY PLEASURES AND ROMANCE OF WALKING—SENSE OF FEAR AN INCIDENT IN A GREAT MAN'S LIFE.

War enriches English vocabulary. The Last War enriched the English language to some extent and the present war has already added new words. Here are some new words:—

Abric Wallah: Term used by retired Anglo-Indian air raid wardens for those faint hearted enough to take cover.

Alert: The warning siren, from which comes.

Alertion: Typical Government Department invention as used in: "We were in a State of Alertion." Meaning the siren had gone.

Blitz: Term of endearment for the evening raid, e.g. "I left early to get home before the Blitz."

D.A.: Delayed action bomb, e.g. "They are homeless because of a D.A."

de Quile: To remove vital parts of a motor car to fool Fifth Column activity.

de Whistle: To sound the end of the danger period during warnings, e.g. "Have we been de whistled yet?"

Eggs: Bombs.

Packet (burr): Be badly bombed.

Pasting (get a.): See above.

Plastered (to be): See above.

Purple: Warning to those on duty that enemy aircraft are approaching "I knew there was a purple on so I did it hurry for my train." (Twins only go 15 miles an hour during raids.)

Red: Next stage of above when siren are sounded.

Yellow: Obsolete preliminary warning given when enemy aircraft were somewhere else in England. This state is now perpetual.

As soon as I opened this morning paper I came across a gruesome news item. A Sastriar, aged 35, one of the Adhiyayana Bhattars met with a watery grave in the Shiva Teertham inside the Sree Ramanathaswami Temple. As a consequence the usual poojas of the temple had to be suspended. It appears that the Bhatar was on duty in the temple in the morning. He had an epileptic fit while he was doing prayers at the Shiva Teertham steps, as a result of which he fell into the tank and was drowned. His absence was noticed in the evening and a search was made by temple authorities when his body was found floating in the tank.

When one reads such news items it is natural to be filled with a sense of profound helplessness of man in the face of death which visits him at odd hours and in grotesque forms.

I am a lover of walking and I believe it has done me immense good. It gives me time and opportunity to allow my mind to go where it listeth. It gives me the feeling that my mind can roam about as free as air.

I have read several writings about walking by eminent masters. I enjoy those writings immensely.

The other day, I wrote about Rousseau and his love of walking. Here is a passage from a book dealing with him, specially about walking. I hope my readers would enjoy the passage. Here it is.

"The men of the eighteenth century were great walkers, not the 'quality' who rode on horseback or drove in carriages, but the 'common man'—soldier on leave or looking for another employer; itinerant craftsman; musician, actor, juggler, student, young man of slender means, and of other sorts of people to be found on any road between the Elbe and the Rhine. They travel strong hoed and stout-stuck, and wearing spare linen and at night in a country house's cottage, or, if it were fine, simply under a winter there was a student and actor at rest found work in for five or six months spring found them on a pedestrian wing again, their sticks as they went the high road, stopping at a cottage, eating bread and cheese in of a thickset, or in the beside a waterfall, or as drew on, turning into a inn, where there was a company, fresh eggs, cheese, and the local wags plays a song and some haying, and may be waiting at the hands of a remarkable stranger.

"All this seems a little ful, yet it is exactly what Jacques experienced on his rambles, and what others were daily experiencing with less lively appreciation and without the latest of expressing it in detail. Jean Jacques has written prose autobiography, two of the open air and the of walking journeys. It was not all romance, retrospect it was somewhat idealized, for Jean Jacques did not write about it until after. And even less individuals than Jean Jacques must have had dull moments.

"Remote, unfringed, scholarly, slow..." thus begins his narrative of a walking journey through Italy, Spain, France, and there is however, nothing of Jean Jacques, narrative of such a state of mind.

Walking journeys have charms and fascinations found in other journeys—students and young men who so much of life, before they band themselves into excursions and have the usual walking journeys. They are tone to body, mind and general. Walking journeys are not bereft of their charms in this age of aeroplane flight.

What fear is and what sense of fear takes possession of man has not yet been explained. There is something mysterious about it. We know that it is common to man and beast. It is of the very nature of life. Some people are afraid of fear and some are not. It is said of Nelson that he was a child of six, he was in a pit. How long he was in it was not known. A story of his tomb in the pit was told him. Nelson seems to have been a child of six. "What is fear?" Robert describes this event in his biography of Nelson written in 1800.

RECOGNITION OF COMMUNAL UNIONS

MR. ABDULLAH'S RESOLUTION IN ASSEMBLY

Opposition of Several Members
(Associated Press of India)

New Delhi, Mar 25

The Muslim League Party's demand for recognition of communal unions of Government Employees was the subject of a lively debate in the Assembly today when Mr. H. M. Abdullah's resolution recommending to the Government to abandon its policy of non-recognition of so called communal unions.

Mr. Joshi

Mr. Joshi speaking first said the majority community in the country ought to make sacrifices in order to secure confidence of the minority communities but he could not support the demand for communal unions because Trade Union was an organisation of economic class and as only concerned with general economic interests of that class. There was no clash of interests of employees of Government who were either Hindus or Muslims. Rates of wages, leave rules, and pension rules were the same for all. Assertions about Muslim Community being a separate nation were not relevant. If a Muslim booking clerk or judge felt all the 24 hours of the day that he was a Muslim then he would not be fit to be a booking clerk or judge. Mr. Joshi denied that Muslims did not take part in the general trade union movement in the country but said a number of Muslims who took part in the public movement of any kind is smaller than Hindus. Reply for that lay in general education.

Maulvi Abdul Ghani

Maulvi Abdul Ghani asserted that Muslims did not get sufficient opportunity in the so called national trade union movements to express their grievances. He asked whether special representations were given for universities, landlords, labour, and so on, in industries they should be given separate trade unions also. The Muslims he declared were a nation and their demand for separate unions was a national demand.

Mr. Griffiths

Mr. Griffiths vigorously opposing the resolution declared that the extension of the principle of communalism to trade unionism was fraught with danger to organised labour in this country. As a member of the minority community he was bound to have sympathy with the demands of the minority community for separate representation in various spheres of life as a form of protection, both in industrial and political spheres there were two distinct spheres for considering the question of separate representation. There was a conflict of interests between the minority and majority communities with regard to any particular matters when if there was no conflict of interests there was no need for separate representation. There was a serious danger of discrimination in practice being done against the minority. In these two tests, he said there was no justification for separate representation. There was, he declared, no difference between the Hindus and the Muslims in matters of wages, hours of work and amenities of life.

Mr. Nauman intervening asked what about leave and Ramzan? Mr. Griffiths said if Mr. Nauman thought one of the main functions of trade union was to consider intervals of refreshments or prayers then he had not yet begun to understand the meaning of trade union movement.

Mr. Jannadas Mehta

Mr. Jannadas Mehta characterised the resolution as contradictory. He considered it also as a reflection on the Chair and on the Leader of the House, because they being Muslims they could not, according to the resolution, discharge their duties without always being conscious of the fact that they were Muslims.

The speaker was interrupted by many Muslim League Members who characterised the remarks as unwarranted inference and the President called upon Mr. Jannadas Mehta not to make any personal references.

Replying to certain references made to himself by some speakers on the day when the resolution was last discussed, Mr. Jannadas Mehta declared that it had been his privilege to represent the Hindu as well as Muslim workers as the President of the All-India Railwaymen's Federation. He made it clear that he was not a member of the Hindu Mahila Sabha. He also mentioned that on no less than ten, probably fifteen, occasions the delegates and advisers to the International Labour Conference had been Muslims.

Mr. Ghulamhik Narang said the so-called common unions could not advocate the cause of Muslims sincerely as experience had shown that.

Mr. Aney

Mr. Aney emphasised that the resolution had called upon the Government to take a reactionary step which they should not take responsibility of accepting. Three members of the house who had experience of trade unions had spoken against the resolution.

Sir Ziauddin said Mr. Griffiths was trying to apply trade union principles of England to India. Trade unions, he declared, must not be run by politicians because such unions became an appendage of political bodies. Mr. Jannadas Mehta's union was an appendage of the Congress.

Bhai Paramanand pointed out that Mr. Jannadas Mehta just defeated the Congress candidate in the elections.

Mr. Maitra

Mr. L. K. Maitra opposing the resolution said he had never heard even a whisper of criticism against the policies of service unions even by those for whose benefit the resolution was sought to be passed. He assured Sir Ziauddin that the service unions could not take up the question of prayers or meals nor could these unions take up individual cases which could be ventilated as they were already being ventilated in the Assembly. He challenged the statement that these unions were a close preserve of the Hindus and gave instances in which Muslims were elected presidents of these unions.

Mr. Azharali and Sir Abdul Halim Ghuznavi were presidents of the union, continued Mr. Maitra, whose members were predominantly Hindus. He asked Government to declare that that policy should not be extended to labour.

Sir Raza Ali

Sir Raza Ali explained the main grievance of Muslim employees of Government was that the Home Department resolution dated 6th July 1934 was not being given effect to in letter and spirit with regard to appointments, promotion and dismissals. Most Muslim Unions had been set up to concentrate themselves on such grievances. He was quite prepared to advise the union of which he was the President to join the common union provided an assurance was coming forth from a responsible authority of the latter union that they would help their Muslim members to ensure that the resolution dated 6th July 1934 was properly given effect to.

Sir Ghaznavi

Sir Abdul Halim Ghuznavi declared that he detested communal unions, but they could not shut their eyes to facts. The feeling among Muslim employees was that by joining a common union their grievances could not be removed. That feeling was based on facts and past experience.

Home Member

Sir Reginald Maxwell Home Member said after full consideration, Government remained of the opinion that they previously held, that it was neither in the best interests of the employees themselves, nor of the general public that communal unions should be given official recognition. Explaining the circumstances wherein Government agreed in 1920 to give recognition to associations of Government's servants the Home Member said it was that these Associations could only be for the purpose of making representations on matters of common interests to the whole class of Government's employees. On other matters, Government employees were able to submit individual memorials. That situation in his view was sufficient to protect the interests of the whole classes of Government servants as such because where major issues were at stake even the majority community would recognise the solidarity of service or association of Government servants was essential and association could not afford to neglect the interests of any sections or members without risking membership. Generally in their capacity as members of service, interests of members of one community were not different from those of others and the communal purposes of communal unions were unnecessary. It would be a source of weakness. It is pointed out it would be easy for Government or for any other employer to play off one against another and exploit any differences in their demands. The only object of Communal Association or union could be to make representations either on recruitment or promotion. The present position was that union could be formed by any section of a service and be entitled to claim recognition under conditions already mentioned. The Home Member contested the view that Muslims in Government service could not accept representation by others even when their interests were the same.

Nawabzada

Nawabzada Liaquat Ali Khan declared the debate had led to irresponsible conclusions that there were no Indians in the country's people were either Hindus or Muslims or others. He asserted that the interests of Muslim servants of Government were not represented by Hindu servants. The Government was who should the Government must take into account the minority community approaching Government directly with their grievances.

Mr. Asad Rashed Caudhary supported the resolution. The House rejected the resolution.

Low Prices

During the 50 minutes that remained Mr. Govind Deshmukh moved a resolution expressing concern at the low prices of Indian cotton export and their result on the general economic condition of cotton growers in India and urging that recommendations made by the Indian Central Cotton Committee in January at Bombay should be given effect to, to help growers in the present condition.

Sir Ramaswamy Mudaliar gave general assurances that the Indian Central Cotton Committee's recommendations were under Government's consideration while one or two had already been given effect to.

The resolution was thereupon withdrawn.

The House adjourned till Thursday

INDO-BURMA TA'KS

Critical Stage Reached

A. P. New Delhi, March 25

A critical stage in the Indo-Burma Trade negotiations has reached this afternoon when the delegates of the two countries met again after three weeks' interval. It is feared reconciliation of two opposing viewpoints revealed today may not be easy. At today's meeting it is understood final proposals of the Government of India's delegation on fundamental issues were put before the Burma delegation. It is gathered that on acceptance of these proposals depends whether the negotiations will continue or not. The Burma delegation's reply is expected to be available to the Government of India by Thursday.

DACCA SITUATION

Showing Signs Of Improvement

A. P. Dacca, March 25

Improvement in the situation in Dacca is being maintained and no cases of assault have been admitted to hospital till late in the evening. Several houses, however, are reported to be set on fire in different quarters of the city during the day and a few more arrests have been made.

Leading Hindu citizens met in a conference at Baribarty hall this morning and discussed ways and means for immediate restoration of peace and order. The conference appointed a committee for arranging relief to sufferers.

The Chief Minister of Bengal Mr. A. K. Fazlul Huq arrived here today from Calcutta.

In the life of Jean-Jacques we find an incident in connection with the sense of fear. The story is as follows: "One night at Bossey M. Lambercier gave him (Rousseau) a boy (let a boy) the key of the church and told him to go and fetch a Bible which had been left there. Jean-Jacques went bravely enough, passed through the cemetery and opened the church door. The complete blackness that met his eyes struck him with terror. He turned and fled. Finding a dog, Sultan, outside, he came back to the church with a dog, but Sultan could not enter. Nevertheless, Jean-Jacques went in, but again lost his head, and once more fled, this time up to the house where he heard M. Lambercier laughing loudly. At once Jean-Jacques fears left him. He turned round, went off to the Church, found the Bible and came back. In "Emile" he draws the lesson from this anecdote that a tutor should not try and test a pupil's courage at night singly, but with two or three children together.

There is another incident in the life of Jean-Jacques which is also connected with the sense of fear. What he called a "Bossey" had happened to every mother's child.

A Few Hours with Mahatma Gandhi

Sir Vijay Anand, Maharajkumar of Vizianagaram, giving his impressions of his recent visit to Mahatma Gandhi at Sevagram and his journey with him to Allahabad, writes:

I cannot exactly guess why Mahatma Gandhi has selected Sevagram for his residence, but one thing is certain. It is almost in the centre of our country, that may be an important reason. The one thing that binds the members in the ashram is universal love. I got to it on the afternoon of February 24 and I arrived at the ashram with feelings of awe and expectation. I went there to see Gandhi and place my services at his disposal for what they were worth.

I was shown into his presence by Shrimati Rajkumari Amrit Kaur. Mahadev Desai was sitting with him. Mahatmaji was busy writing in his hut. His characteristic smile on seeing me at once set my mind at its ease. It is usual for Gandhi to have a two-mile stroll every evening. I joined the walking party and all the while I was listening to the talk of either Rajkumari or Mahadevbhai both of whom are very cultured conversationalists.

The evening prayer was an interesting function at which I found all that is best in ancient writings was selected. Portions from the Gita and the Tulsī Ramayan were recited by all the ashramites, including Mahatmaji and Shrimati Kastur Bai. Miss Prem Kantak who was on a visit to the ashram, started the prayer after the Gita recital with a song on God Shiva, it being Shivaratri day. It was deeply devotional.

After prayers Gandhi told me to come to his hut for a few minutes' talk as he had broken his silence. Kastur Bai made kind inquiries after my mother, who has been a familiar figure in the ashram.

Breakfast

Next morning the saint made me sit next to him at breakfast an honour I shall treasure all my life, with the affectionate attention he and Kastur Bai lavished on me.

Regarding the food in the ashram I remember Rajkumari putting it humorously 'live to eat', not 'eat to live'. To me an incident that comes to my mind. At breakfast, Gandhi offered me from his own hand a little quantity of raw 'mimla chutney'. Without realising its taste, I gladly put some of it on my tongue, but I could neither swallow it nor spit it out in the presence of Gandhi. After food Gandhi insisted on pouring water over my hands, which I protested in vain. He said I had washed my hands with water and not with my food dish by Kastur Bai.

That afternoon I had a long talk with Mahatmaji in the course of which I placed myself in his hands. Among various subjects that were discussed I begged of him to allow me to offer satyagraha. The reply that he gave me is now public property, as Mahadevbhai under Bapuji's instructions has since issued a statement to the press.

That evening, after prayers I heard Gandhi, in slow and measured tones announce to the ashramites that all those who felt equal to the strain, might proceed next morning to the fields to help in the gathering of a crop ready for harvest.

Roll Call

At the end of the prayers every evening, I found that a roll call was made by a little boy to record how many yards of yarn were spun by each of the ashramites during the day. Mahatmaji was to leave for Allahabad on February 26 to open the Kamala Nehru Memorial Hospital and I accompanied him.

The news having gone round like wild-fire, the public of Nagpur were present at the station in thousands to greet him. The platform was crowded with men, women and children, who kept on shouting at the top of their voices 'Mahatma Gandhi ki jai'. Europeans were seen waving their hats off to this 'Half nak-d Fakir'. We were on a passenger train which stopped at every station. At every halt crowds flocked to such an extent that one could see only heads of men come to pay Gandhi homage.

One thing that struck me most was that Gandhi was always busy. He was either at his charka, or writing something or discussing some political issue with Mahadevbhai. I might, in passing, add that the third class compartment which we were travelling in was a little leaky and was no proof against the rain that was falling.

Next morning a large crowd was waiting at Jubbulpore, but Mahatmaji had to detain at Behraghat, a small wayside station, 12 miles from Jubbulpore, as some of the leaders had come there with cars, with a request that Gandhi might get down there and catch the mail at Jubbulpore a few hours later. Gandhi alighted, accompanied by Mahadevbhai, Khannubai and myself. We boated on the Narmada and visited the world-famous Marble Rocks. Gandhi's host at Jubbulpore was Sethi Ramnathji. We had a hearty meal with him. From the Marble Rocks to the residence of Hiji,

SHIMOGA NOTES

Nomination Application Rejected
(From our correspondent)

Shimoga, March 25
Mr. Venkatasubbiah the returning officer while scrutinising the nomination applications in connection with the Shimoga Municipal elections to be held on the 5th April rejected today the nomination applications of Messrs N. Sreekanthiah and S. A. Raman as there was some discrepancy in their applications. Mr. N. Sreekanthiah is the present Vice-president of this Municipality.

Alleged Assault

Information is to hand that one Seenappa a shop keeper was assaulted by Govinda, Venkappa, Sidda and two others yesterday at Kumbargundi and caused serious injuries. On getting the information the police went to the spot and removed the injured to Megan Hospital. It is understood that the police are going to place a charge-sheet on the assaulters under sec 324 and 114 I. P. C.

Repulse of two Italian attacks in Central sector of Albanian front is announced by Athens wireless.

people thronged the route in thousands. The presence of Gandhi draws huge crowds, be it city, be it jungle.

Donation

I can never forget, among other things, one little incident. A big Marwari merchant, probably one of the richest in Jubbulpore said that he would give Rs 2,500 for the Kamala Nehru Hospital, but Gandhi's smile could have literally knocked him down with a "feather" for, at once he doubled the figure.

We got to the Jubbulpore station just in time for the mail train and, as might be expected, the platform was filled to overflowing. On all sides people surrounded him and I found quite a number of Europeans among them. We boarded the Calcutta mail. I saw people standing for darshan at stations where the mail did not even stop—they were on trees, house-tops and standing on railings. Before we got to Cheeki, we went through our usual prayers. People had expected Gandhi to detain at Allahabad but we got off at Cheeki to avoid further congestion as by that time Mahatmaji looked a little fatigued. Even so, the Cheeki station was full.

Gandhi was escorted to Anand Bhawan by Mrs. Krishna Huthesing, Dr. Jivraj Mehta and others. Shivanath Katju took me to his house and literally overwhelmed me with his hospitality. He is a cricketer like me.

CLAIMS OF INTERNATIONALISM

Mr. N.S. Subba Rao's Address To Bangalore Rotarians

Bangalore, March 24
The following is the remaining portion of Rajakaryapravina N.S. Subba Rao's speech at the Bangalore Rotary club. (The concluding portion was published yesterday):

The speaker said he had selected as his subject for the talk this afternoon "The claims of internationalism," as being appropriate both for the audience as well as for the speaker, who represented University Education among the Rotarians of Bangalore. It had been pointed out that Rotary hoped that it might find a way to promote international understanding and good will to the end that resort to arms might be less frequent in the future, while it was the business of the Universities to tend "the universal element in the soul of man." Not only was there thus a common meeting ground, but both the Rotary movement and the Universities had come in for much criticism for failure to live up to their professions. Not long ago a well known political leader addressing the Rotarians of Bangalore was doubtful if the movement had made any serious contribution to international understanding, while it had been said that "The philosophies of life and politics most favoured by Schools and Universities had worsened the follies and errors upon which we had suffered" (Norman Angell). A French writer Benda had also dealt faithfully with the Betrayal by the Intellectuals of their trust in his well-known work of that name. There was, therefore, fellowship both in ideals as well as in exposure to criticism, which made the subject of this afternoon worthwhile spending a few minutes upon. Internationalism was further not merely an academic hobby, or a mere aspiration of the idealist, but had come to be a matter of great practical importance at the present stage of human development.

Peace, Unity And Prosperity

The world needed peace and unity and prosperity, and it was the strong conviction of a good many at the present time that these could be realised only by acceptance of Internationalism as the basis of the political and economic organisation of mankind. Human groups could no longer live in isolation, and the national state had ceased to be a possible political unit. Improved means of communication and the advent of the bombing plane made it no longer safe to group ourselves into sovereign national states. The drift seemed to be in the direction of larger units. Whether the movement would stop at continentalism or go further, time alone could show. Such a grouping of the peoples of the world could be effected either by coercion, as was contemplated by the Nazis, or would result in a slave empire, or might come about by the acceptance of a close bond of matters of common interest. The way led to federal union and the present time no form of political organisation was more canvassed than some form of federal union.

Political Nationalism

If political nationalism no longer satisfy the needs of mankind, it was even necessary of the economic organisation of mankind. The great depression of the early 30's had made clear that communities could be prosperous or suffer in isolation, and the fundamental economic unity of the world was brought home to the minds of men by the world-wide depression and unemployment. In August the London Times wrote that if Europe was "to become once more a prosperous as well as a peaceful land, common economic planning and economic policy were imperative. The mirage of domination based on self-sufficiency must be replaced in Germany and throughout Europe, by an economic organisation conceived from an Asian or so far as may be from a world-wide point of view." It was economic wisdom in unexpected places, and it is significant as showing that responsible people were moving towards some form of international organisation of the activities of nations. The new economic order contemplated by the Nazis was proceeding on European lines but was regulated by German interests and not by the interests of every part of Europe brought into the order. Here again the basis of such a common organisation should be willing acceptance. "Consent won by terms is barren of constructive value."

It would not suffice if the new order provided plenty without the same time making this plenty available in some equitable measure to the masses. The economic leaders of mankind must rally the nations and the masses by offering the submerged peoples and the crushed workers new life in a braver future (Braithford). Therefore, it is that labour leaders like Morrison and Bevin had been promising that in the new order there would be no privilege and no lack of employment. It was merely an ethical aspiration, not an economic necessity. It linked a better distribution of larger productivity. Unless the masses consume more, the wheels of production would stop down.

Demonstrations against the Axis pact were shown in all parts of Yugoslavia. Groups of Yugoslavs are showing wild enthusiasm for the war and her allies.

SAPRU-VICEROY INTERVIEW

GROUND BEING PREPARED

SIR SAPRU WILL BE IN DELHI ON MARCH 29.

WILL Mr. JINNAH RESIGN HIS ASSEMBLY SEAT?

(From our own correspondent)
New Delhi, Mar. 26
It is understood that Sir T. B. Sapru will be in New Delhi on March 29. Expectations are that the Viceroy will invite him to interview in connection with the Bombay Conference. The reason why the Bombay resolution has not yet been submitted, the Viceroy appears to be waiting for the text of the proceedings of the Bombay Conference in a final form so that along with the resolution the Viceroy may also have the full views of the members who had attended the conference.
The lobby reports indicate that Mr. M. A. Jinnah may before the next session, resign his seat in the Assembly. On account of heavy political work he has no time for the Assembly work.

IMMIGRATION OF NON-CEYLONESE

SIR JAYATILAKA'S MISSION?

(Associated Press of India)
Colombo, March 26
The State Council by 21 votes to 12 passed the second reading of the Bill to regulate and control immigration of non-Ceylonese after a late night session. The bill goes to the Committee stage.

A suggestion that Sir Jayatilaka, Home Minister and leader of the State Council should go on a "one man mission" to India to make an attempt at settlement of Indo-Ceylon problems was made by Dewan Bahadur I. X. Pereira in the course of the debate in the State Council this evening. He urged that the two bills now before the House should be withdrawn so as to facilitate the settlement by negotiations with India.

Mr. G. C. S. Corea, Minister of Labour and Commerce and Industry said that the bill was purely for the purpose of controlling immigration and should not be mixed up with Delhi talks.

Mr. G. S. Wademan, Chief Secretary, in a brief reply emphasised the importance of maintaining friendly relations with India.

AIM OF HINDU MAHASABHA To Supplement and not Supplant Congress

A.P. Madras, March, 27
The aim of the Hindu Maha Sabha is not to supplant the Congress but to supplement its struggle for the freedom of the country, but the first and foremost ideal of the Hindu Mahasabha is unification of Hindus and territorial integrity of India says Dr. G. V. Naidu, General Secretary, Hindu Mahasabha.

Yugoslav Prime Minister and Foreign Minister have returned to Belgrade from Vienna after signing the Tripartite Pact of one hundred a day. At every place he visited, His Excellency met many prominent members of the public associated with war effort.

A.P. New Delhi, March, 27
A communique from Mr. Churchill cited the following message to the Jam Sahab of Nawanagar, Chairman of the Chamber of Princes in regard to the resolution of the Chamber of Princes passed on the 18th March on War: My colleagues and I are moved by terms of the resolution passed by the Chamber of Princes on March 18 and I am specially touched by the generous reference to His Majesty's Government of the United Kingdom which recognises the part which Indian troops have made to the imperial victories in North Africa and they well know that this contribution will increase still further in size and scope as months roll on. On behalf of my colleagues I ask Your Highness to express to the Chamber of Princes our appreciation of the resolute spirit with which the Princes and people of India have shown themselves to be inspired

BETTER ROAD SENSE AMONG PEDESTRIANS NEEDED

505 Accidents in The Year 1939 40
Bangalore, March, 27
There were 505 motor accidents during the year 1939-40. Of these 40 persons were killed, the largest number among them, viz. being 32 pedestrians. The total number of persons injured was 392, out of whom 69 were pedal cyclists and 169 pedestrians.

To minimise this accident great vigilance is called for in the grant of drivers licenses and better road sense amongst pedestrians

(From our correspondent)

The Deputy Commissioner Shimoga set aside the election order in respect of the nomination applications of Messrs. S. Narayana and Ramana and declared those names to be included among those of the candidates eligible for election.

Rousseau was a master style. How he acquired it, what his method of study, it would be interesting to know. Rousseau was conscious of having some talent in literature, although he as yet had no taste for authorship. His studies were going on all the time. At first he thought to encounter all knowledge by working through Bayle's Encyclopédie and classifying all its various subjects. He soon, however, came to the conclusion that it was necessary to adopt the opposite method, and to treat each subject separately upon its point where it united with the rest. "Thus," he modestly claims, "I came back to the man who knows what he does not do." At the same time, however, he found if he tried to sit cross-legged studying one thing, he became quickly exhausted and dizzy; so, however he passed from one subject to another, even without an interval, the one resting him after the other, so that he could go on working without respite and without tedium. He distributed his time equally between studies and out-of-door activity and affairs of the world, when he lived in the country and was always in motion and was always full of ideas. (See page 2)

Our Cine Review

MR. Y. V. RAO ON NEW THEATRES

He says that in all the New Theatres crew, from the great boss B. N. Sircar down to the gateman, there is one trait and that is their earnest devotion to work. The strict adherence to working hours and system, it seems, is inspiring at New Theatres.

"Saigal—a jolly good chap," remarked Sri Rao. "The least assuming of stars that I have seen. No posing, no airs, simple, sincere and jolly. He told me he prefers to play tragi-comic roles. Kanan Devi? she is charming off the screen too and her husband, Mr. Moitra, has a fine personality tall and aristocratic. Mr. R. C. Boral music director, is a real genius—his use of the orchestra is magical. Mr. Atul Chatterjee, the sound engineer and Mr. Yusuf Mulgi, the cameraman and Mr. Sorensen, the art director—a splendid team, indeed. And Mr. P.N. Roy as production chief sees to things in what I might say a Royal manner."

"And then Mr. B.N. Sircar! He is the living definition of the word gentleman. He is a boss one would love to serve."

"Mr. Nitin Bose is probably the best loved director in Bengal. Mr. Hemchander is the youngest director in New theatres and very clever too."

S. Times Representative.

When Shantaram Shed Tears!

A very interesting anecdote, illustrative of Director Shantaram's rich imagination and sympathy is reported by 'The Movies Film Weekly' of Delhi, as narrated by Mr. D. D. Kashyap to the Journalist-editor, on the former's visit to the 'Movie Office'. Mr. Kashyap played the role of a capitalist in "Padosi" and is now undergoing training in Prabhat as assistant to Mr. Shantaram.

It seems Mr. Shantaram, when writing the scenario, leaves the left hand pages blank for sketches of sets or any special instructions, with the scenario matter on the right hand pages. When he treated the scene where the two neighbours of "Padosi" part in deep misunderstanding, he wrote the scenario as usual on the right hand page, but there were some yellowish dots on the left hand page.

The Secret

When Shantaram brought the script to the studio next morning, the workers were unable to know what those dots on the

MADRAS BUDGET

Second Supplementary Estimates

A. P. Madras, March, 26. Additional expenditure of approximately 52 lakhs has been authorised by the Governor in the second supplementary estimates of expenditure for 1940-41 published in the Gazette today. Among important items of expenditure are five lakhs for additional expenditure on jails, six lakhs for additional police staff, uniform for civic guards, eight lakhs for payment of grants to aided elementary schools, six lakhs for larger expenditure under electricity systems, fourteen lakhs for purchase of cinchona bark, and quinine sulphate to provide for reserve stock. The total expenditure authorised by the Governor is 157 lakhs but after excluding appropriations, amounts authorised for actual expenditure come only to about fifty-two lakhs.

left hand page meant. With his innate modesty, at first Shantaram did not say anything. But when his assistants compelled him, he reluctantly revealed the secret. He said that while feeling the parting of the neighbours, he in imagination entered so much into the spirit of the scene, that he actually wept very bitterly. And those fellow drops were the stains of the tears he shed.

Mrs. Sahi in 'Omar Khayyam'

A report has it that Director Shantaram is thinking of signing up Mrs. Snehprabha Sahi (Star of B.T.'s 'Punimilan') for a role in his next picture 'Omar Khayyam'.

Love's Eternal Riddle

Does the Modern Eve of today remain the same eternal riddle to two people, loving her at the same time? Kanan, the glamour girl of the Indian screen answers this question in N.T.'s 'Lazam', directed by Nitin Bose. The situation, arising out of a misunderstanding in love, leads to a terrific climax.

Saigal as the restless lover spins the web of romance, with his golden voice mingling with an equally entrancing note lent by his partner songstress, Kanan.

Director Mehboob's next picture for National has finally been named as 'Sister' (Ben). The theme is the idealisation of the love of a brother for a sister. Sheikh Mukhtar (of 'the only way') is playing the role of the brother and Nalini Jaywant (of 'Radhika') appears as his sister. Work is now going on for the last few scenes and the film is expected to be complete within a few weeks.

A resolution conveying respectful congratulations on the accession to the throne of Sri Jaya Chamaraja Wodeyar, was also adopted.

INDIA'S WAR EFFORT

QUESTIONS IN COMMON

The possibility of increasing India's war effort was discussed in the House of Commons. Mr. Gordon Macdonald (Labour) asked Col. Amery (Conservative) what was the intention of the Government to make further effort to bring about fuller more complete co-operation between the various important sections of opinion in India in order to increase that effort in that country.

Col. Amery replied: Government are most anxious to see such co-operation and constantly in view the capability of furthering it as action on their part can be that end.

Sir Alfred Knox (Conservative): Is it not true that Indians whose co-operation is of value are already operating in the war effort? Mr. Macdonald: Is it not that there are many men imprisoned in India whose services would be of great value to the war effort?

Col. Amery: I hope to see the support of all Indians.

Mr. Sorensen (Labour): Would Amery consider release of those Indians imprisoned?

There was no reply.

Arrest Of Mr. H. Singh

DESIRABILITY OF Col. AMERY'S VISIT TO INDIA

Suggestion to Release Satyagrahis Immediately

IDEA OF SUMMONING A WAR CONFERENCE IN INDIA

(From our correspondent)
(B. Wire)

New Delhi, March 28
The cryptic statement made by Col. Amery in the Commons aroused considerable interest in the Assembly circles. It is known that following the Bombay Conference there have been protracted consultations between London and New Delhi. Col. Amery's statement in the Commons is considered the desirability of furthering the war effort as far as action on the part will help coupled with expression of hope "to have the support of All Indians" is regarded here as an interesting revelation.

What exactly Col. Amery has in mind is not clear but according to the Assembly talks the statement for conciliatory gesture at the time is being pressed in influential circles. Two suggestions were found prominent mention in the political talks. One is that a favourable opportunity is presented itself for Col. Amery's visit to India. One member of the Legislature told "if Col. Amery loses this chance he will not find another near future."

Another suggestion is that the Government should immediately release all Satyagrahi prisoners in a friendly gesture and call a War Conference of Leaders in New Delhi as was done during the last war. There seems to be a general agreement that the move is propitious for a wise and statesmanlike political move from the Government's side, but the past few years have been so full of disappointments that there is at the moment, still some strong undercurrent of pessimism in talks.

In the meantime Sir Sapru's arrival to-morrow is being awaited with interest as he is expected to meet Mr. Jinnah and other leaders.

The first step to bring the members of the Central Legislative Assembly close touch with army and air was taken when an invitation which on behalf of the Commander-in-Chief has been extended to the organised personnel in both the houses requesting them to send representatives to visit some of the big training centres as the Government of India guests will be arranged some time in April.

New Delhi, Mar. 29
The Meek-Gregory mission to America was criticised in the Central Assembly today on a cut motion moved by Mr. A. N. Chattopadhyaya. Dr. Bannerjee supporting the cut motion made a reference to Mr. Gregory suggesting that he had not fully acquainted himself with the economic needs and conditions of India but on point of order raised by Sir F. E. James the Chair ruled it undesirable to discuss in the House merits of individual officers. Dr. Bannerjee declared it was not his intention to disparage Dr. Gregory but wanted to lodge a protest against non-appointment of Indians.

PUNISHED FOR RASH DRIVING

Bangalore, March 29

Mr. M. Ramaswamaiah, City Magistrate, Bangalore, fined one Sheik Madar alias Kala under Section 338 I.P.C. Rules 23-A, and 16 M.V. Act.

The prosecution alleged that the accused Sheik Madar on 18-7-40 at about 6-20 P. M. drove Taxi No. B. A. 3238 in a rash and negligent manner on the city Railway underbridge road towards city Railway Station and dashed against Nanjamma (40) who was standing on the southern foot of the City Railway underbridge road and caused fracture of her leg and further the accused absconded without reporting the accident to the Police Station as per law.

The Magistrate hearing the case sentenced the accused to pay a fine of Rs. 100 for the offence under Section 338 I.P.C. and Rs. 5 under the Motor Vehicles Act, in default to suffer imprisonment for 3 months and 3 days. The Magistrate further ordered to pay Rs. 100 as compensation to Nanjamma if fine is recovered.

YUGOSLAVIA

—10—

Yugoslavia has given a rebuttal to the Axis powers. The nation rose in revolt against the treacherous attitude of its ministers who bartered away the honour and freedom of the country for imaginary safety. A revolution, quick and effective in result took place and young King Peter was asked to assume full charge of the situation. The young fellow rose to the occasion, instilled courage and confidence into his people. In his first Proclamation he said "with trust in God and in the future of Yugoslavia I appeal to all citizens and all authorities of the country to fulfil their duties to the King and country."

In his second Proclamation, the King appeals to the population to continue their usual occupations. The army has rallied round its young King. And the whole Yugoslavia is filled with a new spirit of joy and is prepared to resist to the full extent the invader. The people have resolved to shed their last drop of blood before the invader walks over their corpses.

Yugoslavia has drawn the admiration of England and America. Nazis are upset. Hitler had to encounter in Yugoslavia a turning point in the war. Yugoslavia is not going to capitulate to Hitler. Yugoslavians are a fierce fighting people. This is considered to be the first major diplomatic defeat for Hitler and will be of an enormous importance elsewhere than in the Balkans.

Political circles are of the opinion that Russian support of Turkey, plus the Yugoslav revolt, will, with the fighting spirit of the Greeks and British troops in the Balkans, present an array of strength in the Balkans formidable enough to make Hitler pause before launching a large offensive. In addition, the change in the Yugoslav situation will prove a fatal blow to the Italian forces in Albania.

In view of the situation in Yugoslavia, invasion of England will have to be postponed indefinitely. The complexion of the European situation has entirely changed as a result of the Yugoslav revolution.

AN INDIAN GENIUS

MR. S. RAMANUJAN

An acknowledged genius in mathematics, Srinivasa Ramanujan, who died in 1920 at the early age of thirty-three, was among the first Indians to give his country a status in the world of modern science. In Ramanujan (Cambridge University Press, 25s) Professor G. H. Hardy, Sadleirian Professor of Pure Mathematics, Cambridge, who early recognised the unusual talent of this mathematical prodigy and nursed it carefully, pays what is obviously a laudatory tribute to his pupil's memory. No European probably knew Ramanujan more intimately or understood him so well. The book is necessarily technical, and quite impossible for the man in the street to appreciate, though the boy in the street may get a thrill from knowing that, if he factorises a car number he delights to recognise and notes the number of prime factors it contains so as to get its "roundness," he will be following far off in the footsteps of India's supreme mathematician. What is most worth considering, however, is how we treat our men of genius. The tragedy of Ramanujan is well known—failure to get his bearings on entering college and failure to find guidance—the twin curses, poverty and mass education.

"On life's rough ocean luckless star'd,

Unskilful he to note the card of prudent lore."

Fortunately, though the winds blew hard, the billows, did not entirely "whelm him o'er." From 1914 to 1917 he had three years of uninterrupted activity at Cambridge, but says Professor Hardy, "the years between eighteen and twenty-five are the critical years in a mathematician's career, and the damage had been done..... There was no gain at all when the College at Kumbakonam rejected the one great man they had ever possessed, and the loss was irreparable; it is the worst instance that I know of the damage that can be done by an inefficient and inelastic educational system.... he still could learn to do new things, and do them extremely well. It was impossible to teach him systematically, but he gradually absorbed new points of view. In particular he learnt what was meant by proof."

We may be wise now in some degree after the event; but genius is not likely to present itself again in the same guise, and mounting matriculation numbers suggest that we are far from having escaped the danger of sacrilege. Our tribute to Ramanujan's memory would be a deep and even desperate, discontent with our wholesale methods of education whose standards are almost merely those of the market place. One could wish it were possible for Professor Hardy to give an admitted account of his talk with a man in whose society one could "take pleasure, with whom one could drink tea and discuss politics or mathematics."

OUR NORTH KARNATAKA LETTER

CARTMEN STAGE A STRIKE

(From our correspondent)

Hubli, March 27

About two hundred cartmen staged a sitting strike yesterday in protest of the revised levy on them. The new administration of the Municipality has levied an annual tax of Rs. 12 per cart. The Municipal authorities yesterday took possession of three carts as the owners failed to pay the taxes due for the current year. In a few hours practically all the carts of the cities were before the Municipal offices and a representation was made to the Administrator to withhold coercive measures and reconsider the sad plight of the poor cartmen. The Administrator said that it was not in his hands to do anything and asked the representatives to see the higher authorities in the matter. Thereupon a deputation went to see Mr. Perry, the Commissioner of the Division but could not meet him as he was at a far off place. Meanwhile the strike continued and the strikers were quite peaceful. Today morning the strike was called off and the cartmen paid half the tax, under protest. The leaders are once again going to the Commissioner to get the tax reduced.

K.P.C.C. President to Wardha

Mrs. Krishnabai Panjikar, the President of the K.P.C.C. has gone to Wardha in order to see Mahatma Gandhi with reference to the conduct of the satyagraha campaign in the province.

Mr. Kargudri Offers Satyagraha

Mr. R. V. Kargudri the Associate Editor of the Hubli Gazette is going to offer satyagraha on the 29th inst. at Hubli.

Satyagraha Campaign In Karnataka

The Satyagraha Campaign is going on vigorously in Karnataka, and out of the 408 persons that offered satyagraha since the beginning of the struggle, 385 have been arrested and the total amount of fine imposed is Rs. 9425. 23 persons were not arrested though they broke the law. During the last fortnight ending on the 15th inst. 131 persons offered satyagraha and 118 of them were arrested.

But Professor Hardy would probably say that that was not "im portant," and the clear-cut snapshots he gives us certainly go far to help us to appreciate the kind of man Ramanujan was. Mathematicians will doubtless revel in the intellectual ideas with which Professor Hardy's book is concerned and which were Ramanujan's ruling passion. This graceful tribute by a distinguished English mathematician should evoke a reciprocal gesture from India. Learning has no frontiers, and our Indian Universities, emulating their British prototypes, would do well to honour British and foreign well-wishers by the occasional conferment of their honorary degrees.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

YUGADI REFLECTIONS—S. RAMANUJAM—HIS EARLY LIFE—THE SYSTEM OF EXAMINATION

One day's holiday means so much of accumulation of matter, and the consequent pressure on the columns of the paper. For this reason I have necessarily to be brief today. I am sure most of my readers would have enjoyed their Ugadi cheerfully. Though one day is not different from another as far as the quantity of hours, minutes and seconds are concerned Nature and surroundings impart a difference in them. While the whole world puts on a festive appearance and nature seems to conform to it, no body can resist the resulting reaction on his own mind. However melancholy and gloomy a man may be he will be lifted out of that cloud seeing the atmosphere around. Life is nothing if it is all sorrow and no joy, or even if it is all joy and no sorrow. Life loses its flavour if it is not interspersed with moments of joy alternating with moments of grief.

It is true that there is so much of suffering and sorrow in the world. Europe of today is enmeshed with bombs and artillery guns. Aeroplanes are raining death and destruction. Even India feels the acuteness of suffering. Humanity is one, throbbing with one feeling. All the same, Europe had had its Christmas. We are told that in Spain when the country was riven with civil war, people enjoyed themselves in Cinemas and Restaurants. In the atmosphere of Europe there is something intensely human which refuses to be coerced into grief and gloom in spite of a shower of bombs. We have to cultivate in India the same spirit of perennial joy. Our philosophy preaches 'Ananda' as God essence. God is all bliss and joy. Thus in the midst of our grief and gloom, individual and communal, let us partake of the sun of life and the cheer of nature which is perennially young. These are some thoughts that pass through my mind when I think of the Yugadi.

The following is from the "Times of India."

Every Indian school-boy has heard of Ramanujan, that mathematical genius who died in England at a very early age over twenty years ago.

Professor G. H. Hardy, Ramanujan's old tutor at Cambridge, has now written a memoir of his brilliant pupil, which contains some interesting anecdotes about this erratic genius. One of these stories concerns Ramanujan's upcountry understanding of figures.

Professor Hardy relates how one day he went to visit Ramanujan, who was then convalescing after an illness. He remarked to Ramanujan that his number was 1729, adding that it seemed a dull figure.

"No," said Ramanujan, "it is a very interesting number. It is the smallest number expressible as a sum of two cubes in two different ways."

The cubes are: $12^3 + 1^3$ and $10^3 + 9^3$.

Most of my readers will have heard of Mr. S. Ramanujan. He was the first great Indian who opened the eyes of the world to the great potentialities of the Indian intellect. His life is remarkable. He was only a clerk in the Port Trust Office at Madras, a young struggling clerk, but he revealed in higher mathematics. One day the head of the Office passed through this clerk's desk unnoticed by him. He was buried in mathematical calculations. The head passed and observed. He himself was a mathematician of a high order. He instantaneously realised that his clerk was a mathematical genius. He summoned him to his room and put him a few questions and asked him to give him a note book to be sent to England to be examined by the distinguished mathematicians of the day. The clerk blushed. Within a few days a letter came from Cambridge blaming the University of India for allowing a great mathematical genius to be in a Port Trust Office as a clerk on a pay of Rs. 25 a month.

Ramanujan's name sprang to fame. The University of Madras awarded him a study scholarship at Cambridge. He remained there for three years. Within those three years he turned out such remarkable work that he established an immortal name and fame for India in the field of mathematical research. Within a year of his return to India he died. He was only 32 at the time of his death. India and the world mourned his death in a manner too deep for words. S. Ramanujan is dead but he left an imperishable name of glory for India. He was the first Indian F.R.S. Our men would do well to study his life and cherish a feeling that the Indian intellect is capable of reaching the Himalayan peaks in the realm of modern science. If the present system of examination is changed and unduly Ramanujan's name is not allowed to be hatched of the minds of the poor Ramanujan imitators. Poor Ramanujan thrice in the Madras Intermediate examination because he could not secure 40 per cent minimum in English. This sad commentary on the present system of examination

CONFERENCE OF PLASTICS GOODS

(From our correspondent)

BOMBAY, March 27

The Indian Lac Cess Committee have organised a Conference of the Plastics Goods manufacturers of India at the Indian Chamber Building, Calcutta, where Dr. H. K. Sen is conducting some experiments on Shellac Moulding Powder and will explain to the manufacturers the advantages of the powder manufactured in India. Discussions will take place on the probability of its commercial value etc. The manufacturers are requested to attend the Conference. There are many manufacturers of Bakelite products including the Indian Moulding Co. Ltd. in Bombay.

The Bakelite Moulding Powder manufactured in India is very much cheaper than the commercial sale.

Mr. J. N. Iyer of the Plastics Co. is sending proposals and there is a possibility of his attending the Conference.

Declining the invitation of Mr.
Ogilvie, Defence Secretary, to nominate members of the Muslim League Party to join a party of members of the Central Legislature to go on a tour of military installations and institutions in India, Mr. Jinnah has written to the Defence Secretary saying that this is one more effort on the part of the Government indirectly to get the Muslim League to bear responsibility and associate with the policy of war effort which is being made without their having real and substantial authority in the Government of the Centre

Mr. Jinnah asks: "What is the of the Central Legislature merely going on a brief tour of military installations and institutions when they have no voice or share in the expenditure of money or any control?"

Satyagraha Movement

(From our own correspondent)

Allahabad, March 24
Satyagraha movement will enter a new phase in U. P. on April 5 when primary members of the Congress will be called upon to offer Satyagraha in accordance with the plan laid down by Mahatma Gandhi.
It is learnt that in the initial stage about 1,000 congressmen who are not members of Mandal or any other Committee will offer Satyagraha by the usual method of sending notice to the District Magistrate.

It is understood that day to day notices will not be more than ten in each District, major part being sent by Congressmen in rural areas.

Another change in the system of sending notices has been undertaken. As in several cases those who took the notices of Satyagraha to the District authorities were arrested,—It has been decided to send such notices by post instead of by peons.

At Allahabad the peon who had carried the notice to the Bungalow of the District Magistrate was searched and arrested.

APPOINTMENT OF CHIEF JUSTICE

(From our correspondent)

Allahabad, March 24
There is considerable speculation about the appointment of the Chief Justice of the Allahabad High Court. Some reliable circles state that the Provincial Government has recommended the name of the Acting Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Iqbal Ahmadi for the office. But it appears it has been the practice of the Government of India of late to appoint Europeans as Chief Justices of the High Courts in India. The appointment would be anxiously awaited which might be sometime in May 1941.

DEATH OF "GERMAN" IN WARSAW

REPRISALS AGAINST POLES

(By cable) London
The full story of the mysterious death of Igo Sym, the Polish film actor and producer, who was found dead on March 7
in his flat in Warsaw with bullets in his head, is told by a Polish correspondent writing to the Times.

There is evidence to show that Sym was murdered by a man who spoke Polish and who fired at him with a service revolver.

The Krakauer Zeitung explains that the murder was not committed on personal grounds, and this confirms the theory that he was killed for purely political motives.

A Nazi newspaper which prints an official warning to this effect asserts that the German authorities will be obliged to take the most stringent measures against "irresponsible Polish elements" to prevent a recurrence of such acts of political vengeance, and states that Sym, contrary to general opinion, was a German.

From the German communique it also appears that 30
Polish hostages arrested by the Gestapo as a reprisal for the murder have been executed, but their names have not been made public.

Three Polish women, two men and a boy of 14, according to the Thorne Zeitung, have been sentenced to death in Western Poland for listening to the B. B. C. broadcasts from London and for spreading news
thus obtained to the detriment of Germany. One of the victims, Mme. Bernatowicz, used a wireless set belonging to a German doctor and encouraged other Poles to listen to it.

FRENCH TRIALS POSTPONED INDEFINITELY

(By Cable) London

The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Mail cabled on March 20:

An indefinite postponement of the Riom trials, at which M.
Daladier, Gen. Gamelin, M.
Leon Blum, M. Mandel, M.
Reynaud and M. Guy La Chambre were to face the Supreme Court charged with "forfeiture" has been announced by the French Ministry of Justice.

Vichy believes that this means that the accusations have been shelved.

The prisoners are now held in political confinement. They are allowed to read and write and see friends.

FOOD SITUATION IN PARIS

(By Cable) London

The radio station of the Daily Mail picked up the following from the Lyons radio (in French):

Paris is luckily nowadays as regards the food situation. Fish and meat are plentiful, and nearly all butchers' shops have reopened.

Vegetables are plentiful as larger stocks of potatoes have been released, also greens from Brittany and Normandy, chicory from Belgium, and carrots from North Africa.

According to an unconfirmed report German Minister in Belgrade has been recalled to Berlin. Before his departure
he called on the new Yugoslav Foreign Minister.

AUSTRALIAN AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY

Tremendous Strides Made

A. P. New Delhi, March 28

The tremendous strides made by the Australian Aircraft industry have been shown in details available here. One of the most important developments has been the building up in Australia of manufacture of plant gauges, tools and accessories many whereof in the ordinary way would have been obtained from Britain. The production in Australia of advanced trainer bomber "Wirraway" is now in full operation in Commonwealth Aircraft Corporation Factory.
The Dehaviland Company
manufactures tiger moth which is the elementary trainer and supplied by Australia to a number of other countries. One of the most ambitious aircraft projects undertaken in Australia is the Beaufort Bomber. No less important than the main projects are planning and production of complicated ancillary items. Within a very short time all instruments for use in the Australian aircraft will be made locally.

INDO AFGHAN TRADE RELATIONS

[Associated Press of India]

New Delhi, Mar 28

Mr. Caroe, Foreign Secretary, informed the Central Assembly this morning during question time that since exploratory discussions held in 1939 between the Government of India and Afghan Trade Delegation, detailed examination had been made and that there was possibility of concluding a trade pact between India and Afghanistan. He said all such negotiations were complicated by the fact that "the Afghan trade is in the main controlled by monopoly system of state trading companies whereas in India trade is not subjected to State control."

Replying to supplementaries
Mr. Caroe said it was not possible to associate non-officials with the negotiations which he said were of a delicate nature.

He added that Government maintained a trade agent in Kabul to advise Indian traders.

Sind's New Move

CREATING A COMMON PLATFORM

HINDU LEAGUE WORKING COMMITTEE MOVE

(Associated Press of India)
New Delhi, March 29
The Working Committee of the India Hindu League began a two-days session today with Mr. Aney in the chair.

New Delhi, March 30
With the object of creating a common political platform for all political parties in matters of common concern the Working Committee of the All-India Hindu League, which concluded a two-day session passed a resolution appointing a committee of nine members with Mr. Aney as Chairman to examine the question from all points of view and submit for consideration of the Working Committee of the League at its next meeting concrete proposals indicating change that may be required to be made in its name, creed and constitution.

Anti-Pakistan Day

A resolution on Pakistan passed by the Committee emphasises the task for the League to combat the "persisting menace of Pakistan" which, in its opinion, is an "invitation to the nation to commit suicide." The Committee, therefore, resolved to celebrate Anti-Pakistan Day all over the country on 27th April and urged all nationalist organisations in the country to hold meetings on that date and pass resolutions recording their strong protest against the so-called Pakistan and communal award where of the Pakistan movement "is in its view direct outcome." In the opinion of the Committee His Majesty's Government ought to make a gesture of their willingness to part with real power in favour of the Indian people by accepting without delay proposals contained in the Bombay Conference resolution as an earnest of their determination and trust India on terms of equality with other self-governing members of the British Commonwealth at the end of war.

Andhra Province

The Committee supported the demand of Andhra people for a separate Andhra Province to be carved out of Madras.

Another resolution called on the Government not to make any distinction between listed and non-listed classes for the purpose of recruitment to defence forces.

Agency message states Russia has sent a message of congratulation to the new Yugoslav Government on the change of regime.

Italians in Abyssinia have decided to abandon Dired wa in order to take positions elsewhere and are now marching towards Addis Ababa.

SIR SIKANDAR'S CALL TO YOUTH

"COME FORWARD AND WORK FOR UNITY"

Unity Day Celebration by Young Jat Association

A. P. Lahore, March 30
A call to the youth to come forward and work for the unity-for Hindu-Muslim unity—without which they could never achieve freedom was made by Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan, Punjab Premier, presiding over a meeting in connection with Unity Day organised by Young Jat Association held this evening.

For the last thirty years Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan said, it had been his earnest desire to bring about unity among different communities. He hoped he would succeed in his mission and Punjab would give lead to other Provinces.

The Premier advised young-men to organise themselves to bring about unity among different communities in the Province. He promised to give them all facilities.

CONGRESS NATIONALISTS RESPOND

To Defence Secretary's Invitation

A. P. New Delhi, March 30

The Congress Nationalist Party in the Central Assembly is understood to have accepted Defence Secretary's invitation to nominate their representatives on the party of members of the Central Legislature who are being taken on a visit to military institutions and installations in India. Mr. Aney, leader of the party is among the party's representatives.

The Muslim League party as already reported declined the invitation.

General De Gaulle recently visited Free French Forces on the Keren front.

New from Axis sources indicate that Germans in Croatia are preparing to leave the place and some of them have already left for Vienna.

MUSLIMS FIRST & MUSLIMS LAST

Mr. Jinnah's Address At Cawnpore

A. P. Cawnpore, March 30

The position of Muslims with regard to Pakistan scheme has been made crystal clear, declared Mr. Jinnah, President All India Muslim League, addressing a public meeting today. Quoting a speech which he made while opposing the Finance Bill, Mr. Jinnah said certain sections of the press misunderstood it to mean that Muslims agreed to put Pakistan scheme in the back ground. Muslims, he said, stood for Pakistan with a determination. Referring to the observance of Pakistan day on the 23rd Mar. Mr. Jinnah said it was a red letter day in the history of India. He criticised the Hindu and the British press for misinterpreting the Pakistan scheme.

In the course of his reply to the address of Adi Hindu and Depressed classes Association Mr. Jinnah said in their address they had referred to him as having done his best for them at the Round Table Conference. Mr. Jinnah added they got separate electorate which they gave up to save the life of Mahatma Gandhi. They should not ask Gandhiji to save their lives.

Referring to the Pakistan scheme he said that Dr. Ambedkar understood the constitutional position in this country and the stand taken by the League in its Lahore resolution on the Pakistan Scheme. The Muslim League stood for adequate and full safeguards for all communities. He knew no untouchability, every human being was his brother. He advised the Depressed Classes to organise themselves.

Replying to other addresses of welcome, from Kathiawar Momins, Jamaitur Railan and backward Hindus, Mr. Jinnah said he recognised no tribe section among Muslims as the Muslim League was the only authoritative body to speak on behalf of them. They were Muslims first and Muslims last. He advised backward Hindus to ask for separate electorates and fight for it. He declared that the democratic system of Government which had been planted on the Indian soil was totally unsuited for this country.

A. P. Karachi, March 30
Governor-designate Sir Hugh Dow and Lady Dow arrived here this morning.

THE "HARIJAN" WEEKLIES AND THE PRESS IN BENGAL

There is something mysterious in the announcement of Mr. Mahadev Desai that the publication of the "Harijan" Weeklies must remain indefinitely suspended. He does not want to disclose the cause. If he does not disclose it today on some future date the public would come to know. We hope it is not due to any action or attitude of Government or its officers. The Newspapers Editors' Conference and its President by their indefatigable labours had somehow settled the matters amicably and had induced Mahatma Gandhi to resume publication of his valued journals. The world was indeed gratified to learn that the "Harijan" Weeklies would appear again on the opening day of the National Week, that is, 6th April. In these circumstances it is with disappointment that we learn that the publication is indefinitely suspended. This is a matter again for the Editors' Conference and its President to take up. We hope that Mr. K. Srinivasan, President of the Conference, would immediately get into correspondence with Mr. Mahadev Desai and set right the thing if it is in his power to do so.

The "Harijan" affair apart, the way in which the Bengal Government have been dealing with the Press in that province has become well nigh intolerable. The order of the Bengal Government prohibiting publication, sale or distribution of the Bengal daily "Dainik Basumat" for a period of three weeks, was characterised as uncalled for, harsh and altogether unjustified. Whether the Press Adviser consulted the Provincial Advisory Committee is not known. If it had not been done, it is a violation of the honourable agreement reached between Government and the Editors. This is also a matter which calls for immediate attention at the hands of the Standing Committee of the Editors' Conference and its worthy President. We hope something will be done immediately to check the stranglehold of the Press in Bengal.

BOMBAY CONFERENCE STANDING COMMITTEE

(Associated Press of India)

ANGLO-INDIAN INTERESTS AND RETROCESSION OF BANGALORE

Bangalore, March 31. "As the Council of the Association has reason to believe that the question of the retrocession of the C. and M. Station to the Mysore Durbar is not in abeyance, it took steps once again to voice the feelings of the community and emphasised the importance of ensuring adequate safeguards in the event of retrocession becoming a fait accompli."

So stated the report presented at the annual meeting of the Anglo-Indian and Domiciled European Association, held on March 29, at the Baldwin Boys' School. Mr. T. R. H. Peck, who presided, announced that the Association would wait in deputation on the Hon. the President on April 1 to elucidate for him the nature of safeguards for the community contemplated by the authorities.

Mr. Peck was re-elected President of the Association for next year.

MR. C. V. NA. ASI & H. A. IYENGAR CASE

ARGUMENTS BEFORE THE HIGH COURT

Bangalore, March 31. Arguments in the case of Mr. C. V. Narasimha Ayyangar, Advocate, against whom the District Magistrate had made a reference under section 12 of the Mysore Legal Practitioners Act, were heard in the Mysore High Court by Sir D. A. Reilly, Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Subrahmanya Ayyar, on March 29.

In the Advocate (the late Mr. M. Krishnamurthy) Murder case, it was alleged that Mr. Narasimha Ayyangar tampered with a witness. The Special Magistrate, who held the preliminary enquiry into this case, examined Mr. T. M. S. Subrahmanya, Assistant Manager of the Mysore Bank and subsequently, after the finger print expert's evidence, recalled him to clarify his earlier evidence in respect of thumb impressions of the late Mr. K. Munianappa in the Bank's specimen signature card. When this witness was ordered to be recalled, Mr. Narasimha Ayyangar, according to the prosecution, was present in the Court. Mr. Narasimha Ayyangar is alleged to have gone immediately to the Mysore Bank and had conversation with the witness about this matter.

The Special Magistrate questioned the conduct of Mr. Narasimha Ayyangar, who submitted "an unqualified apology and regret." The Magistrate, however, made a report to the District Magistrate, who made a reference to the High Court for suitable action.

In January last, the reference came up before Their Honours, who directed the District Magistrate to record evidence in this case and forward it to the High Court.

Their Honours, on March 29, took up the case again.

Mr. Mirle N. Lakshminarappa, Advocate-General, supporting the reference, stated that the respondent, Mr. Narasimha Ayyangar had admitted that he was present in the Court when the finger print expert's evidence was being read over. There was evidence, he stated, to support his contention that the respondent was in the Court when the Magistrate ordered that Mr. Subrahmanya be recalled. It had not been denied that the respondent had conversation with the witness about finger prints.

Mr. A. Viswanatha Ayyar (of the Madras Bar), Council for the respondent, submitted that there was no evidence to show that the respondent was in the Court when the Court ordered to recall Mr. Subrahmanya. When the respondent had conversation with Mr. Subrahmanya, he was not aware that the witness had been recalled by the Court.

Mr. Viswanatha Ayyar had not finished his arguments when the Court rose for the day.

Further arguments were adjourned to April 5.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

A U. P. SATYAGRAHI—THE ROLE OF THE Rt. Hon'ble SATSRI A JOURNALIST IN AN INDIAN STATE—ROUSSEAU AND FREDERICK

Here is an interesting description of a U. P. Satyagrahi. P. D. Tandon writing in "National Herald" says—

"It was about one o'clock in a chilly night that the police banged my door furiously and shouted, 'Kivara kholo, Doctor Keskar hai?' The door was opened and a warrant of detention was shown to Dr. Keskar. To the amazement of the police he told smilingly that he was absolutely ready, as he was aware of their kind invitation.

"Dr. Keskar joined the non-co-operation movement in 1921. He was jailed in the Congress movement in 1930. It was in 1933 that he went to France and joined the University of Paris for further studies. He took his D. Litt. degree in economic sociology with the 'highest mentions.' He joined the Post-Graduate Institute of Higher International Studies of the Paris University. He made his mark there and became a laureate of the Institute of Higher International Studies. During this period he was granted a scholarship by the French Ministry for three years. Now Dr. Keskar has an excellent command over the French language and its pronunciation and can speak as fluently and skilfully as most Frenchmen. In jail he proposes to continue reading French literature.

"Dr. Keskar has worked as a professor in Vidyaपीठ. He is the foreign secretary of the All-India Congress Committee and recently acted as the general secretary of the U. P. C. C. Keskar is very lovable as a friend. He is a silent worker who does not believe in publicity stunts.

"He is a tall thin man, but in his wiry frame he carries infinite energy and indomitable courage. If one wishes to irritate Dr. Keskar, he should talk to him about compromise with Britain. Pat comes the query: 'Compromise with whom and compromise for what?'

Here is a comment of a Northern Indian Paper on the Rt. Hon'ble V. S. Srinivasa Sastri's role in Indian politics. It makes an interesting reading—

Mr. Srinivasa Sastri is not only a superb master of English, but an orator of the highest quality. We, therefore, trust that he will be spared some years more to pronounce a few valedictory orations on the dying dogmas and fast wearing-out creeds he has cherished all his life and, better still, to set his musical voice to the new notes which have arisen long since but which he has studiously discarded. A day there was, not more than twenty years ago, when Mr. Sastri, a picturesque figure, went round the British Empire as an imperial envoy and in sustained fits of exuberant verbosity sang its glories. Never so well did even Britain's own laureates sing. Conservatism, his creed; the Congress and abomination Moderation and religion; insurgent nationalism was his horror.

Here is an example of a nationalist in an Indian State who was beaten by the palace. In advanced States such a thing cannot happen. But yet it is necessary that the world should know how reactionary States are.

The ruler is the law in a princely State. It is reported that Amrith Tewari, a young man who was severely beaten by palace attendants of the palace for alleged publication of a book attacking the ruler and his personal assistant in his newspaper. He was, it seems, waylaid on returning home, taken to the palace and was mercilessly beaten for forty-five minutes with shoes and slippers whatever they could lay hands on. A case has been filed in local court. An application to the Dewan to allow him to engage a pleader has been rejected.

In this issue I crave the indulgence of my readers to go again to Rousseau's life. He treated even mighty monarchs as he illustrated by a letter which he wrote to Frederick, King of Prussia.

The "Seven Years War" drawing to a close. Preliminary of peace between Prussia and England were signed on November 1762. This marked the peace between Austria and Prussia, the allies of England and France respectively, practically certain to be made. (peace was actually made in February 1763.) Jean Jacques expected the great Frederick, at the height of his military and political glory, to give him over to the works of peace, recovery, and to be the arbiter as he had been the terror of Europe. Seeing, however, that Frederick did not disarm, Jean Jacques wrote him a letter on this subject. Lord Keith forwarded it. Frederick did not answer the letter, but some time afterwards, when Lord Keith went to Berlin, told the Marischal (but sans signature) that Jean Jacques had given him (the king) a good scolding. The letter is preserved in the Archives at Berlin and has been included in the Correspondence.

General Sire, You are my protector and benefactor, and I have a thousand fashions for gratitude. I want to pay my debt to you. You wish to give me money, there none of your subjects who lack it?

Take away the sword and before my eyes it has been and wounds me. (See page 2)

CAPTURE OF KEREN

ACHIEVEMENTS OF INDIAN ARMY

H. M. The King's Message Of Congratulation

A. P. New Delhi, March 30
H. M. the King has sent the following message to the Viceroy:
I heartily congratulate India on the part that her armed forces played in the capture of Keren. This victory in the face of heavy odds added fresh laurels to India's military renown.

The Viceroy replied as follows: Viceroy with his humble duty begs to thank Your Majesty for your most gracious message on the achievements of Indian army at Keren. Your Majesty's words will be most deeply valued by all ranks of Indian armed forces and will be the greatest possible encouragement to them.

MYSORE JAIL REFORMS COMMITTEE FINAL SITTING HELD

Some Indications of Recommendations

Bangalore, March, 31
The final sitting of the Mysore Jail Reforms Committee was held this morning at the Secretariat, when the Chairman and Members signed the report which will be sent to Government on April 2.

The report is kept confidential, but some indications of the Committee's recommendations go to show that the Committee seeks to suggest the copying of the Madras model in Mysore.
In Madras prisoners are not segregated as in Mysore but classed as habitual, casual, juvenile, political, etc. This system of classification has very beneficial effects on the prisoners.
One particular benefit is the prevention of youthful and first offenders from becoming confirmed criminals.

In the Bangalore Central Jail, the chief jail for the State, all classes of prisoners are huddled together and even the under-prisoners are not kept separate. The Committee suggests the shifting of this jail to a suitable place and to provide for classification.

The Committee suggests fully revolutionising the treatment to juveniles and bringing it to the Madras standard, of borstal and reformatory institution that exist in Madras for offenders under ages 14 and under age 21 respectively.

The Committee is emphatically of opinion that whipping should be abolished.

But it has not suggested explicitly the abolition of capital punishment, though it has dealt with the subject in great detail.
One chapter deals with the penal reform in general.

To give effect to all the recommendations of the Committee, the Government will have to spend immensely.

MEMORANDUM AFTER

NO GREAT OPTIMISM NOTICED

(From our correspondent)
New Delhi, March 30
No great optimism is noticeable in New Delhi, regarding the result of Sir Sapru's visit.
Though Sir Sapru was to evidently to a feeling it could be better to postpone

A MOTOR CAR FACTORY IN MYSORE

We are glad to learn that a motor car factory is going to be established in Mysore and negotiations are in progress with the Government of Mysore with a view to locating the factory in Bangalore by the side of the Aircraft Factory which is expected to be ready in three months' time. Within the next few weeks a company will be floated to start construction of the factory. It is also understood that the Managing Agents for the Automobile Factory will be the same as those of the Hindustan Aircraft Ltd.

We are particularly happy that the factory is going to be located in our State. We are aware how keenly interested H. H. the Maharaja and his Government are in the matter of industrial progress. It is but fitting that the honour of starting the first auto-mobile factory should go to the Mysore State, which has been a pioneer of industries in All India. We offer our respectful congratulations to Sir M. Visvesvaraya that Providence has given him the satisfaction of seeing his dream realised. As all know Sir M. V. is untiring in his zeal and the day is not far off when his efforts would be crowned with success in the direction of starting an auto-mobile factory in India, that too, in his own homeland. It is appropriate in this connection to recognise that the starting of the auto-mobile factory in the State, is mostly due to the active interest and sympathetic co-operation of Sir Mirza Ismail, our Dewan, who in matters of industrial and economic progress has been steadily pursuing the policy inaugurated by Sir M. Visvesvaraya, quarter of a century ago in Mysore.

We have written a good deal about the motor-car industry in India. It is not superfluous to write something more on the present occasion. The motor-car has come to be regarded as one of the necessities of life in the United States of America. In this country too, no person of any standing in public or business can do without a car. The price of an imported car in Bombay is often at least twice the cost of manufacture, exports in the country of production. This is due to land and sea freight, import duty, insurance, dealer's profit and other charges. In these circumstances, the question of the establishment of a motor car factory within the country cannot fail to interest every progressive citizen.

Regarding the importance of

RECOGNITION OF THE PUBLIC SERVICES

GOVERNMENT SANCTION THE AWARD OF CERTIFICATES

Bangalore, March 31
Government sanction the award of certificates to the under-mentioned gentlemen in recognition of the Public Services rendered by them as indicated against each.—

1. Mr. Some Gowda, son of Mr. Sanjogowda, Patel, Arkharahalli, Closepet Taluk—has built three temples. Has attended to Village Panchayat and other works of public utility.

2. Mr. K. P. Parasivah, Vice-President, Kankanaiahli Municipality and Representative Assembly Member—has been doing work as Vice President from a long time and evincing keen interest in Public Service.

3. Mr. K. Chennabasappa, Chairman of the Jayamangala Panchayat, Lokkur Hobli and a public works Department Contractor, Malur Taluk—has done very good work for the improvement of Jayamangala Village, Malur Taluk.

4. Mr. Vongole Adiseshaiah, Kodigenahalli, Madhugiri Taluk
5. Mr. H. Subbanna, II cross Road, Visveswarapuram, Bangalore has constructed a Veterinary Dispensary building at Koratagera at a cost of about Rs. 2000.

6. Mr. C. Mallappa Contractor P.W.D. and Member Municipal Council, Molakalmuru—has constructed a Choultry in Molakalmuru Town at a cost of Rs. 6000 and evinced keen interest in public service.

7. Mr. Gubbi Ambajappa, commission agent, Davanagere—has deposited Rs. 5000 for a Maternity Ward and for milk centre at Davanagere.

the Motor Industry, we quote Sir M. V., than whom there is no better authority on the subject

"The potential importance of the industry can be judged from the fact that in the United States of America the prosperity of the people of the country is held to be in direct relation to the volume of auto-mobile sales: they rise and fall together. In the United Kingdom the motor industry is recognised as ranking very near the top as an employer of labour and consumer of raw materials. In the Dominions of the British Commonwealth and even in industrialised countries of Europe, heavy tariff protection and other concessions are readily placed at the service of this industry.

The projected Indian factory will from the very commencement be a manufacturer of concern and not a mere assembly plant. Since the outbreak of the War, prices of motor vehicles have risen, and high prices will continue to rule for two or three years after the War. If the factory is started now, it will not only be providing trucks for War purposes and for the Indian Army within some eight months, but it will also be profiting itself and materially benefiting the country as a War time industry.

As explained before, there has been some amount of propaganda carried on, apparently by interested parties to mislead the public that the industry is not wanted here. While small States like Belgium, Australia and Norway with populations numbering 8.7 and 3 millions respectively, are establishing motor car factories, it cannot be said that one such factory will be a superfluity in this sub-continent of ours with its 400 million population.

We hope that our Mysoreans will accord to this factory their warmest welcome and utmost co-operation. We wish every success to the new venture.

8. Mr. Jettaji Nathmull Sant, Cloth merchant, Davanagere—has deposited money for the construction of T.B. Hospital Ward of Sowkalehand at Davanagere.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

TALK OF THE DAY—COOLNESS OF WEATHER—SUMMER SCORPIONS—BANGALORE, A SUMMER RESORT—PRICE OF FOODSTUFFS

The talk of the day is about the weather. Last evening (I am writing this on the morning of Tuesday) it looked as if it would rain. Clouds were moving in the sky. At about 6 or 6-15 in the evening there were a few drops, only drops. The atmosphere became a bit cool. Unfortunately the clouds dispersed and no rain was to be expected. Anyway the night was a bit cool. And this morning I felt a sort of coolness in the weather. Within a day or two rains are expected.

The first shower of rain has its blessings as well as curses. If it should rain continuously for two or three days coolness would continue. If it should rain for a day and then stop, intensity of heat would rise and all the heat that was imbedded in the soil would be freed and the atmosphere would get charged with extra heat. I know this is not a scientific way of putting things. But the popular way is that.

Another curse is, that in a City like Bangalore where the houses are huddled together, after the first shower of rains in the summer, scorpions and other reptiles would come out of their holes and roam freely. As sure as anything there would be a crop of scorpion stings. Even the best and the most modern constructed houses are not free from the scourge of scorpions.

Bangalore on account of its salubrious climate is a summer resort to people outside the State.

People who can afford, come with their families rent beautiful buildings and spend their summer here. People come to Bangalore even from the distant

North. Bangalore really becomes beautiful in weather after the middle of May when the weather in Bangalore would be ideally cool. Great numbers of people from Madras like the Rt. Hon. Sastry and Sir P. S. Sivasubramanian have been spending summer in Bangalore for the last 5 or 6 years. They are well here. We would welcome more of such people to Bangalore.

From all points of view Bangalore is getting more and more famous. The Indian Institute of Science has been attracting students of science from all over India. Professors like Dr. C. Raman, have added to the prestige of the Institute. Now we are having an Aircraft Factory. We are having a motor car factory. The Mysore State has also been an industrial beehive for India. Bangalore is fast surpassing Bombay and is almost one better than that beautiful city in the matter of summer weather.

Another talk that has been engaging the attention of people is that of the price of food stuffs. I have been writing and again referring to that in these columns. It is a very important matter. I feel time has come for the authorities to do something to make food stuffs available to the ordinary householder at a reasonable price. The people are always excited. What they expect enough to keep the wolf out of the door. The authorities can sleep over the matter. No interesting discussions on the floor of the Municipal Council that too of an academic nature cannot give any practical relief to the suffering householder.

27. Mr. Guru Shantappa Maddur—Has donated Rs. 2000 towards the construction of the new dispensary building, Maddur.

28. Mr. Chikkamanchiah, Land-holder and Contractor, Kennal, Mandya District—Has constructed a building for Primary School costing about Rs. 2000.

29. Mr. Kelanarasi Bomme Gowda, Land-holder, Kelanarasi village, Thirthahalli Taluk—Has donated a sum of Rs. 1000 for the proposed construction of a Maternity Home at Mandagadde.

30. Mr. Mahishi Surappa, Shanbhogue, Mahishi village, Thirthahalli Taluk—Has worked untiringly for the improvement of the Mahishi village.

31. Mr. C. M. Subbanna, Land-holder, Chakkor village, Heggadavankote—Has donated Rs. 1400 for a Maternity Home at Heggadavankote.

32. Mr. Puttalingappa, Patel Duggahalli, Yelandur Sub Taluk—Has donated Rs. 1400 for a Maternity Home at Yelandur.

33. Mr. Sangana Basappa, Vice-President, Chamara Nagar—Has been the Vice-President of the Chamara Nagar Municipality continuously for over 12 years.

34. Mr. M. G. Mahommed Saheb, Chairman, Doddahalli, Nanjangud Taluk—has been the village panchayat, he has done very good work in Doddahalli.

35. Mr. Nanjunthi, Chairman and Heggadavankote, Chamara Nagar Taluk—has rendered useful service in the construction of an important interior road.

36. Mr. C. V. Raman, Chamara Nagar—has donated Rs. 1600 for dispensary at Chamara Nagar.

37. Mr. Itappa, Sahukar, Chairman of the village panchayat, Tanniger village, Channarayana Taluk—has constructed a Primary School building costing about Rs. 1200. He is an excellent work as Chairman of the village panchayat.

SITUATION IN DACC

The situation continues quiet. Shops opened this morning in many quarters of the Dacca University also closed today but other educational institutions still remain closed. A total number of arrests in connection with the new law.

OUR NEW-DELHI LETTER

Weekly Review of Political Events

IS THERE A WAY OUT?

(From our correspondent)

New Delhi, March 27.

Consultations are reported to be going on between New Delhi and White Hall on the subject of the resolution adopted by the Bombay Conference. The text of the resolution has not yet been officially communicated to the Viceroy, for it would appear that Sir T. B. Amery would like to send together the resolutions of the Viceroy and the Conference in detail. The Viceroy so that the full text may be presented to the Council. Sir T. B. Amery is expected to be in New Delhi on Monday next when probably he will have the opportunity to see the Viceroy and have a talk with him. No early decision is however expected, for there are numerous factors to be considered. One favourable factor is that public opinion in this country has favoured the Bombay offer. Another move in this direction is the completely Indianising the Viceroy's Cabinet and introducing the principle of joint responsibility will be welcome to the public goes without saying, but it is still not clear how the British Government is prepared to go at the moment. The Sir Sapru-Linlithgow talks take place, it may be possible for the Viceroy to state in greater detail the meaning and the August offer. If and when these details are made available the public will be in a position to know what the August offer falls at. The Bombay demands presenting as they do the minimum necessary to satisfy even the most moderate elements in India. The principle upon which the Bombay resolution is based is that the Congress and Muslim League are not prepared to operate in working the Bombay scheme, the Government would form the Cabinet with their representative men who reason of their public standing and reputation can be expected to command confidence in the country. According to the members of the Bombay Conference, there is nothing new in this principle, for it only repeats what the Viceroy himself had stated in his August declaration.

Immediate Future

The immediate future depends on the attitude of the Viceroy. If he is favourably disposed the Bombay move, the question of sending a small deputation to England to press the demand may take practical shape. Unfortunately it has been noticed that owing to the new developments in the European war situation which have served to monopolise public attention, the members of the Bombay Conference did not receive that much of attention which ordinarily it would have received. Even that section of the British press, like the Spectator which has shown intelligent interest in the question appears to have lost its importance. In the meantime the suggestion has been made that as the Bombay Conference has provided the atmosphere for a new peace move on a really generous scale the time has come for the Secretary of State to pay a visit to India and see what can be done. The unwillingness of Mr. Amery to come over to this country on a brief visit, as was done by a distinguished predecessor of his, Mr. Montagu, during the last war, has been surprising, but as an excellent opportunity has now presented itself for effecting an immediate understanding, it is difficult to see how he can resist an invitation to visit India any longer. So far as official attitude is concerned one often hears the statement that the August offer is the last word on the subject, that nothing beyond it is practicable at the moment and that so far as the August offer is concerned it is still open to the main political parties to take advantage of it and participate in the Central Government. But the difficulty always has been that no precise and authoritative definition of the August offer has yet been made available. For the present one can only wait and see.

Finance Bill

The long debate on the Finance Bill taking no less than seven days was over in the Assembly on Saturday last. It is coming up before the Council of State today for a two day debate before it finally becomes law. Despite all the appeals and protests hurled at him in the Lower House the Finance Member remained unmoved and unrepentant. His answer to those who pleaded for borrowing instead of taxation to meet the cost of Defence expansion was that the present generation must first bear its full share of the war burden before thinking of passing it on to coming generations. It was evident from his speech that in his opinion the capacity of the people to bear additional taxation had not yet been exhausted. So far he has shown a preference for direct taxation, the reason being that as the vast expansion schemes of the Defence Department and the various activities of the war Departments had directly benefited certain classes the State had a right to call upon these classes to bear a greater burden of taxation. It is too early to say whether the Finance Member will come forward with an emergency Budget next November, but the probabilities are that if the war situation develops as it is now developing—the need for raising more funds may soon present itself. It seems inevitable that should that contingency arise the Finance Member will have to think of increasing the salt tax or even of imposing a cotton excise duty. The upper limit so far as direct taxation like income tax, super tax and excess profits tax appears to have been reached. A good deal of attention was also paid by the Finance Member to the relation between the Centre and the Provinces in the matter of finance. The fact that many of the provinces have shown considerably improved finances and some of them have had substantial surpluses has led to the question whether the provinces should not be asked to meet the whole cost of A. R. P. work. Civic guards etc without any assistance from the Centre. Then there is the question whether during the period of the war at least it is not desirable on the part of the Provinces to refrain from imposing additional taxes. The only important Province which is contemplating additional taxation is reported to be Bengal. The suggestion has also been made that Provincial Governments should reduce their nonessential expenditures—particularly on the public works side—and try to build up substantial reserves as a safeguard against post war difficulties.

Assembly Grouping

Interesting party readjustments have taken place in the Central Assembly. There has always been an unusually large number of unattached members in the Lower House. About a dozen of them have combined to form a new party with the name of the Independents. A peculiar feature of this party is that it has decided to admit even nominated members. Its exact political creed has not yet been defined, but from the names of the members one can see that they are what may be called a loyalist group generally supporters of the Government and its policies. Its composition is curious in the extreme—ex-congressmen like Mr. Kazmi, landholders like the Maharaja of Dumraon, nominated members like Mr. Sivaraj and business magnates like Sir A. H. Ghaznavi and Mr. Hossein bhai Laljee. It is difficult to say whether the party will be able to hold together unless freedom is given to its members to vote and speak as they like. The leadership of the party has gone to Sir Henry Gidney who till recently was a member of the European Group. This decision of Sir Henry to leave the European group and join the new party has put the European Group in a difficult position.

As they do not command the required minimum strength of ten members, their claim to be reckoned as a separate party is now in danger, unless the Government comes to their rescue and obliges them by nominating one more European to the Assembly. It appears that Mr. Amery is also thinking of widening the basis of his party—the Congress Nationalists—so as to include members of the Hindu Mahasabha, the Hindu League and other nationalist organisations though generally maintaining the Hindu character of the party.

Further Extension?

No announcement has yet been made regarding the future of the Central Assembly but it is being taken for granted that a further extension will be granted when the time comes. There appears to be no desire among the members to go through all the worries of a general election. The recent bye-elections have been a fairly clear indication of the political feeling in the electorate. The general inference is that if there is a General Election the composition of the Assembly as it is to day will not materially be altered. The Congress Nationalists may be able to gain a few seats as the election of Mr. Jamnadas Mehta has shown—but nobody expects that the strength of the Congress party will suffer to any marked extent. Present indications must be said to point to a further extension of the Assembly's term.

CENTRAL ASSEMBLY

Insurance Bill Amendment

A.P. New Delhi, March 31. Proposal to raise the fee of insurance agents—license from Rs. 100 to Rs. 1,000—was opposed by Mr. Chattopadhyaya but Sir Ramaswamy Mudaliar said that the increase would not be a hardship on an insurance agent who was not so badly off as a chauffeur for instance.

Congress Nationalists and Muslim League members combined to vote on Mr. Chattopadhyaya's next amendment for omission of the proposed proviso which sought to restrict the section providing that after two years of issue of policy it should not be called in question on the ground of misstatement of age, etc.

The amendment was negatived by 30 votes to 16.

Earlier an amendment by Dr. Bannerjee to the effect that investment made by insurance company in policy loans and deposits by it under section 7 of the Act shall be taken to account for the purpose of fulfilling the obligation to invest 55 percent or such smaller amount as the case may be of policy liabilities under Sec. 27 was withdrawn. A similar amendment by Dr. Desai was withdrawn.

During the third reading Mr. Chapman Mortimer, Dr. Desai, Dr. Bannerjee Mr. Amey and Mr. Ghulamhik Nairang joined in congratulating the Commerce Member, Mr. Amey emphasised that where there was ambiguity in legislation, Government should themselves settle the matter on their own initiative and bring the amendment if necessary.

Mr. Chapman Mortimer said Sir Sircar and Sir Mudaliar could feel with justice that they had done one of the best pieces of work for their country.

Sir Mudaliar replying stressed the fact that the Superintendent had the interest of policy holders at heart but in the very act of safeguarding these interests the Superintendent was obliged often to come down with a heavy hand on companies after giving them every opportunity to improve their working.

The bill was passed and during the five minutes that remained Mr. J.D. Tyson moved consideration of his bill to regulate the use of land for other than agricultural purposes in the Delhi Province generally known as Ribbon Development Bill.

Further debate was adjourned to tomorrow.

INDO-BURMA TRADE TALKS

New Agreement Accepted in Principle

A.P. New Delhi, April 1. At a meeting held today between India and Burma delegations the proposed terms for new trade agreement were accepted in principle by both sides, states a Press note. It is expected that details will be settled and heads of agreement signed within the next few days. Meantime both countries intend to maintain the operation of the existing position in all matters covered by trade regulation order which expired on 31st March 1941.

Diredawa has been occupied by South African troops on Saturday afternoon. This has been confirmed in a British communiqué. This one of the two lines of escape for Italian troops towards sea and Addis Ababa has been blocked.

MEMORANDUM AND AFTER

NO GREAT OPTIMISM NOTICEABLE

(From our correspondent, New Delhi, Mar. 31)

No great optimism is noticeable in New Delhi regarding the result of Sir Sapru's efforts. Though Sir Sapru was able to meet the new Commander-in-Chief and to have a long discussion with him on defence questions, no Sir Sapru-Linlithgow meeting could be arranged due evidently to a feeling that it could be better to postpone the interview until after the Viceroy has had time to peruse Sir Sapru's memorandum and communicate with the Secretary of State.

It is understood that the Memorandum seeks to make two points clear—firstly effect can be given to the Bombay resolution without in any way disturbing the present constitutional structure or responsibility of the Viceroy as Crown's Representative. Secondly that it is intended to accelerate war effort by equipping the Govt. of India with the necessary financial momentum.

On the other hand, the talks here recall that Mr. Amery said in November last in the Commons "It was of course possible for him (Viceroy) to step up and enlarge the executive somewhat with individuals of high character & ability but that would not have carried out our chief desire—to associate the political leaders of India more directly with the Govt. of India during the War. It would have closed their door for a considerable time to come and the Viceroy's desire was to leave the door open. Mr. Amery also added "After all the Viceroy's object can be attained as soon as sufficient representative elements show their readiness to come in."

The position taken up by the leaders of the Bombay Conference is that when and where the main political parties agree to come in they would readily vacate their seats in the Executive Council but the question is whether the Secretary of State would consider the Bombay Conference as "sufficient Representative elements" for the purpose of fulfilling the declared object, enlargement of the Executive.

The official claim is that the August offer fulfils in important respects the demands made in the Bombay resolution. It is pleaded that Mr. Amery has already promised that "they would come into Council in such numbers as constitute a substantial majority over the European members" and that they would be "working unitedly together." These points are expected to be discussed when Sir Sapru comes to meet the Viceroy later for a detailed talk. In connection with the correspondence which has been going on between Sir Sapru and Gandhiji and Mr. Jinnah it appears that Sir Sapru has not been able to secure Gandhiji-Jinnah meeting.

EXCISE DUTY BILL

A.P. New Delhi, March 31. Excise duty bill of 1941 as passed by the Legislature received the assent of the Governor-General on the 31st March and comes into force from April 1st says a press note.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT Returns For 1939-40

Bangalore, April 1

Annual Return under the Mysore Workmen's Compensation Act for the year 1939-40 has been published.

There were in all 2852 cases of injuries by accidents in respect of which a total amount of Rs. 1,10,404-8-2 was paid by employers of labour during the year 1939-40, as against 3310 cases involving a payment of Rs. 1,02,793-3-5 in the year previous out of these, 2363 accidents occurred in the Kolar Gold mining companies involving a payment of Rs. 100,686 as compensation and the remaining 289 accidents occurred in other concerns in the State involving a payment of Rs. 9718—8—2 as compensation.

The total number of fatal accidents during the year was 54 as against 49 in the previous year and the total amount of compensation paid to the dependents of the deceased amounted to Rs. 39,950 as against Rs. 38,200 in the year 1938—39.

The total number of workers disabled permanently by accidents rose to 135 during the year under review as against 123 in the year previous. The introduction of the "Silicosis" rules under the Act during the year accounts for the rise in the number of accidents under this category. Out of the above 135 cases, as many as 53 relate to "silicosis" in the Kolar Gold Mining Companies, in respect of which, a sum of Rs. 24,956-6-0 has been paid by the Gold Mining Companies.

The total number of accidents resulting in temporary disabilities (both adults & minors) have shown a decrease during the year as compared with those of the previous year, the figures being as follows—

| | | |
|---------|--------|------|
| 1938-39 | Adults | 3136 |
| | Minors | 7 |
| 1939-40 | Adults | 2660 |
| | Minors | 7 |

CHIKMAGALUR NOTES

Fatal Fall From Cart

(From our correspondent)

Chikmagalur, March 31
One Keshavamurthy a student who was studying in the local High School met with a serious accident last Tuesday which resulted in his death due to a fall from a cart.

It appears on the night of last Tuesday the boy who was said to be sixteen years old was driving a cart full of paddy near Naravampura a village situated between Chikmagalur and Belur and the cart by the dragging of the bullocks went into a ravine outside the road. Then the boy is said to have jumped out of his cart and went over to the left side of the cart and while he was attempting to divert the cart with the help of his fellow cartmen who were following him, the bullocks again dragged the cart and thus the balance of the cart was totally upset and the cart with all the load fell on the unfortunate boy who died instantaneously. The Belur police held the usual inquest over the body and a verdict of death due to accident was recorded.

Excise Commissioner's Tour

Rajasevayarasiktha A. V. Ramanathan, Excise Commissioner in Mysore toured in Kadur District for the last three days and inspected the various offices under his control. On the 28th instant he inspected the Sub-Registry Offices at Narasimharajapura and proceeded to Koppa where he inspected some other Offices and then went to Sringeri. Leaving Sringeri day before yesterday morning the Commissioner arrived at Chikmagalur the same evening and inspected the Incometax and Registration Offices of Kadur District and departed for Bangalore yesterday morning.

Town Inspection

Mr. Charles Noronha, Deputy Commissioner, Kadur District accompanied by Mr. R. Varadappa Pillai, Ex-Officio President of the Chikmagalur Municipal Council went round the town yesterday morning and gave suitable instructions for improvement of the town, and also pointed out to the sanitary staff some of the irregularities he noticed and asked them to bestow greater attention on the Sanitation of the town.

Superintending Engineer

Mr. Laxminarayana Simhaiya, Superintending Engineer, Shimoga Division arrived here yesterday morning and visited the Hirekalale tank which is the source of the Chikmagalur Water Supply Scheme and inspected the works under progress and also some of the proposals under consideration of his department and in the afternoon departed to Hassan.

OFFICIAL NEWS

Bangalore, March, 31

Mr. Safi Darasha, Special First Class Magistrate, Chikmagalur is invested with the power to try cases summarily (section 260)

Mr. N. R. Jaya Rao, Special First Class Magistrate, Nanjangud, under orders of transfer to charge of Munsiff's Court at Nanjangud is granted leave from 7th April to 17th May.

Mr. V. Venugopal Mudaliar, Special First Class Magistrate, Closepet under orders of transfer to the charge of the Munsiff Magistrate's Court, Chikmagalur, is granted leave from 7th April to 17th May.

According to an unconfirmed report from Belgrade German Government has given an ultimatum to Yugoslavia Government expiring at midnight Monday demanding that Yugoslavia army should be demobilised.

Nominations To Municipal Council

The elections to the Chikmagalur Municipal Council being over, the talk of the town is now centred on two important subjects. The names of the persons and the communities which will get nominations to the Council and also whether the present Municipal Council will decide to have a non-official president or will continue to have the Official President. Many people here are of opinion that as per the recommendations of the Constitutional Reforms Committee all major Municipal Councils should have non-official presidents. The Government too have in their order in this connection agreed to the principle in general. So the opinion here is that if the Council requests the Government, they might favour us with the right of electing our own president which we recently lost.

The second talk is about the nominations as already mentioned. It is reliably understood that some of the minority communities have petitioned to the Government pressing their claims for nominations in the Municipal Council, and not to overlook them by nominating the members of the community which are already represented there by way of election. Nothing definite is known at present.

MYSORE NOTES

UNIVERSITY MILITARY TRAINING

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, March 31
The Military Training arranged for University men including students and staff members this year concluded last night. For the past few months instructions were given to them in a week on the grounds adjacent to the Maharaja's College. As the Annual Examinations approach there was a break in instruction during the month of February. However, to continue the instructions a Special Camp was held from the 13th March.

The Camp was located at the Race Stables on the Narasimharaja Boulevard, here the condition for a Camp was perfect. Perfect discipline was maintained in the Camp and intensive training in various aspects of military organization was given. About 130 members stayed in the Camp to receive full training. Some of the military officers also stayed in the Camp and attended to all the details connected with the course. As 25 members who had received some instructions last year continued the course this time. They had been entrusted with responsible posts in the Camp.

"The Camp was very pleasant. We enjoyed it immensely" was the happy feeling expressed by the members who took the training in the Course of a talk with the DAILY NEWS Representative.

"We felt happy in training these educated youths. They understand the subject very well and quickly too. More and more educated youths should avail themselves of the facilities and opportunities that is being provided by the Government in this connection", said an officer who was in charge of the training.

Capt. Jamaluddin and his assistants of the Mysore Town Infantry, Capt. D. C. Nanjaraja Bahadur and his assistants of the Mysore Horse, rendered commendable services in the training. The Palace Military Officer also rendered all help and cooperation.

At the conclusion of the Camp last night a pleasant dinner was held. Lt. Col. S. Gopal Rao, Capt. Jamaluddin, Capt. D. C. Nanjaraja Bahadur, Capt. Basavara Urs, Capt. T. V. Messrs M. R. Srinivasa Iyengar, V. D. Ramajetty, Puttaswami A. Urs, and other distinguished guests were present.

Later there was a Camp under the presidency of Lt. S. Gopal Rao.

Prof. K. B. Madhavaiah, in Command, made a speech thanking all those who had assisted in the training.

With cheers to H. H. Maharaja the party commenced.

★ Congress Resolutions

MYSORE CONGRESS
WORKING COMMITTEE
MEETSDRAFT RESOLUTIONS FOR CONGRESS SESSION"PEOPLE'S DETERMINATION TO STAND BY CONGRESS"

Bangalore, April 2

The Mysore Congress Working Committee met this afternoon at 1-55 in the residence of the President, of the Mysore Congress. Mr. K. T. Bhashyam presided over the meeting.

Messrs K. Changelarayya Reddy, K. Sampangiramaiah, Jalaballi Seetharamaiah, K. Pittabhiraman, V. S. Narayana Rao, H. K. Veeranna Gowda, K. Hanumanthaiya and T. Subramanyam, were present at the meeting.

The Committee approved the following official resolutions to be placed before the Fourth Session of the Mysore Congress at Vinoba Nagar.

Condolences

1. This Session of the Mysore Congress places on record its profound sense of sorrow at the sad and untimely demise of His Highness Sir Sri Krishnaraja Wodeyar Bahadur, the late Maharaja of Mysore, and offers its respectful and heart-felt condolences to the bereaved members of the Royal Family.

2. This Session of the Mysore Congress feels profoundly grieved at the sad and untimely death of Shri Prabhada Setty who entering jail as a Satyagrahi prisoner in good health contracted illness while undergoing imprisonment at Byramangala and fell a victim thereto in the Victoria Hospital. This Session conveys its heart-felt condolences to the bereaved members of his family.

3. This Session of the Mysore Congress places on record its sense of deep sorrow at the sad and untimely demise of Shri. Marur Veerabhadrappa, Sagar, who in spite of failing health courted imprisonment as a satyagrahi and served his full term. This Session offers its condolences to the bereaved members of his family.

4. This Session of the Mysore Congress places on record its sense of grief at the sad and untimely demise of Shri. Maru Gowda of Maddur who stood as a Congress Candidate in the District Board from that Taluk and secured signal success. This Session conveys its deep and heart-felt condolences to the bereaved members of his family.

Felicitations To Maharaja

5. This Session of the Mysore Congress offers its loyal and heart-felt felicitations to His Highness Sri Jaya Chamaraja Wodeyar Bahadur on his accession to the throne of Mysore. This Session hopes and prays that His Highness's reign will be a long, popular and beneficent one.

Greatful Thanks To People

6. This Session of the Mysore Congress conveys to the people of the State its grateful thanks for the continued confidence reposed by them in the Congress as evidenced by the overwhelming and uniform support given to the Congress Candidates at the various Elections during the year.

It is gratifying to note that at the Elections to the District Boards of the State 119 out of the 133 candidates put up by the Congress were returned successfully including 39 who were returned unopposed. These Elections demonstrated beyond doubt that the people in the rural parts were solidly behind the Congress.

Mysore And Bangalore Cities

The unique and the unparalleled success of the Congress in the Municipal Elections in the Cities of Bangalore and Mysore and generally in the Election to the various Municipalities of the State has placed the Congress under a special debt of gratitude to all those who have so devotedly laboured for this success. This Session is at the same time aware that the few reverses that were witnessed in some of the Municipal Elections were due in a substantial measure to official pressure and interference against which the Mysore Congress has protested time and again.

General Elections

At the General Elections held on the 8th, 9th and 10th of February, 1941 the Congress has secured 101 seats in the Assembly and 16 in the Legislative Council.

Handicaps

This Session is quite aware of the enormous handicaps placed against the Mysore Congress and its candidates in these Elections and generally of the atmosphere in which Congress

A LONG STANDING FEUD

Four Persons Fell Victims
A.P. (Mail)

Hyderabad, (Deccan) March 31
Reports have reached Government of an occurrence originating from a long-standing feud between certain Rohilla and others in the village of Patharwala Buzurg, Ber District, over the possession of a plot of his land, in which four persons fell victims to the fury of a Rohilla and his companions, says a press note. It adds that the trouble is stated to have its origin in a 20 year old dispute between two village factions-one headed by the village Patel and the other by a local Rohilla-over the possession of a certain piece of land. It was accentuated as a result of the Patel filing a suit against the Rohilla under the Land Alienation Act. This was deeply resented by the Rohilla who is alleged to have shot dead the Patel. On hearing the news, the relatives and supporters of the murdered Patel rushed to the house of the Rohilla. The Rohilla and his companions opened fire on the party and several are injured. One of them succumbed to the third received fatal injuries.

The District Superintendent of Police and other Police officers visited the village immediately after receiving information of the outrage and arrested the Rohillas.

Thought For The Day

Daily News

THURSDAY—APRIL 3, 1941

CENTRAL ASSEMBLY

The summer session of the Central Assembly came to an end last evening with a record of work not very commendable. There was no doubt a mild attempt made to reflect the feeling of the country on the floor of the house. It must be said that it was after all a very poor show. The Government had no difficulty in going through their programme of work. The Finance Bill was passed with no dissent. The members of Government no doubt made an attempt to carry the entire house with them. The Muslim League party made a show of walkout. They have their own grievances. They are not satisfied with the Congress with the Government and with some of their own members. While Mr. Jinnah is an out and out non-cooperator and cent-percent Pakistanist, Sir Sikandar Hayat Khan the Premier of Punjab, is prudent and swears by unity. Mr. Fazlul Huq, the Bengal Premier, has his own troubles. He is worried about the Census. The Dacca disturbances have disturbed his peace of mind. In these circumstances the Muslim League, presents the appearances of a divided family.

With the absence of the Congress stalwarts like Messrs. Balabhai Desai, S. Satya Murthy and others the Central Assembly presented a desolate appearance. The benches were vacant. This void and silence created a feeling of oppression. Somehow the Government carried on and the Assembly Session ran for a few months with no doubt a number of additional laws placed on the statute book. The session has come and gone, with a record of work which is by no means noble. We do not know if it could meet again next September or the General Elections would be held. The Government of India as constituted today has forfeited the confidence of the people of India. If nothing is done forthwith to remove the deadlock, stagnation will continue and rot will set in making it impossible for any good work to be done. We hope, Col. Amery, the Secretary of State will pay an early visit to India and see with his own eyes the condition here. As the Bombay leaders said, broadcast addresses transmitted on the radio serve no purpose. The earlier the deadlock is removed the better it would be both for India and England.

MYSORE NOTES

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL MEETING

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, April 1
Mr. B. S. Raghavendra Rao, presiding an ordinary meeting of the Mysore City Municipal Council took place last evening.

The proceedings of the various Committees were approved and a number of orders received from the Government were recorded.

Speaking on the D. C. B. Statement of assessed taxes Mr. P. Sitaramiah stated that the issue of distraint warrant was causing hardship to the poor.

The President explained that distraint warrants were not ordinarily served on the poor.

Mr. Sitaramiah further suggested that greater sympathy should be shown in the matter.

The letter from the Law Secretary to the Government stating that Government regret that the orders already passed in the matter of the appointment of the Revenue officer of the Municipality cannot be revised, was recorded with the observation that the Council notes with regret that the action of the Government on the resolution of the Municipal Council was an encroachment on its rights.

The Council approved a grant of Rs. 500 to the University Union towards the expenditure in connection with the Literacy Campaign in the City. Speaking on the subject Mr. Palahalli Sitaramiah paid tributes to the excellent work that is being done by the University men and he hoped that all the Municipal Councillors will evince interest in the matter and lend their assistance and co-operation.

Messrs P. Sitaramiah and S. Linganna were elected to serve as Trustees on the Mysore City Improvement Trust Board with effect from the 12th April 1941.

Messrs A. Krishna Murty and U. L. Ramachandrarao were elected to serve as Members of the Mysore City Excise Licensing Board.

Managing Committee's resolution that it is in favour of giving only Badanaval Khadi uniforms to the peons and Duffedars of the Municipal Office although it may be more costly (with a view to encourage Indian Industries) came up for discussion.

Mr. T. S. Ali Khan opposed it. He said that it was not proper to spend Mysore ratepayers' money on cloth coming from Badanaval, an outside place. Instead he suggested that local mill made cloth should be used.

Mr. P. Sitaramiah supporting the resolution explained the economics of Khaddar and also pointed out that Badanaval Centre was being maintained by the Government.

Finally the resolution was carried by a majority.

A small Committee consisting of the President Messrs P. Sitaramiah, Chowdiah, Rangamalliah and T. Narasimha Iyengar was formed to consider details about the byelaws relating to dangerous and offensive trades.

In connection with the letter from the Law Secretary forwarding a copy of the letter received from the Director of Public Health in the matter of fixing meters for the remaining house connection in the Mysore City at an estimated cost of Rs. 2,00,000 and requesting to obtain and forward the opinion of the Municipal Council in the matter, a committee consisting of the President, the Vice President, Messrs P. Sitaramiah,

"TIMES" ON INDIAN SITUATION

POSSIBILITIES OF BOMBAY CONFERENCE SUGGESTIONS

Strange contradictions always presented by Indian Politics have never been more apparent than they are today, says 'Times' in an editorial reviewing the present political situation in India. It observes - National Congress Party continue to refuse all cooperation with Government and oppose and boycott organisation of resistance to tyrannies which its leaders unsparingly condemned. The All-India Muslim League declines cooperation with Government unless they fall in with its scheme of dividing India into two 'nations' a programme which no student of Indian history and no Indian patriot can regard without gravest misgivings.

'The Times' however refers to Indian war effort which "expands daily with the support of classes and castes which are supposed to be the chief allies of Congress" and remarks that "it is impossible to resist the conclusion that there is certain unreality in the attitude of the chief Indian party leaders."

The Paper then refers to the Bombay Leaders' Conference proposals and says: "while these proposals encountered much opposition from various quarters it is significant that most general press comment on them is that they offer fresh opportunity for re-examining the political situation. Mr. Jinnah's recent statement in the Central Assembly that the Muslim League would cooperate in the re-constituted Executive provided his scheme for partitioning British India is considered after the war may make it easier for the two Indian parties to reach some temporary understanding."

T. Narasimha Iyengar, M. C. Mallappa, M. R. Chanabasappa, F. C. Devaraja Urs, T. Venkataramiah, T. S. Ali Khan and B. Narayana Swamy was constituted to examine in detail all the matters connected with it.

The resolution of Mr. P. Sitaramiah that a Provident Fund scheme should be brought into force from 1st July 1941 to provide for some compulsory savings for the menial staff including scavengers of the Municipality was passed unanimously.

A Committee consisting of the President, Vice-president, Messrs P. Sitaramiah, M. C. Mallappa and N. Rajagopala Iyengar was formed to work out the details.

Interpellations were taken up next.

The resolutions of Mr. E. P. Nanjappa that some Toddy and Arrack shops should be removed from the present locality from 1-7-41 and be opened if found necessary outside the City of Mysore and also that of Mr. A. Krishna Murty that necessary number of monkey traps should be set up to catch monkeys and prevent nuisance were passed by the Council.

The Council also passed the resolution of Dr. A. J. Ram that necessary play materials such as saw, sliding board, Sandpit etc., should be provided at Eranagore.

The Council sanctioned Rs. 250 towards the initial cost and Rs. 60 per month towards the recurring charges to the Gurumathi Maternity and Child Welfare Trust for opening a creche in the neighbourhood of the Silk Factory.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

PEPYS DIARY AND TEA—SEVENTEENTH CENTURY ENGLAND. ROMANCE OF TEA—WORLD'S CONSUMPTION—KUMBHAKONAM TEMPLE VAHANAM

Last night I was reading some pages of Pepys Diary. I chanced across the statement in a day's diary. "I did send for a cup of tea, (a China drink) of which I never had drunk before,....." In the footnote the following appears "coffee, chocolate, and a kind of drink called tea, sold in almost every street in 1659."—Rugge's Diurnal. Tea was then so scarce in England, that the infusion of it in water was taxed by the gallon, in common with chocolate and sherbet. Two pounds and two ounces were in the same year formally presented to the King by the East India Company, as a most valuable oblation"—Quarterly Review.

Samuel Pepys was a prominent figure in England of the Seventeenth Century. He wrote his diary for about nine years beginning from January 1659. Samuel's life is interesting and his diary reveals the spirit of the age in which he lived. It is a human document worth careful study. He died in May, 1703.

Now to go back to tea. We find that in the England of the seventeenth century tea was a rarity. Now tea, has pervaded the whole world and it has become a universal drink. Tea has a romantic history of its own. According to a Chinese legend the virtues of tea were discovered by the Emperor Shennong, 2737, B. C. to whom all agricultural and medicinal knowledge is traced. A tradition exists in China that a knowledge of tea travelled eastward to and in China, having been introduced in A. D. 543 by Bodhidharma an ascetic who came from India on a missionary expedition. Bodhidharma vowed that he would contemplate the virtues of Buddha through 9 unsleeping years. At the end of 3 years he slept and in his anger at his weakness he cut off his eyelids and threw them on the ground beside him. After a further five years of contemplation he again felt drowsy and plucking some leaves from a nearby shrub he found stimulation to complete his 9 years. The shrub was called cha or tea.

Now proceeding further with the romance of tea we find that the use of tea in China in the middle of the 9th century is known from the Arab sources. From China a knowledge of tea was carried into Japan and there according to historical records, the cultivation was established during the 9th century.

The earliest mention of tea by an Englishman is probably that contained in a letter of Mr. Wickham, an agent of the East India Company, to from Firando in Japan, 27th June 1615, to Mr. East. Another Officer of the Company resident at Macao and writing "a pot of the best sort of tea" It was not till the middle of the century that the English began to use tea, and they also received their supplies from Java till 1686 they were driven out of the island by the Dutch. Now shall come back to Pepys who wrote in his diary of September 25, 1660 the words which I have mentioned in the beginning of the article.

Now we find tea spread over the world. In India tea has become a favourite drink. It is said that the world's annual consumption of tea is in the region of 900 million pounds. In Great Britain, Ireland and British Dominions tea is drunk simply as an infusion, usually with milk and sugar. Russia, the Samovar is traditional and a pot of China tea made. A little of the liquor put in a glass and filled up with boiling water from the same and a spoonful of jam or of lemon and a lump of sugar added. In America, tea is a hot weather drink. So much for the romance of tea.

This morning paper brought me an interesting news of a Peacock Vahanam, belonging to the Sri Nageswara swamy temple, Kumbakonam, was seized under a warrant of distraint for non-payment of property tax due to the Kumbakonam Municipality from the temple authorities. It is said that the Municipal Commissioner personally directed the distraint. It appears that a sum of Rs. 150 is due. The temple festival is due to begin in a few days. This vahanam will have to be used. This incident has naturally upset the local orthodox people. I have given this only as an item of interesting news. There is nothing to comment on it. But the question is whether the Municipality is justified in going as far as this. Would they do the same thing in the case of Muslims and if they do so would the Mahomedans keep quiet? This is all the difference between a mild Hindu and the excitable Mahomedan.

TRANSPORTATION FOR LIFE

High Court Confirms Sentence on a Woman

Bangalore, April 2

In the Mysore High Court, the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Venkataranga Ayyangar dismissed yesterday a criminal appeal confirming the sentence of transportation for life passed by the lower court on one Kempi for offence of murder.

It was alleged that Kempi murdered in the early hours of 5-10-1940, Dooda Venkatarayya for whom she was "Koodike" wife, as she wanted to separate from him permanently in order to live with another person named Koniga. Koniga had been charged for abetment of the crime but the Sessions Judge acquitted him as there was no undoubted evidence against him. Kempi was sentenced to transportation for life for the offence of murder, which was on appeal confirmed by the High Court as stated.

Mr. K. Ramachandra Rao appeared for appellant and Advocate-General for Government.

K. G. F. LABOUR MEETINGS

PROHIBITED BY ORDER BY CHITTOOR DIST. MAGISTRATE

(From a correspondent)

K. G. F. March 30

The weekly meetings of the K. G. F. Labour Union which were being held from 1st to 30 on the Chittoor Dist. - Mysore border at Ralla Bhondagar (near Kuppam) are prohibited by the District Magistrate of Chittoor by the following order in exercise of the power conferred by Section 5 of the Indian State protection) Act 1934 (Act XI of 1934).

"Whereas it appears to me that the labourers of the Kolar Gold Fields and other persons connected with them are holding meetings within the limits of the district of Chittoor, which meetings are likely to be an obstruction to the Administration of Mysore State and a probable source of disturbance to public tranquility in the said State of Mysore and whereas the e is an emergency to prohibit such meetings:

I, Khan Bahadur J. Hussain, Bar-at-Law, District Magistrate, Chittoor, in exercise of the Powers conferred by Section 5 of the Indian States (Protection) Act 1934 (Act XI of 1934), do hereby prohibit the holding of such meetings within the limits of Chittoor Dist and direct and require you — all persons organising, taking part in or attending such meetings, to desist from so organising taking part in or attending the meetings within the limits of the District of Chittoor."

The above order has been served by the Kuppam Police Sub-Inspector on Mr. K. C. Philips the General-Secretary of the K. G. F. Labour Union and Mr. A. T. Lakshmana Mudhar, Treasurer of the same Union and other external workers residing at Kuppam. The order has also been served on Mr. P. R. K. Sarma, B.A., M.L.A., Madras, President of the Union, by the Palamaner Circle Inspector. Due to the Prohibitory Order, no notice has been published by the Union convening a meeting. Yet about eight thousand workers gathered at the usual meeting place and peacefully dispersed on the advice of the President after showing their allegiance to the Union.

It is to be remembered that the Union could not function in Mysore State on account of successive external orders on active workers and the high repression the workers were subjected to. Hitherto 16 workers were external from the Mine Area and the secretary Mr. K. C. Philips from the State Meetings Processions and Assemblies of five or more are named in K. G. F. and surrounding places under Rule 56 of the Defence of India Act. The Union has established its offices in Kuppam and it was holding weekly meetings in Bhondagar on the borders of Mysore State which were very popular among the workers and attended by thousands of them walking a distance of 8 to 10 miles.

GERMAN-YUGOSLAVIA WAR INEVITABLE

MUSSOLINI'S EFFORTS FAIL

Mussolini's last minute efforts to avert war between Yugoslavia and Germany collapsed, according to Belgrade despatch to New York Times. Sources close to Yugoslav Government, the despatch says, have disclosed that talks between Italy and Yugoslavia and between Germany and Yugoslavia have reached a deadlock. In high diplomatic quarters in Belgrade the outlook is described as hopeless and war is inevitable.

COUNCIL OF STATE Allocation Of Defence Expenditure

A. P. New Delhi, April, 2.
In the Council of State today
Mr. A. D. Williams replying on behalf of the Commander-in-Chief to questions by Pandit Kunzru stated that it would not be in public interest to reveal the details of ship-building programme, but the shipbuilding capacity of India had been utilized to the fullest possible extent.

Replying to a question by Mr.
M. N. Datta regarding post-war readjustment of Commerce and Industry Sir Alan Lloyd said that Government were considering a proposal to set up an Inter-Departmental Reconstruction Committee as soon as the preliminary examination of the question by the Economic Adviser to the Government of India had been completed. As far as possible an opportunity would in due course be given to commercial and industrial bodies to express their views in regard to preparation of plans for post-war adjustments.

Mr. C. E. Jones, Finance Secretary, informed Mr. Datta that full details regarding arrangement between the United Kingdom and Dominions concerning allocation of defence expenditure were not available, but it was understood that the general principle was that each Dominion was responsible for the cost of its own forces wherever employed, whether within the Dominion or overseas in the theatre of war. The principles governing allocation of defence expenditure between India and His Majesty's Government during the present war had been set out in the budget speech, 1940.

QUESTION OF INDIAN POLITICAL DEADLOCK

"TIMES COMMENT NOT HELPFUL AND CONSTRUCTIVE"

RE-ACTIONS IN NEW-DELHI

(From our correspondent)
(By Wire) New Delhi, April 2.

A mixed reception was given to the comments of the London Times which reached New-Delhi this morning. The strong stand which it has taken against Pakistan programme of Muslim League is considered helpful.
On the general question of political deadlock, it is regretted it has no constructive suggestion to make.

Talks here in informed quarters reveal that important decisions will soon be taken in pursuance of Sir Sapru's memorandum which has now reached the Secretary of State. No date has yet been fixed for Sir Sapru-Linthgow meeting but when it takes place a definite offer is likely to be made on the following lines.

The Executive Council will consist of eleven members of whom only two will be European officials, viz, the present
Home Member and the Finance Member. In order to facilitate expansion three of the present
Members of the Executive Council, viz, Sir Bajpai, Sir Zafrulla and Sir Clow will vacate their seats. It is evidently considered by the British Government that this is not the time for having nonofficials in charge of the Finance Department, but it is argued that as the Cabinet has a substantial majority of Indian nonofficials and will work as one unit under the Viceroy this need not make any great difference.

Reports here suggest that the present Commander-in-Chief may be favourable to the idea of having an Indian Defence Member subject to reservations regarding certain imperial defence responsibilities and also the position of Commander-in-Chief as the head of the army.

It is claimed that this expansion scheme is in pursuance of the August offer itself but as it falls far short of the Bombay resolution in many respects the question is whether Sir Sapru can accept this counter offer.

In case an understanding is reached with Sir Sapru he may be requested to get into touch with the Congress and Muslim League for ascertaining their view point but the interpretation put upon the London Times comments is that even if the Congress and Muslim League keep out Government are now prepared to expand the Council, an agreement is reached with Sir Sapru and his supporters on the question of expansion of the scheme.

The suggestion that in order to create a proper atmosphere political prisoners should be released and talks resumed with the Congress Leaders is also finding favour in influential circles, but unfortunately the Government seem to be still in a bargaining mood regarding the composition of Cabinet and other points raised in Sir Sapru memorandum.

TAMARIND AND HONEY

Mr. K. S. Venkataramani is an idealist striving to synthesise the growing forces of India into a new potent nationalism. He finds that nation has been evolving herself but the Foreign Government is impeding the process. There is nothing new in this discovery, but the point is how to bring pressure upon Government of India or His Majesty's Government to listen to some advice. Mahatma Gandhi than whom we cannot find a greater synthetic idealist has found out that it is Satyagraha alone that can convert Britain to the path of reason. Satyagraha may not be big in bulk. But it is a potent moral force which will silently bring about the desired result. What is wanted in the country today is not multi-numbered leadership but the sole leadership of Gandhi which all in India should support with devotion and discipline. Mr Venkataramani's cry is a cry in the wilderness. Britain which is now engaged in a life and death struggle is not in a mood to listen to the literary treats either of turmoil or of honey.

MYSORE GOVERNMENT MUSEUM
Growing Popularity of the Institution

Bangalore, April .

The very interesting exhibits at the Government Museum situated in the Cubbon Park, Bangalore, continue to draw large crowds of people from all parts of the State. Its growing popularity is indicated by the fact that over 2,85,400 persons visited the Museum during 1939-40. The number of school children that visited the Museum was 4,564. But the number of literate persons visiting stood at 15,844 during the year as against 15,670 of the previous year thus showing the increase in popularity of the Museum amongst the educated public. As usual, large crowds visited during "Karaga" and other local important festivals. The interpretation of the exhibits to school children and illiterate visitors is engaging the attention of the staff of the Museum. Regular guide lectures to students from the primary and other schools in Bangalore were delivered, as usual. Lately, the students of the Intermediate Colleges in Bangalore are making use of the Natural History collections of the Museum for study. A total number of 4,564 students from 133 schools and colleges accompanied by 138 teachers were shown round the institution during the year.

The Director-General of Archaeology in India presented to the Museum with a representative collection of Antiquities from Mohenjodaro in Sind. The Curator of the Museum was deputed for a short period to work with the excavation party of the Mysore Archaeological

YUGOSLAV SITUATION—TURNING POINT IN WAR—BOY
PETER—HIS EARLY EDUCATION—SOME INTERESTING ABOUT YUGOSLAVIA—EUROPE'S YOUNG MONARCH

The situation in Yugoslavia has naturally attracted a lot of attention. In a way a turning point has come in the war situation. What Hitler would do is not yet known. Belgrade is no doubt full of rumours of German invasion. But military circles doubt whether Germany has sufficient troops on the Yugoslav frontier for an important offensive. Anyhow the world awaits further developments.

In this connection it will not be out of place to give a few facts about Yugoslavia. Most of my readers will have read the interesting book of John Gunther. Even for such it will be refreshing their memory to give a few lines from that book. Peter II is Europe's youngest monarch. He is now eighteen years old. The population of Yugoslavia is 13,500,000. The population is a mixture. There are Serbs, Croats, Slovenes, Slavones, Macedonians, Montenegrins, Bosnians and Dalmatians. Peter is a shy and awkward boy. The trouble seems to be a badly mangled education. Through carelessness or ignorance, or both, his father and mother brought him up in arrant fashion. His only teacher until he was ten was an English governess. She was a worthy character and devoted to the backward lonely child. But her share in training should have ended when he reached school age. Anyhow he was sent to England to school. When his father was murdered, he had to return home. Due to the provisions of the Yugoslav constitution which forbids the monarchs from leaving the country for any extended stay cut short his education in England. It was indeed a pity that Peter could not finish school in England. The next best thing was done. An English tutor byname Parrott was put in charge of him.

An interesting story is related how his grand mother Queen Marie broke the news of his father's death to the young boy. She said, "Peter, you know people will call you Majesty now." The boy burst into tears ending "Grand Mamma, I am too young to be a King.

Peter is one of the richest boys of his age in Europe, perhaps the richest. Peter is sole heir to the fortune left by his father, which is estimated at 2 Million Pounds. Much of it is held in the Bank accounts abroad. Peter is a boy with a

STOCK EXCHANGE IN INDIA--NOW AND THEN

Mr. L.S. Venkaji Rao's Address in Rotary Club

"AN INSTRUMENT OF MODERN INDUSTRIAL LIFE"

BANGALORE, April, 3

"The Stock Exchange in India—now and then"—was the subject of an interesting lecture delivered by Mr. L. S. Venkaji Rao, Stock and Share Broker, Bangalore last night at the West End Hotel, under the auspices of the Rotary Club.

There was a large and distinguished gathering of Rotarians. The following is the full text of the speech.

The Stock Exchange in India has gone through a revolution in the last fifty years. It was first organised in 1850, about 1875, though a few brokers were doing some business as early as 1847. It was during the cotton boom consequent on the American Civil war of 1861-65 that share speculation developed into unheard of lengths. It became a regular South Sea bubble and burst in 'approved fashion' when the Civil war stopped in 1865. The cotton boom coincided with another big boom in gold mining shares. The two together gave a great fillip to the investing habit and enhanced the share business. Mr. Premchand Roychand was the leading figure on the Exchange in those days. The present Native Stock and Share Brokers Association of Bombay was formally inaugurated in 1887 with an annual fee of Rs. 5 and an entrance fee of Rs. 51. There after we find an all round share market in bullion, grain, industrials etc., It has gone on from strength to strength since then. The membership card became a coveted prize, as much as Rs. 48,000 being once paid for it. It has now a membership of nearly 500 and a reserve of about Rs. 30,00,000. The Calcutta Stock Exchange was constituted a little later than that of Bombay, regular organisation coming in 1904. It has also developed a membership of about 450. Both are as well managed and up-to-date as any other Stock Exchange in the World. Lahore and Ahmedabad have stock exchanges of their own but they function mostly through Bombay and Calcutta except in regard to their own scrips. Madras has revived its exchange in 1937. There is room for a regular Stock Exchange here, in Bangalore, considering the present pace of industrialisation in the State under the aegis of the present administration.

There is a striking difference between the Stock Exchange then and now in the volume as well as the method of business. Formerly brokers' deals were based on the actual working and standing of the concerns and the requirements of their clients, who depended solely on information regarding the economic status of the concerns. Normal business was conducted on the basis of demand and supply like any other class of goods. Any sudden fluctuations that occurred were due to the actual changes in the economic and political factors such as actual harvest records in the country or abroad and profits of the companies. The Stock Exchange was at the mercy of sudden changes in the situation only after they actually occurred giving room for the play of bulls, bears and stags. There was little anticipation and interpretation of present and future possibilities, for the operators had very little background of the realities of the economic world. There was much less general education among them and they were more subject to panic and sudden imaginative fears. Sudden rise and sudden fall were the usual rule. For example the Emden episode brought about complete collapse for a few days. What a contrast to the effect of the capitulation of France! Surely a far greater event in the political world but the share market was prepared much earlier and could size up the situation, hence it had a comparatively much less disturbing effect. Another great source of the difference in atmosphere between the old and the new forms of business on the Exchange is the epoch making invention of Marconi. A free use of cables, world telephones (though now stopped on account of war) radio messages, Reuter's telegrams and the use of teleprinters in offices and K. Ray confidential reports bring about a revolutionary change in the tempo and quality of business transactions, which make the rise and fall in the market more gradual and less steep than before. Those who get news first and hit on the right interpretation reap the advantage first so that the market is full of waves, minor and major, and the operator has to adjust himself very quickly to manifold and simultaneous stimuli. It is here that the broker has to develop a 'sixth sense' as it were.

Overflow Of Influence

Another effect of these developments in the means of communication is the overflow of influence from one branch of the market to another, so that a profit or loss in bullion or cotton or grain will show itself in increased buying or selling in other lines so that a profit or loss in any one line is spread to every other thus allowing only stunts to make quick profits. The interweaving becomes so close that at the whole market of the country becomes one unit, for better, for worse, so that influences spread like epidemics carrying all before them.

Internationalism

Further, it goes without saying that internationalism—an ideal so close to the hearts and hopes of Rotarians and all who wish for a prosperous world—becomes inevitably the central characteristic of modern industrial life as mirrored in the Stock Exchange. No one can live in regions of isolation, hermetically sealed. No magic can shut out news or the effects of economic changes. The whole world has become one economic unit. Operations or even mere talk in Wall Street or Threadneedle Avenue have inevitably far reaching repercussions throughout the world. This is reflected in the Stock Exchange from day to day and constitutes the dividing line between the Stock Exchange then and now. There is a change in speed, even compared to the last war, for the Radio is some times quicker than the cable or of course the carrier pigeons of the house of Rothschild whose motto appears to have been quick in and quick out. News is almost instantaneously spread throughout the world.

Difference Between Stock And Share Business

Another difference between stock and share business in the two periods under review lies in the volume, variety and scope of the Industries affected. Many new Industries have come into the field such as those made possible by the new Hydro Electric installations, protected industries like sugar, steel and paper and others like cement, rubber glass etc., and a great increase in the number and variety of Insurance Companies, Textiles, Engineering firms and Public Utility concerns. There has also been a great increase in the number of Government loans—Central, Provincial, and State—with varied rates of interest and periods of redemption. The net result is a great multiplication of supply relatively to the increase of population and consequent demand. The country has gradually become more independent of foreign imports in certain lines, such as sugar, steel and rubber. Demand and supply in many cases are more evenly balanced so that the days of hectic profiteering are over, even in war times owing to the introduction of the excess profits tax, increase in income tax and super tax and other Government measures. Of course there was some profiteering in the early days of the war in Government Securities shares etc., but it was soon controlled by Government action. The Government have developed a thorough technique of control through the Reserve Bank of India so as to maintain a policy of cheap money to facilitate them

Security business has considerably diminished as a consequence of activity in the share business. It has become a matter of course. 'Money conditions' were entirely different during the last war of 1914-18. Government found it difficult to borrow then even at 5 per cent. And Treasury bills rates were also comparatively high. The reason was that when the last war broke out Government did not have experience about the money market hence borrowed from the public at whatever rate they got without any proper control. Thus while in the last war Government followed the money market, in the present war they are giving a lead to the money market. For example under the recent Insurance Act in India large Insurance Companies have to invest major portion of their income & collection of premium in the Government securities, as they have no other option. Though the Act was passed before the war broke out it has come in very handy to the Government in this exigency. Similarly Banks also have got to invest in gilt-edged securities. Again the Reserve Bank by buying and selling securities in the open market exercises so great a control that it is impossible for the bullish or bearish sentiments to have a free play. It is said that the last war was a 5% war, while the present, as we see is a 3% war.

Commodity Market

Turning to the commodity market there is less of hectic speculation in this war for the simple reason that the supply is adequate for the purposes of peace and war, thanks to the coming into existence meanwhile of big projects like Sukkur barrage, Mettur and Umanagar. Krishnarajasaagar and other irrigation systems. Further more acreage and better methods of agriculture in cotton, jute, tobacco, wheat, paddy, sugar, castor, groundnuts etc., have resulted in a more adequate organisation of supply so that there is no room for wild speculation and dramatic ups and down now as prevailed in the earlier period.

Gold Bullion etc

Government planning is most evident in the matter of gold, bullion etc. Hoarding by private parties is checked effectively, partly by the action of the Reserve Bank of India and people are more alive to the yield of money with the result that there is less tendency among people to hoard precious metals.

Another marked difference is the spread of share business to new centres that are yet without a formal organisation of Stock Exchange, like Coimbatore and Bangalore in the South, Surat and Rawalpindi in the North. The investing habit, which is the symptom of a new industrial consciousness, is spreading throughout the country. That is why we find considerable share business carried on even in interior States like Mysore. It is but natural, considering the new environment, that the Government is developing so fast for its people by starting and conducting new industries, with all the modern industrial equipment, machinery, etc. etc. etc. It is the heart of every Indian, the national feeling, that the comparatively little amount and time, by the past and enlightened administration of the State, irrespective of its progress and a well balanced policy of industrialisation and agricultural development, Capital is freely coming into the State for more and more. The success of the Mysore Sugar Company, which has set a great example of economic and profitable management, is an indication.

Instrument Of Modern Industrial Life

The Stock Exchange is an inevitable offshoot and instrument of modern industrial life. It was not always so recognised by society however, as evidenced by the fact that the first brokers in Bombay had no fixed and recognised place of business but met for their transactions in an open room what was known as the 'Garden Green' and were frequently dispersed by the police, as government officers are at the present time. But now times are quite different. The Stock Exchange is recognised as a necessary part of business organisation of the country. The general public has got many notions of the main functions of the Stock Exchange. There are amusing ideas about that a career in the Stock Exchange is one of the few magic wands that lead to the mount of millionaires, without any impressive parade of goods and godowns, without years of unremitting toil without a long list of University degrees, just by a few lucky or shrewd scoops. It is believed that a man can amass riches overnight and land in the country of success and remain there happy ever afterwards. The truth is of course not so romantic. It is as usual plan and even austere. The transactions of the Stock Exchange reflect and bring to focus the entire industrial activity of the country, comprising as it does all the rising, stationary and falling industries and concerns. Hence the prevalence of metaphors like nerve centre, barometre etc., in describing the position of the Stock Exchange in the economic system. The operator on the Stock Exchange is the expert assistant of the investing public. To be successful, he must accumulate a vast and minute knowledge of the condition of all industries in the country and develop a many sided sensitiveness to the atmosphere of business. He must develop a sixth sense as it were what may be called brokers' sense. Political currents and upheavals as well as riots, strikes, everything normal and abnormal in the entire political and economic condition of the country, from day to day, hour to hour and even minute to minute, must be vividly present to the mind of the operator in a career on the Stock Exchange. Now, helped no doubt by the most up-to-date appliances of communication and information like the radio, telephone, typewriter etc. After all, in the long run, the stability and success of the Stock Exchange depend upon the major and minor industrial prospects of the country and a stable Government assuring law and order, a forward looking people anxious to raise the standard of life and wealth, and a sound habit and tradition of business management.

LATEST STATEMENT OF COL. AMERY
CONSIDERABLE SURPRISE AND RESENTMENT IN DELHI

What May Happen In Sapru-Lalithgow Interview?

(From our correspondent)
By Wire New Delhi, April 3
Considerable surprise and resultment is noticeable in Assembly circles at the statement of
Col. Amery in the Parliament.
Considerations of official prestige appear to have prompted the Secretary of State to come out in this stage with a statement asserting that the August Offer is the last word on the subject but the fact is that the August Offer has been interpreted in many ways and may mean any thing or nothing. No detailed explanation has so far been given by the Viceroy or the Secretary of State to show in concrete terms what the August Offer is.
The important respect Col.
Amery has been guilty of misleading the public. He said that the August offer presupposed efficient measure of political support and mutual agreement in India but the fact is that in August declaration the Viceroy stated that despite differences disclosed in the resolutions of Congress, Muslim League and Hindustani, Government had decided that they should not any longer by reason of these differences postpone the expansion of Council.

Today's information is that the Viceroy has invited Sir Sapru to meet him early next week but it is considered that Col. Amery has not by his statement helped the cause of coming negotiations. One prominent member of the Assembly said today "Mr. Amery has thrown cold water on the peace efforts of Sir Sapru." It is not expected that the coming interview of Sir Sapru and Lord Linlithgow will be conclusive as the Viceroy's intervention appears to be to seek certain further particulars and communicate again with Whitehall.
The Government viewpoint may now be explained to Sir Sapru so that he may consult the Grand Committee and give his final answers. Government's intention as per the August offer is to have two European officials, four Muslims, four Hindus, one Sikh, and one representative of scheduled castes.

Mr. Menzies, Australian Prime Minister, announced that he is visiting Canada and United States.

MYSORE CONGRESS AND OFFICE ACCEPTANCE

Working Committee Explains Its Attitude

"When Government Comes to an Honourable Understanding We Shall Consider"

Bangalore, April 4.
The Working Committee has adopted the following further resolution for the Open Session of the Mysore Congress

7. Having regard to the present political situation in the country and a desire on the part of the general public for further elucidation of the policy of the Mysore Congress in relation to the Reforms, this Session of the Mysore Congress resolves that:—

The Mysore Congress has time and again considered the Reforms in its several aspects and has found the same to be quite unsatisfactory. The unjust and hostile attitude of the Government and their subordinates in connection with the various Elections in the State and their determined drive against the Congress has clearly shown that there is little or no desire on the part of those in authority to act up to the spirit of the Reforms announced halting as they are or in anywise part with real power in favour of the people. Far from any change in the view, all that has since happened has confirmed the Congress in its view that the Reforms sought to be forced upon the people at present are utterly unacceptable.

The Congress is therefore of opinion that there is no necessity to consider the question of acceptance of Office under the circumstances. It can arise only if and when the Government come to an honourable understanding with the Congress in the matter. Whether such an understanding will at all come about and if so when and how rest with the Government.

The Congress desires to state that entry into the Legislatures does not mean acceptance of Reforms and that it is a part of the struggle for the establishment of Responsible Government in the State. The Congress will co-ordinate its activities in the Legislatures and in the country in such a manner as will bring sufficient moral pressure to bear on the Government to satisfy the demands of the people.

The Congress calls upon the country to carry out the programme of constructive work both intensively and extensively for the speedy attainment of Responsible Government in the State under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja.

APPOINTMENT OF JUDGE TO FEDERAL COURT Two Branch Railway Lines Of South India To Be closed

(From our correspondent)
(By Wire) New Delhi, April 4

Three names are being promi-nently mentioned in connection with the vacancy of Federal Court consequent on the death of Sir Suleiman. First is that of Justice Iqbal Ahmad who is now acting Chief Justice of Allahabad High Court and is believed to stand the best chance. Another is Justice Abdur Rahman of Madras High Court. The third is Sir M. Zafrullah, Law Member Government of India but it is regarded doubtful whether his services will be spared by Government of India as he holds an important war portfolio.

The decision however will take some time as the Provincial Governments and High Courts will have to be consulted and the usual course of correspondence will take several weeks.

For disposing of urgent references that may be pending with Federal Court it is understood
Sir John Beaumont of Bombay High Court may be appointed as temporary Judge of Federal Court.

An Allahabad message states:
Permission was refused to Sir
N.N. Sircar to appear before Allahabad High Court. The reason given is that the Calcutta High Court had refused permission to certain Members of Allahabad bar and so had not agreed to the principle of reciprocity in this matter.

It is understood that the Central Advisory Council, Railways, at a meeting this week approved of closing two branch lines of South Indian Railway in Madras, Mouppur-Hosur line and Tirupattur-Krishnagiri line (both together nearly hundred miles) on the ground that they have failed to cover the working expenses. Adequate notice will be given to the public before they are closed.

Prohibitory Order in Shimoga

Served on President—Elected Also

(From our correspondent)

Shimoga, April 3
Mr M. Seshadri, the District
Magistrate, has issued an order
under Section 56 of the Mysore Police Act prohibiting exhibition of any mimetic, musical or other performances of any nature to attract the crowd or to carry or place advertisements, pictures,
placards, in any street, road, lane, or thorough fare or use of loudspeakers on motor or other vehicles or in any other manner in or near a public street in Shimoga Town for a period of one week from today.

This order was served on Messrs H. Siddiah, President-elect of the Mysore Congress, Dr. Parthasarayana Pandit and others in the evening. Mr. H.
Siddiah has issued a statement urging the people to vote for the Congress. He said that the Congress has gained in strength by such orders issued by the authorities.

THE MYSORE CONGRESS AND OFFICE ACCEPTANCE

The Working Committee of the Mysore Congress has adopted a resolution for consideration of the open session of the Congress, in connection with its attitude and policy towards acceptance of office under the New Reforms. We have carefully perused the resolution and we appreciate the mental attitude behind it.

The Working Committee has not hesitated to place before the public its own mental reaction in respect of what has been agitating the public mind. Under the New Reforms, elections have been held. And the Mysore Congress has achieved a certain amount of success. There can be no gainsaying the fact that success of the Congress in the elections would have been much greater, had there not been many handicaps. It is not our object at present to go over all those circumstances once again. Let us take the facts as they are. Let us not go over all the unpleasant episodes in the evolution of the political progress of Mysore. We are all human beings. And sometimes we have to grope in darkness. Let us recognise our limitations and proceed ahead.

His Highness the Maharaja has to appoint two Ministers from among the elected members of the Assembly and the Council. That is the minimum. The constitution does not fetter His Highness's choice. He may take more than two from among the elected members. What ever he is going to do, it would be with the advice of the Dewan. And therefore, at present a very great responsibility rests upon the Dewan as to what advice he is going to give His Highness.

The situation in the country is not the same today as it was yesterday. Some people may heap curses upon Mysore Congress. But there is the inescapable fact that it is a well knit popular organisation with a clear objective and a plan of action. It has leadership and discipline in it. One crowning thing is, that every step that it takes, it takes with the advice of Mahatma Gandhi and National leaders. Mysore Government's view about Mahatma Gandhi has changed from time to time. Sometimes there have been sharp differences between Mysore Government and Mahatma Gandhi. On the whole, Mysore Government fully knows what a potent moral force Mahatma Gandhi is. The present atti-

ELECTION PETITIONS FILED

Bangalore, April 4
Srimati Tayamma Veeranna Gowda of Maddur (a candidate for R.A. from Mandya District Women Constituency), Mr. V Venkatarreddy of Chickballapur (Rural), Mr. Venkatarayappa of Chickballapur (Urban), Mr. Kapinaiah of Frenchrocks (Taluk)-who were all candidates for R.A.-have submitted their Election petitions this day to Law Secretary to Government.
Mr. C.K. Balakrishnan, a candidate for L.C. from Kolar District Rural Constituency has also filed his Election petition this day.

tude of the Mysore Congress towards office acceptance is one that is endorsed by Mahatma Gandhi.

The question of office acceptance is left open. What ever the enemies of Mysore Congress may say, the Working Committee has done the right thing in laying bare its mind on the question of office acceptance. It is not the love of power, on the other hand it is the love of service that has actuated Mysore Congress to keep its mind open with regard to acceptance of office. We know something of the public mind in the country. If free votes should be taken in the country today we are sure that the people would vote that Congress should accept office more than others, and that, when the Government come to an honourable understanding with it. We also agree that whether such an understanding will at all come about, and if so when, and how, rests with the Government.

It is not necessary on this occasion to write at great length on this well understood topic. We feel that time is ripe for an honourable understanding on the question of Reforms between Congress and the Government. The Congress is anxious for an understanding and is willing to serve the people and the Maharaja. Is the Government also anxious to have understanding with Congress? We know Government is big and stands on prestige. It has resources too. What we ask to day is not any sacrifice of all that, but a mere change of heart and kindly attitude towards a section of His Highness's subjects who have undergone much suffering for what they consider to be the best interests of the country. Are we asking for the impossible?

INTERVIEW DAY

Dewan Gave Patient Hearing

Bangalore, April 4
Sir Mirza M. Ismail, Dewan of Mysore granted interviews this morning at his Chambers in the Public Offices to over 50 persons and gave a patient hearing to them about their grievances.

About 20 persons of washermen community interviewed the Dewan and requested him to appoint Mr. K. T. Govinda Rao who is working in the Revenue Commissioner's Office as Revenue Probationer in one of the departments of Excise, Industries and Commerce, or Accounts or Co-operation. The Dewan assured them that he would consider the matter.

Mr. B. Channappa and two others of Krishnarajanagar interviewed the Dewan and said that they were not getting good drinking water and the roads were bad. The Dewan hearing this, assured them that he would instruct the concerned officers to look into the matter immediately.

About 25 persons of Ramachandrapura interviewed the Dewan and represented that they are not getting drinking water, Electric lights and the roads are also very bad. The Dewan assured them that he would instruct the concerned officer, to do the needful immediately.

Messrs C. D. Narayana Rao and C. Narasimha Sastry interviewed the Dewan and requested him to open the All Mysore Pandits Conference to be held in Chamarajanagar during the last week of May. They also requested him to sanction the water supply and drainage schemes. Hearing the representation, the Dewan said that he would consider the matter.

TOWN INSPECTION

Sir Mirza M. Ismail, the Dewan inspected this morning some parts of Cubban Park and gave some instructions regarding the improvement of the City.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

SIR HENRY GIDNEY'S ADVICE TO ANGLO-INDIANS—THE LATE VIRGINIA WOOLF—MISS MARY PICKFORD—RECIPIENT OF HIGH COURTS—HINDU MAHASABHA AND DIRECT ACTION—ALL INDIA RADIO AND KANNADA

A few remarks made by Sir Henry Gidney, in the course of his presidential address at a meeting of the Anglo-Indians has received greater attention than it deserves. He seems to have said that the security of his community lay in making common cause with the Muslims. In other words, it means that Anglo-Indians should range themselves against Congress. By such advice Sir Gidney is doing greater disservice to his community than its enemies. Anglo-Indians should rise or sink with India. Congress is vitally interested in India's freedom. If Anglo Indians should follow the advice of Sir Gidney, their future would be dark and dismal. I hope there would be enough sense left in the Anglo Indian community to discard leaders like Sir Gidney.

Death is reported of Mrs. Virginia Woolf noted essayist and novelist. It is feared that she has been drowned in the river Ouse. She went for a walk on Friday, leaving a letter behind. Her body has not yet been recovered. Mrs. Woolf has written quite a number of novels. She was compared to Jane Austin. She possessed courage and a sense of humour.

News comes that Miss Mary Pickford, the famous film actress, is in a precarious condition. A later message says that her condition is more hopeful. Cine fans all over the world wish her early recovery.

Sir N. N. Sircar, it is said, has been refused permission to appear in connection with a case in the Allahabad High Court on the ground that the Calcutta High Court has not agreed to concede the principal of reciprocity in this matter. The Calcutta High Court it appears has not consented to permit Allahabad lawyers to appear in that Court on original side though such lawyers may be qualified to do so under the rules. We had heard of non-reciprocity among universities. But for the first time we learn that there is non-reciprocity between High Courts too.

The Hindu Mahasabha seems to have instructed its branches and sub branches to suspend all preparations of direct action which was due to have commenced on the first of April. It appears that the reply received by Mr. Savarkar from the Viceroy is satisfactory.

The world would like to know the details of the correspondence that passed between the Hindu Mahasabha President and the Viceroy. The declaration made at Madras on the occasion of the All-India session seems to have receded to the background. The world was wondering what kind of action it would be taken by holders like Dewan Sir K. Ramaswamy Sastri who have neither the title nor can command pensions. Sanathana Mandal is a more innocuous body in which and Maharajas can without renouncing a Imperial connections could praise of the Vedas and another the blessing of British rule.

Kannada seems to have been neglected by the All-India both at Madras and at Bangalore. Perhaps the All-India authorities do not realise that Kannada is as important a provincial language as Telugu, Gujarati, Marathi. This is not the first time the complaint is made by the All-India authorities to turn a blind eye to the ear to these complaints.

I am much pleased to receive a letter written here a letter written by Poono to a National Congress Bombay in this connection. I hope the Kannada Parishat authorities will take necessary in deputing a Viceroy and the Government India authorities to remove injustice to Kannada which of the premier Promulgations of South India the letter.

Sir,—If one goes through "Indian Listener," a fortnightly journal, which contains details of the programme of different stations, he will find any Kannada programme. Especially if we turn to the pages of the Bombay Madras stations, we will find talk, or a song or a lecture a fortnight or so, where grammes in Marathi, Tamil and Telugu are every column. Why is it unjust? Is it that the digas have nothing to do the joys of Kannada masses and literary lectures as almost all other people enjoying that privilege, perhaps, out of pity the India Radio authorities introduced a Kannada programme at random. Resolutions have been passed at several conferences and all authorities but all cry is a cry in the wilderness.

When His Excellency Governor of Bombay, Sir K. R. Narayan, last week, promoted the Local Bodies in the introduction of programmes. He assured the public that news in Kannada broadcasted from the station every day. (See page 73)

BALU MURDER CASE

PUTTAMMA'S EVIDENCE

Bangalore, April 3.—The case which is against Sabjan (motor driver under Dr. (Miss Albuquerque) who stands charged of alleged murder of Balu (a motor driver) and alleged grievous hurt to Puttamma (Aya) came up today for examination before Mr. M. Ramaswami, City Magistrate, Bangalore.

Puttamma, the injured woman, was the first witness to be examined in the case. She narrated the incident which took place on the night of 8th March at Dr. Albuquerque's house. She deposed that both the deceased and the accused were keeping a quarrel (the witness) and that was the cause for the illwill between those two. She also said that on that night the accused entered the house while she and the deceased were engaged in talking in the bed room of the house and the accused gave a blow with a hammer on the head of Balu who fell down dead. She further stated that the accused caused grievous hurt all over her body with a knife.

Puttamma identified the clothes hammer and other things. She also identified a photo in which she and Balu were.

Thimmaiah who is a servant under Dr. Albuquerque was the next witness examined. He deposed the fact of having brought the Police to the spot after he came to know of the incident.

Then Photographer Hanumanthiah was examined. He deposed for having taken a photo in which Puttamma and Balu were and he also identified this photo.

Further hearing of the case was posted to 7th April. The cross-examination of Puttamma's evidence has been reserved by the Counsel for the accused.

Mr. B.S. Murthy, Prosecuting Inspector is conducting the prosecution. Advocate Mr. P. Rajanatham is appearing for the accused.

The Prosecution have cited about 80 witnesses.

NORWAY'S PHANTOM DESTROYER

German's "Legs Pulled" (By Cable) London

The Daily Express publishes the following by Morley Richards: The Slepner, the famous Norwegian phantom destroyer, swift as the eight-footed battle horse of Odin, the old horse god from which it takes its name, has been harassing and playing jokes on the German garrisons stationed on the coast of Norway.

Nazi officers have been astonished to find two-day-old copies of London newspapers lying beside their saucers.

They have been delivered by the Slepner in between more serious operations. These include, according to Stockholm reports, the mining of entrances to hidden bays, the destroying of smaller fortifications and the capturing of German-manned small craft.

The Slepner, a ship of only 500 tons, fought the Germans for weeks before they had invaded Norway. She was not severely hit in any of her engagements.

Bus Conductors On Strike

Eleven Bus Conductors of the Chickmagalore Public Conveyance Company have struck work since yesterday morning. But the company is maintaining through running services as usual because the company has recruited new conductors and the passengers are least affected by the strike. The conductors it is understood demanded an increase of pay, and the matter has been reported to the Managing Director of the concern at Mangalore. The conductors without giving the company any notice have struck work is the view given by the bus proprietors. At present all the conductors who have struck work are behaving peacefully. Further details in the matter are lacking.

Sensational story of Italian attempts to exert its utmost influence on Germany to desist attacking Yugoslavia is now prevalent in Belgrade. It is stated Italian position in Albania would be rendered precarious by German attack on Yugoslavia and Italy is doing all she can to prevent German invasion of Yugoslavia.

Retrocession Question

CONGRESS CIVIC PARTY

C. & M. Station Activities

Bangalore, April 4

The following resolutions were unanimously passed at a meeting of the Congress Civic Party held on the 2nd instant: 1. Congress Civic Party shall take active interest in educating the electorate for the forthcoming Bye-Elections to the Municipal Commission to send candidates who shall be National minded and not undo the work of the Congress Municipal Party and to continue the programme and principles adopted by the Party so far.

2. The Congress Civic Party condemns the conduct of the Municipal Commission of C.&M. Station in passing a resolution at its meeting dated 27th March 1941 recommending to the Local Government that Hindu Community of the Station shall have only 3 Seats on the Legislatures of the Mysore State, contrary to the original accepted proposals, in the event of retrocession, at a time when 7 out of 8 of the accredited representatives of the community had resigned their seats and their future representatives had not been elected. It calls upon the Hindu population of the Station to agitate for their proper representation and inform the Local Government such a recommendation shall not bind them. It emphasises that the Local Government shall take prompt measures with the Mysore Durbar to give effect to the representations made in the memorial submitted by all the Hindu representatives on the Commission.

It further calls upon the Hindu and all other Communities that have suffered from improper representation to formulate their demands and organise public opinion before the matter is a "fait accompli".

It further records that the secrecy that is enjoined by the Local Government in the matter of the terms and conditions of retrocession is highly prejudicial to the interests of the public and calls upon the Local Government to take the public into confidence in the affairs that are transpiring.

stop unauthoritative and harmful news about the war. But nothing has as yet been done though six months have silently rolled on. It is deplorable indeed! The Kannadigas are not small in number, nor are there few radio sets in Karnataka. As anywhere else in India all public houses and gardens are equipped with receiving sets and many families own them too. How are the purely Kannada knowing people to buy the radios and enjoy the programme unless there are any items which they can understand and appreciate? The Bombay and the Madras stations are not maintained only for a certain section of people to foster only certain languages. The Kannadigas have every right to demand a proper proportion of Kannada programme in the "Indian Listener". Will the authorities therefore realise this and make arrangements to introduce Kannada items in the daily programmes of the Bombay and the Madras stations immediately?—Yours etc.

SHIMOGA NOTES

(From our correspondent)

Shimoga, April 3

It is a land mark in the history of Shimoga Municipality that 34 persons have been contesting 15 seats in the Council. This Congress has set up its candidates, issuing its manifesto to the voters. The entire population of Shimoga is eagerly looking forward to the success of the Congress candidates. Congress leaders like Messrs. K. T. Bhasiyam, T. Subramanyam, Pattabhiram and others desire that Shimoga should not lag behind Bangalore and Mysore. It is said in influential circles that Shimoga being the 3rd City in the State will certainly rank with Bangalore and Mysore. Mr. H. Siddiqui the President elect has been sparing no pains in canvassing support for Congress candidates.

SIGNOR ANSALDO ON POSSIBILITY OF BRITISH VICTORY

Admission In Broadcast To Troops

(By Wire) London

The Daily Telegraph of March 24 writes:-

Signor Ansaldo, Editor of Count Ciano's Leghorn newspaper the Telegrafo, alluded twice in his usual Sunday broadcast to the Ital troops to the possibility of a British victory.

"If by a desperate coincidence, the Anglo-Saxon nations should win," he said, "we need not have any doubt about what kind of peace they would dictate and impose on us. They try to squeeze the last drop of blood out of vanquished nations and make them work themselves to the bone."

Later he declared: "In the unfortunate case of an Anglo-Saxon victory, the world would have to be under their domination again. But the Axis nations and those of the Tripartite Pact would win in the end because their aims are just."

Much of the rest of Signor Ansaldo's talk was taken up by the old assertion that Italy was entitled to a colonial empire in Africa proportionate to her size, but she must have a free hand in Africa and an empire worthy of her.

WELCOME TO RAJEN BABU

It is a great honour that Babu Rajendra Prasad has done Mysore people and Mysore Congress by going over here to perform the opening ceremony of the Karnataka and Village Industries Exhibition organised at Harihar, by the premier political body of the State. This is not the first time that Babu is amidst us. He has been here several times before. In 1935 he visited Mysore as the President of Indian National Congress. On that occasion the Bangalore City Municipality presented him a welcome address. His reply is still ringing in our ears. He said "In honouring me, you are not honouring me, in individual. You are honouring the Premier Organisation which I represent". This is the spirit which permeates Babu Rajendra Prasad's life and activities. He has no self and he feels that he is nothing without the Congress and the Congress is everything. We wish this spirit actuates every one of our Congressmen because it is the organisation that is more important than the individual.

In his present message to the people of Mysore he gave an indication of his attitude towards the public life of Mysore. He appreciated its growth and hoped that in course of time Mysoreans would have a Government of the representatives of people under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja. This is not only a certificate to the public life of Mysore but also a blessing for its further growth and maturity into popular Government.

Babu Rajendraprasad is a unique figure in the world of Indian National Congress. Very unassuming and unpretentious in his personal appearance his soul radiates intense love and patriotism. Next to Gandhi, Babu Rajendraprasad stands as an unrivalled example and exponent of Gandhism, its philosophy and way of life. He is a steady votary of the shrine of non-violence in public life and private life. To Babu Rajendraprasad, his personal life and public life are linked as one and there is no clash or inconsistency between the two. His personal life is like a stream pouring the milk of non-violence into the sea of public life, forgetting its identity. The more one thinks of Babu Rajendraprasad's simple and his choicest blessings on Babu Rajendraprasad, the more Rajendra Prasad endear him to the nation with yet he is a great man. One who has served the nation with wealth and depth of soul of greater health, strength and

(From our correspondent)

SHIMOGA, April 4
Justice Mr. Singarevelu Mudaliar arrived here this morning by car. He inspected the District Magistrate's Court and the Subordinate Judge's Court. He will inspect the District and Sessions Court to-morrow and will leave this place for Bangalore in the afternoon.

Mr. Narasimhaswamy, Second Magistrate, committed one Nagamma of Ayanur, to take her trial in the Sessions Court for an offence under Sec 302 of I.P.C.

It is alleged that Nagamma committed the murder of one Nagashu, aged about six years of her paramour Hanumanappa on 2nd Dec 1940 by pushing him into a well and thus committed the offence.

Mr. K. Chengalaraya Reddy arrived here this morning in connection with the Municipal elections and will leave this place to-morrow for Bangalore.

arrogant and the conceited seem to look very small to themselves in his simple presence. His silent presence is more eloquent than many thundering lectures on the philosophy of plain living and high thinking.

Dr. Rajendra Prasad is one of the most intelligent men of his generation. One of the most distinguished products of the University of Calcutta, he secured record marks in English and optional subjects and entered life with the best of the worldly prospects. He entered the profession of Law and very soon reached the top rung of the ladder. What, wealth, affluence and position could give, he had in abundance. But his soul yearned for something higher, something nobler, something more divine. He felt a void in his own life. He meditated and ultimately discovered for himself that his life was not meant for pleasure seeking but it had to fulfil itself by dedication to the service of Motherland. Fortunately for him he found in Mahatma Gandhi a guide who led his struggling soul from darkness into light and from ignorance into knowledge. He became the most ardent disciple of Mahatma Gandhi and dedicated his all to the service of the nation. And today we find in Babu Rajendra Prasad a great pillar of the Gandhian movement. He is the Uncrowned King of Behar. And people of India shower their choicest affection on him. In the History of Modern India, in the chapter of Gandhian movement, Babu Rajendra Prasad's name will be written in letters of gold.

We are proud of our great leader. We welcome him with open arms and wish him a happy stay amidst us. We are sure Mysore will treasure this visit of Babu Rajendra Prasad as the most priceless one and derive the utmost benefit from it. We are grateful to him that inspite of his delicate health he has so kindly responded to the call of the people of Mysore with a view to blessing them and encouraging them in their public life. May Providence shower more and more blessings on Babu Rajendra Prasad and his choicest blessings on Babu Rajendraprasad, the more Rajendra Prasad endear him to the nation with yet he is a great man. One who has served the nation with wealth and depth of soul of greater health, strength and

Accused Of Murder Charge

(From our correspondent)

Chikmagalur, April 4
Agreeing with the unanimous opinion of the assessors that the accused was not guilty and that the prosecution had not proved the charges against the accused, Mr. A. Sundararaja Rau, District and Sessions Judge Shimoga acquitted one Chain Singh a resident of Belur who was alleged to have murdered his first wife Tunga Bai on the Bababuduru Hill range near Manikyadhara on the 19th of November last year.

The story of the prosecution was that the accused took his two wives to the top of the Manikyadhara waterfalls, on the 19th November last, and there the accused is alleged to have murdered his first wife. The body of the deceased was not traced by the police but the bones and other articles belonging to the deceased were found out and on the information received by the relatives of the first wife, the police investigated the case and arrested the accused who was charge-sheeted before the Chikmagalur First Class Magistrate Court who committed him to the Sessions to take his trial.

The judge remarked that there was no substantial evidence to commission of the offence by the accused and giving him the 'benefit of doubt' acquitted the accused.

Mr. S. V. Dasappa, Advocate assisted by Mr. D. Putte Gowda defended the accused, while the prosecution was conducted by Mr. T. Srinivasa Rau, Public Prosecutor, Kadur District.

District Board Nursery Meeting

With Mr. T. Syed Khaja Peeran, Vice-President of the Kadur District Board as Chairman a meeting of the District Board nursery took place last evening in the Nursery premises when the work carried on by the nursery was reviewed and fresh amounts were sanctioned to improve the nursery for the coming year.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

BOMBAY CONFERENCE—Mr. NATARAJAN'S COMMENT—SAVITRI STORY—DEENABANDHU ANDREWS—HIS CHILD-LIKE PERSONALITY

I chanced to read an interesting article on the Bombay Conference by Mr. K. Natarajan of "The Indian Social Reformer." Mr. Natarajan is an independent thinker. He can penetrate through a mass of verbiage and get at the kernel of the thing. He is not an out and out Gandhite, nor is he an orthodox anti-Gandhite. He sees the truth and appreciates it wherever it is found.

Now coming to the conference, he is not convinced that it would help remove the present political deadlock. He was one of those who was present at the Bombay Conference. This is what he says, "The one sentence amidst the oceans of words of the Leaders Conference which met in the Tajmahal hotel that offered a foot hold to my perplexed intelligence was that in Sir Jagdish Prasad's speech to the effect that the Government should make us feel that this is our war as much that of the British. An eminent friend to whom I turned for explanation of the meaning of this sentence, said that it included all that we wanted. For an analogy he referred to the story of Savitri, who, when her husband died, followed his ghost to the abode of Yama, the God of Death, and saluted him in the customary Hindu way."

Everyone is familiar with the story of Savitri. Sa itri asked for a boon which was very comprehensive and included everything that she prayed for. Continuing the remarks of Mr. K. Natarajan, "The Lord of Death, also responded with the traditional formulae wishing her a long and happy married life and many children and grand children. Savitri even turned the tables on him by asking how, after having deprived her of her husband, he expected his blessings to be fulfilled. Yama thereupon, had no choice but to release her husband lest his own pledged word should be falsified and the couple went home rejoicingly."

The comment of Mr. Natarajan on this story is "The God of Death was an orthodox Hindu holding to the ban on the remarriage of Hindu widows. If he were a modern Viceroy he would have suggested that Savitri might avail herself of the provisions of the Widow Remarriage Act."

This is Natarajan like. It is not that he poochpooches Savitri story but he is practical minded. He does not agree that "Just as Savitri's reminder involved all the requirements of conjugal felicity though it was superficially a simple one, so Sir Jagdish Prasad's pleading that Government should make us feel that the war was ours, included every thing—Self Government, Independence, Dominion, Indianisation of the Army, Nationalisation of the Government."

Mr. Natarajan is doubtful if interim stoppage of the Ministry would make the country feel that the war was ours. I am also inclined to think that Mr. Natarajan's view is the right view. Unless the Government carries Mahatma Gandhi and Congress with it, India will not feel that oneness with England which is what is demanded by the Bombay Conference.

Today is the First Anniversary of the Death of Dr. Andrews (I am writing this on April 5). Mahatma Gandhi issued an appeal to the people of Mysore to contribute towards the Andrews Memorial Fund. It is an All-Party Fund. It was devoted for humanitarian work. Deenabandhu Andrews was a great humanitarian. He was India's homeland and a body here. One may volumes on Deenabandhu Andrews' life. I had never seen him at close quarters. He was a Reverend and a truest sense of the world reverence from every Gandhian loved him and loved him. And he was a connecting link between the two. He did not always agree with Gandhi. He did not like Gandhi Cap which he was very unartistic. He was the truest type of an Englishman wishing well of India.

In 1926-27 when Mahatma Gandhi stayed for rest in the Mysore, there was a grand welcome in the Kumara Park area on the eve of Gandhi's departure from here. Gandhi did not participate in it. It was a morning dinner with the Mysore menu of Chutney, Bonda and several other. The plantain leaves were on the floor and people squatted on wooden planks. It was then I saw Dr. Andrews at close quarters. He wore a kurtha and trousers. He had his legs in the Bengali fashion. There was a flowing beard on his face. He was a simple child-like face with others he squatted on wooden planks and ate Mysore food. He was a simple and spoke like a common man. He was a kindness and charity from him. I can recall that scene and that time. I read a lot of his writings. I have seen his photograph. None of them reflected his true personality. An idealist he was, and we can see merely Deenabandhu. I am sure he would respond to the appeal to liberate India.

Weather

Chikmagalur is passing through a period of intense heat all these days and there are very little signs of rainfall. A tree from the summer is in progress.

G. F. LABOURERS
CHITTOOR MAGISTRATE'S ORDER AND AFTER

(From a correspondent)

Kuppam, April 3. The weekly rally of the Kolar Gold Fields at Bhooadagur in Chittoor District on the borders of Mysore State and about 9 miles from the Mining Areas which had been attended by thousands of workers for the last few weeks was held last Sunday by an invited list of the District Magistrate of Chittoor dated 25-3-1941 under the Indian States Protection Act 1934 (Act XI of 1934).

Mr. P. R. K. Sarma M.L.A., President of the Union, arrived at Kuppam on the instant and was proceeding to Bhooadagur with a party of officers was served with a copy of the order in the Bhooadagur Magistrate's Office by Mr. Prasad Rao, District Magistrate, Palmanur, who accompanied the party to the venue of the meeting, 2 miles away from the place.

As the workers in the K.G.F. are not acquainted with the developments they were pouring in, in thousands with flags, banners and Bhajanams and by a.m. nearly 8,000 had assembled, anxious to hear the orders especially about the recommendations of Enquiry of Mr. Mathan. A posse of Reserve Police with arms were camping at a respectable distance out of workers' sight. After discussing the matter with the Inspector, Mr. P. R. K. Sarma addressed the enthusiastic gathering as follows:—

"I am speaking to you only to say that there will be no meeting and speeches today on account of the prohibitory orders. You have heard me enough all these weeks. I have spoken to you sufficiently. No more speeches and meetings are required. It is now for you to be like good, disciplined and orderly Trade Unionists and keep up the Union activities. We are not against the Government. Our programme is not to break orders. If the prohibitory orders are uncalculated and unnecessary we can make representations and secure redress. I have consulted representations of the workers and have decided that the orders should be implicitly obeyed and workers should leave the place quietly and go about their normal work in the Mines and outside with greater discipline, sense of duty and respect for authority than before. This will disillusion the Government of their prejudices and vindicate the high ideals and unobjectionable activities of the Union. Mr. Sarma read out the order and after explaining it in Tamil asked the workers if they would carry out the instructions, for which workers shouted their affirmations lustily and departed from the spot.

Mr. Sarma and party returned to Kuppam and Mr. Sarma visited Bangalore on 2nd when it is understood be put himself in touch with the District Magistrate and also had discussions with Mr. Mathan.

The Executive Committee of the Union and Mr. Sarma have discussed the situation and chalked out the future programme for carrying out the activities of the Union.

General Secretary's Statement

Mr. K. C. Philips, General Secretary of the Kolar Gold Fields Labour Union, has issued the following statement to the Press:—

Since its reorganisation at Risanatham on 20-10-40 by Mr. V. V. Giri with Mr. P. R. K. Sarma, M.L.A. as President, the Kolar Gold Fields Labour Union has been functioning at Kuppam regularly. Owing to the regrettable policy of the Mysore Government towards labour organisations it has not been possible for the Union to carry on its activities in the K. G. F. or within the Mysore State. Though the Mysore Government appointed Rajamantra Pravina Diwan Bahadur Mr. K. Mathan, Retired 1st Councillor as Special Officer immediately after the calling off of the strike in August last to enquire into the labour conditions in Kolar Gold Fields and make recommendations to the Government, they tried to prevent the development of the Union by severe repressive measures such as the externment of leading workers of whom about sixteen are now in exile at the Union's camp at Kuppam. Hoping for better times and with a view to carry on its legitimate work without embarrassing the State, the Union successfully tendered oral as well as written evidence before the enquiry officer and was holding its meetings every Sunday since 10th November 1940 at Bhooadagur in the Chittoor District on the borders of the Mysore State and about nine miles from the Mines. During the last few weeks these weekly rallies have been highly popular and were attended by eight to ten thousand workers. The President of the Union Sri P. R. K. Sarma has been in touch with the Dewan and other authorities of the State not to speak of the Special Enquiry Officer. The constitution of the Union had been submitted to the State Officials and it was confidently hoped on all hands that with the recommendations of Mr. Mathan a new era will start in the Gold Fields without any difficulties for the normal growth and legitimate activities of the Union.

All of a sudden, orders were issued by the District Magistrate of Chittoor in exercise of the powers conferred by Section 5 of the Indian States (Protection) Act of 1934 (Act xi of 1934) on 25-3-1940 prohibiting the holding of the weekly rallies in the Chittoor District indefinitely on the ground that such meetings are likely to be an obstruction to the administration of the Mysore State and a probable source of disturbance to Public tranquility in the State of Mysore and as such there was an emergency to prohibit such meetings. Though about eight thousand workers had assembled for the meeting on Sunday last at Bhooadagur and it is needless to say that they were prepared for the consequences, the order was implicitly obeyed as directed by Mr. P. R. K. Sarma. It is evident from the order that the activities of the Union and the weekly rallies have been unobjectionable so far as the Government of Madras are concerned whose officers have been keenly watching its activities. The orders do not also have anything to say against the Unions Activities in regard to industrial peace in K. G. F. and relations between Employers and Employees. If there has been anything objectionable in the meetings or activities of the Union which the Police reporters of the Madras as well as the Mysore Government have been regularly attending, the Government would have lost no time in taking suitable action as they have been doing elsewhere. The present prohibitory orders under the Indian States (Protection) Act 1934 is therefore most surprising. One is provoked to wonder how far the State and Madras Government might be responsible for the order. The presumption that the meetings of the K. G. F. workers for legitimate Trade Union purposes on the borders of the State in Chittoor District are likely to obstruct the administration of the State and disturb its public tranquillity is as fantastic and imaginary as it is erroneous and without foundation. The order does not contain any justifications for its promulgation. It is a serious challenge to Civil Liberty. It is for the public and the Press to expose the implications of the order and protect the elementary rights of Association and speech for the 27,000 workers languishing in the Mines.

The K. G. F. workers who are experiencing an intense awakening are prepared for any sacrifices to prevent the trampling down of their fundamental rights. As disciplined workers they await the directions of the Union which is seriously considering the situation. I earnestly hope that the Government concerned will reconsider the action with a view to allowing the unobjectionable meetings of the workers to be conducted as usual and avert a crisis which is bound to develop otherwise.

"GLIMPSES OF EAST"

The statements of the accused was recorded and the case was posted for tomorrow for filing the list of defence witnesses.

WILL NAZIS MOVE CAPITAL TO VIENNA?

Fear Of More Intense R. A. F. Raids (By Cable) London

The Daily Telegraph Zurich Correspondent cabled on March 25.

Informed observers here believe that the report of mass expulsions of Czechs and Jews from Vienna may be part of a possible Nazi plan to move the German capital from Berlin to Vienna when R. A. F. raids become more intense.

The German military authorities, it is reported, are expecting heavier raids in view of the increased British aircraft production and the arrival of more bombers from the United States.

Vienna is about 200 miles further than Berlin from England and so a raid there would entail an extra journey of 400 miles.

R. A. F. bombers visited Vienna a year ago when they showered leaflets on the city.

R.A.F. TO MAKE COLOUR FILM

(By Cable) London

The Daily Telegraph air reporter writes:

Air Ministry Communiqués are to come to life in colour and be shown in the world's cinemas. The R. A. F. is to make a colour film showing its highly successful fighting against Germany, how the Fighter Command won the Battle of Britain and the effect the British raids have had on Hitler.

Letters To The Editor
"DAILY NEWS"

Dear Sir,

You had so kindly published in your issue a report about the Scheme for the re-organisation of the Lacquerware Industry in Channapatna, which before Government is now. Please accept my heartfelt thanks for it.

The Scheme, as already published by you, was approved by the Director of Industries and Commerce. The object of the Scheme has been delayed so long that the last day of the re-organisation of this historic and famous industry is to be celebrated in the near future. The re-organisation of this industry is a great relief in the misfortune of the workmen.

It has been fully described in the scheme, how the interference of foreign speculators has brought about the present economic crisis. Now it is observed with increasing apprehension that the growing demand for Channapatna Lacquerware, due to the lack of foreign imports has been attracting merchants from outside. A merchant from Bombay has opened a factory to-day, on a rather elaborate basis.

It is strongly urged that Government may take immediate steps and save the defenceless artisans from being badly exploited again.

Yours faithfully,

Channapatna S. A. Bux.
4-4-1941

Dear Sir,

Parents cannot be too grateful to Mr. T. L. A. Acharya for drawing attention in your issue of 25-3-41, to certain defects in our Educational system, resulting in much avoidable waste of time, effort and money. He has dealt, more or less with all the salient points. There are however certain defects in the details, which I hope to deal with later. Meanwhile, permit me to say a few words about class promotions, which is the all-absorbing topic at present.

When the S.S.L.C. Scheme was introduced, the chief idea seems to have been to wean the students and the lay public of the over-weening importance attached to an outside examination, and to give a proper place in the estimation of a student's worth, to class work. For some reason or other, this idea has changed, and I am told, the Secondary School Board, right now, are not being satisfied with the results of most of the examinations purely, without reference to the performance of the pupils in their ordinary class work.

Whatever reason there might be for this change, there can be no excuse for the defalcation of examinations and that too, only the second terminal examination, in determining promotion from class to class. Such a procedure is a travesty. For the examination is not the only factor for determining the fitness of a boy to pass on from class to class. The daily work of the boy in class, his progress in studies, his general intelligence and other things have also to be considered. Who can be a better judge of all this than the Head Master and the other teachers that are in constant touch with the boy in and outside the class-room? But the recent Departmental circular precludes the Head Master and staff from exercising this discretion, however much they may wish to do so and however deserving the case may be. Not only this, the pupils are denied the benefit of their performance in the class-tests and even the first terminal examination, so that the chances of their getting a promotion are further reduced and limited to success or failure in the Second Terminal Examination only. This is really too hard on the boys, since failure in an examination may very often be due not to want of either knowledge of a subject, or of diligence in studies but to other unforeseen causes.

Another circumstance which affected adversely the work of schools this year, has also to be taken into consideration. For various reasons, schools in the State got extra holidays this year totalling to a month or a month and a half; and as a result much work was rushed through by holding special classes and adopting other contrivances. In the case of grown-up boys in the upper classes, this may not be such a great hardship, though even there it will be but of a strain. But, in the case of the 1 year High School class, where the boys are still young and have the first taste of such subjects as Algebra, Geometry, Physics, Chemistry and Biology, such forcing up is a real and great hardship. Dictation of notes seems to have gone in some cases till almost the end of the school year; and the boys had hardly any time either for learning and digesting what they had been doing, or for revision. In the order, if under such cir-

Germany Cannot Last for More Than Two Years

Prof. CHANIAM'S VIEW

(Associated Press of India)

Lahore, April 4

From a close examination of the present resources of Germany it may safely be said that she cannot last for more than two years while England aided by United States can easily continue for another 10 years. This view was expressed by Prof. O. G. Chaniam, Vice-President, Federation of International Scientific Research Societies (Asia, Africa, Europe and America) interviewed by the Associated Press.

Prof. Chaniam said in this war India would also play an important part which would be equally important in shaping her destiny. He added, everyone, no matter to what caste or creed he belongs, cannot but realise the danger of Nazi menace to the world and should therefore resist it now, for it may be too late tomorrow.

Under the circumstances the performance of the boys, specially of those that have taken English as the medium of instruction, in an examination, is not satisfactory.

After all, it is a case of promotion from the High School I year to the II year and granting even that the boys are really so weak as the second term examination,—all-important according to the recent circular—would make them out to be, they have still two full years of the High School course, in which those defects and deficiencies could be easily made up.

Mr. C. R. Reddy, (who unfortunately for the Department resigned service here) I am told had issued a circular that all those that had put in regular attendance in a class, should be automatically promoted. Much water has flown under the bridge since then, and if now the Department cannot go the length of adopting this principle, it may, taking into consideration all the facts mentioned above, at least give full liberty to the several Head Masters to use their discretion and make promotions as they were doing hitherto basing their decision on the test marks, marks obtained in the first term and last but not the least important, the student's class work and general progress in studies. These gentlemen are well-paid and held in high estimation. Further they have been entrusted with the very onerous duty of the education and upbringing of hundreds of the future citizens of the State. Could they not be interested with the comparatively less important work of promoting their boys?

INSURANCE ACT
Discuss on In Council of State
(Associated Press of India)

New Delhi, April 4

During discussion on Insurance Act Amendment Bill moved by Sir Allan Lloyd, Commerce Secretary, Pandit Kunzru raised a number of points regarding interpretation of the provision that 75 percent of policy liabilities of Insurance Company should, under sec. 27 be invested in Government and other approved securities. The question in which the Insurance Companies in the general public were interested, he said, was whether deposits to be made by every Insurance Company and amount granted as loans to insured persons on security of life policies were to be excluded from 55 percent referred to above.

Referring to the amendment made in the Assembly to Sec. 55 Pandit Kunzru said that it conferred power on Insurance companies which might easily be abused.

Dealing with new Sec. 3 (A) which increased charges for renewal of registration he declared if it was intended that the increase in expenditure involved in the administration of the Act should be met by further contributions from Insurance Companies, it was seriously objectionable.

If a return to neutrality that the change in Yugoslavia portends on paper, means far more than that. Much more has been done than merely return to the status ante. Yugoslavia has made gesture whose influence is yet incalculable.

It will have given encouragement to the Greeks to continue their valiant struggle; it will have caused misery in Rome, overwhelmed in one day a crushing blow; it will have new inspiration into the air and above all it will have a lot of nail-biting in Berlin.

Those are its immediate effects. There is one possibility that we may yet manifest. This will make possible a Greek-Turkish Yugoslav bloc of resistance in the Balkans whose triple backed by popular goodwill and by strong British military might might transform the situation to our advantage.

Vinoba Session Opens

Mysore Congress Nagar Humming with Activity

GRAND PROCESSION OF PRESIDENT-ELECT

KHADI & VILLAGE INDUSTRIES EXHIBITION OPENED BY BABU RAJENDRA PRASAD

(FROM OUR STAFF CORRESPONDENT)

Vinobanagar, April 6.—The fourth Annual Session of Mysore Congress, the bamboo hummer, is humming with the activities of various types. Situated at a distance of about 25 miles from the Harihar Railway station, on the side of the railway line, opposite to Harihar, on the bank of the sacred Tungabhadra, in the midst of picturesque shady mango trees, the Nagar presents a festive appearance. It is verily a jatra, fair, full of teeming humanity whose heart flows the milk of patriotism and love of National Service. Men, women and children, young and old, clad in white handspun and hand-woven khaddar move about on the route and in the Congressnagar, like a line of ants, active, orderly and disciplined. The site of the Congressnagar is a flat level piece of land about 20 acres in extent. A temporary road has been cut from the main road to lead to the Congressnagar.

The Congress nagar is nicely laid out with the Janda Maidan in the centre, with the tall flag staff about 80 feet high. On the outside inside the pandal there are the Subjects Committee, pavilion and on the other the Khadi Exhibition grounds. Right behind the pavilion of the Open Session of the Congress on one side is located delegates quarters, and the huts for the Working Committee members, in the midst of a mango grove. There is the common dining hall and kitchen. On the right side, behind the Congress nagar flows the majestic Tungabhadra, the sacred historic river on whose banks rose and fell mighty kingdoms. A new mighty kingdom of people is now functioning on the bank of the Tungabhadra, symbolic of the new life stream. Every modern convenience and facility has been provided for. There is the Post and Telegraph Office, there is the hospital, there are the

CONGRESS SESSION OPENS

DR. RAJENDRA PRASAD'S PRESENCE ON DAIS

Address to open Session (From our Staff correspondent) (By wire) Vinobanagar, April 7. Mr. Siddayya presiding, the open session of Mysore Congress commenced this evening in the special maidan of Vinobanagar before a very large gathering including thousands of ryots from neighbouring villages. Delegates from all parts of the State attended. Dr. Rajendra Prasad was present on the dais. He was given a great ovation on arrival. Prominent leaders were seated on the dais.

Sri S. Nijalingappa, Chairman of the Reception Committee welcomed the delegates. Sri H. Siddayya delivered the presidential address.

Mr. Rajendraprasad addressed the session before it adjourned for tomorrow.

New Delhi, April 7. Accounts of celebration of the opening day of National Week have been received from Madras, Lucknow and Poona.

Exhibition made a nice speech complimenting the authorities on their fine collections.

It is learnt that Babu Rajendra Prasad while on his way from Hassan passed through Belur and Halebidu and spent some time in the temples there. In the course of his journey to Harihar he stopped at a wayside village, entered into a ryot's house and learnt from him something about his way of life and diet. The ryot showed him his items of food, ragi ball, soup, curds and ghee.

The arrangements at the Congress Nagar are highly satisfactory. It is Nature should kindly co-operate with the Reception Committee in not bringing stormy & rainy weather, everything would be alright. The Congress has a nice programme before it. This evening the plenary session will open. This morning the Subjects Committee would meet. As scheduled, it is present. The Congress session would close on the evening of the 9th instant.

Dr. Rajendra Prasad's Address

AT KHADI AND VILLAGE INDUSTRIES EXHIBITION

IMPORTANCE OF RURAL INDUSTRIES

(From our staff correspondent) (By Wire)

(Camp) Vinobanagar, April 7.—The present session to capture the market. If India is industrialised she will have to take part in such a war," declared Dr. Rajendra Prasad, ex-president, Indian National Congress, declaring open last night the Khadi Swadeshi Exhibition organised by the Mysore Congress as a part of the fourth annual session at Vinobanagar. Dr. Prasad said, if India was industrialised like England or America she would have to search for another planet for her market as at present the world has been captured fully.

M. B. Hanumantharao, Secretary, Exhibition committee presented the report.

Mr. Gorur Ramaswamy Iyengar on behalf of the Grama Seva Sangha presented an address enclosed in a sagdal a casket.

GRAMASEVA SANGHA'S ADDRESS

The following address was presented by Gramasevashin to Babu Rajendra Prasad:

On this occasion of your visit to open the Khadi, Village Industries and Swadeshi Exhibition organised by the Mysore Congress with its Fourth Session at Vinoba Nagar we the Members of the Mysore Grama Seva Sangha join in offering you a most hearty welcome to the State and we beg leave to pay our homage of respectful admiration for your patriotic sacrifice and service in the cause of Mother India.

The Power that shapes and guides the destinies of men and nations has willed that the riches of your heart, the wealth of your wisdom and the richness of your virtues should be linked with the work of that unique world-fare and miracle of modern times, Mahatma Ghandi, for the uplift of the Indian Nation. May the same benevolent Will crown all your efforts with easy success.

The Mysore Grama Seva Sangha has been looking to serve the country these two years by the reorganisation and reconstruction of rural life, with the encouragement, improvement and revival of village industries and the moral, economic and physical advancement of the villagers in the State after the high and good example of the model of the All India Village Industries Association founded by Ghandi.

Our Sangha has for its mottoes: (1) efficiency and experience can entrust work and workers in one place, Gaur in Hassan District, with straw item in three villages in two other Districts of the State. The goal of self-sufficiency in the matter of clothing with hand-spun and hand-woven cloth is applied to the Director of Agriculture in Mysore and instruction by the staff to hundreds of ryots, and charakas distributed free and instructions imparted to the workers of the Sangha; (2) the Ward is type manufactured by the Sangha for sale and guidance in running; a grain co-operative bank encouraged by the Sangha to relieve ruinous borrowing of food grains; chakkis made of cement which can double the output these are among our humble efforts thus far.

The encouragement extended to the Sangha by the Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore and various public bodies and individuals—official, semi-official and non-official—has given us faith and hope in ultimate though distant success, with patience and perseverance on our part and continued support from our patrons. We beseech your blessings.

On a handsome donation from one of our members earmarked for publicity and propaganda, the Sangha conferred the distinction that the first drawing thereon should be for printing Ghandiji's Crest for Cent Swadeshi translated into Kannada by another member of our Sangha is book.

We deem it a piece of good fortune that the time for the publication of the book has synchronised with your visit to the State.

We request you to bestow on the book the privilege of being published this day with your benedictions.

Dr. Rajendra Prasad said he was glad Mysore Congress had inaugurated this exhibition for Khadi and Village Industries as evidenced by the organisation of such exhibitions which encouraged villagers. Indian National Congress and Mysore Congress were always ready to help the village industries in preference to mill industry which he said could support itself. 'What we want in India is a net work of industries to provide employment for villagers. Your State has great power, it can help you. But you need not depend too much upon that help and so feel helpless when it is denied. I am sure millions supporting you have greater power than the State.'

MR. H. SIDDAIYA'S ADDRESS

is even more important to me than its economic aspect. In olden times the self-sufficiency of our villages was marked by the ability to clothe the entire village with yarn spun in the village and cloth woven there. It is stated that there were about 55,000 hand looms in our country in 1920. It is disconcerting to find that this number has now reduced itself to 30,000. Earnest efforts ought to be immediately made to revive the village spindle and the hand loom and thus provide the only available by-occupation to augment the income of the villager. I cannot sufficiently emphasise the need for greater and more widespread understanding of the economic and moral value of Khadi. Every Mysorean a spinner! this is an ideal that augurs well for the State.

The revival of cottage industries and the starting of new works on a substantial scale must be immediately attended to.

In the Cause of the Harijans

The removal of untouchability, the amelioration of the condition of the Harijans generally have been the two main objects of my efforts since I came to the State. That Mysore was one of the earliest in India to open its eyes to the problems of the Harijans is a matter of special gratification. But much headway has yet to be made in this direction. The temple entry proclamation of Travancore and similar legislation of Madras under the Congress regime have brought the problem of temple entry by Harijans much nearer to us than we anticipated. Closely allied to this problem is the problem of drink. I need not recount to you the several efforts made by the Mysore Congress to tackle this problem. It has carried on a country-wide propaganda in favour of abstinence from drink. It has permitted Congressmen to resort to picketing liquor shops to remove this vice. But the unsympathetic attitude of the Government continues to leave the problem materially unaffected. Nevertheless, there is no doubt that the Mysore Congress has achieved some measure of success in combating the evil. It is no doubt true that the most effective remedy is the enforcement of complete prohibition in the State. The Government has also tried to show its earnestness by closing down some shops in Channarayana and Closepet taluks. But this is not enough.

Spread of Hindi

A common language for the whole of India is a problem that has engaged the attention of most of our leaders. It is now agreed on all hands that Hindi should become the Lingua franca of India. 'Prachara Sabhas' have been started throughout India to popularise Hindi amongst the people. I am glad to find that one of the branches of the South Indian Hindi organisation is doing commendable work in our State. I exhort every one to revive the importance of learning Hindi. Apart from serving Mysore in its contact with the rest of India it has another important service to render to us. India is destined to have a constitution embracing within it both the Indian States and British India in a Federal form of states and provinces. I have every hope that Mysore will play an important part in the Federation. It cannot pay its own interest more than by the spread of Hindi amongst the people. I have here pointed out that the encouragement to Hindi will not detract in any manner from our regard for the language of the Province.

I am glad to make mention of the communal concord that exists in our country today. Communal bitterness and bitterness that once disturbed the orderliness and progress of the State have fortunately now become matters of the past. The Mysore Congress has always striven its utmost towards realising this ideal of communal amity and understanding.

In the pursuit of the constructive programme with faith and devotion lies our strength in the years to come. We have to spread ourselves amongst the masses. We must establish direct contact with them. We must popularise the different items of the constructive programme among them and each of us in our own way endeavour to inspire confidence in them and in our constructive work.

Women's Roll

It is a matter of sincere gratification that our sisters in Mysore have shared all our sorrows in the past. It is not merely separation from a devoted son or a fond brother or a beloved husband that they have suffered. It is not merely the agony of a foreign home or the lot of a poverty-stricken member of a discontented household that they have undergone. But it is much more than this. Their sufferings and sacrifices alongside those of men in our ranks have made the cause of the Mysore Congress nobler and more sacred. To these sisters I appeal and exhort them to consecrate their lives even more devotedly in the cause of the intense constructive programme of work that the Mysore Congress will take up in the days ahead.

The Indian Problem

You would expect me to say a word about the present Indian situation. When last we met at Azad Nagar the political horizon of India was dark. Europe had been enveloped in a fierce war. The Indian National Congress had declared its opposition to Nazism. It had made it clear that it was only too willing to range itself on the side of freedom and democracy. All that it demanded was a declaration that in its war aims Britain meant the same by India as she meant by the host of smaller States of Europe that had fallen an unfortunate prey to Nazi domination. The All India Congress Committee that held its session at Poona resolved that the Congress could not co-operate with Britain in her struggle unless a National Government was established at the centre with an assurance that a Constituent Assembly would be summoned immediately after the termination of the war to frame a constitution for India. This offer of the Congress was not accepted. Soon after Mahatma Gandhi who was given the undivided leadership of the Congress launched upon individual Civil Disobedience on the issue of freedom of speech. Thousands of our countrymen were now behind the prison bars in British India. They included ex-premiers, ex-ministers, ex-parliamentary secretaries, and members of the legislatures. Almost all the members of the Working Committee including Jinnah, Patel, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and Pandit B. S. P. were in prison serving long terms of imprisonment. It is very regrettable that the gulf between the Congress and the British Government far from the various acts of interference

The International Situation

The international situation is not that better. The war is still raging in Europe. It has now extended itself to Africa as well. Germany is today the master of a substantial part of Central Europe but those small States whose freedom was menaced but yesterday by either Germany or Italy have once again raised their standards of revolt. Abyssinia is again in arms against Italy. England has assumed the leadership of many of these struggling States. The China-Japan war is still going on

Mysore Congress Policy

I would now advert to the present political situation in our State. You are aware that the Congress has captured a place of vantage and influence in the legislatures under the Reformed Constitution. The Mysore Congress had resolved at Azad Nagar in its third session to contest the elections under the Government of Mysore Act 1940 and thus to undertake the parliamentary programme of work as another phase of its struggle for the establishment of Responsible Government in the State.

The Mysore Congress has declared time and again that the Reforms are retrograde in character and utterly unacceptable. That they fall far short of the demands and the aspirations of the people has been universally proclaimed. That they satisfy neither the time-spirit nor the desires of the people of Mysore has been generally admitted. Nevertheless, the Mysore Congress decided to contest the elections under these Reforms with a view to enter the Legislatures and from within them to strengthen its demand for the establishment of full Responsible Government in Mysore. I have no doubt in my mind that the unfriendly and the unsympathetic attitude on the part of the Government has left no alternative to us but to continue to co-ordinate our activities both in and outside the Legislatures and thus make our demand irresistible. I regret very much that the readiness and anxiety on our part to make ourselves available for a friendly understanding have been interpreted as symptoms of weakness on our part. The striking success of the Congress in the series of elections ought to have shown to the Government that the people of Mysore cannot be long kept back from their destiny and that to understand them was both statesmanship and wisdom. It is unfortunate that the Government does not realise that the opposition to reasonable and natural demands the failure to understand and satisfy those that are opposing the administration, only strengthen the latter. This attitude on the part of the Government has embittered the people all the more against it. While there was a general expectation that even as the Congress was itself ready and willing to come to an understanding with the Government on all the issues including that of Responsible Government and even as it approached the authorities for creating opportunities to explore the possibilities of friendly understanding there would be a corresponding response on the part of the Government. It has to be admitted that as the Congress was making every possible effort at rapprochement and to avoid conflict the former was rendered impossible by the unjust and hostile attitude of the Government as evidenced by and press reform the elections, and the latter was forced upon it much against its will. But I do not despair of the future.

The position of the Congress is clear. It will not swerve from the path of truth and non-violence. It will strive its utmost to develop the necessary strength in the people in an ever-increasing measure so as to make the demand for Responsible Government irresistible. It will prepare the country to develop such moral strength as to render no suffering or sacrifice too great for the realisation of its objective. Nevertheless, it will keep the door open for friendly understanding.

Question of Office Acceptance

I am aware that the question of acceptance of office under the new Reforms is agitating the mind of many in the country. There is, therefore, great and compelling need to define and declare our policy once again in respect of the Reforms on the one hand and the question of office-acceptance by the Congress on the other. That apart from its other characteristics upon which the Mysore Congress has made its view clear, these Reforms have introduced a communal poison that has sought to divide our society. The introduction of the universally condemned separate electorates for our Mussalman brethren has rendered the formation of a common nationality extremely difficult. While in British India our countrymen are recoiling with horror from the effects of the communal electorates introduced under the Minto-Morley Scheme, here in Mysore the same is forced upon the people in the teeth of general opposition. The introduction of the cumulative system of voting is another feature of the Reformed Scheme that deserves serious consideration. The results of the recent elections have clearly demonstrated that this system of voting could easily be abused and to prevent the popular will from being effectively reflected. That this system of voting has been devised to enable communal groups to get themselves represented has been admitted by the Government in its order. But the remedy, if at all, is worse than the evil itself. It has been found that at no time did the smaller groups of the Hindu community ever feel the need for special protection in this form. I am compelled to observe that the communal conflict of these Reforms is a great menace and it has to be combated by all the progressive forces in the country. Further, that so long as there was no element of responsibility recognised in these Reforms, the same were unacceptable and their modification in this and other respects is a desideratum that is overdue.

The question of office-acceptance by the Congress is the other matter upon which I need not dwell at great length. It is no doubt true that our entry into the Legislatures does not mean the acceptance of Reforms. And therefore we are not bound to accept office as a sequel to such entry. So long as the Reforms continue to be what they are, so long as the attitude of the Government remains one of hostility and opposition to the Congress and so long as there is no desire or earnestness on the part of the Government to understand and befriended as, the question of office-acceptance by the Congress is of no moment and need not be considered at all. The restoration of peace and cordial relationship in the public life of the State is of immediate importance. Mysore Congress has ceaselessly in the past secured the same, and state it will continue to do so in the year to come.

A New Order of Society

Friends, we have to console ourselves that our sufferings and sacrifices are as they are, have yet to be meted to found and built a great political organisation of the State. We have the willing guidance of a great apostle of non-violence in modern history. We continue to deserve his confidence and support. We do no better than to live and pure lives of dedication to the great cause that we have our hearts upon. We distinctly remember that we are not agitating for securing political rights as the end of our labours. It is not for offering certain advantages to a few of a large part of the population that we are labouring. Our ambition is much higher. We are shaping a new order of society wherein non-violence is the guiding principle of every citizen will be enabled to live a rich and full life of contentment. The sufferings and untold privations of thousands of our stalwart comrades, the sacrifices of hundreds of our members, the lives of Shri B. S. Setty, Ugrappa, Hanappa, Marur Veerabhaiah, and some at Vidyanagar, the constant and untiring labours of our foremost workers like Shri T. S. Siddaiya, H. C. Dasappa and B. Shashyamma, my distinguished predecessors in this, have all been but the crumbing measures of an ultimate force that is using us as a drive to reset the ideal of violence before the world. I ask you, friends, to look at your work in the great projective Mahatma Gandhi placed the constructive programme before us and before us that in the pursuit of constructive programme measure of success that is needed therein lies the salvation of the country. The time of us is somewhat small. But nothing keeps us so safe in the right track than loyalty to that great and steadfast devotion to the programme.

By our intense efforts in the months to come we must to the people and make them their own possibility must inculcate in the people the villages a feeling of reliance. We may all the villagers that they can in this feeling in two ways must provide whatever need by their own efforts forego such of what they as cannot be supplied by themselves. This will engender in them a feeling of self-reliance as a village community as a whole engaged in a common effort. Every village must be a spinning centre. The must be able to do entirely in this manner. All the villagers are to a common effort to the common need of the community there cannot be for aloofness, for personal gains or communal interests. The wake of this is awakening the moral and a new economic order could thus be created. (See page 1)

Mr. S. NIJALINGAPPA'S WELCOME ADDRESS

is the noble conception of the Oneness of God, the destructive forces of Hari, the destructive forces of nature and Hari the constructive aspect gather together to worship the same deity. The river, Tungabhadra, is silently flowing by is Tungabhadra after the confluence of the waters of the river, Tungabhadra comes the President of the Indian India join the waters of the river, Tungabhadra and lie adjacent. Crowds of all these physical and metaphysical aspects of unity, is the most important aspect in that we have to do to day, one of the best exponents of the Gandhian philosophy of Ahimsa among us is Mysoreans the message of love, peace and non-violence. To day is a red letter day in the annals of the Mysore Congress and we are happy in having Shri Rajendra Babu as our guest. The time of our session is also significant. We began yesterday with the opening of the Khadi and Swadeshi Exhibition by Rajendra Babu which again synchronises with the National Week the importance of which has been recently stressed, by Mahatma as a period for intensified constructive work. Friends, this is the time and place of our meeting.

Munificence of Donors

Allow me to add a few words on behalf of the Reception Committee. The delegates in this District to the last session at Azad Nagar invited the Mysore Congress to hold its Fourth session in the Chaldarg District and you very kindly allowed us this opportunity of serving the people of Mysore. Our work has not been a light one. We had very little time in which to undertake and complete all the arrangements. The Election fever continued till the middle of February and so far as this District is concerned it has not abated. It is smouldering, waxing and waning is a in the hands of the election tribunal. But we could undertake and complete the arrangements for this session within the little time available only on account of the large-heartedness of the people of this District in general and of Davanagere town in particular. Wherever we went we were most cordially welcomed by people subscribed very far beyond their capacity. Collection of public subscriptions is a trying affair but it is a silver lining. We came in contact with humanity in its various varieties. One or two instances may not be out of place. The very first subscription was from a very poor man who was summoned to Court and was paid Rs. 1-2-0 as a fine. He came to me and said "I have paid the fine and I will walk to my village on foot, and the savings of Rs. 1 was meant for the Congress." And perhaps it is the blessing of this man that has been responsible for the collections that we were able to make subsequently. The Collection Committee approached a gentleman; but we knew our limitations and Sri Srinivasaswamy, our treasurer, hesitatingly requested him to give Rs. 10. To our astonishment we were taken to task for asking for less and were paid Rs. 20; that was more than I expected from that quarter. Another merchant was seated with his ten year old son and as we were discussing the cash quietly opened his father's cash box, and paid us Rs. 50. Another poor man who could ill afford to pay Rs. 5 paid us Rs. 15 and we had to protest and finally accept the subscription when he fired a point-blank question at us "Is sacrifice the Congress-man's monopoly?"

Our thanks are due to the several gentlemen from outside who, out of pure love for the Congress have come out with liberal help. I must take this opportunity of thanking several gentlemen who have made this session a success helping with materials and machinery for the supply of Water and Electricity. Labourers but for whose loving labour our task of constructing this Vinoba Nagar would have been impossible deserve our thanks. The volunteers who have undergone training and who inspire of great handicaps have unreservedly been serving, as becomes true servants of the nation deserve our special thanks. Lastly, we will be failing in our duty if we do not express our deep sense of gratitude to the Bondade Bros, the rich hardware dealers of Davanagere of whom Sri Hanumanth Rao is also an Advocate, who have placed the entire land, buildings and the mango grove at our disposal, for over a month, at considerable loss of crops that were standing on the land. My personal thanks are due to my co-workers who have spared themselves neither time nor energy to make the session the success to the extent it is.

Non-co-operation Of The Government

The only jarring note that I have to sound in this connection is the want of co-operation with us on the part of the Government. We expected that we will be supplied with electricity which would have meant a heap of anxiety being avoided for us. They pleaded certain excuses and we had to make arrangements for lighting Vinoba Nagar both by power and Kerosene. It may be that materials for the extension of the power line were not available.

But I am sure they had no excuse, whatsoever, for non-co-operating with us so far as the Khadi and Swadeshi exhibition is concerned. The Government of Mysore profess that they are doing their very best for the promotion of cottage industries. The newspapers are full of reports that the Government are generously financing small industries. I know that the Government are working a few Khadi centres very successfully and efficiently. In a number of ways they are helping small industries. They deserve our thanks. But I fail to see why in spite of repeated requests by me and the very energetic joint Secretary of the Exhibition, Shri. K. A. Venkataramiah, the Government of Mysore did not see their way to co-operate with us. Can it be that according to the Government of Mysore the differences in political thoughts must also mean non-co-operation even in activities in the promotion of which both see eye to eye and which are purely non-political? The Congress is to-day the greatest organisation in the country working for the establishment of decentralised industry and the Government of Mysore would have gained considerably, in the estimation of everybody, if they had co-operated with us, by sending exhibits and arranging for demonstrations in this exhibition.

The Exhibition

In spite of several handicaps we have tried our best to make the exhibition really serve its purpose. An art section is also arranged this time. The constructive aspect has been given the importance which it deserves. I thank the exhibitors and also those who at great personal inconvenience to themselves have come to Vinoba Nagar and are demonstrating their arts, crafts, and industries. We had to get the co-operation of a number of gentlemen and to them all I express the thanks of the Reception Committee. I take this opportunity once again of expressing our sense of gratitude to Dr. Babu Rajendra Prasad who inspire of indifferent health has accepted our humble invitation, undertaken a long and tiresome journey, opened the exhibition yesterday and has put up with the strain and stress of being with us these two days here in this hot summer. He has been so kind to us that he has agreed to watch the proceedings to-day. I hope that he will excuse us for our shortcomings in the arrangements made for his stay.

Brother and sister Delegates, I have detained you long enough. You are now to take decisions regarding the future course of action to be adopted by the Mysore Congress for the next year. We are in hard times. The map of the world is being hourly changed. Greed and avarice are having full play on all hands. Democracy is in danger. The world has no use either for dictatorship or for imperialism. The situation of our country calls for the greatest sacrifice on our part and in Mysore the immediate prospect is not free from complexes. Fortunately, we have Mahatma to guide us in these troubled times. It may be well that his philosophy of Non-violence is a beacon light for the world of to-morrow.

The New President

We have unanimously elected Sri H. Siddaiah as President of the Mysore Congress. I am the privilege of being with him and

A DEPUTATION OF JAIN COMMUNITY TO DEWAN OF MYSORE

(Bangalore, April 7)

A deputation headed by Sri Seth Swarupchand Hoenegund KI, and comprising of several leading Members of the Jain Community of all India waited on the Dewan Saheb of Mysore and the 2nd Member of Council at Bangalore on the 3rd instant. They presented a memorandum requesting the Government of Mysore to appoint a representative Committee of Jains all over India for the purpose of administering the Sravanabelagola Sri Gomateswara Swamy Mastakabhisheka Fund and for arranging and conducting Mastakabhisheka regularly once in twelve years. It may be recalled that about a lakh of rupees was collected at the time of Mastakabhisheka last year in Sravanabelagola.

The Dewan Saheb and the Second Member gave a very patient and kind hearing to the deputationists and promised that a representative Jain Committee would be appointed with the Deputy Commissioner of Hasan as its Chairman to administer the Fund and to use it only for Mastakabhisheka purpose and also to conduct Mastakabhisheka regularly once in twelve years. Representation would be given on the Committee to all parts of India. As regards the appointment of the Committee and the proper administration of the Fund, all that is needful and possible would be done to the entire satisfaction of the community of all India. The deputationists tendered their grateful thanks to the Dewan Saheb and to the Second Member and withdrew with much satisfaction.

near him in jail throughout last year. I have also seen him thundering on the floor of the Legislative Council with skill and success. He is a clean fighter, always alive to the merits and defects of the adversary. He has inexhaustible springs of human sympathy and I know Sri Siddaiah and his wife are the sweetest hosts I have come across. His unqualified love and concern for the poor and the oppressed make him the bitterest fighter against those that he thinks are responsible, for oppression or poverty. After he came to be associated with and became a leader of the Mysore Congress his outlook has been widened and the sympathies enlarged. His sacrifices in the cause of the State's people are great and his being called upon to occupy the Presidential Gadi is a fitting tribute to them. Need I say that to-day in Mysore the people look upon the President of the Mysore Congress as the first citizen of Mysore?

As I submitted to you our place of meeting, our time of meeting, and the presence of Babu Rajendra Prasad to advise and guide us and the President-ship of Sri H. Siddaiah are all signs for a better and hopeful future for the Mysore Congress.

Conclusion

Brother and Sister Delegates, I am painfully conscious of the many short comings in our arrangements. I only hope you will pardon us to them. I would come you heartily to Vinoba Nagar.

perfect contentment - contentment between the town and the village and the throughout the country. A village is an progressively prosperous village not security and not poverty and slavery. Its Pan-shops and sanitation effectively. It is a happy nation and unity, becoming from its people. It is settle all its disputes without recourse to the representative method of litigation. Large village can have an effective literacy drive. Surely but surely it is possible to reshape the village life in such a manner as to make the villages correspond to the village realities of the ancient days. Let us set before us the idea of a perfect village, that is self-reliant, progressive, prosperous, able to measure its needs and to tax itself accordingly and thus govern itself efficiently. I do not think that this is an impossible or impracticable ideal. I would expect every Congress Committee to serve as an agency to work out this idea in its area. Therein would lie the justification of the Mysore Congress. I cannot set a higher or a nobler task before you.

This organisational work and constructive activities are of supreme importance at the present moment. Congress Committees have to be immediately established in every village. Membership of the Congress must increase in a substantial measure, for that would give the available manpower for this constructive drive. It should be our endeavour to increase the number of habitual wearers of Khadi and even more than that the number of regular spinners. Intense propaganda against drink, against the evil of untouchability, against communal strife and bitterness must engage our immediate attention. We will have then built up a new society based on the moral foundations of truth and non-violence. Such an order of society will render the demand for Responsible Government irresistible.

Friends, a great destiny awaits us. Let us unite in achieving it. We cannot be long delayed from it. It is our birth right. Its fulfilment is in our own hands. With peace at heart and good will to all, with courage and conviction let us march ahead; and I pray that it may be given to us to reach our goal much sooner than many may yet believe.

MYSORE PEOPLE

Special Interview to 'Daily News'
(By Wire)
From our Staff correspondent
Vinobanagar, April 8
Babu Rajendra Prasad gave the following message, when interviewed by "DAILY NEWS" representative, to the people of Mysore, before leaving this afternoon for Delhi, "I am pleased to say what I have seen. I wish the people of Mysore to carry on the work they have been doing under the guidance of Mahatma Gandhi with determination and preparedness for sacrifice. They should not be betrayed into violence or untruth. Success will come sooner than they dare hope only they work in a disciplined way, ready for all emergencies with faith in God and in themselves."

New Delhi, April 8
"There is no spirit of ultimatum in the conversations" said Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru in the course of a talk with pressmen this morning when he indicated the main aspects of the case pressed by him on the Viceroy during the two long interviews
he had had yesterday with His Excellency.
"He tried to experiment ultimatums sufficiently long" he added. "I expect the Viceroy will soon communicate what he has said to His Majesty the Government and the Secretary of State. I stood by the League Resolution and explained its implications, but precisely what he told me with regard to my proposition I cannot say."

Sir Sapru's present idea is said to be to hold a meeting of the Committee at Allahabad on 20th April which has been provisionally fixed for the purpose.
Sir Tej Bahadur went on "my case has been and was yesterday what if the Congress and Muslim League are ready to come in with them come in. We shall welcome them; but it is for them to decide. If however, they are not prepared to come in or compromise their differences either between themselves or with the British Government, I see no reason why the rest of the country should be made to depend on their will. In that case changes in the constitution of the Centre must come about."

SAPRU-VICEROY TALKS
A.P. New Delhi, April 7
Sapru-Viceroy talks which began at 3 this evening lasted for over two hours and is believed to have revealed scope for further discussion. It is understood conversations will accordingly be resumed after dinner tonight. The afternoon talks it is learnt were not confined to the Bombay resolution and the exploratory memorandum submitted by the Standing Committee of Bombay Conference but covered a wider ground of general character.
Late in the evening Sir Tej Bahadur met a number of personal friends.
It is expected he will meet the members of the Standing Committee of Bombay Conference who happen to be in Delhi and appraise them of the trend of his conversations with the Viceroy.

It is assumed Viceroy will keep the Secretary of State fully informed of today's talks.

Dr. Rajendra Prasad addressing the open session of the Mysore Congress last night, for twenty minutes in pin drop silence, congratulated the Congress for building up a disciplined, powerful, organisation in a short period of only four years and said "We of Indian National Congress have been watching your sacrifices, your struggle, your successes, keenly. I can assure you, our interest will not be less but will be definitely more" (cheers)
War and Non-Violence
Dr. Prasad was sure the world, at least after this bloody war, would accept non-violence for which Gandhiji has been working day and night. India had to make a signal contribution and Mysore, he had no doubt, would contribute its share.

Be not Elated With Election Successes
Babu Prasad was aware of the Congress successes in the elections but he warned them not to be too much elated.
Difficulties were before them which they had to overcome for which they had to make much sacrifice. Nothing was got without sacrifice.
Congress, Factory to Manufacture

Congress was a factory to manufacture men who could sacrifice. He said that Mysore Congress was fortunate in having Gandhiji as their friend, philosopher and guide whom they could follow blindly for he seldom went wrong.
Sri H. Siddayya, President, thanked Dr. Prasad for his message.

MUSLIM LEAGUE SESSION IN BOMBAY

Warning To British Government

(Associated Press of India)
Bombay, April 8
A resolution endorsing the Pakistan Resolution adopted by the League Session at Lahore and requesting the All-India Muslim League to devise ways and means for early achievement of Pakistan, was adopted at the Fourth Annual Session of the Bombay Provincial Muslim League last night.
By another resolution the Conference opined that the present civil disobedience movement by Gandhiji on behalf of the Congress was "really meant to coerce the British Government into conceding the Congress demands regarding the future constitution of India, which are really and virtually for the transfer of sovereign powers to Hindus and thus relegate the Muslim nation of 100 millions and other Indian minorities to the status of mere subjects of the Hindu Raj."

The resolution after drawing the attention of British Government to the declaration made on 8th August, 1940 on the Indian constitutional issue and the statement made by Mr.
Amery on 14th August, 1940 warned the British Government that if any attempt was made to depart from or modify in any way from the declarations and pledges, "The Muslims would be forced to resort to every measure and method to resist it with all the power they can command."
Earlier, the Conference adopted a resolution expressing sorrow at the death of Sir Shah Mohamed Suleman.

A.P. Calcutta, April 7
An adjournment motion by Mr. Harindranath Rai Choudhury (Congress) to discuss the situation arising out of extension of communal rioting in the district of Dacca was admitted in the Bengal Assembly this evening.
Government did not object to the motion and the Speaker has fixed 4-45 p.m. on 9th April for discussion.

Prasad was present.

Dr. Prasad visited this morning the camps of volunteers, delegates, and gross-men, accompanied by Messrs S. C. Reddy, H. C. Dasappa and other leaders.
Dr. Prasad praised the reconstruction arrangements and said they were most satisfactory.

the Spanish Government gave permission for the re-establishment of the German Consulate General in Tangier, the Nazis at once established a nest of spies and agents whose sphere of action will extend to French

Daily News

WEDNESDAY—APRIL 9, 1941

THE MYSORE CONGRESS SESSION

The fourth annual session of the Mysore State Congress that commenced its proceedings on the evening of 7th inst. is another milestone in the political progress of Mysore. The popular awakening and aspiration has been taking a regular shape and form. Even those who decried the movement in the beginning, and did all they could, to scotch it as undesirable disgruntlement of a few malcontents have now to revise their view and respect the movement. It is not an artificial and superficial exuberance, on the other hand it is a genuine natural product, taking its birth in the soil of Mysore, and drawing its nourishment from the people of the land. For over four years, people with stake, money and influence cannot be simply playing at a thing. It is a genuine, serious life business for those who have entered the Congress and thereby dedicated themselves to the service of the poor and the down-trodden. The Congress movement is a humanitarian movement, calling into action the divine springs of human heart. As to Mahatma Gandhi, to most of Congressmen the service of the poor is a service at the altar of the Supreme Being. It is, therefore, with religious fervour that youngmen have swarmed into the Congress ranks, their hearts captured by its idealistic tunes.

In these circumstances, the time has come for the Mysore Officials, to change their attitude to Mysore Congress. The more they try to put it down the more unsuccessful they become. The wise way is to sympathise with the Congress and try to adjust themselves as far as possible to the changing needs of the situation. Sympathy, understanding, farsightedness and sagacity are needed to tackle the surging tide of the new awakening.

The addresses of the President and Reception Committee Chairman lay reasonable stress on the constructive programme which is so to say the backbone of the Congress movement. Mahatma's message to the opening session is so condensed and comprehensive that it requires volumes to elucidate it. The kernel is there. We are sure Congressmen will adhere to the constructive programme and build the Congress organisation on the foundation of Non-Violence and Love. Constructive Programme is a cement of humanity. The more one is absorbed in it, the more one realises its potency.

The Vinoba session has a message to the people of Mysore

BALU MURDER CASE

THE CROSS EXAMINATION OF PUTTAMMA

Bangalore, April 7
The case which is against Syed Ahamed (motor driver) who stands charge-sheeted of alleged murder of Balu (another motor driver) and of causing grievous hurt to Puttamma (Aya under Dr. Albuquerque) came up today for further hearing before the City Magistrate, Bangalore.

Thimmaiah who is the second prosecution witness in the case (he is a servant under Dr. Albuquerque) was cross-examined by the counsel for the accused.

Next, the injured woman, namely, Puttamma (the first prosecution witness) was cross-examined at great length by the Counsel for the accused. She deposed that though there was ill-will between her and the accused for the last 5 or 6 months both were used to speak. She also said that her parents, brothers and sisters knew of her intimacy with the accused and though they told her to leave his company she did not do so. She further said that her parents did not know of her intimacy with Balu.

After the cross-examination of Puttamma, the case was posted to the 9th of April for further examination of the witness.

and that is embodied in Gandhi's message. In the coming year let us hope that Mysore Congress would have developed yet greater strength, unity and force of character. Let us also hope that even to those to whom Mysore Congress is an eyesore today, will prove a pleasant and encouraging sight, elevating and cheering them.

MYSORE CONGRESS

MESSAGES TO OPENING SESSION

MAHATMA GANDHI

(From our staff correspondent)

Vinobanagar, April 7
The following messages were received in connection with the fourth session of Mysore Congress.

SEWAGRAM, WARDHA (C.P.) 3-4 1941.

"Mysore State Congress has a clear way before it. Civil Disobedience having been suspended, the energies of all workers are released and should be devoted to the working of the thirteenfold constructive programme silently and faithfully. I hope every worker realises that there is a direct inviolable connection between the constructive programme and non-violence. Indeed, I am firmly of opinion that if that programme is assiduously and successfully worked at the end of it the dumb and the helpless will find themselves possessing a power they never had before and that is the truest foundation for Swaraj of millions based on non-violence."

"Mysore is in my thoughts and prayers. I am longing to be there once again, but I must resist the temptation, until the time when Mysore adds to its numerous physical attractions the spiritual attraction of a contented people managing their own affairs under a Ruler who will rule over their hearts by being their first servant. May that day arrive soon."

SRI KRIPALANI

"Any body visiting Mysore must have marked the support that the Mysore Congress commands among the general public. This is also evident from the results in the elections whether to the Local Bodies or the newly constituted legislatures. Considering the handicaps to political work in Indian States the results at the polls must be considered brilliant.

It has been ever the boast of authorities that Mysore enjoys the benefits of a good Government more than any other Indian State. But mere good Government is not enough. What is essential these days is that people must be allowed to govern themselves. The instalment of reform just introduced, though it is being worked by the Mysore Congress comes no where near the goal.

The task therefore before the Mysore Congress today is almost as great as heretofore. It will require all the courage, patriotism, unity and organisation that its members can command to accomplish their aim. I have no doubt that the necessary qualities will be forthcoming in the future as in the past.

I am glad that political workers in Mysore realise the limitations of outside help specially the limitations under which such help can be rendered by the Indian National Congress. This realisation they will find, makes co-operation between political workers of the two organisations easy and fruitful.

The Mysore Congress believing as it does in non-violence must

MYSORE CONGRESS

EXHIBITION SECRETARY'S REPORT

(From our Staff correspondent)

Vinobanagar, April 6
In presenting the report of the Khadi and Rural Industries Exhibition, the Secretary said:—"The Mysore Congress has been closely following in the steps of the Indian National Congress and naturally its activities centre round the constructive programme and the development of the Cottage Industries as a means of taking stock of the work done and as a guide for further improvements to be effected, the exhibition has served a useful purpose.

I may be permitted to say that we are very fortunate in having so distinguished a son of India as Rajen Babuji to perform the opening ceremony of this exhibition. It will be presumptuous on my part to try to introduce Babuji to you. I may say this much that he is a noble example of all that the Gandhian philosophy stands for. Khadi and Village Industries occupy the most important place in our exhibition for the simple reason that they will save our Motherland from foreign exploitation and economic destruction. It is Mahatma's firm conviction that the popularisation of these alone will bring Swaraj. It is, therefore, natural that they should demand our primary attention. In all humility, I may say that the Mysore Congress has been endeavouring to do its humble bit to promote these industries. It is gratifying to tell you that the Congress movement in Mysore has given a great impetus to the khadi movement.

Cotton

Ours is a rich Cotton-growing District and as such has a wide scope for the development of the spinning industry. We have made an attempt to collect Kambls from all over the State to give an idea of the extent of the same in the State. This kambl industry is holding its own against serious foreign competition and deserves public attention and support.

The Exhibition Committee has attached great importance to spinning. Various spinning competitions were held through out the district and you will meet in this exhibition a good number of spinners who are winners in the several competitions. The Committee has invited all the spinners to convey an idea to the visitors of the emphasis that is necessary to be laid on spinning.

You will find in the exhibition among other things, demonstrations of various village industries like button making, comb making, paddy husking, improv-never forget the value of constructive work in their political movement. In proportion that they strengthen Constructive work they advance their political objective.

I have no doubt that the present session of the Congress will chalk out plans of practical work which will help it in its onward march to complete political emancipation. I wish the Session all success."

The organisation of the Mysore Congress stall and the section is a new feature. The exhibition of this year, the committee has tried to make the Mysore Congress stall a means of pictures and essays on the growth of the Congress in Mysore.

No Govt. Representation

It is a regrettable and ceaseable gap that several members of the State as also of the village industries are indirectly connected with the Government are not represented in this Exhibition. It is a matter for regret that the Government of Mysore think it fit to respond to the invitation of the Committee to cooperate in an economic activity of this kind in which a large section of the State is earnestly interested. It is evidenced by this large and anxiously awaiting to the Exhibition. It is an economic activity which is certain one common ground on which the Government and the public opinion can co-operate. DEWAN BAHADUR K. RAMASWAMY

Portrait unveiled by Dewan

(From our correspondent)

Holenarasipur, April, 6
Sir Mirza M. Ismail, the Dewan of Mysore unveiled the portrait of Rajakaryaprasakta Dewan Bahadur K. Ramaswamy, this evening at the Maternity Hospital.

On behalf of the entertainment Committee Mr. G. R. Ramaswamy in a nice speech requested the Dewan to unveil the portrait of the Dewan Bahadur. In the course of his speech Mr. Srikanthaya gave a brief account of the early life of Mr. Ramaswamy in Holenarasipur. He said that they were all proud of him. He praised the qualities of head and heart of Mr. Ramaswamy.

Dewan's Speech

In performing the pleasant duty of unveiling the portrait of Sir Mirza M. Ismail, Dewan, I feel that it was a happy day for a people of the town. It was a source of sincere gratification to me to be among them on the occasion. He expressed his thanks to the Ramaswamy Entertainment Committee for their kind invitation to him to perform the function. He also thanked them very sincerely for the kind things they had said reference to himself.

Proceeding, the Dewan said that it was a real pleasure to him to claim Mr. Ramaswamy as one of his esteemed friends. He was therefore, very glad that entertainment had been got at Holenarasipur, his native place, to honour Mr. Ramaswamy and to felicitate him on the conferment by His Highness the Maharaja of the title of Rajakaryaprasakta" on him. He gave the Dewan special honour not only to participate in the entertainment but also to unveil the portrait of Mr. Ramaswamy. It was quite appropriate that his portrait should be placed in the Hospital which he had generously built and which bore the name of his late mother.

Referring to the very successful career of Mr. Ramaswamy, the Dewan recalled that Mr. Ramaswamy joined service with the Government of Bombay at an early age. By dint of sheer industry, perseverance and outstanding ability he reached his way up. He was held in high esteem both by the general public and in official circles. His Majesty the King of Nepal had recognized his services by the conferment on him, successively, of the titles of "Rao Sahib", "Rao Bahadur" and "Dewan Bahadur". And as he knew, His Highness the Maharaja had graciously bestowed on him the title of "Rajakaryaprasakta" during the last few years.

Mr. Ramaswamy, said the Dewan, was well and proud of Mr. Ramaswamy and of the success which had come to him. That recognition and success, Mr. Ramaswamy had achieved, was entirely his great quality.

REDUCTION OF LEVY OF RAILWAY CESS

From 6 Pies to 3 Pies Per Rupee

Bangalore, April 7
The proposal of the Kadar District Board to reduce the levy of Railway Cess from 6 pies to 3 pies per Rupee is sanctioned by Government. Sanction is also given to the levy, by the District Board of a special cess at the rate of 3 pies per rupee on all items of Revenue for which local cess is levied in the Kadar District. This order will come into force from 1st July, 1941.

ties of head and heart, his exceptional ability and his sterling character. He was well known for his friendly disposition, his capacity to get things done, and, as many a visitor to Bomlay could testify for his overflowing hospitality. Above all, his profound loyalty and intense patriotism were worthy of admiration and deserved to be widely emulated. It was superfluous for anyone to try to illustrate Mr. Ramaswamy's loyalty and patriotism by quoting instances. But if one example was more striking than any other it would be found in the admirable sentiments he had expressed in the speech he made on the occasion of inaugurating the Kannada Sahitya Sammelan held at Dharwad recently. He was also one of the pillars of the Mysore Association in Bombay. Till recently he served that Association as its President and nurtured and fostered it with all the devotion and care he could command and but for him he doubted if it would have come into existence at all.

In our country, those who could be called rich were very few and far between. But the number of those who were both rich and generous was smaller still. Philanthropy did not always accompany riches but Mr. Ramaswamy provided a refreshing exception to that rule, said the Dewan. The Narasamma Maternity Hospital was a visible manifestation of Mr. Ramaswamy's generous instincts and he was, in fact, a kind of a friend, philosopher, guide and host of every Mysorean who found himself a stranger in Bombay.

In conclusion, the Dewan gave renewed expression to his pleasure at being given the opportunity to associate himself with the function that afternoon and to perform the ceremony of unveiling the portrait of one who was such a close and sincere friend to himself and who was besides respected and loved by a large number of his fellow-citizens in the State. He offered his sincerest good wishes to Mr. Ramaswamy for many years of excellent health and unalloyed happiness in the future.

Holenarasipur, April, 6
Rajakaryaprasakta Dewan Bahadur K. Ramaswamy arrived here this morning from Bombay. A huge crowd greeted him at the Railway Station.

Then he was taken in a procession through the important streets of the town and on the way he received a number of garlands and fruits from the public. He also received blessings at the temples of Sri Neelakanteswara Swamy and Sri Parthabhirama Swamy.

DEWAN AT ARKALGUD

Laid Foundation Stone Of Veterinary Hospital

(From our special correspondent)

Holenarasipur, April, 6
Sir Mirza M. Ismail, the Dewan of Mysore, accompanied by his Private Secretary Mr. Eric De Costa and personal staff arrived here this morning from Bangalore by special saloon, to commence his tow-day tour in Hassan District.

At the Railway Station, Mr. T. Ramaiya, Deputy Commissioner, Dewan Bahadur Ramaswamy and local officers received the Dewan and offered him flowers.

Then for about 45 minutes the Dewan inspected the town and gave some suggestions for the improvement.

The Dewan also visited Sishu Vihar, and Maternity and Child-welfare hospital where he made kind enquiries of the patients.

At Arkalgud

Then the Dewan and party left for Arkalgud where he laid the foundation stone of Rao Bahadur Balkshi Narasappa's Veterinary hospital.

On behalf of the Municipal Council, Mr. Srikanthaya and the donor of the veterinary hospital Mr. N. Krishnaswamy Rao presented addresses to the Dewan.

Then the Dewan laid the foundation stone of the hospital and returned to Holenarasipur.

The following is the full text of the speech made by Sir Mirza Ismail, Dewan of Mysore:—

Replying to the addresses presented to him on the occasion by the Municipal Council and Mr. N. Krishnaswamy Rao, the donor of the Dispensary, the Dewan said that it gave him great pleasure to visit the charming malnad parts again and to take part in the ceremony of laying the foundation-stone of the Veterinary Dispensary at Arkalgud. He was grateful to Mr. Krishnaswamy Rao and the members of the Municipal Council for the kindly welcome they had accorded to him and for the friendly and warm sentiments they had expressed about him in their addresses.

Continuing, the Dewan said that India was essentially an agricultural country and that cattle-breeding was very essential for the development and improvement of agriculture. Good and healthy cattle formed, therefore, an important requisite of the agriculturist. Cattle should be properly treated when they were unwell, otherwise they would deteriorate in quality and they were likely to die also. A ryot who had only a pair of bullocks was likely to be hard hit, if even one were to die and his means of agriculture itself would be taken away. Poor as our ryots were they would not have the money necessary to replace dead bullocks, and some were even likely to replace dead bullocks by cows for purposes of ploughing. This was disadvantageous to the ryots in as much as the output of work by cows was very much less than that of bullocks, and less milk was likely to be available

SATYAGRAHA REPORT OF CHITALDRUG DISTRICT

To be forfeited to Government

Bangalore, April, 6

The Mysore Government have declared every copy of the book styled "Satyagraha Report of Chitaldrug District" printed in Satyavani Press, Chitaldrug, wherever found in Mysore to be forfeited to the Government as the book tends to bring into hatred or contempt and to excite dissatisfaction towards the Government.

About seven hundred refugees from villages affected by the communal riot in Kaipura Thana arrived here last night and sheltered in Iswar Pathshala within Mahesh Prangan in the town. The District Magistrate met the distressed refugees and assured them of all possible help and assistance.

through cows being used for agricultural purposes. Ryots who lived through sale of milk were again hit materially. The importance and utility of a Veterinary Hospital in assisting the growth of healthy and useful breeds could not be exaggerated in the circumstances.

He was far from saying, said the Dewan, that facilities should be provided for cattle, only because of their use to man. Such facilities should be provided for them from the humanitarian point of view also. It was a matter of history that King Asoka had introduced veterinary dispensaries in our country at a time when there were none of their kind anywhere else in the world. Just as it was our duty to treat properly those cattle which were ill, it was no less our duty to show kindness to those cattle that were fit.

Government were very keen on increasing the number of veterinary hospitals in the State as far as possible. They were spending money over these institutions as far as their resources permitted. The Dewan wished to acknowledge that many philanthropists in the State were helping Government by coming forward in recent times with generous donations for the building of veterinary hospitals and in various other ways. Mr. Krishnaswamy Rao was one such. He had offered to help the people of this taluk by building a veterinary hospital at Arkalgud in the name of his father, Rao Bahadur Balkshi Narasappa. He had also done several other acts of public charity. His father, the late Mr. Balkshi Narasappa was a Bahshi under His Highness the late Maharaja Sri Krishnaraja Wodeyar III. By his ability, his many qualities of head and heart and his generosity, he had earned the love and regard of all. It was, therefore, in the fitness of things that the hospital should be named after him.

The Dewan congratulated Mr. Krishnaswamy Rao very warmly on his public spirit and on the most useful and appropriate form which his generosity had taken. He expressed, both on behalf of Government and the people of Arkalgud and neighbourhood, their gratitude to Mr. Krishnaswamy Rao for his thoughtful and commendable act of charity.

CHIKMAGALUR NOTES

Scout Council

(From our correspondent)

Chikmagalur, April, 6

The quarterly meeting of the Executive Committee of the Kadar District Scout Council was held day before yesterday morning in the Scout Office under the presidency of Mr. N. Ramanna, President, Kadar District Scout Council. The meeting requested Mr. Chandra Narasimha, Deputy Commissioner, Kadar District, to become a member of the Executive Committee. By another resolution the Council thanked Dr. K. N. Natarajan for the services he rendered to the movement during his stay in the district as Medical Officer. The Council decided to hold a Scouters' Conference in the month of May.

Victoria Cross

The Kadar District Treasury is understood has already received more than a lakh and half rupees of Victoria Cross medals and other coins of allied nature. This is due to the stopping of its circulation in the market.

Agricultural Inspectors Meeting

A meeting of the Agricultural Inspectors of the Chikmagalur range was held yesterday morning in the local Office under the presidency of Mr. K. H. Srinivasan, Senior Assistant Director of Agriculture. The meeting decided to open up ten demonstration plots, six subvention farms and one central seed farm demonstration of improved method of Agriculture in paddy in the new centres recently sanctioned by the Government. For this District, Mudigere, Lakshavalli, Chikmagalur and Narasimharajapura have been chosen for the above purpose. Sugar cane farms will also be started in Sakrepatna and Chikmagalur. Besides the meeting also considered the various other ways of improving the cultivation of minor crops in Malnad.

Handicraft Classes

Mr. N. Ramaswamy, Technical Assistant to the Kadar District Scout Commissioner has arranged to conduct training classes in Handicrafts at Hregouza for the benefit of the rural Scouters.

YUGOSLAVIA NOW PRO-BRITISH

Spanish Paper Correspondent's

Avowal

(By Cable) London

The Daily Telegraph's Madrid Correspondent cabled on March 30.

The admission that the people and army of Yugoslavia are pro-British is contained in a message from the Berlin correspondent of the Madrid evening paper. Alas, in a review of the Yugoslav situation.

While asserting that the Yugoslav army is "undoubtedly the best in the Balkans," the correspondent remarks: "However, Anglephile the Yugoslavs and their army may be, it is most difficult to believe that they will oppose the formidable German army now along their frontiers."

The Rome correspondent of the newspaper 'A B C' has come to the conclusion that diplomatic and military events are developing so rapidly and unexpectedly that after a month of the paper one is left wondering whether one should not add to the previous message, 'it is not useless.'

SIR SAPRU'S TALKS WITH VICEROY

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru in his statement which he has issued to the press gives an idea as to what transpired between him and the Viceroy. The very fact that Sir Sapru stayed in New Delhi as the Viceroy's guest is enough to show that the conversations were very cordial. Sir Sapru states that he stood by the Bombay resolution and explained its implications. Though he is not willing to inform the world as to what the Viceroy told him he found the Viceroy's attitude to be quite frank and sympathetic. In his statement, Sir Sapru discloses what his own idea is. He says that the Congress and Muslim League are ready to come out, let them come in. We shall welcome them. If however they are not prepared to come in or compose their differences either between themselves or with the British Government, I see no reason why the rest of the country should be made to depend upon their will. In that case changes in the constitution of Centre must come about.

Sir Sapru is in a hurry. He would not wait for Congress or the Muslim League. He would board the bus and travel alone if necessary. He sees grave danger in missing the bus. But we are afraid Sir Sapru is miscalculating the situation. However eminent Sir Sapru and his friends may be they have no following in the country. Unless people are behind them, of what advantage is it for the country that these gentlemen should go and assume power in the Centre. This clearly shows that Sir Sapru and his friends are helpless. They are not able to influence Government. Nor are they able to influence the Congress and the Muslim League. We are convinced that it is not the love of power that actuates men like Sir Sapru. They are filled with a genuine desire to resolve the deadlock. But with out sanction behind them will they be able to achieve their object? We are inclined to think that these talks lead no where, however friendly and pleasant they may be. The right course would be for people like Sir Sapru to bring pressure upon Government to come to terms with Mahatma Gandhi and Congress. There can be no permanent settlement of the national problem without a complete agreement between the Congress and the British Government. The error it is committed by the Government is that it would have the country.

Administration Report of The Police Department

ARREST OF A LARGE NUMBER OF CRIMINALS

Bangalore, April 8
The Report on the administration of the Police Department for the year 1939-40 with the Government review thereon has just now been published.

Mr. L. G. B. Peel who continued to be in charge of the Department, was on leave from the 2nd March 1940 till the end of the year, and Rajasevasakia Mr. A. V. Ramanathan held charge during the period.

There was a slight increase in the strength of the permanent force, which consisted of 1077 Officers and 5692 Constables against 1064 Officers and 5632 Constables in the previous year. The number of literate Constables was 3478.

The Inspector-General refers to the incidence of Madhira among the staff in some of the Districts and the serious dislocation of work caused thereby. He considers that the situation is serious enough to call for urgent prophylactic measures on a large scale. Government agree that the problem requires urgent attention. The Inspector-General is requested to submit detailed proposals for the early consideration of Government in consultation with the Director of Public Health.

There was a decrease in grave Crime from 6376 to 6144 and the decrease was noticeable under all heads, except offences against public tranquility. The State Crime during the year would have shown a better record, had it not been for the Satyagraha movement, which was particularly active during the first half of the year in the Districts of Chitaldrug, Tumkur and Kolar. Nearly 2000 persons were arrested for political offences, of whom 1641 were convicted, the majority of the offenders being either agriculturists or unemployed people.

One noticeable feature of Police work during the year, which the Government note with satisfaction, was the successful arrest in the Cities of Bangalore and Mysore and in the Shimoga District, of a large number of inter-provincial criminals who were responsible for a number of cases of burglary, house-breaking and theft. Equally satisfactory was the sensational discovery of a gang of criminals in a village about five miles from Mysore. The entire village, it would appear, was living on the loot obtained by this gang.

It is reported that, in spite of the close co-operation between the respective Police forces, the division of Bangalore between two entirely separate jurisdictions confers a very great advantage on the professionals and that a serious outbreak of kidnapping and removing of jewels from children in Bangalore City was an undisturbed for some time.

The Inspector-General observes that the exploitation of the Mysore State by members of Criminal Tribes from the

HINDI PRACHAR STALL OF THE EXHIBITION

(From our staff correspondent)

Vinobanagar, April 8
The Hindi Prachar Stall organised by the Karnatak Provincial Hindi Prachar Sabha, Dharwar, is a very timely and beautiful collection of pictorial and statistical charts and linguistic maps. Special attention has been given to the Hindi Magazine section and group photos of Hindi Prachar Associations in the State. Leaders' opinion with their photos are worth mentioning. It is learnt that Babu Rajendra Prasad and other distinguished visitors have expressed their appreciation of the arrangements made in the stall. Babu Rajendra Prasad was much impressed with the progress made by the Dakshina Bharat Hindi Prachar Sabha, Madras, during the last decade.

Mr. Siddhanath Pant, Secretary of the Provincial Sabha assisted by Mr. Hiranmayya, State Organiser is in charge of the Stall.

"SUN STROKE" EFFECT

(From our staff correspondent)

(Camp) Vinobanagar, April 8
Mr. P. M. Mathews, aged 30, a car manufacturer of Travancore, who had come to participate in the Khadi and Swadeshi Exhibition, was the unfortunate victim of "Sun Stroke". He had the attack at about 2-30 P. M. He was taken to Harihar Hospital and then to Davangere Hospital. He expired on the way. The dead body was handed over to the Police.

The General Secretary of the Exhibition took charge of the stall of the deceased man.

DR. PRASAD LEFT FOR DELHI

(From our staff correspondent)

(Camp) Vinobanagar, April 8
Babu Rajendra Prasad, left Vinobanagar this morning for Delhi, after taking part in the Women's Conference. Dr. Prasad went to Harihar and stayed in the Travellers Bungalow for some time and left. Messrs K. T. Bhasyam, T. Siddalingiah, H. C. Dasappa, K. Changanarayana Reddy, S. Nijalingappa and others were at Harihar, to give a send off.

Madras Presidency is encouraged by the failure of courts to inflict deterrent punishments, and that these tribes are responsible for 75 per cent. of serious crimes against property, and that it is necessary to adopt an enlightened policy of reclamation accompanied by stern punitive measures. The question is separately under the consideration of the Government.

Government view with concern the increase in the number of accidents caused by motor traffic, and they hope that with the rapid improvements effected in traffic points in the Cities and important places in the mofussil there will be an appreciable fall in the number of accidents.

Government are pleased to note that the working of the Department continued to be satisfactory.

Association of Mysore Engineers in Madras

TENTH ANNUAL GATHERING

Mr. Kikkeri's Speech

(From our correspondent)

Madras, April 7
The tenth annual gathering of the Mysore Engineers in Madras was held at "Woodlands", Royapet on 6-4-1941. Dr. K. S. Shetty, the President, presided.

Mr. S.A. Kikkeri, the Chairman of the Reception Committee welcomed the members present.

The Honorary Secretary, Mr. Suryanarayana Rao, read the annual report which showed a marked increase in membership. The report was unanimously adopted.

The following office-bearers were then elected for the coming year:—Mr. A. A. Rao President, Mr. K. T. Ramachandra Vice President, Mr. S.A. Kikkeri and Mr. K. Ahobalachar Council Members, Mr. B.V. Suryanarayana Rao Honorary Secretary, Mr. K. Bheema Rao, Honorary Treasurer.

The meeting unanimously resolved to admit non-Mysore Engineers as associates as many had applied for membership.

Mr. R.T. Ramachandra then addressed the gathering on the construction of "Steel Bridges with special reference to screw piling and well foundations."

The function concluded late at night with a dinner at "Woodlands."

War And The Role Of Engineers

Mr. S.A. Kikkeri, Chairman of the Reception Committee, in welcoming the Mysore Engineers to the tenth annual gathering said.

The year that has just passed is an eventful one and will linger long in the memory of every Mysorean. H.H. the late Yuvaraja passed away in Bombay; within a few months our late King, H.H. Krishna Raja Wodeyar also passed away. He was a King and father to us all and will go down in History as the Maker of Modern Mysore.

Present Maharaja

Our present King, Jayachamaraja Wodeyar has ascended the Throne at a very difficult period of the World's History, when brute force is trying to destroy the very edifice of our State, Liberty, Equality and Existence. But, we are proud of him. He has already won our affection, admiration and homage.

Without destruction, there can be no construction, as what is destructive to one must be destructive to another. Viewed from this angle, the present Great War is a blessing in disguise to India.

The days of war when that party which put the last hundred men on the field and won the war, are over; even the days of the Great War when that party which retained the last ounce of butter and won the war are also over. Today, it is a battle between giant brains and giant production, that party which has the greatest scientific brains and Engineers will win the war.

India's Contribution

What is then, the contribution which India and we, Engineers, could contribute to win the present war? What comes, back the echo.

This is neither the time, place nor occasion to go to the reasons as to why India is crippled from taking her due share by the side of Britain who are fighting a just war. India, it she had not given loyal and sympathetic support, could have been the greatest bulwark of Britain, and Duce's in no time forgot the past and think of the present and the future.

The present War has drawn the faint outline of the World. Industries, which are once persistently producing now working overtime, materials and of the right quality are now being plentifully and abundantly coming to her own at last. It is idle to think that the countries are only for the duration they will survive the war.

No Nation can survive without the Key Industries, Chemicals, Armament, Motors, Shipbuilding, Yards, Aircraft and Automobile Industries.

Mysore Leads

It warms our hearts to see Mysore is to lead India in the future. Thanks to the vision and wisdom of our late King, that Engineer-Statesman S. Visvesvaraiya and his popular Dewan Sir Mirza Ismail adopted and jealously guarded Industrial policy, great odds and initial disasters. Mysore has now led the automobile and aircraft industries. There are two industries yet to be started. Mysore. We have steel works, we should have an armament factory. We have lost our port Bhatkal; that port is a very life blood; it belongs by right of justice, geography and our very existence, should have Bhatkal and it a Shipbuilding Yard.

Mysore has become our pride and the envy of India; in fact it is due to Mysore that Industrial Map of India can be drawn today.

Scientists And Engineers

This war has brought to the forefront Scientists and Engineers. The first line defence of India is no longer Egypt, Singapore but, India's Scientists and Engineers. Let us then do our duty by India.

This brings us to the question of the training and education given to the Engineer Students so far. This will have to be radically altered to suit the altered circumstances and needs. A technical Institute cannot produce a complete mature Engineer. But they can equip them with the experience and knowledge necessary to hold their own in the coming economic struggle after the war is over.

The Engineer today is no longer concerned with the Designing and Construction portions; he has to deal with the development and expansion of enterprises as well.

The mere Scientific knowledge is no longer the qualification to reach the high ranks in the profession. To be a Chief Engineer requires about 40% technical education, he expends 45% Administrative, a General Manager spends only about 20% technical faculty while 30% is expended in Administrative faculty and the rest in book keeping etc.

I leave these and other already put up before you for your deliberation.

DEWAN

Sir Mirza M. Ismail, Dewan of Mysore, presided at the gathering.

★ Concluding Address

A SUCCESSFUL SESSION

Mysore Congress President's Remarks

Determination to Carry out Constructive Programme

(FROM OUR STAFF CORRESPONDENT)

Vinobanagar, April 9.

In concluding the proceedings of the fourth session of Mysore Congress, Mr. H. Siddaiya spoke as follows:

We are now at the end of a successful Session. Vinoba Nagar has marked the next important stage in the progress of our work.

Reception Arrangements
 I must express my great admiration for the Chairman of the Reception Committee and the members thereof and for all those who have co-operated with in this great and striking corporate effort. The Reception Committee, indeed deserves the thanks of all of us for enabling us to run a most successful session here. I have no doubt in my mind that the Chairman of the Reception Committee whose personality was visible in every part of the work deserves special thanks. And I would not conclude this part of my admiration and felicitations without referring to the spontaneous and substantial help that many others in the District and some from outside have rendered to him and to the Reception Committee in this connection. The Reception arrangements were excellent. And what is more, everything has gone off smoothly, pleasantly and successfully. With the same feelings of congratulations I would refer to the work of the Volunteers that were assembled from the different parts of the State and contributed their mite for the orderly conduct of all our deliberations and with such an emphasis of perfection that a growing institution of ours may well look on with some satisfaction.

Exhibition
 I am particularly impressed with the growing popularity of the Exhibition that, as an adjunct of the Annual Session, justified itself beyond any measure of expectation or anticipation. To the Exhibition Committee I am very thankful for adding to the success of this session.

Several Handicaps
 An Open Session is becoming a great responsibility on any Reception Committee. But in the measure of success that the Session as those of the ones in the past has been able to achieve in spite of handicaps of various kinds, like those from the Government and the like, I am confident of a successful future. This success on the part of the Reception Committee to run successful sessions has added to the prestige and the reputation of our Organisation. I have every hope that this tradition will be maintained steadily and successfully.

Encouraging Messages

The messages of Shri. Mahadev Desai, Acharya Kripalani, Kaka Kalelkar, K. M. Munshi and others have inspired us in an abundant measure. Their good wishes have been a source of great encouragement in our work here. We also began our Session with the message of our guide Mahatma Gandhi. We are fortunate in having his blessings. The presence of Babu Rajendra Prasad in our midst has invested this Session with a majesty that should be recorded with extreme gratification. I am of opinion that these messages of good-will, encouragement and advice as much as the presence of Rajendra Babuji have contributed very much to the success of this Session.

Our Responsibilities

Friends, we have registered our approval of important decisions. With them our responsibilities have also increased in a great measure. I have already indicated in my opening remarks that we are engaged in a great work of spreading the message of truth and non-violence to the far off corners of the State. We have resolved to intensify our efforts in this behalf. It is now our duty to appreciate the responsibilities that we have thus undertaken and to translate them into action. Great things are expected of us. You heard the grand old man of the Karnataka, Shri Muduvudalal Krishna Rao yesterday. He conjured up before us the vision of a great and united Karnataka that embraced Mysore and the other Kannada States. May I point out that if we should justify his expectations as we ought to, then the work of the Mysore Congress becomes arduous indeed. Even so have we our responsibilities by the problems of a divided India. In all these the Mysore Congress has important commitments.

Constructive Programme

I may now refer briefly to the two resolutions that very rightly occupied most part of the time of the Subjects Committee and was thus fully distilled before they were placed and subsequently adopted by this session. We have thereby re-affirmed our faith in the constructive programme and our determination to carry it out in letter and in spirit. We have declared our vital objection to the proposed Reforms. We have decided to consolidate our position in relation to the goal of Responsible Government in a comprehensive manner. We have asured ourselves that we shall carry out our parliamentary programme in a manner and to the extent that we will be nearer these objectives. I could make one thing very clear. We shall do nothing which will affect the prestige of our Organisation or that will not take us to the goal of Responsible Government. I have indicated the same in my opening address.

Resolute Will

Friends, I do not want to detain you for long. But I would wish to impress upon you the need and may the immediate need to realise that we have taken important decisions and we should make them our own. This we should show by a resolute will to work them out and by thus demonstrating our faith and earnestness in them. Remember the constructive programme as a measure to inculcate the ideology of truth and non-violence in thought, word and deed is our immediate task. I exhort you to take to it in fullness of feeling and faith. I cannot do better than draw your earnest attention to the inspiring message of Mahatmaji and words of Babu Rajendra Prasad.

Women's Conference

One other feature of this Session that deserves special consideration is the holding of the Women's Conference in our midst. I am glad to note that it was held. It has helped us greatly in our work. Women of Mysore have stood by us in all our trials and difficulties. They have made the same resolution to continue to support us in our work ahead. That is a great augury for us.

I must thank the Delegates, Members of the Subjects Committee and of the Working Committee and others who have co-operated with me these three days.

Invaluable Aid of the Press

Friends, I would be failing in my duty if I did not refer to the invaluable aid that we have received from the Press in and outside Mysore. To them I desire to convey my warmest and sincerest thanks. Before concluding the Session I once again thank you and the Reception Committee.

TICKETLESS TRAVEL

SPECIAL COMMITTEE TO PREPARE RULES

Careful Selection Of Staff
 (From our correspondent)

(By Wire) New Delhi, April 10
 It is understood that the Railway authorities have appointed a special Committee with Mr. G. C. Laughton as President to prepare model rules for adoption by all Railways to deal with Ticketless travel with a view to securing uniform application of provisions of the recent amendment of the Railways act and recommending a standard form for submission of statistics.

A magistrate with a long experience of ticketless travel cases will be associated with the committee. Detailed instructions are also being issued to Railway Administrations pointing out the need for careful selection of staff authorised under Section 113 A to remove passengers from compartment. Other instructions based on the suggestions made by non-official members in the course of the debate on the Bill in the Central Legislature have also been issued. Orders have also been sent for exhibition of posters at stations calling attention of the public to the New Penalties Imposed for travelling without tickets.

EXCHANGE OF MESSAGES BETWEEN PREMIER AND VICEROY

Praise Of Indian Troops In Eritrea

A. P. New Delhi, April, 9
 Prime Minister Winston Churchill has sent the following personal message to the Viceroy: The Whole Empire has been stirred by the achievements of Indian forces in Eritrea. For me the story of ardour and perseverance with which they scaled and finally conquered precipitous heights of Keren recalls memories of Northwest Frontier of long years ago and it is as one who had honour to serve in the field with Indian soldiers from all parts of Hindustan as in the name of His Majesty's Government that I ask Your Excellency to convey to them and the whole Indian army the profound appreciation with which we followed their heroic exploits.

The Viceroy sent the following reply: I conveyed to the forces from India now fighting in Eritrea and the whole of Indian army your generous message for which I, on their behalf, thank you most heartily. Coming as it does from one who has all his life sought battle and found it on many varied fields in all parts of the world and now the Fighting Leader of British Commonwealth of Nations, your message is an inspiration to us all.

Thought For The Day

What is friendship, other than the harmony of all things divine and human, with goodwill and affection?

Daily News

FRIDAY—APRIL 11, 1941

PROGRESS OF KANNADA

It was a highly suggestive address that Rajamanthrapravina K. V. Anantharaman delivered at Kannada Sahitya Parishat inaugurating the series of Spring Festival lectures. He testified to the fact that in the last 30 years Kannada language had made vast progress. It had also risen in status and esteem. English which had occupied a very high place has been gradually giving room to Kannada. In the educational system, Kannada is coming to occupy its position of honour. In the High School, Kannada has been adopted as a medium of instruction. In the University, great prominence is given to producing books in Kannada. In Political and other Assemblies and Conferences, Kannada is the medium of discussion. In Mysore, the Representative Assembly has been transacting its business in Kannada for the last 50 years and more. Of late, Kannada has invaded even the Legislative Council Hall. Several enthusiastic members have been exclusively speaking in Kannada.

Some further progress is necessary. In the Law Courts too, Kannada should be given prominence. The lawyers should conduct their arguments in Kannada and the judges should write their judgments in Kannada. Some beginning should be made in this direction. Even in the High Court, Kannada should be brought into vogue in arguments and judgments. There is nothing curious or strange in this. It is the natural way, and the earlier we adopt this, the better it would be for us.

Businessmen nowadays use Kannada freely. More of it should be encouraged. The Chamber of Commerce would do well to conduct its business and proceedings in Kannada. All these reforms are necessary and they should be introduced without any loss of time.

We should do away with the superstition that Kannada is not a fit instrument of expression or exposition for modern scientific, technical and legal knowledge. The more we use it, the more precise and polished it becomes, as all tools and instruments are. Kannada is as good or as bad as any other language of the world. There is no intrinsic superiority or inferiority of any language. We should do away with the inferiority complex which obsesses most of our pedants and educated men that Kannada is inferior in the rung of ladder of languages. We are sure that if we do away with some wrong notions which have filled our mind, in course of time it is possible to

NEXT SESSION IN BANGALORE DISTRICT

(From our staff correspondent)
Vinoobanagar, April 9

The Bangalore District Congress Committee invited the next session of Mysore Congress to Bangalore District, which invitation was accepted by the A.M.C.C.

SHIA AND SUNNI PROCESSIONS BANNED

(Associated Press of India)
Lucknow, April 9

Government have decided to ban both Shia and Sunni processions on Barawafat day which they intended to allow earlier and proclaimed Curfew on 10th April between the hours of 7 in the morning and 7 in the evening. This decision is contained in the two orders promulgated by the District Magistrate today under Section 144 Cr. P. C.

Make Kannada a world language. It is the people that make a language. It is the life that gives vigour and colour to it. It is the use, that gives it precision and flexibility. Language is like a metal, ductile and malleable. You can produce music in it or you can produce a hammer out of it.

We are glad to note that Kannada language has emerged long ago out of the cloisters and monasteries into the market place. Every man, woman and child, drinks today from the fountain of Kannada. Kannada Newspapers and Journals have been supplying useful knowledge and information, door to door, in simple, intelligible, homely language. This is a great advance. The pedants who look down upon the work of newspapers, do disservice not only to themselves but to Kannada language. There is a great future before Kannada. The Kannada Sahitya Parishat deserves to be thanked for all the good work it has been doing in the direction of propagating and encouraging Kannada language and literature.

We cannot do better than conclude this article with the words of His Highness the late Maharaja on the occasion of the Silver Jubilee of the Kannada Sahitya Parishat on 30-6-40. He said,

"Languages are living things. They grow by the addition of new words and phrases. As the world develops in knowledge and as science makes new discoveries, they may develop a modern form which is quite different from the archaic, while what we call the 'dead languages' continue in some cases to be used, largely for religious purposes. A comparison of a succession of English dictionaries shows a growth in the number of entries in a little more than a century from 70,000 words to no less than 5,50,000. It is difficult to make a similar comparison for the Dravidian languages, but the following figures may be of interest. A Telugu dictionary of 1903 has only about 33,000 entries, while Kittel's Kannada Dictionary of 1894 has about 65,000. The new Tamil Lexicon has 104,000. But they all fall far behind English with 1,63,000."

I have very little advice to give you regarding your programme for the future that has not been given you before. Above all things, study purity and simplicity, avoid anything that is not essential to the meaning of what you wish to say."

DEWAN BAHADUR K. RAMASWAMY

"Times of India" writes:-

After serving the Public Works Department for 34 years Dewan Bahadur K. Ramaswamy Assistant Engineer, Presidency Division, Bombay, retired from Government Service on Friday.

Educated at Mysore, Dewan Bahadur Ramaswamy joined the Public Works Department as a Surveyor in Nasik District in 1907. Three years later he was confirmed in that appointment and worked in the same capacity in Belgum, Kaira and Broach districts. He was posted to the Bombay Presidency Division in 1911, and was made an upper subordinate officer in 1919. He was promoted to the Bombay Service of Engineers in 1925.

Dewan Bahadur Ramaswamy was in charge of the construction and maintenance of several important works in the headquarters and was associated with the erection of several buildings such as the Council Hall, the Central Press, the Children's Hospital in the J. J. group of Hospitals, the Administrative Blocks and the X-Ray Block in the G. T. Hospital. He was also connected with the maintenance of buildings such as the Gateway of India and the Royal Institute of Science.

In 1930 when the Development Department was abolished the Back Bay Reclamation work was placed in his charge in 1931. The projects connected with this scheme had to be revised and it took Dewan Bahadur Ramaswamy nearly 10 years to bring them to the present condition. He was also responsible for the general supervision of the construction of almost all the buildings on the Reclamation. He was connected with several sports institutions in Bombay and was also in charge of the Government sports buildings.

Dewan Bahadur Ramaswamy was for eight years President of the South Indian Education Society; president of the Mysore Association for ten years; and music President of the South Indian Sangeetha Sabha for ten years. He is at present President of the South Indian Association, the Fedhreted Karnataka Association and the National Kannada Educational Society. The latter has developed into a very popular institution.

While the Congress party was in power, Government, at the instance of Mr. K. M. Munshi, consulted the Dewan Bahadur over the supervision of the Children's Home at Chembur. He was also connected with the construction of the Children's Home.

In recognition of his services he was awarded the title of Rao Sahab in 1926, Rao Bahadur in 1935 and Dewan Bahadur in 1939. He is also a Justice of the Peace and an Honorary Magistrate.

As an appreciation of the philanthropic and social work done by him, the Maharaja of Mysore has conferred on him the title of "Rajakarya Prasakta." A portrait of Dewan Bahadur Ramaswamy will be unveiled by the Dewan of Mysore at Holenarasipur on Sunday when Dewan Bahadur K. R. Srinivasa Iyengar a retired member of the Mysore State Council will preside.

Dewan Bahadur Ramaswamy proposes to continue to stay in Bombay doing business and social work.

KANNADA LITERARY SPRING FESTIVAL

INAUGURATION BY THE SECOND MEMBER OF COUNCIL

Importance Of Mother Tongue

Bangalore, April 10

Rajamanthrapravina Mr. K. V. Anantharaman inaugurated this morning, the Spring Literary festival held under the auspices of Kannada Sahitya Parishat at Chamarajajpet.

A large gathering was present including a number of ladies. Mr. H. V. Varadarajaiah, I. C. S., Financial Secretary to the Government of Bombay was also present.

The function commenced with invocation by Mr. K. G. Sampathkumarchar. Mr. L. Rajarao played on 'veena'.

Rajasevasakta B. M. Srikanthiah delivered the welcome address. He gave an account of several items of work that are being carried on under the auspices of the Parishat for the improvement of Kannada Language and Literature and prayed for more help in the shape of workers and money.

Mr. K. Sampatgiri Rao, one of the organisers of this Literary Festival submitted a report on behalf of the committee with regard to this festival and he announced that a number of lectures and meetings had been arranged in this connection.

H. H. the Maharaja of Mysore has kindly donated a sum of Rs. 100 for this festival. This message was received with great applause by the audience.

Mr. K. V. Anantharaman in inaugurating the festival wished it all success and in his speech narrated how the English Language was prominent in his student life and then gradually the people feeling the importance of mother tongue, began to give prominence to vernaculars. He opined that this was a desirable change.

Mr. G. Santhaveerappa proposed a vote of thanks.

Dewan Sir Mirza M. Ismail and Mr. E. G. Macalpine had sent their messages wishing the function every success.

SHIMOGA NOTES

"SAVITRI" & SHANTHI APTÉ

A FALSE REPORT CONTRADICTED

Sri Shanta Apte writes:-

Calcutta, April 10
May I take the privilege of refuting through the columns of your esteemed paper the reports about a hitch said to have taken place between myself and the director of my picture, "Savitri", in the N.T. Studio Calcutta. I am rather surprised for me to find the news about a walk-out, which has been stated, owing to certain differences of opinion with Director V. V. while on the Set. Suffice it to say that the stories circulated about it are totally false without any foundation whatever. Excepting a complete total denial of the reports, I have nothing more to add.

The Royal Talkie Distributors who are the producers of "Savitri", in which I am playing a leading role, have already issued a statement on the matter characterising it as absolutely without any foundation. The Picture "Savitri" is almost complete and I am continuing work in it. I shall be obliged if you would very kindly give necessary publicity to this through the columns of your paper. It is indeed regrettable that some newspapers and journals should give currency to stories concerning artists calculated to create a public scandal.

PUNITIVE TAX AND EXTERMINATION ORDERS CONDEMNED

Mysore Congress Resolutions
(From Our Staff Correspondent)

Vinoobanagar, April 10

The Subjects Committee assembled this morning at A. M. C. C. canal under the presidency of Mr. H. Siddaiah. Mr. V. S. Narayana moved the following resolution:

1. This Session of the Mysore Congress learns with regret that attempts are still being made by Government to collect punitive tax from the residents of Thuruvanoor Village and fines imposed on Satyagrahis. The State are still being received from them by coercive processes. This Session appreciates the spirit of sacrifice displayed by all those who are being subjected to such harassment and sympathises with them in their suffering.

Mr. Suryanarayana Rao seconded the resolution.

Without any discussion, the resolution was passed.

Mr. T. S. Subrahmanya Murthy, moved the following resolution:

2. This Session notes with concern the increasing number of externment orders under Mysore Public Security Act. These orders are utterly unwarranted and they create a negative in large part the mental liberties of the citizens in the State.

Mr. K. R. Madhava seconded the resolution.

Without any discussion, the resolution was passed.

Then the non-official resolutions were taken up for discussion.

In the open session above two resolutions were adopted.

NEW FOCAL POINTS OF INTEREST IN THE WAR

Japan's Intentions Pacific?

Mr. CHURCHILL'S WARNING TO BALKANS

General Franco's Trip to Italy

By WICKHAM STEED

(In a recent B. B. C. Talk)

There is one factor not taken fully into account when the war began. It was the factor of speed, both in the movement and in the events. A week ago the news came in a laconic form from Cairo that Benito was in our hands. Aerial military achievement of this victory was and is, not even a nine-days' wonder.

Already we think of it as ancient history. The central scenes have shifted. The Balkans are at them and Australia in the Far East are another. Britain has broken off relations with Rumania, both Australia and the United States are keeping a close eye on Japan.

Troublesome Matsuoka

Mr. Matsuoka, the Japanese Foreign Minister, and his policy a week or so ago. Mr. Matsuoka can be a very troublesome gentleman. In his truculence is apt to be a bit, but he is also shrewd to pocket it when he does not want to work and will not in Australia and the United States, so the new Japanese attitude to the Australian Commonwealth is now cooling softly.

Tokyo, and the new Japanese Ambassador to the United States is declaring that Japan is unthinkable. It is to be unthinkable, unless it wishes to become a mere part of Hitler.

There has been so much talk in the Japanese policy of a steady aggression since 1931, and so many discontents for the friends of the United States and elsewhere, that it is wiser to look at the facts rather than heed her.

There was no need for Japan to either the Anti-Comintern Pact or the Rome-Berlin Pact. Earlier still, there was no need for her to invade and to overrun China, an undertaking which twice before in her history has brought unmitigated ruin upon her.

Japanese intentions were there would be no need to intrigue with Siam, or to intrigue with the country is now. Yet Japan has done all things and something more than fair words will be needed to blind others to them.

Besides breaking off diplomatic relations with Rumania, Japan has allowed herself to have a base for German operations. Mr. Winston Churchill has spoken very much to the Japanese and other countries.

Why our Government should have waited so long to treat Rumania as an accomplice or as a not unwilling cat's paw of the enemy. No doubt there were good reasons for the delay.

The conduct of our campaigns in Libya, Abyssinia and Eritrea, to say nothing of the help we have given the Greeks and the mauling suffered by Italy, are fairly good evidence that Hitler is not the only man in the world with brains in his head.

Balkan Politics

So while we wait to see here and how Hitler will strike his next blow in the hope of regaining the initiative which he lost after his defeat in the battle of Britain last autumn, we have good ground to believe that wherever and however he may strike, he will not catch us altogether napping.

I know something of the Balkans. They were, so to speak, my daily food for a good many years and I have always liked the watchword. "The Balkans for the Balkan peoples" in which the wisest Balkan statesman used to sum up their ideal. During the whole of the nineteenth century and for the first ten years at least of the twentieth, the Balkans were stirred up and exploited, their peoples egged on to hate and to fight each other by a good many of the great powers and it was not until the first Balkan alliance was formed in 1912 that Greece, Bulgaria and Serbia could begin to call their souls their own and to get together.

Even then the great powers, especially Austria-Hungary, Russia and Germany, tried to play tricks with them and it was no accident that the Great War of 1914 arose out of an Austro-Serbian dispute. But after the last war, and particularly after the Greco-Turkish war of 1921-22, a Balkan Entente was formed between Rumania, Turkey, Yugoslavia and Greece, with Bulgaria as a somewhat disinterested neutral. How much of its spirit remains we may soon see.

From the stand point of Balkan cohesion, the record of Bulgaria has not been too good. After the victory of the Balkan Alliance over the Turks in the autumn of 1912, Bulgaria put forward territorial claims which estranged and frightened her allies. The Bulgarians who already had a coast line on the Black Sea, suddenly demanded coast lines on three other seas, the Sea of Marmora, the Aegean and the Adriatic.

Then yielding to Austro-Hungarian and German influence, their over-cunning ruler, King Ferdinand, suddenly attacked his allies, Greece and Serbia, and got thoroughly thrashed for his pains.

In 1914, a good many people in England, including Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, were persuaded that a few concessions would keep Bulgaria from entering the Great War on the side of Austria-Hungary and Germany. I never shared this belief and was consequently not astonished to see Bulgaria go in on the wrong side, and again pay the price in 1918 when she had to capitulate and get rid of her foxy ruler.

Premier's Warning to Bulgaria

These thoughts came back into my mind as I was listening to Mr. Winston Churchill's broadcast. He told how in July, 1915, he and other British Ministers began to think that Bulgaria was going wrong and explained to the Bulgarian Minister in London what a fool King Ferdinand would make of himself if he were to go in on the losing side.

"It was no use" Mr. Churchill said, so Bulgaria, against the wishes of her peasant population and against all her interests, fell in at the Kaiser's tail and got steadily carved up and punished when the victory was won.

"I trust," Mr. Churchill added, "that Bulgaria is not going to make the same mistake again." Speaking very earnestly, Mr. Churchill warned the Balkan peoples not to court the fate of Holland and Belgium last May by hoping for the best by clinging to their neutrality, only to be woefully deceived, overwhelmed, plundered, enslaved and starved.

"Nothing is more certain," he went on, "than that, if the countries of south eastern Europe allow themselves to be pulled to pieces one by one, they will share the fate of Holland, Denmark and Belgium and none can tell how long it will be before the hour of deliverance strikes. "Of course," Mr. Churchill reminded them, "if all the Balkan people stood together and acted together, aided by Britain and Turkey, it will be many months before a German army and air force of sufficient strength to overcome them could be assembled in the south east of Europe and in those months much might happen. Much will certainly happen, as American aid becomes effective and as our air power grows and as we become a well armed nation, and as our armies in the East increase in strength."

More plainly than this, no British statesman could speak. Mr. Churchill's words have already found an echo in Bulgaria, and perhaps in Yugoslavia. The example of Greece is before their eyes. Yet the Bulgarians may think that a German army and air force on the threshold of, or actually in their country, is a more pressing argument than any words from London can be.

So I for one, should not be surprised if Bulgaria at any rate were to go in, passively if not actively, on the wrong side and once more to disappoint those who have tenaciously believed in her willingness and readiness to make common cause with other Balkan peoples in defence of their joint and several freedoms.

Serbia's Independence

Upon the behaviour of Yugoslavia, my mind is more open. It seems to be true that their Prime Minister and Foreign Minister have gone off to see Ribbentrop at Salzburg and that they may see Hitler. It is also true that the former Yugoslav Prime Minister, Mr. Stoyadinovich was little better than a German Agent.

On the other hand, the Serbians have never let themselves be a cat's paw of Austria-Hungary or Germany, nor since 1914 at any rate. It was they who very early in the nineteenth century began the struggle for the liberation of the Balkans. A century later they stood up to all the pressure Austria-Hungary could put upon them.

In the Balkan war of 1912 they beat the Turks. In July, 1913, they beat the Bulgarians. In 1914 they beat the Austro-Hungarian army single handed and only went down in 1915 under a combined Austro-German and Bulgarian attack.

Even then they withdrew to Corfu, reformed their army and in 1918 led the victorious advance of the allied forces from Salonika. They were rewarded by the union of Serbia with the other Southern Slav or Servo-Croatian lands formerly under Austria-Hungary and they became Yugo, or Southern Slavia.

With these traditions of military valour in defence of freedom, it is not easy to believe that the Yugoslavs will readily court enslavement.

More than this, I do not care to say. Their position is difficult, but they have been in tight places before and fought their way through them. If the Balkans are now the main point of European interest, they are by no means the only point.

I attach great importance to the advance of British forces from the north of Eritrea towards Massawa, the big Italian port on the Red Sea. Taken together with the news that our British and Indian troops, advancing eastwards from Agordat, have now captured heights overlooking Keren on the western edge of the Eritrean high plateau, this advance from the north may foreshadow developments highly unpalatable to Mussolini.

Duce's Meeting With Caudillo

He who has been chewing the cud of bitter fancy in the past, has now been seeking comfort in lengthy confabulations with the Spanish dictator, General Franco at Bordighera, on the Italian frontier, that is to say, on the shores of the same Gulf of Genoa which a British naval squadron visited the other morning to regale Italian war factories and other military objectives in Genoa with 300 tons of high explosive shells.

Mussolini and General Franco attained, according to an Italian official statement, complete identity of views, though what the identity was about we are not told. On his way back to Spain General Franco conferred with Marshal Petain, whom he may or may not have asked to ease the Italian position in what remained of Libya by allowing Italian forces to escape through Tunis.

Something is evidently afoot. What part France may be urged to play, we can only guess. All that we know is that Hitler has not yet succeeded in imposing Laval as Deputy Chief of state upon Marshal Petain and that this coveted position has been given to Admiral Darlan.

Still I daresay we shall not have long to wait before Hitler shows his hand in the Balkans and perhaps elsewhere. The fundamentals of his position have not changed and the rapid progress of the Laval and Lend Bill through the Congress at Washington is a constant reminder to him that time may not be on his side.

LIGHT ON MARSHAL BALBO'S MYSTERIOUS DEATH

Victim Of Act Of Sabotage?

(By Cable) London.
The Daily Telegraph Agency correspondent cabled on March 31.

The old German Dr. Franz Goebbels, or three months ago, has again fallen upon evil days. It is apparent from Amers to Rome that it cannot pass without an explosive, perhaps a disastrous effect.

Signs of disaffection are emerging from mutilated and misshapen Rumania, where General Antonescu, the country's dictator, has been forced, for the first time, to give an attentive ear to Rumanians demanding the return of Transylvanian territory lost through the Austro-regulated Treaty of Vienna.

Unrest in Bulgaria is growing and news of it seeping through the censorship.

With Roman Fascism already reportedly ridden by German Fifth Columnists and with an anti-German movement slowly taking form in Italy as the basis for an insurrection against Mussolini, supporters of the last Marshal Balbo have thrown light on the mysterious circumstances of his death.

Marshal Balbo died in a plane crash on June 2nd last year while flying over Tripoli, and the Italians tried to make out that he was shot down in a battle with British machines—a story which was promptly denied in London. It is now revealed that he was actually the victim of an act of sabotage which caused his plane to explode in mid-air and plunge to the ground in flames.

The method used, it has been ascertained, was to attach a sparking plug to a magneto placed inside the petrol tank and submerged. When the plane had consumed sufficient petrol to expose the head of the sparking plug to the air, the mixture was ignited.

It is understood that this device was originally invented by the Gestapo, who used it against Gen. Franco's general Emilio Mola, also an anti-Nazi, whose plane met with a similar fate at the beginning of the Spanish civil war.

DACCA SITUATION

Adjournment Motion Defeated in Bengal Assembly

(Associated Press of India)

Calcutta, April 9.
After nearly two hours debate the Congress party's adjournment motion to discuss the situation arising out of communal disturbances in Narayanganj Sub division Dacca District, was rejected by the Bengal Assembly by 107 votes to 67 votes. The Assembly adjourned till 21st April.

We, for our part, are neglecting no precaution that may impede the successful translation into acts of Hitler's intention, indeed imperative need, to crush British resistance, by invasion or otherwise, in the earliest possible moment. In the past week our bombers have wrecked German war industries at Hanover and have once more played havoc with what we call the invasion ports on the Dutch, Belgian and French coasts opposite our own. When the factor of speed enters into an invasion, it is not only a matter of time, but of time by the forelock.

DALADIER AND REYNAUD

NOW FREE

But Movements Restricted

(By cable) London

The following cable, dated March 31, is from Harold Cardozo, the Daily Mail Special Correspondent on the French frontier:

M. Daladier and M. Reynaud, France's two ex-Premiers, are now both free men though they are still technically detained in administrative custody for the duration of the war.

This is the best proof of the collapse of the whole Riom procedure for State trials which was go loudly trumpeted by Vichy last August.

M. Daladier has gone to the home of some faithful friends in a remote country district, but he is not allowed to move more than a few miles from his residence without notifying the police.

M. Reynaud is living in a village near Toulouse in similar conditions. He seeks permission to go to Mexico.

IMPATIENCE AMONG NAZI TROOPS

German Radio's Avowal

(By Cable) London

The German wireless on March 31 admitted that a certain amount of impatience was prevalent among the German troops:

"Some soldiers did not, perhaps, realise the policy of the Fuehrer and did not understand how far diplomacy and arms were mixed up in this war," it stated. "German soldiers are again told what they are fighting for."

Many men were "longing for the promotions they were forced to leave one and a half years ago to fight. The German soldier knows that he must conquer his place in the world by force of arms."

DEWAN IN HASSAN

MUNICIPAL PRESIDENT'S APPRECIATION

(From our special correspondent)

(Camp) Hassan, April, 7

Sir Mirza M. Ismail, Dewan of Mysore, accompanied by his personal staff arrived here last night from Holenarasipur, where he stayed in the Travellers Bungalow for the night.

This morning the Dewan accompanied by Mr. T. Ramaia, Deputy Commissioner and other local officers went round the city and gave suitable suggestions for the improvement of the town.

The Dewan also visited Sr Kempachaluvajanni Mahila Samaja where he distributed sweets to children and congratulated the authorities on the good work they have been doing for educating the children.

The Dewan visited Sri Chamarajendra Hospital and made kind enquiries of the patients.

The Dewan visited the Mysore Government Implements Factory where he spent nearly twenty minutes and asked the General Manager to appoint only local people for vacant posts.

In the night the Dewan attended the dinner party arranged in his honour by the members of the Municipal Council.

After the dinner was over, Mr. B. S. Ramaswamy, President, Municipal Council, in a short speech praised the qualities of head and heart of Dewan Sir Mirza Ismail. Replying to the address presented to him the Dewan thanked the organisers of the dinner party and said that Hassan was a sacred place to him because his Noble Master used to spend much of his time in that town and he was glad that the town was growing from day to day. He assured the people that he would consider at a very early date the water supply scheme to provide drinking water from the river Yagachi.

In the afternoon, the Dewan attended the tea party arranged by the officers of Hassan District.

MYSOORE CONGRESS WORKING COMMITTEE

(From our Staff correspondent)

Vinobanagar, April, 9

The Working Committee of the Mysore Congress is reconstituted as follows for the year 1941-42: Shri H. Siddaiya (President), K. Pattabhi Raman (General Secretary), H. C. Dasappa (Treasurer), K. T. Bhashyam, K. Hanumanthaiya, S. Chennaiya, S. Rangamiah, A. G. Bandi Gowda, B. N. Boranna Gowda, S. Nijalingappa, T. Subrahmanyam, Bagamane Deve Gowda, K. R. Madhava Rao, K. Chingalaraya Reddy and T. Siddalingiah.

ATTITUDE TO REFORMS

Discussion in Subjects Committee

(From our staff correspondent)

Vinobanagar, April 9

At the Subjects Committee of the 4th Session of the Mysore Congress which met again yesterday in the A.M.C.C. pandal, under the presidency of Mr. H. Siddaiya a heated discussion took place lasting for over three hours. The House regretted the hostile attitude of the Government towards Congress, and their interference in the elections and reiterated its objections to the reforms and defined its future policy in the legislaives and outside. No less than seven amendments were moved & withdrawn.

Mr. K. T. Bhashyam, moved the main resolution: (which is already published).

Mr. K. Hanumanthaiya (Bangalore) seconding the resolution characterised the new Reforms as worse than the 'Mont Ford Reforms' that were granted to British India and they were therefore unacceptable.

Mr. N. C. Thimma Reddy (Kolar) moved an amendment that in view of possibility of an understanding between Congress and Government in the matter of the realisation of the objective of the Mysore Congress, it might be definitely stated that the Congress does not accept office unless its objective is realised and would work the reforms for wrecking the constitution from within.

The speaker initiating the debate expressed a doubt whether acceptance of the resolution would amount to accepting the policy of Office acceptance under any circumstances and thus lower the demand of the Congress. That would mean a policy of surrender on the part of the Congress. In order to remove any misconception, Congress must clearly declare that their objective was nothing short of full Responsible Government.

Mr. S. Subba Rao (Closepet) drew the attention of the house to the Congress manifesto to the effect that entry into the legislature would be for creating obstruction. He wanted an assurance that the resolutions would be quite consistent with their manifesto.

Mr. H. C. Dasappa (Mysore) asserted that the resolution was in keeping with the spirit of the manifesto issued by the Congress and there was no question of inconsistency. He referred the member to the relevant portion of the manifesto relating to the constructive programme. He added, that he was present when the question involved in the resolution was discussed before Mahatmaji and he could dispel some of the doubts raised by the speakers and he would inform the house that the resolution had received the approval of Mahatmaji.

PROGRESS OF WAR

GERMANS MARCHING IN GREECE

Germans have captured Salonika in Greece. Intense fighting is reported to be going on in Eastern Macedonia and Greeks are putting up vigorous resistance.

In Yugoslavia the capital has been subjected to severe and atrocious bombing by German bombers. Even Churches and Hospitals were not spared. Fleeing women and children were machinegunned from a low altitude. Thirty bombs fell on the Royal Palace and it was reduced to ruins.

Massawa Captured

Massawa, an important port in Eritrea has been captured by British.

Sjt. K. T. Bhashyam replying to the points raised in the course of the debate said that the misgivings entertained by the members in respect of the import of the resolution were not well founded. The matter was that the Government had banged the doors against Congress even though the latter had held out its hand of co-operation. In the circumstances there could not be any question of lowering the demands. He was emphatic that there was nothing in the resolution indicating any departure from the policy declared in the Presidential Address and the previous resolutions of the House. He made it clear that the Congress was not hankering after gifts and high positions. The latter would come to them of their own accord if the Congress grew stronger and stronger. The Congress was only consolidating their position at present.

If and when the Congress considered that it could better serve the country by accepting Office, it could not hesitate to do so. He assured the House that would be done after consultation with them. On that assurance all the amendments were withdrawn and the original resolution was passed.

Mr. K. Chingalaraya Reddy then moved the resolution thanking the people of the State for their continued support given to the Congress candidates in the various elections held during the year. The resolution was passed. Then the meeting adjourned.

The Open Session of the Mysore Congress was held here last night and the above resolutions were adopted.

Mr. Mahisi, Ex-Minister of Sangli and Mr. Muduvudu Krishna Rao addressed the gathering.

MYSORE LAWYERS CONFER

This year, the Lawyers of Mysore State are holding their Conference in Mysore. Last year they could not hold it due to some unavoidable causes. In a way, the year 1940 is an unfortunate one for Mysore Lawyers. Because, it was during that year that so many eminent Lawyers of Mysore were debarred from practising in the Law Courts of Mysore for the simple reason that they participated in the Congress Satyagraha movement. The names of eminent Lawyers like Messrs. K. T. Bhassam, H. C. Dasappa, K. Pattabhiraman, K. Sampangramiah, S. Rangaramaiah and several others are not now in the register of Mysore Lawyers. It is not our object, on this occasion, to dwell at length on that unfortunate episode. Every one with common sense and a sense of justice and fair play has condemned unreservedly the order of the High Court disenrolling the above Lawyers on the plea of moral turpitude. Practising Satyagraha is not at all moral turpitude. And those who practise it suffer the penalty with good cheer. They invite suffering on their own heads. In the case of Mysore Lawyers, we repeat, it was a double punishment. They had already undergone imprisonment for their supposed disobedience (in fact it was no disobedience at all). The public opinion in Mysore and abroad was much pained at the order of the High Court.

We have referred to this unfortunate chapter, because it concerns the welfare of Lawyers in general. In what circumstances the Legal Practitioners Act should be used and in what circumstances not, there should be a discrimination. We are sorry to say that the High Court in this particular instance took a political and prejudiced view of things. Where there is clearly an unprofessional conduct and where there is clear moral turpitude, High Court ought to promptly punish the Lawyer. But in the cases of Satyagraha where it involves political considerations and party discipline, penalising lawyers is neither just nor reasonable.

Then again the debarred lawyers not only lost their means of livelihood, but were also excluded from the Legislative and Local Board institutions. They could not stand as candidates to elections. So to say, these law Lawyers had to undergo a triple punishment. We are sure the Lawyers' Conference, holding its deliberations in Mysore will bring its care and attention on the aspect of the Legal Practitioners Act as far as it affects political activities of lawyers.

The year 1940 is in more ways than one an unfortunate one. So many undesirable and reactionary statutes were placed on the Statute Book. The Amended Newspaper Act, the Public Security Act, and last but not least the Contempt of Courts Act were placed on the Statute Book in the teeth of popular opposition. It is to Lawyers who are custodians of Public rights and liberties to express their dissent and opposition to these Statutes. We hope the Lawyers' Conference sitting in Mysore would register its disapproval of the New Reactionary Statutes.

There are quite a number of important matters affecting the profession, coming up before the Conference. The question of starting a Law College was discussed in the Legislative Council and the Government was sympathetic to it. We are of the opinion that a Law College for Mysore is a necessity and that its establishment should not be delayed. Education in Law is not necessarily to get into the profession and so Lawyers need not have any fear that starting a College in Mysore would further aggravate unemployment among them. We know there is unemployment and under-employment among Lawyers. But that could be remedied by professional adjustments. The Senior Lawyers who have reached the age of 60 may well retire from the profession and give room for Junior members. It is also profitable as they have been doing in England to run the profession in a business like manner in the form of a firm which would give wider scope to Junior members of the bar. It is difficult to suggest a panacea but things could be remedied by careful planning.

We have perused with interest the addresses of the President of the Conference and the Chairman of the Reception Committee. Both of them are respected Lawyers who have grown grey in the profession. The addresses contain useful suggestions which deserve consideration at the hands of the Conference. Mr. D. V. Rao's remarks in connection with liberal use of Kannada in Law Courts by Judges, Lawyers and clients, we are sure, would please Kannada lovers in our land. The President's ending his address with a Kannada passage is something unique which we congratulate him. We wish every success to the Conference.

MYSORE LAWYERS' CONFERENCE

SIXTEENTH SESSION

G. DEVOJI RAO'S PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

M. LAKSHMINARAYANA RAO'S WELCOME ADDRESS

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

Mysore, April, 11

The Sixteenth Session of the Mysore Lawyers' Conference was held today with great enthusiasm in the Assembly Hall of the Mahatma College, Mysore. Lawyers from all parts of the State had assembled. Since for the last two years, no sessions had been held, there was a particular interest in this session. Mr. G. Devoji Rao, the President of this session is an experienced lawyer who has grown grey in the profession. He was the Chairman of the Reception Committee for the session was held in Mandya in 1938.

The proceedings commenced with the invocation.

The annual report was presented by the Secretary as also the minutes received for the conference.

The Subjects Committee met in the afternoon.

Mr. M. Lakshminarayana Rao delivered the welcome address.

Mr. G. Devoji Rao was formally proposed, and seconded for the Presidential Chair, which he occupied amidst applause.

WELCOME ADDRESS

The following is the full text of the welcome address of Mr. M. Lakshminarayana Rao Chairman of the Reception Committee:—
I have great pleasure in welcoming you all to this Conference. On behalf of the Reception Committee I thank you all for the kind response to our invitation. Need I stress the value of co-operation in matters of this kind? As you are all here the Conference could not but be a day owing to some avoidable causes. Some of us are afraid that it may not be possible to meet this time also. But we are glad that we have been able to meet this year and in this City. Some of our friends in the Bar feel that there is need for a Conference of this kind. To them I can only say an appeal to be—patient some time more; for, time of preparation are absolutely necessary for any organisation to become a power in the body politic. Our institution is yet an infant; it requires to be nursed tenderly. I have every confidence that it will soon become an effective organisation. Once again I request you all to cast your doubts you may have on regard to the utility of the conference and join it in great numbers.

International Situation

Since we met last a great many events have happened in the world around us. Every minute of the international situation is changing. Darkness hangs all around. Treasures of Civilisation are being trampled underfoot. International Law and Diplomacy have been chased into the world to-day. Totalitarianism and its blood brother terrorism are at cross swords and trying to oust the other. Both of them have in common Capitalism as the Ideal. When Capitalism emerges victorious, it will result in Exploitation. And as you all know Exploitation, both economic and social, is Soul-less. It is for the Lawyer, who is the champion of Liberty and Social Justice, to see that Society is so organised that this Soulless exploitation is put an end to once for all. Then only will the Soul of Humanity be re-born and inequity will end. I have every hope that every one of us will rise to the occasion.

Struggle for Freedom

Friends, in our own dear land the struggle for freedom is on. The hitherto dumb millions of India have decided that freedom must be won at any cost. Already thousands are in the Front and many more are rushing forward. Priceless sacrifices are offered at the altar of Freedom. Shackles of slavery can never bind the Soul of the Nation! Nor can repression curb the Spirit. As usual the Lawyer has borne the brunt of the attack. This is a matter for pride to us all. May we hope that ere long India will shine forth in all her ancient glory as an independent Nation.

Political Platform

Some of our friends complain that our Conference is fast turning into a political platform. They see something red in this and are even horrified. What shall I say to them? Law and Politics can never be separated. When the Rights of the populace are denied to them who is more competent than a Lawyer, the Champion of Liberty, to fight for them and see that Justice is done? Should the Lawyer shrink his responsibility under such circumstances? Is he not in conscience bound to lead the commoner in the struggle for Liberty? What is wrong, then, in a Lawyer participating in politics? Law is crystallised politics; no Law, no Politics, and no Politics, no Law.

Disbarred or Suspended

Friends, I cannot but mention the fact that some of our stalwart brethren are no more with us in the profession. They are either disbarred or suspended from practice for having participated in the political struggle that is going on. One of our Ex-Presidents is among them. We cannot but admire them for their courage of conviction

May their efforts be crowned with success at an early date!

Tall Talks Will Not Help

We are meeting under extraordinary circumstances. Tall Talks will not help us. We must face the realities. I have every hope that our deliberations will be fruitful. We are fortunate in having as our President Sri Devoji Rao. I need not say much about him; for, he is too well known to every member of the Bar as a true gentleman, besides being a lawyer of high principles. He is an example for us all to emulate. The gravity of the present occasion needs such a leader. With his mature experience and sober judgement, I am sure that he will give the correct lead. We expect great things from him and let us wish that God may grant him health and courage.

Let me once again extend my hearty welcome to you all. The Reception Committee have taken great care to see to the arrangements and I expect that they will prove to be satisfactory. I hope that you will all be indulgent enough to pardon any lapses, and that you will return to your respective places with pleasant memories. I fondly hope that you will also go back with a grim determination in your hearts to evolve a New Order. Deeds, not words. Let this be our motto.

"VANDE MATHARAM"

PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

In the course of his Presidential address Mr. Devoji Rao made a touching reference to the late Maharaja and Yuvaraja and offered his respectful felicitations to the New Maharaja and said:

Task Before Lawyers

Mysore has given the lead to other States and even the British Provinces in many administrative, industrial, educational and agricultural matters, but in the Judicial Department, we have been following merely in the wake of the British administration. With pardonable pride, we, Mysoreans can claim that in intellectual calibre and cultural outlook, we are inferior to none elsewhere. Mysore has produced many eminent Judges, Lawyers and Legislators, not to mention eminent Administrators and Engineers. Except for the fact that there is separation of the judicial from the executive, and that is only partial, and the effective checking of the proverbial Laws Delays, there is no outstanding feature in the judicial administration worthy of our State being copied by others. The Mysore Bar has given the lead in having a State Lawyers' Conference every year, and the Bar in British India is thinking wistfully still to have an All-India Lawyers' Conference. Though we are ahead of British India in holding Conferences regularly, thanks to the enthusiasm of our younger members of the Bar, British India has stolen a march over us in organising and having a Bar Council. The need for a Bar Council in Mysore is keenly felt, but our demand for a Bar Council in Mysore has been viewed by the Government as a hardly annual, though its mention at every conference, and a self-imposed, and well-maintained silence during the interval from the end of one session of the conference to the holding of another.

Though the Mysore Lawyers' Conference is held regularly year after year since 1923, still it is a sad reflection that our conference has not got a statutory recognition and status that similar associations in U.S.A., Canada, England and Japan enjoy. In the establishment of a Law College, we are behind even conservative States. In the matter of legislation, I can remember only two important original and social legislative enactments, in which we have forged ahead of the rest of India, the Infant Marriage Prevention Regulation and the Hindu Women's Rights Regulation. The first is on the statute book for over 30 years, while the second which is of recent origin is one which was sponsored by one of our own brethren. By the Hindu Women's Rights Regulation, the rights of inheritance and partition have been for the first time granted to certain classes of females along with males. But what a healthy and enviable move it would be, if we attempt to equalise women's rights of inheritance and partition with those of men. It would be a glorious achievement worthy of the best traditions of chivalry if we cause the rights of inheritance of women to become equal to those of men. Another urgent measure calling for whole-some social reform is with regard to Post-nuptial marriage on the same lines as the Straits Act of British India. Post-nuptial marriage is already in vogue in Mysore, though in the majority of cases, the concerned people, afraid of social strictures, and sometimes of social ostracism have not courage enough to give out the real age of the bride. I would advocate the prohibition of the marriage of the Hindu bride below the age of 16. No doubt there is the legislature and finally there is the Government to look to legislation, but it is my suggestion that every movement for healthy, social or any other legislation should emanate from our Conference and we, lawyers, should be the pioneers of healthy innovations in each and every field of public life.

What seems to my mind to be the foremost need of the hour is the consolidation of our position both from the collective and individualistic stand-points. We need a better organisation, a better understanding and a better and sounder footing. It is my fond hope that our conference will grow stronger and stronger in the years to come, and that it would become a potent factor to be reckoned with in the life of the country. It is up to us, Lawyers in Mysore, to give it a new orientation, and to create a permanent basis for it. The business of the Central Council must proceed in accordance with a planned programme and plans for future action should be discussed and decided at the annual session of the conference. Our conference must become a live wire and scintillate with energy and vigor. Starting from the Mysore Law Journal, the separation of the judicial from the Executive, though not in full, the increase in the number of courts, the raising of the small cause jurisdiction of Munsifs up to Rs. 100, and that of Sub-judges to Rs. 500, the establishment of a Sub Court with small cause jurisdiction in Bangalore and Mysore, the investment of Sub Judges with appellate jurisdiction, the investment of Special First Class Magistrates with appellate civil jurisdiction with power to entertain civil appeals in most of the District Head Quarters, the appointment of Law Graduates as Prosecuting Inspectors, the appointment of Lawyers as Official Receivers in all District,

Head Quarters towns, an improvement of Lawyers in the judicial system, the participation of Government Pleaders in the judicial administration, the participation of Law Graduates in the judicial system, the highest judicial appointments, the Bar and the latest appointment of a practicing Lawyer as Law Secretary, are some of the enactments which tend to the credit of the conference, and these achievements are testimony to the contributions of the members of the conference and of the members of the Bar, who have contributed to the money expended by the conference, but the money spent, worry and trouble involved may not be sufficiently compensated for, by the past me afforded by the gathering of a number of members of the Bar, who are at a distant part of the State, creating unity and fostering esprit de corps among the members of lawyers and providing opportunities to renew old friendship and to exchange ideas.

The link between the young and the old

Now a word or two about consolidating our position from an individualistic standpoint. The profession has hitherto been financially and otherwise in a state of passing through a crisis in common with people in other walks of life, for various reasons, continued economic depression, fall in litigation, (what an appalling fall from Rs. 100,000 and more in 1935-36 to Rs. 25,000 and odd thousand in 1939-40) for the State, reducing the institution of suits by 1/3 in course of 5 years, over-crowding of the Bar, and keen competition among its members. The special enactments such as the Agriculturists' Relief Regulation, the Debt Conciliation Regulation, and the Money Lenders Act, all of which have imposed onerous duties for the ryot, have not a little contributed to the embarrassment of the profession. The struggle for existence has become very acute. The golden days of yore are gone for the Lawyer never more to return. But we need not despair. There is always a silver lining for the dark cloud. I am always an optimist, though I am deeply conscious of the difficulties and trials facing our junior brethren, for whom I have always got a warm corner of my heart. It is true that the seniors are as hard hit as the juniors. Nevertheless, we seniors must come out with our hearts and purses open. During my forty years of practice at the Bar, I have contributed my humble mite towards helping my young brethren. I am fully aware that many of my senior friends have been generous enough to train and equip a number of young men. My only appeal is that we, lawyers, as we grow old, must be prepared to sacrifice a bit for the sake of the young, considering the juniors as young hopefuls of the intellectual family, while we may affectionately play the role of paternal families. On account of their intellect, sturdy common sense, high education, and long attainments, we of the senior generation, easily command the respect of the public and hold a venerable position in the society. However overworked we, seniors might be, there is always room for young attorneys to join us in the Bar organisation, then make the programme of the only request to them is that they must maintain a high integrity of character, and themselves conforming to the and keep pace with the seniors in the study of law. They must try to perpetuate the hoary and glorious traditions of the Bar, and to emulate in enhancing its prestige and reputation. Let them be of good cheer and wait and hope and I am sure they will be rewarded with success in good times.

The problem of today

Various are the problems with which we are faced to-day, requiring our close attention, careful scrutiny and prompt solution. We must concert proper measures to improve our position, and we must leave no stone unturned to get proper redress to our grievances from the right quarters. Some of the urgent problems requiring immediate solution are:—

- (1) Reduction of Court Fees
- (2) Reduction of Process Fees
- (3) Reduction of Printing charges in the High Court (4) Increase in the scale of fees awarded in civil suits (5) Grant of Retainer's fees for employment of juniors in immovable property suits and of suits of more than Rs. 2500 in value. Other urgent needs are:—

- (1) Complete separation of the judicial from executive (2) Prison Reform (3) Protest against the speed in the disposal of cases, both original and execution, Last and not least. (4) Introduction of Bar Council Act

Political Reforms

We are on the eve of Political Reforms graciously granted by our late lamented sovereign, and they have been blessed by His Highness's worthy successor, our present Maharaja. We should be happy to note that they are far in advance of the Reforms granted in any other Indian State, while they have immense possibilities in them for future development. May be, they are not modelled after the main features of the British Constitution, but they are fully and essentially democratic. Let us welcome the present Reforms and endeavour with our intelligent co-operation and wise representation to make them a complete success. Let us hope and pray that success achieved in the working of the present Reforms might be a stepping stone for a further and higher stage of development.

Kannada as medium

An appeal is made from some quarters and from some of my friends here who are keenly interested in its advancement that Kannada may be adopted as the medium of instruction in this house to-day. To the same effect, there is an editorial in "Kannada Nidhi" (Kannada Treasury) a fortnightly magazine, even though Weekly Kannada Journal published at Bangalore, under date the 28th of March 1941. The idea is not a novel one nor a fantastic one. A suggestion was also made to me that I might deliver my speech in Kannada. The suggestion came too late; and moreover I do not want to create a departure from the usual convention of delivering an address in English.

Mysore is purely a Kannada country, and Kanarese is our mother tongue usually employed in our homes in all our talk, our thoughts and our actions. For some decades past, Kanarese has yielded its right place of pre-eminence to the English Language. For the past some years, however, thanks to Kannadigas, a strong revival has been set on foot, and Kanarese is being restored to its pre-eminence. Parishes are being held in Mysore and in the whole of Karnataka, year after year, lectures are arranged for, systematically in a number of places, and discourses are held in Kannada at frequent intervals. Persons occupying high and important positions have been evincing keen interest for Kannada and have been contributing for its uplift. Karnataka Sanstha has been started in important centres and have been doing useful work. There are a number of Kannada Dailies & Weeklies which have been serving the literate public. The main object of these activities is to raise Kannada to its legitimate high pedestal in the spoken and written languages in all our activities of life. Kannada is now made the medium of imparting instruction in the High Schools. It is now left to us lawyers to play our part and pay homage to Kannada in our discussions.

So far as our courts are concerned, the pleadings and all the proceedings except the judges' notes, depositions of witness and judgements are in the vernacular of the country. Parties and witnesses are examined in Kannada. In fact Kannada is the language of the courts. Arguments however are invariably addressed in English owing to technical expressions. The pleadings and all proceedings of the appellate courts are also in English. At any rate there is no prohibition to address judges in all matters of routine in the lower courts in Kanarese, though we might feel awkward for some time for want of choice phrases. Our young friends at the Bar may certainly make an attempt, in this direction and gradually introduce Kanarese in all the proceedings of the courts.

Even addressing arguments in Kannada may be quite practicable. Take for instance our neighbouring sister State of Hyderabad. Chancing to go to Hyderabad lately, I visited the High Court, being naturally anxious to see how proceedings are conducted in that State. All the court cases were even though it was Sunday, and true to the tenets of Islam, Fridays are

SympathisesRESOLUTION PASSED AT THE CONFERENCE

(From our correspondent)

(By phone) Mysore, April 11
The Mysore Lawyers' Conference adopted a resolution sympathising with those who lost their sannads by virtue of the Mysore High Court order in connection with some political cases.

The Conference passed a condolence resolution on the sad demise of H.H. Sir Krishnaraja Wadiyar.

A resolution of deep loyalty and felicitations on the accession of H. H. Sri Jayachamaraja Wadiyar was also passed.

The Conference disapproved of the attempts of some Central Legislators to legalise Sagotra marriages.

The necessity for a Bar Council was stressed in a separate resolution.

His Highness the Maharaja has thanked the organisers for their kind invitation.

ELEVEN THOUSAND REFUGEES IN

observed as close Holidays there. Most of the judges and lawyers are Hindus, and all the judges and lawyers are Law Graduates. Nevertheless arguments were being addressed by the lawyers to the judges in all the Benches, for hearing of civil appeals, criminal appeals and second appeals in Urdu, which was the language of the country and the courts. I also understand that Urdu is the medium of instruction even for Law Course. Ours will not therefore be a novel venture, if we adopt Kannada as a medium for addressing our arguments in our state.

It is now left to our choice to decide whether we, of the Karnataka, should exhibit our patriotism to our mother country by adopting Kanarese for our discussion in this conference.

To show my love and devotion to Kanarese, I shall conclude my address in Kannada.

MADRAS MARKET REPORT

Weekly Review

(From our correspondent)

Madras, April 9
The following is the weekly review published by Messrs. Kothari and sons:—

The market has moved irregularly during the week due to fresh troubles in the Balkans. The business was to some extent restricted due to curtailment in demand owing to the approaching Easter Holidays. Securities have been steady. Banks were neglected, and Textiles were firmer. Demand in Plantings was of a moderate nature. Sugars were bright; but Papers were uninteresting. Electric shares were unchanged. There was also a moderate enquiry for other miscellaneous shares.

In Securities 3½ 1447/50 resulted in business at Rs. 102.14 per cent. 4½ 190.70 at Rs. 108.14 and 3½ 1746 Defence Loan at Rs. 101.8 per cent. 4½ 1763.65 Government of India Loan is barely steady at Rs. 95.1½; 3½. Paper closed at Rs. 95.14. State Loans have not come to much prominence during the week 3½ 1956 Travancore Loan changed hands at Rs. 104.2, as also 3½ 1956.61 Cochins Loan at Rs. 103.13; 3½ 1951/58 Mysore Loan may be quoted at Rs. 107.14.

In Provincial Loan, 3½ 1952 Madras Loan stood firm at Rs. 98 and 3½ 1953 at Rs. 97.12.

In Banks, business was possible Indian Bank Bids at Rs. 127 and smalls at Rs. 31. Imperial Bank of India fully paid changed hands at Rs. 1,567.8. Reserve Banks at usual were dealt with in large lots at Rs. 104.

In Textiles, Coimbatore Pioneers are wanted at Rs. 135. Rangavilas have advanced to Rs. 46.8, and Pankajas at Rs. 98. Lakshmi have moved up to Rs. 61.8. Vasantas may be quoted at Rs. 116.8. Kaleeswarar are now quoted at Rs. 284 XD. Coimbatore Cottons have been firmer at Rs. 103 and Sitarams at Rs. 54.8.

In Tea shares, Peermades were absorbed at Rs. 27.12, Devasholas at Rs. 7.8, Mammalay Ordinary at Rs. 22.12 and Prefs. at Rs. 26.8, Chandra Pecks at Rs. 3.8 and Highland Produce at Rs. 30.4.

In Rubber shares, business was possible in Be Be at Rs. 6.2, Woodlands at Rs. 6, Rajagiri at Rs. 5.2, Tropicals at Rs. 19.10, Mandurs at Rs. 4.6, Kalpettas at Rs. 18.12, Ayer Mania Prefs. at Rs. 103, Cochins Malabars at Rs. 6.14, Vaikundams at Rs. 8.2, Udayagiri at Rs. 6.5 and Coorgs at Rs. 30.

There has been a good demand for Mysore Sugars at Rs. 54.8, as also Travancore Sugars and Chemicals at Rs. 14.4. Jeypore Sugars were in request at Rs. 10.

Mysore Chemicals were steady at Rs. 17.4, but Mysore Papers were uninteresting at Rs. 14.3. Mettur Chemicals were wanted at Rs. 9.8 with sellers reluctant to meet buyers below Rs. 9.12.

Singerani Collieries have been a shade weaker at Rs. 10.1. Indian Steel Rolling Ordinaries were picked up at Rs. 7.12. Spencer's A Prefs. are unchanged at Rs. 9.8, but B Prefs. shares have moved up to Rs. 9.14. Mysore Lamps are about Rs. 8.14.

South Madras I Prefs. were dealt with at Rs. 13.6, II Prefs. at Rs. 13.2, and ordinary shares at Rs. 13.4. Vizagapatam Electric has advanced to Rs. 7.1, but Preference shares have been still in demand at Rs. 120 with few sellers in prospect. Mysore Stoneware Pipes and Potteries which were keenly sought for Rs. 8.4 to 8.6 earlier have turned to be sellers at Rs. 8.

Martin Moore cable Daily Telegraph from
on April 1:

From the town of occupied France, I have an account of a remarkable fatal experiment carried out by the Germans during one of their frequent practices for the invasion of Britain.

The Nazis sprayed a lonely reach of the river outside the town. They set it alight. Troops posedly fire-proof ordered to plunge into the burning sea of flame.

The test ended in disaster. Garments proved no protection. Some men were burned and others severely scalded.

It is impossible to discern exact number of casualties. The scope of the experiment was carried out secretly. My information comes from a French doctor who was called to attend on the victims. A number of cases he saw were fatal.

It is firmly believed in among the occupation troops as well as the civilian population that a German expedition out across the Channel in autumn but was destroyed by British naval units. The petrol on the sea and ignited by incendiary bullets.

This story has never been confirmed nor denied by British quarters, but it has still has, a powerful effect on morale of German troops. They believe they are going to be on a suicidal expedition to Britain, and face the prospect with unconcealed dread.

Invasion drill still forms part of their routine training.

THE ALL-INDIA MUSLIM LEAGUE

THE Twenty-eighth Session of the All-India Muslim League has been transacting its business in Madras with the usual pomp and circumstance. Mr. Mohamed Ali Jinnah, though indisposed, graced the Conference with his presence and spoke some encouraging words. We are aware of the interest that this conference has created in our State. As far as the Mohamedans of the Mysore State are concerned they are quite happy here under the benign rule of His Highness the Maharaja. They have been enjoying such privileges and facilities that they cannot command in any other Indian State. The Hindu population of Mysore are very considerate and friendly to the Muslims here. As a matter of fact in South India as a whole the Muslim problem is not a complex one. The difficulties that one encounters in the relation between Hindus and Muslims in Northern India are not to be found here. The Muslim League Conference that is being held at Madras may no doubt create interest in the Muslims of the Province. But it serves no other important purpose.

As far as the fundamental problems are concerned it is impossible to agree with the Muslim League. Negation of National Unity of India and repudiation of democratic spirit in the land, has more or less become a pastime with some Muslim League leaders. Whatever national unity has been so far achieved in the course of evolution of hundreds of years, Mr. Jinnah and his friends want to demolish now. Their Pakistan cry neither does good to the Muslim Community nor to India as a whole. The blame lies with the British Government for having encouraged the Muslim League to indulge in the Pakistan cry. Things have gone so far that if wise Mohamadan Leaders do not check the spread of the cry, permanent harm would be done to India's cause. India's salvation lies in Indian unity, in communal concord and pursuit of the policy of live and let live. It is foolish for any Mohamadan to think that Pakistan is going to solve all his problems. Mahatma Gandhi and Indian National Congress have assured religious and cultural protection to the Muslim Community. What more is wanted for Mohamadians? Why the cry of Pakistan? People who are discontented with Congress, like the Justice Party men, may rally round the Muslim League for their own purpose. But that should not be mistaken. We

SESSION CONCLUDES

LAWYERS' CONFERENCE

Details of Resolutions

(From Our Correspondent)

Mysore, April 13
The Mysore Lawyers' Conference which commenced on Friday concluded yesterday afternoon.

Mr. G. Devoji Rao presiding, the open session took place yesterday.

At the outset a resolution of condolence on the death of Messrs C. Krishnamurthy, M. Kri namurthy, C. B. Gopala Rao, B. Ganesh a Singh, Shankaranarayana Rao Udapa, R. Ramaswamy and H. S. Ooma Shareef, all members of the bar, was passed.

The resolutions selected at the Subjects Committee were placed before the house at the open session and some of them were considered at great length.

Resolutions recording sympathy with those members of the Bar who have been struck off the rolls or other wise suffered disabilities for their struggle in the cause of the country and the people; praying that Government be pleased to remove those disabilities; requesting the Government to introduce the Bar Council's Act in Mysore as drafted by the Conference; Expressing the opinion that the political Reforms in Mysore do not satisfy the legitimate aspirations of the people and reiterating the resolution passed at Chikaballapur session on Responsible Government; requesting the Central Council to make a detailed study of the various problems confronting the legal profession in the light of the present day social and economic conditions and suggest changes that are called for with a view to suitable legislation; requesting the Government to take immediate action for the removal of the sentence of death from the penal law of the State, urging the Government to repeal without delay the Mysore Public Security Act, as it is a repressive measure which drastically curtails the elementary rights of the people in the state; urging the Government to repeal the amendment recently made to the Mysore Contempt of Courts Act as it is retrograde and unjustified; urging the Government to repeal the Press Act as it is calculated to further curtail the liberty of the press in the State and opining that the age of retirement for the judges of the High Court should be fixed at 57, were passed at the Conference along with some other resolutions of interest to the legal profession.

Resolutions that in future the Lawyers' Conference and its Presidents do cease to deal with politics and confine themselves to legal matters only and that Sagotra marriages do not conduce to national well being and physical efficiency of the race were defeated in the Conference.

The Central Council of the Conference was reconstituted as follows:-

SITUATION IN LUCKNOW

Marked Improvement

(Associated Press of India)

Lucknow, April 13
The situation in the Muslim quarters of the city showed marked improvement yesterday. Strict enforcement of Curfew order and vigilant patrolling by the Police prevented occurrence of untoward incidents in any part of the city. Peace-makers are utilising the opportunity afforded by a four-day truce to negotiate peaceful solution of the Madhesabha controversy.

President-Mr. G. Devoji Rao, Vice-Presidents—Messrs M. Lakshminarayana Rao and C. Lakshmana Gowda.

Secretaries—Messrs Lakshmanaswamy and M.A. Gopalaswamy Iyengar.

Members—Messrs. L.S. Raju (C & M Station), V. Ramakrishnaiah and Nittur Srinivasa Rao, Bangalore District; K. Rangaiyengar and K. Subba Rao, Tumkur District; K. R. Srinivasa and K. Rajagopala Rao, Kolar District; B.K. Narasimha Murthy and T. L. Narayana Rao, Kader District; B. Venkataswamanna and B. Veerappa, Chitaldrug District; A.R. Badrinarayana and H. K. N. Acharya, Shimoga District; A. Srikanthiah and G. Parthasarathy, Hassan District; T. S. Rajagopala Iyengar and Mahesha Chandra Guru, Mysore District; and A.G. Bandi Gowda and D.N. Narasinga Rao, Mandya District.

The President brought the proceedings to a close in a short speech which he delivered in Kannada. He appreciated the work done at the Conference and thanked the members for their co-operation.

The President also conveyed to the house the good wishes which the Dewan had sent through a letter written to the President. The Dewan had expressed his appreciation at the sober views of the President expressed in his address particularly on the Political Reforms.

The Conference concluded with cheers to His Highness the Maharaja.

Later in the evening the President gave a pleasant tea party in the quadrangle of the Maharajas' College.

PUNJAB MUSLIMS AND MUSLIM LEAGUE

A RIFT IN THE LIFE

Political Speculations in Lahore

(From our own correspondence)
The Lahore Papers state that the contingent of delegates left Lahore for Madras for the Muslim League session consisted of just two persons. An unsatisfactory situation has undoubtedly been created by Sir Sikandar Hayat Khan's decision to keep away from the session. It is being feared that though Punjab is the forefront of Mr. Jinnah's scheme there are no signs of definite cleavage between Mr. Jinnah and the Muslims.

"Tribune" of Lahore writes: "In Punjab which Mr. Jinnah wanted to be a nuclear Pakistan reaction was met. At first, there was dim enthusiasm for the League. There was clear hostility. This was a striking manifestation of his hostility during Mr. Jinnah's last visit to Lahore. His while lieutenants did not see him. Mr. Jinnah went from Lahore crestfallen, no first rank Muslim leader going from Punjab to Madras to attend the Muslim League session."

Opinion in circles connected with the Bombay Conference that if the Viceroy is permitted to form a new cabinet on the lines of the Bombay resolution the Punjab group in the Muslim League will agree to co-operate with them.

It is understood that Mr. Sfr Sapru did not discuss provincial question with Viceroy, certain proposals under examination.

According to political circles New Delhi one suggestion has been made is that the Executive, Council should be revived in the provinces to period of the war. The idea that the members of the Executive council who were appointed consisting both officials and nonofficials be like the members of Viceroy's Council in the provinces. Under this scheme the members, however, of the provincial legislatures may be held back and will have no more power. members of the Executive Council and their policies that possessed by the Central legislature. This scheme may have been put forward as a time measure as an alternative to the present system of advisers. Those connected with the Bombay Conference during their recent visit to Delhi were discussing the matter and it appeared to be completely agreed to. It was definitely reiterated that would satisfy nobody.

DEWAN BAHADUR K. RAMASWAMI

DEWAN BAHADUR
K. R. SRINIVASA IYENGAR'S APPRECIATION

The following is the Presidential speech of Dewan Bahadur K. R. Srinivasa Iyengar on the occasion of the presentation of the address and easket by the Government of Madras at Holenarasipur on Sunday, April 14 to Rajakarya Prasakta Dewan Bahadur K. Ramaswami—

I am highly thankful to the Entertainment Committee for the opportunity they have afforded me of taking part in a function which has been arranged to do honour to a distinguished son of Mysore and an esteemed friend of mine. Any of you assembled here might have had the pleasure and pleasure of Rajakarya Prasakta Dewan Bahadur K. Ramaswami's acquaintance and friendship for a much longer time than I, but though I have known him for a comparatively shorter time, every time that I came into contact with him during the last 10 years or so, I have been much impressed by his capacity, extraordinary energy and earnestness as also his noble qualities of head and heart that regard and admiration for him have been constantly on the increase. Although the address presented to him to-day contains account of his innumerable virtues, I believe it will not be out of place for me to refer to some of them.

Early Education

Born at Hole-narasipur in the year 1886 Mr. Ramaswami had his early education in the School at Hole-Narasipur and the Maharaja's College at Mysore. He then took to the Engineering course and after completing it entered service in the Public Works Department of the Bombay Government in a subordinate capacity in 1907; and by dint of his energy, capacity and force of character, he gradually worked his way up step by step. He came to occupy a high place among the gazetted officers of the Department from which he has just retired only 2 days ago. In whatever capacity he served, he won the confidence and esteem of his superiors as well as his Government by his zeal and his devotion to duty, and much so that whenever any important work had to be carried out on scheme or project undertaken he was selected to be entrusted with it. Among the important works that were entrusted to him may be mentioned the Gateway of India at the Apollo Bunder at Bombay, the Council Hall at Bombay, the Royal Institute, the New Museum House, the Museum, the Government Press and the High Court extension and many other buildings in the Bombay City. He had also a prominent part in the planning and execution of the Bombay reclamation scheme and of the Marine drive at Bombay. To him belong a unique distinction of having been kept undisturbed in the Bombay Presidency Division for nearly 25 years which shows to what extent he had made himself indispensable at Bombay on account of his invaluable services and his great capacity as an Engineer.

Talents And Achievements

While Mr. Ramaswami's talents and achievements as an Engineer were of such a high order that his services were sought for everywhere and by everybody, his social and public activities were no less notable and praiseworthy. He was the father of the Mysore Association in Bombay having started it in 1926 and presided over it for over 10 years during which period he took great interest in providing it with a suitable habitation and equipping it with the necessary amenities for sports and other social recreations. As President of the South Indian Education Society, the South Indian Sangh Sabha, the South Indian Association, the National Kannada Education Society, the United Karnataka Association and other similar institutions in Bombay, he was practically the leader of the South Indian Society in Bombay and his advice and guidance were made available for anybody who sought them. Only recently he had the honour of presiding at an All India Karnataka Conference at Dharwar. Charitably disposed by nature, he was ready to loosen his purse strings and give unstinted support in aid of every good cause. He was noted for the liberal help extended by him to students—particularly Mysoreans who appealed to him for assistance. He belongs to that rare class of persons who consider that money is to be earned not for the mere hoarding of it nor for gratifying personal desires but for the benefit of humanity at large and particularly the poor among them.

Ardent Mysorean

As an ardent Mysorean, Mr. Ramaswami has made very liberal contributions to various public institutions and bodies in Mysore. To mention only a few of them: the Mahila Samaj, the National Education Society and the Babbur Camme Hostel at Bangalore have received substantial donations from him. He has presented an ambulance Car at a cost of Rs. 5,000 for the use of the Victoria Hospital, the Minto Hospital and the Maternity Hospital at Bangalore. His most important benefaction is the Maternity Hospital which was gifted by him to this Town of Hole-Narasipur in memory of his revered mother and wherein our esteemed and popular Dewan Sir Mirza M. Ismail has been pleased to-day to unveil his portrait. Mr. Ramaswami's benefactions and charities have not been confined to Mysore. His house at Bombay was open to any one who sought his assistance and many are the poor students both Mysoreans and non-Mysoreans who have received help from him. There are few Mysoreans of distinction who have visited Bombay without being accorded a hearty welcome by him and offered his hospitality. No one who has not seen him at close quarters or moved with him even for a short while in Bombay can realise the amount of influence that he wields with all classes of people in the City—Government Officers of all Departments, industrial and commercial magnates and the public in general. I am reminded here of an incident which I read only yesterday in an article contributed to the Tai-Nadu by one of its correspondents. The writer describes in the article how on one occasion when he was driving in Bombay in Mr. Ramaswami's Car, an European Sargent stopped the Car saying that the road was blocked for some reason but when he was told that it was Mr. Ramaswami's Car the name acted as a magic and the Car was allowed to proceed. It is no matter for surprise that a person endowed with such a magnetic personality such talents, such fine and noble character, such a generous heart and such lovable qualities should have secured the esteem and friendship of every one who has had the privilege of coming into contact with him, either in public or private life and that he should have won the appreciation and approbation of his superiors and of the Government that he served. The Bombay Government's first appreciation of Mr. Ramaswami's merit and worth came in 1926 when the title of Rao Saheb was conferred on him. This was followed in 1930 by his appointment as a Justice of the Peace in Bombay a unique honour for a Mysorean. In 1932 he was made a Rao Bahadur; and in 1933 he was appointed as a Honorary First Class Magistrate, Bombay, another signal mark of appreciation of his sterling worth and character by the Bombay Government. In 1939, he was honoured by the conferment on him of the title of Dewan Bahadur by the Viceroy. To crown all Mr. Ramaswami has the supreme satisfaction of having his worth and his public work and his various acts of public charity appreciated by his own Sovereign by the conferment on him of the title of 'Rajakarya Prasakta' at the recent Dasara Durbar. The presence here of our esteemed Dewan Sir Mirza M. Ismail as also many other distinguished visitors from all parts of the State as also from distant Bombay and other places and the large number of congratulatory messages received today and read just now by the Secretary of the Entertainment Committee bear testimony not only to the great popularity of Mr. Ramaswami among his friends and hold he has on their hearts but also to the esteem in which he is held by every one who has had the privilege of knowing him intimately. This large assemblage is also evidence of the universal satisfaction which the conferment of the title on Mr. Ramaswami by our Gracious Sovereign has given to all the people of Mysore.

The rest of India went in on their second innings 15 minutes before tea requiring 117 runs for victory and hit up the required score for the loss of one wicket (Vino Mankad not out 52; Mushtaq Ali not out 54).

ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS DEFENDING ROME

Taken Over by Germans?
(By Cable)
The Geneva correspondent of the 'Daily Express' cabled on April 3rd
The Germans have taken over all anti-aircraft guns defending Rome. Not only the officers but the crews manning the guns are entirely German.

In the whole of southern French Africa Italian officers on the so-called Armistice Commissions have been replaced by Germans. The reason given is that the 'Italians have been taciturn with French officials especially with soldiers'.

Dynamic Energy

It is a matter for pride to us that Mysoreans who have gone abroad in pursuit of various walks of life have distinguished themselves in whatever sphere they were employed and acquitted themselves in such a manner as to bring credit to themselves to their homeland of Mysore and its Sovereign. Among such persons, Mr. Ramaswami takes a prominent place; and we in Mysore have indeed good reason to be proud of him.

A person of Rajakarya Prasakta Dewan Bahadur Mr. K. Ramaswami's talents, dynamic energy, activity and temperament cannot possibly remain idle; and now that he is free from official harness, he may be expected to devote himself in a larger degree to public work and public service for which there is unlimited scope among us. It is my earnest wish and prayer to God as I have no doubt it is also of every one of you present here that he may be endowed with long life and blessed with perfect health and every happiness to enable him to render to still greater service to his Motherland and his brethren and obtain still greater distinctions and honours in his retirement.

CHIKMAGALUR NOTES

Government Director of Industrial Concerns

From our correspondent.

Chikmagalur, April 13
Mr. E. V. Ganapathy Aiyar, Government Director of Industrial Concerns and Chairman of the Mysore Coffee Curing Works, visited Chikmagalur during the course of the last week and inspected the Coffee Curing Works offices and the factory.

Murder Charge Sheeted

The Mudigere Police have placed a charge sheet in the First Class Magistrate, Chikmagalur under Section 482, I.P.C., for alleged murder against one Huchha a lame man of Gonibedu who is reported to have committed the murder of his father on the Ugadi day; the details of which have already appeared in these columns.

Mudigere Municipal Council

Only eight Mohammedans have sent in their applications for candidature to the ensuing Municipal Elections. No Hindu has applied and the last date for the receiving of nomination papers is already over, though the Council has ten places for elected members. It is stated that the Hindus of Mudigere do not like to contest the Municipal Elections as they feel that they are in a minority. The constitution of the Municipal Council provides for ten elected members, two nominated Ex-Officio members and three nominated non-official gentlemen.

The latest census figures of Mudigere Town reveal the strength of the various communities as follows:—Hindus 804, Mohammedans 900, Christians 154, Jains 24, others 3.

Messrs. Abdul Aziz, K. Abdul Samad, A. R. Samiullah, M. Gouse-Sharif, K. Mohiddin Kutti, K. Siddar Beri, Mohiddin Kunni Beri, and Mohiddin Beri have been returned without contest.

Coffee Borer Pest Control

Sixteen Agricultural fieldmen have been recruited by the Department for the effective supervision of the eradication of Coffee Plants affected by Coffee Stem Borer Disease. The Provisions of Law under Coffee Stem Borer Pest Act will be invoked who refuse to act according to the directions of the Agricultural Department who will launch prosecutions against planters who possess plants affected by the pest in their estates. Mr. Putturudraiva, Assistant Entomologist, is in charge of the Scheme.

The Prophet's Birthday

Under the local Muzam Committee's direction, the Mohammedan residents of Chikmagalur celebrated the birthday of Mohamed the Prophet day before yesterday when leading Mohammedans spoke on the life and achievement of Mohamed. Mr. H. R. Abdul Majid, Asst. Professor of Persian Language, Mysore University presided. The Mohammedans went in procession in the main streets of Chikmagalur with the Muslim League flag, prior to the holding of the Assembly.

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION IN LANGUAGES

OPINION OF KANNADA SCHOLARS

A Committee Of Enquiry Suggested
Bangalore, April 14

A meeting of persons interested in the improvement and progress of Education in Mysore was held on Saturday the 12th instant in connection with the Spring Literary Festival conducted at the Kannada Sahitya Parishat, Bangalore City. Mr. D. V. Gundappa presided. A number of persons spoke on the teaching of language subjects and expressed their individual opinion for certain reforms to be introduced on the matter.

After having considered the views expressed by the various speakers on the position of languages in the curricula of schools and colleges and on the teaching of language subjects, this meeting placed its opinion on record as follows and unanimously carried the following resolutions:

"For some years past, complaints are being heard in several quarters that the linguistic and literary attainments of the generality of students passing out of school and colleges are seriously defective and unsatisfactory. While the measures adopted by Government and various public bodies to promote the rapid spread of education among all classes of people are most gratifying, the question of so framing the general scheme of studies that the highest possible measure of return is ensured in quality (as well as in quantity) for the expenditure so liberally incurred in money and effort awaits attention. The problem has become all the more urgent in view of the success that has so far attended the introduction of Kannada as the medium of instruction in non-language subjects in High schools and also by reason of the growing public demand for the extension of the same reform into the university and for the larger use of Kannada in Government offices and law-courts in all ordinary correspondence and recording as well as in the proceedings of Houses of Legislature and of local bodies. The time has thus come for taking a comprehensive and integrated view of the needs of the country in respect of the linguistic and literary equipment of its youth, for harmoniously adjusting the claims of the various languages for pre-eminence in the curriculum and for formulating definite and reasoned policy for the guidance of educationists, literary workers and others interested in the cause of education in the State.

This important task is however one that can be performed satisfactorily only by an agency appointed by Government and able to secure the sympathy and co-operation of several official and public bodies. This meeting, therefore, requests that Government may be pleased to appoint for the purpose as early as may be practicable a committee containing representatives of language-teaching in primary, secondary and collegiate stages of education and of literary and cultural institutions like the Kannada Sahitya Parishat and the Pandita Mandala, besides a few public men having experience of education or literary work. The Committee should be asked to investigate and find out what the defects are in the present method of instruction in languages, to consider the adjustments necessary as between one grade and another so as to render the educational system of the State one organic unity from the primary up to the university grades, and to make a detailed report on the reforms needed with particular reference to the following and other connected matters:—

(1) The relative positions of Kannada, English and Sanskrit in the State's scheme of education and the standard of proficiency to be expected in each language in the several grades;

(2) The proportion of time to be allotted to each of the languages in the time-table of the class;

(3) The desirability and the feasibility of teaching some elementary lessons in Sanskrit as integral part of the Kannada course in Middle and High Schools;

(4) The desirability and the feasibility of teaching a restricted vocabulary like Basic English in Middle Schools as a step to wider English in High School and later stages;

(5) The use of foreign scientific and technical terms in the teaching of science etc. in Kannada.

(6) The quantity, the contents and the style of books prescribed as texts for the various classes;

(7) The teaching of (i) Grammar and Idiom (ii) Composition (iii) Translation; the stage at which these lessons should be begun and how they should be taught.

(7) The qualifications and equipment of the teachers of

HINDU-MOHAMADAN QUESTION

"There Is No Such Thing"

(Associated Press of India)

Hazaribag, April 13

"There is no such thing as Hindu and Mohamadan question" said Mr. Md. Yunis, Presiding over the Second Annual Session of the Bihar Provincial Unity Conference. He added, "the truth is the relations between Hindus and Mohamadans of different classes and different parts form in each case a separate question which may not have any connection with that between different classes of the two communities save for natural sympathy which every Hindu or Mohamadan has for his own co-religionist." Mr Yunis continued, "in fact political economy of life of 90 per cent of Indian population different functions of labour and occupation have been so equally distributed between Hindus and Mohamadans that it is practically impossible for the two communities to be at communal war with one another."

AKALI SIKHS OPPOSE PAKISTAN
(Associated Press of India)

Karnachi, April 13

The determination of Akali Sikhs to oppose Pakistan Scheme and 'unflinching from any sacrifice which they might be called upon to make to thwart it was expressed in a resolution passed this afternoon by the All-Sind Akali Conference. Master Tara Singh presided.

language and literature and the library and other facilities which they need their teaching methods memory work etc.

The Committee should be authorised to consult public opinion on these and all cognate questions, to inspect the working of educational institutions for collecting necessary information, to take the assistance of experts and to make its recommendations as full as possible on relevant points.

In order not to complicate the issue, it is suggested that the committee may, in the first instance, confine its enquiry to that part of the field of public instruction which concerns Kannada as the principal Vernacular language. The findings resulting from that study may, if found valuable, be applied later on, with suitable modifications to other parts of the field which concern Urdu and other languages.

The meeting appeals to the University and the Department of Public Instruction for help and co-operation in securing the early appointment of the committee suggested and in facilitating its work."

QUESTION OF DIRECT ACTION Considered By Hindu Sabha

A. P. Nagpur, April 13

The question of launching direct action contemplated by the Madras resolution of All India Hindu Mahasabha is to be decided by All India Committee of the Hindu Mahasabha. This decision was taken by the Working Committee of All India Hindu Mahasabha which met here to day under the Presidency of Mr. V. D. Savarkar. It was decided that all correspondence between the Viceroy and Mr. Savarkar should be placed before the meeting of All India Committee to take such steps as it deems fit with regard to the Madras resolution.

In the latest communication it is believed the Viceroy emphasised that the attitude of the various political parties in India will not affect the settled purpose of H. M's Government to help India to attain the goal of free and equal partnership in the British Commonwealth. As regards Pakistan the Viceroy is presumed to have said that he had not yet taken official notice of the scheme. The consensus of opinion at the meeting it is understood is that the Viceroy's letter is conciliatory in nature.

The Working Committee adopted a resolution calling upon the Government to suspend the constitution in Bengal and place the administration direct in the hands of the Governor in view of the serious situation in Dacca and the villages round about Dacca and in the capacity of Bengal Government to give protection to Hindu life and property.

FATAL ATTEMPT TO GARLAND

Tragedy at Nagpur
A. P. Nagpur, April, 12

A tragic accident involving the death of Mr. R. B. Maokar, Secretary, Central Provinces Hindu Maha Sabha occurred this morning when a large crowd thronging the Railway Station to receive Mr. V. D. Savarkar, President, Hindu Mahasabha. When the train steamed in, Mr. Maokar was among those on the platform ready to garland the Hindu Mahasabha President and in his eagerness to be the first to do so he tried to catch the handle of Mr. Savarkar's compartment while the train was still in motion but missed and fell with fatal result. The garland was still clenched in his hand when his body was taken out.

PAKISTAN DEMAND

COMMENT ON RUSSO-JAPANESE PACT

The neutrality pact concluded the other day between Russia and Japan is commented by informed observers. By a dramatic stroke, it is stated, Soviet Republic has hurled blow to the Tripartite pact. Whether it is said, that while Japan gains nothing from the so-called friendship, Russia might free to go ahead against Germany.

Enemy infantry supported by tanks launched attack on Tobruk.

For some days past Malta is being subjected to daily air raids by the communiques.

There are no details of fighting in Yugoslavia. Athens Radio states that the great bulk of the Yugoslav Army retired to Mountain areas.

A few hours after the signing of the neutrality pact between Russia and Japan, the German Ambassador in Moscow has been called for Berlin for consultation.

Germans and Italians claim that they have captured Sollum and Fort Capuzzo.

It is now learnt that Russia has informed Marshal Chiang Kai-shek that her fundamental policy of aiding China has not been affected by the recent Pact with Japan.

Emperor Haile Selassie is now receiving submissions of Abyssinian Princes and Chieftains which took place at a typical ceremony hundred miles away from Addis Ababa.

Egyptian Prime Minister Ri Pasha has called a secret session of the Chamber of Deputies in view of the presence of foreign troops in the Egyptian soil.

SUBJECTS COMMITTEE CRITICISES CONGRESS MOVEMENT

Autonomous Sovereign States For Mussalmans

[Associated Press of India]

Madras, April 14.—The Subjects Committee of All India Muslim League adopted a number of resolutions this afternoon which included the resolutions relating to Gandhiji's Civil Disobedience movement and change in the creed of All India Muslim League.

Mr. Jinnah presided over the meeting for the first time. Resolutions apropos Gandhiji's Civil disobedience movement reads thus: The Session of All India Muslim League is definitely of the opinion that the present Civil disobedience movement started by Gandhiji on behalf of the Congress though it is ostensibly for freedom of speech it is really meant to coerce the British Government to concede the Congress demands regarding the future constitution of India which is really and virtually for transfer of sovereign powers to Hindus and thus relegate the Muslim Nation of one hundred million and Indian minorities to the status of Hindu Raj throughout the country. It therefore draws the attention of the British Government that if constitutional changes either interim or final are made without the approval of the Muslim League it would be construed as a flagrant breach of faith on the part of the British Government with Mussalmans of India and it would be contrary to the solemn declaration and promises that had already been made to Mussalmans of India by the recent announcement of the Viceroy and the Secretary of State of India and His Majesty's Government and that if any attempt be made to depart from or modifying in any way the above mentioned declaration and pledges the Mussalmans of India would be forced to resist every measure and methods with all the powers that they can command.

The following amendment to the constitution in respect of the creed of the Muslim League was passed:—Establishment of completely independent States formed by demarcating geographically contiguous units into regions which shall be so constituted with such territorial adjustments as may be necessary that areas wherein Mussalmans are numerically in the majority

ELECTION MEETINGS BANNED

PROHIBITORY ORDER IN HASSAN TALUK

“NO MEETINGS, NO SPEECHES AND NO LOUD-SPEAKERS”

(From our correspondent)
Hassan, April 14.—An order, under Section 144 of the Cr. P. C. prohibiting public meetings, speeches etc. and using loud speakers etc. in Hassan Taluk till the 23rd of this month, was served on the Mysore Congress Leaders today at 9-50 P. M.

Therefore, the public meetings arranged for Sijts. H. Siddaiya, K. T. Bhayam, H. C. Dasappa, K. Pattabhiraman, A. G. Ramachandra Rao, A. G. Bandigowda, Malavalli Veerappa etc. stand cancelled. The above gentlemen are, however, requested to visit the Taluk.

as in North-western and Eastern zones of India shall be grouped together to constitute independent States in the Muslim free National Homelands wherein the constituent units shall be autonomous and sovereign. That adequate effective and mandatory safeguards be specially provided in the constitution for the minorities in the above mentioned units and regions for protection of their religious, cultural, economic, political and administrative and other rights and interests in consultation with them. That in other parts of India where Mussalmans are in minority adequate, effective mandatory, safeguards be specially provided in the constitution for them and other minorities for protection of their religious, cultural, economic, political, administrative and other rights and interests in consultation with them.

The Subjects Committee also adopted other resolutions: The Session of all India Muslim League urged the British Government not to postpone the elections to the present legislatures at least in provinces where provincial autonomy is already functioning under the Government of India Act.

The Muslim League also appointed a committee to chalk out a five year plan for educational, economic, social and political advancement of Mussalmans.

The Civil disobedience against Magisterial ban on processions on Bara Wat day which has been suspended after a day's duration on 10th April is to be resumed this afternoon. Announcing this decision in the presence of a gathering of over 5,000 Sunnis assembled at Idgah this afternoon Maulana Abdul Shokor, Sunni leader, said it is proposed to defy the ban in batches of four and court arrest as on 10th April. In pursuance of their decision 350 Sunnis courted arrest and by 5-30 p.m., nine batches of four each were taken into custody.

An appeal to leaders of Shias and Sunnis to compose their differences and arrive at a settlement has been made by the District Magistrate of Lucknow who says that a settlement of these disputes between the Shias and Sunnis is essential for peace in Lucknow and wellbeing of both communities whose leaders are earnestly requested to resolve their differences amicably. The appeal adds:—It is to be understood that whatever action was taken by the local authorities in connection with the Bara Watat, 1941, was done solely for the purpose of maintaining peace and avoiding bloodshed.

Madras, April 15.

An amendment to the League constitution making Pakistan as the goal of the Muslim League was unanimously passed by the open session of the League today.

Mr. Nawabzada Liaqatali Khan who moved the amendment said that every Mussalman who was to join the Muslim League from now onwards should take the oath of allegiance to Pakistan. He said the League's object was to do justice to all. He said that the only solution of India's ills he saw was to let all those who desired India to be free to accept Pakistan.

Mr. Haji Sattar (Madras), Mr. Kazi Mohamed Isa (Baluchistan), Sir Abdulla Haroon (Sind), Sir Mohamed Nisam Khan (Madras), Sir Anwar Khan (Sindh) supported the amendment.

THE POPE'S MESSAGE

His Holiness the Pope made an Easter Broadcast to the world on Good Friday. He made an appeal to the belligerents to refrain from using ever more deadly instruments of war. He felt pity for the sufferings of the civil populations, for unarmed women and children, for the sick and the aged, often exposed to greater dangers of war than soldiers at the front. He lamented the fact that the limits had been exceeded of what might be permissible in a just war. He prayed for peace and said "Let us pray for peace for all. Not a peace of oppression and destruction of nations, but a peace which, guaranteeing the honour of all nations, may satisfy their vital necessities and the legitimate rights of all. Our prayers must be for a new fraternal solidarity among nations of the earth, with firm and stable guarantees, with a high moral consciousness, with equal rights among the large and the small, among the strong and the weak."

There is something tragic in this fervent message of His Holiness the Pope. On that Good Friday itself Germany devastated Yugoslavia. The machine-guns destroyed men, women and children. The world has been feeling today that there is something wrong in the present arrangement and system of civilised things. One does not know when this war would end. The post-war period is much more terrible to contemplate than the war period. When we are going to get Peace, what sort of Peace it would be hard to think. The nobler side of man seems to have been subjugated by the wilder side of man. All appeals for peace have failed. Human life seems to have no value at present. The cherished structure of civilization is being laid low. Unless the world listens to a man who is above all this hatred and carnage, there seems to be no hope at all.

Dr. Rabindranath Tagore in his speech at Santiniketan on the occasion of his 80th Birthday hoped that a deliverer of mankind would come from the East. This is nothing but our Hindu faith in the ultimate triumph of Dharma over Adharma and God incarnating Himself as man to deliver mankind from cruelty, oppression, injustice and Adharma. God's wrath seems to be working on the face of the earth today. It is only purification of God that can give succour to humanity. We live in the period of Narasimhavarman, when God issued to have incarnated in a terrible form to put down the opponents of Dharma. Even in the midst of Adharma,

Aboard Warship of Royal Indian Navy

A CORRESPONDENT'S IMPRESSIONS

A.P. New Delhi, April 14
"Aboard warship of Royal Indian Navy." I was returning to a port after a day of sea with the Royal Indian Navy wherein I have been able to watch from close quarters something of unobtrusive but arduous vital work which India's navy is performing since the outbreak of the war and the methods by which its ever-growing personnel is training by practical instruction, writes Associated Press special correspondent.

As dawn was breaking, I slipped from the harbour aboard a minesweeper engaged this time, not in sweeping operations but gunnery practice shoot. Aboard was class gunnery pupils and their instructor. Dropping target resembling U-boats conning tower overboard we moved away in a wide circle. Numerous salvoes were fired and shooting was excellent. "If it had been a real U-boat she would have been scuppered all right" remarked the instructor and his pupils grinned happily for this their first practical test after long hours of instruction. Transferring to another warship I watched mock dive bombing attacks and saw the crew running actions to stations and later witnessed a demonstration of depth charge dropping for another batch of pupils. Finally a third batch of pupils who boarded for submarine detection training spent a thrilling hour searching out an elusive underwater quarry.

While returning to port I visited comfortable quarters of officers and ratings. I noted food arrangements to be excellent. They have a well-stocked canteen while the Sports Committee arranges competitions in various popular indoor games. As the anchor rattled down on return to port and men cheerfully left for shore, I reflected the Indian Navy by its efficient performance of arduous difficult and vital role is fully maintaining great traditions. The rapidly growing strength as weeks pass of India's silent service in its own quiet way is worthily equalling the magnificent feats of Indian troops overseas.

If Dharma strives to live, the All-merciful Providence is bound to uplift Dharma. That is our Hindu faith. That is not only the Hindu faith but the faith of humanity. It is the only hope of huminity in the midst of wild hatred and stark despair. We, in India, have in Mahatma Gandhi a high soul clinging to non-violence and love in the midst of consuming hatred and deluge-like bloodshed. Mahatma Gandhi has been advising India to discard the path of hatred and violence and cling to the divine path of love and non-violence. In the midst of the present conflagration, which has been reducing civilization to ashes, it is of some comfort to us in India that we have been keeping alive the calm and steady glow of love and non-violence.

Dr. TAGORE'S EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY

CELEBRATED AT SANTINIKETAN

The Poet's Message Of Hope

(Associated Press of India)

Santiniketan, April 14
In the course of an address at Visvabharati on the occasion of the celebration of 80th birthday Poet Rabindranath Tagore said: Demon of barbarity has given up all pretences and has emerged with unconcealed fangs and teeth ready to tear up the world and spread devastation. From one end to another, poisonous fangs of hatred defile the atmosphere. This plague of persecution which lay dormant in civilisation of the west has at last roused itself to create havoc and desecrate the spirit of man.

Referring to the position in India Dr. Tagore made a comparative study of Indians along with other Asiatic Nations. He said Indians were in no way inferior to Japanese.

British Rule

Referring to the British rule in India Dr. Tagore said: Our rulers have established what they call Government of Law and Order—or in other words a policeman's administration. It is now no longer possible for us to retain any respect for mockery of civilisation which believes in ruling by force and has no faith in freedom at all. Their misery and denial of all that is best in their civilisation, by withdrawing true human relationship from Indians, the English have effectively closed for us all paths to progress.

Deliverer of Humanity

Dr. Tagore concluded: I had at once time believed that springs of civilisation would issue out of the heart of Europe. And to day when I am about to quit the world that stubborn faith has gone bankrupt altogether. Today my one last hope is that the deliverer will be born in this poverty-stricken land and from the East his divine message will go forth to the world at large and fill the heart of man with boundless hope.

SUSPEND BENGAL CONSTITUTION

Request of Bihar Hindu Sabha

A.P. Daltongunj, April, 14
Suspension of the constitution of Bengal in view of recent incidents in Dacca and interior of the District "in the regime of Muslim League" was urged by a resolution adopted by the Bihar Provincial Hindu Conference held here last evening.

The Conference by another resolution condemned the Pakistan Scheme. It urged Government to make a clear declaration of its policy by denouncing it.

The Conference resolved that in important centres Defence Committees should be formed to protect "the interests of Hindus and help them in times of need."

STRAY ASSAULTS IN DACCA

A PUFF OF SMOKE

AN EVENTFUL WEEK—MYSORE CONGRESS SESSION—HOLENARSIPUR FUNCTION—LAWYERS' CONFERENCE—MUSLIM LEAGUE SESSION—THE LATE COCHIN MAHARAJA.

I have returned to my duty after about a week's forced holiday. There was absolutely no space in the columns of the paper for the trifling things I indulge in. The last week was a week of important events to the State and India. At Vinobanagar was held the Fourth Session of Mysore Congress. It was a momentous session. The importance was enhanced by Babu Rajendra Prasad's gracious presence. By now, my readers have already been familiar with the proceedings of the Session. It was not a session of fire-works and excitement. It looks as if the Organization has settled down to quiet constructive programme of work. The speeches were all mild and constructive in tone. The messages of Mahatma Gandhi, Sri Mahadev Desai and others gave a fillip to the session. The troubled question of office acceptance was solved in a manner which has given an opportunity for things to shape better. I hope the Government would take note of the feeling in the country towards Congress and deal with the Organization in a becoming manner. I have no desire to write anything more about the Congress Session.

The next important event of the week was the entertainment arranged at Holenarsipur in honour of Rajakaryaprasakata Dewan Bahadur K. Ramaswamy. Many have gone from Mysore to Bombay to make fortune. But none can match Dewan Bahadur Ramaswamy. He not only made a fortune but earned a name for generosity which others cannot reach. According to our Hindu sentiment, one may make money but it is given to very few to use it wisely. Dewan Bahadur Ramaswamy knows what value to give money in life. He knows that there is something higher in life than money and that is the goodwill and friendship of his contemporaries. Ramaswamy is rich in that wealth of goodwill of his fellow beings. I congratulate him on this wealth and other kinds of wealth that he possesses. I wish him yet greater wealth of goodwill of his countrymen.

The third important event which I would like to refer to is the Mysore Lawyers Conference which was held at Mysore. Our readers have already read the speeches delivered there as also the resolutions passed. I congratulate the Conference on the pious resolutions it has passed. Something more should be done in the direction of translating those resolutions into action. Lawyers in Mysore as elsewhere have borne the brunt of the national struggle. Many of them have suffered heavily for the sake of the country. As Babu Rajendra Prasad advised the Lawyers, whether in profession or out of it, they are the custodians of popular liberties. I congratulate Mysore Lawyers on the resolutions they passed in connection with Newspaper Act, the Contempt of Courts Act and other remedial measures. What an individual lawyer cannot do the Conference can achieve.

I have great pleasure in publishing a piece of poetry written by Mr. N. L. Keshava Iyengar, Mysore Bar in connection with the Sixteenth Lawyers Conference held in Mysore.

New Friends, sweet Brethren in law
A welcome sweet awaited us all
At Brilliant Brindaban such wonders
It is wrought with blessings good and
To us assembled from far and
As comes from the glorious Mysore Bar
We've met today and do we part
For the holiday we've earned to with Let's merry be and heart and heart
United be comfortable and gay
For it is today our most gala day
And to boot a Good Friday
God bless Sri Jayachamaraja Wodeyar
Long live our Mysore Maharaja, da
God bless our Mysore Bar
Long live its reputed too far
As fearless champion of Law and Justice
In God, Crown and Country's service

As to the events in All India I wish to draw the attention of my readers to the proceedings of the Session of All-India Muslim League held in Madras. Jinnah was indisposed and the Conference went on without Presidential address but on 14th he delivered his address. There is nothing new in this address which one has not heard before. The League is aiming upon Pakistan. It is to be seen if it would materialise or not. Because we know even stalwarts like Sir Sikander Khan are not for it. Mr. Fa Huq, Bengal Premier, has his own worries in respect of Dacca and I do not think he has time left at present to think of Pakistan. Anyway the Madras League Session has come to a close. It is to be seen what permanent effect it leaves in Madras.

I regret very much to record the death of His Highness Sri Rama Varma, Maharaja of Cochin. He was 80 years old and conducted his duties with great devotion. He spent much of his time in prayer and meditation. He was a great devotee, a pious and administrative allowed to be managed by the competent Dewan. He was a pulse of the times and had some power to popularise his representatives. In his death, we suffer a great loss. His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, already sent his condolences to the people of Mysore on the death of the Maharaja. It is in the things that Mysore has yesterday a holiday.

MEDICAL AID IN
MYSORE

SIR MIRZA'S ADDRESS

Hospital opened at Vadigenhalli

(From Our Correspondent)

Vadigenhalli, April 15

Sir Mirza Ismail Dewan of

Mysore, declared open last night the newly constructed

Dispensary and Maternity wards at Vadigenhalli, 2 miles from Bangalore,

Kannada Taluk.

The whole town was gaily decorated with flags and Bunt papers. Sir Mirza Ismail accompanied by His Holiness the Borahs, Mr. A. A. Khan,

Mr. Hukkeri arrived at the hospital at 5.45 p.m. They were received by the officers,

members of the Vadigenhalli Municipality and Messrs.

S. N. Nanjundappa, and

S. S. S. Subba Rao, who presented the donors

of the building. The donors were Mr. S. S. Subba Rao,

Messrs. Dr. B. K. Narasim-

ha, Dr. V. V. Monterio,

(Miss) Albuquerque, Mr.

S. Rahman, Belur Srinivasagar, and others.

The light refreshment and photographs were presented to Sir Mirza Ismail by the Honourables the Chief of Police.

The invocation in Kannada

Hindustani, Mr. Rudrappa,

President of the Vadigenhalli Municipality presented an address, welcoming the Dewan

in the course of a long speech, praying for more help and improvement of the town.

Messrs. Angathatti Nanjun-

na and V. Chickaveeranna

Donors, also presented addresses to Dewan and thanked the Government for the help which has been rendering to the suffering and the poor. They presented 3000 Rs. being their contribution to the hospital.

The great applause of the speech was read by

ALL INDIA MAHDAVIAH MUSLIM CONFERENCE

Channarayana, April 14

The second session of the All India

Mahdaviyah Muslim Conference will commence from Thursday the 17th April

(1941), under the presidency of Quaid-e-

Azam, at Channarayana, Mysore.

After the Flag hoisting ceremony the Exhibition will be opened at 11 A.M. by

Sir C. V. Raman, K.L., F.R.S., Nobel

Laureate, etc.

The exhibition was being better equipped by the addition of X-Ray plants and other modern surgical and medical appliances.

Problem Of Medical Relief

The problem of medical relief was a big one and could not be solved by Government alone.

It could only be solved when Government and the people worked hand in hand. He was very glad to acknowledge, in this connection, said the Dewan that many well-to-do citizens had been playing a great part in the task of constructing buildings for hospitals and dispensaries and of equipping these institutions adequately. It was a matter for deep gratification that Mysore was second to no other State or

Province in the matter of the provision of medical assistance to the people. One could well go further and claim that

Mysore was positively ahead of many other Indian States and not a few British Indian Provinces in this vital matter.

Past Achievements

But we should not rest content with our past achievements observed the Dewan. A feeling of complacency never conduces to lasting progress. It was the policy of Government to do all that was possible to extend medical aid still further, so that a larger number of the people could derive the benefits of modern medical institutions. But in this as in so many other spheres,

Government's unaided efforts

could not take things very far.

The cooperation of the people was quite essential and as already stated it was a fortunate and a most heartening circumstance that such cooperation was abundantly in evidence in

Mysore.

Fine Tradition

For a number of years now, the Dewan continued, a fine tradition had been built up of men of means coming forward voluntarily and generously to share with Government the obligations of providing medical aid in various parts of the State.

This tradition was not many years old but it was already apparent that it was a most noble tradition from which greater things could be expected in the future. Messrs. V. Chikka-veeranna, Angathatti Nanjun-dappa, V.M. Rudrappa, M. A.

Chikkarudrappa, A. V. Appayya-

nappa, N. S. Nanjanna, N. V. Pillanna

and J.R. Rudranunappa who had by their generosity made the construction of the Women's Dispensary and the Maternity

Ward possible were, said the Dewan, worthily sustaining this tradition. These gentlemen were entitled to the lasting gratitude of the people of Vadigenhalli and neighbourhood.

His Holiness the Chief of Borahs opened the Hospital.

The Dewan and others went round the hospital premises.

With a vote of thanks and singing of the Mysore Anthem

the function terminated.

It was announced that the first born baby in the hospital would be given a prize, by Mr. A. A. Khan, the Deputy Commissioner of Bangalore District.

(From our correspondent)

Chikmagalore, April 14

All the communities joined as a single unit at Udase during the last week to celebrate Sri Ramanavmi including the Hari-jans of the locality. Mr. Bal-ram Singh, School Master of the village spoke about the greatness of Sri Rama and his noble work and also advised the Harihans to be clean and to lead a nobler life than they were doing at present. On the last day a grand dinner was arranged to all the communities.

KANNADA SPRING LITERARY FESTIVAL

Dewan Sir Mirza Ismail's Message

Sir Mirza Ismail, Dewan of

Mysore, sent the following message to Kannada Sahitya

Parishat.

It gives me great pleasure to send a message of good wishes for the Spring Literary Festival which is to be held on the 10th instant at Bangalore under the auspices of the Kannada Sahitya

Parishat and which is to be inaugurated by Rajamantrapra-sanna K. V. Anantharaman,

Member of Council.

I welcome this opportunity of giving renewed expression to my deep interest in the activities of the Parishat and to my sense of intense appreciation of the sustained and substantial work that it has been doing all these years — work that is of immense cultural value to the entire Kannada country.

Periodical gatherings of devotees of Kannada literature have great uses, and I have no doubt that in arranging such literary

"festivals", the Parishat is laying the foundations of future greatness of the Kannada country and the Kannada language.

The Kannada Sahitya Pari-shat and those connected with it have my heartiest good wishes for the success of all their efforts on behalf of Kannada in general, and more immediately, for the success of this year's Spring

Literary Festival.

NAVAL SITUATION IN RED SEA

(By Cable) London

The Times Naval Correspondent writes:

The naval situation in the Red Sea, while not of great moment in view of the small forces concerned, is of interest

now that the whole campaign in that theatre of war seems to be drawing to a close.

So far as known there were seven destroyers and two torpedo-boats in the ports of

Italian East Africa on the outbreak of war and, as the latest

Admiralty communique shows, nearly all of these have now been accounted for.

Of submarines it is believed that there were about six. Four were announced to have been sunk in the first few weeks of the war, and the Galileo Galilei

was captured. It seems unlikely that there is more than one left and her state is unknown. It would not seem that there are any other effective enemy men-of-war in the area.

FORTRESS OR OPEN TOWN? HOW GERMANS REGARD BELGRADE

(By Cable) London
The Zurich correspondent of the Daily Telegraph cabled on April 8:

It is generally considered here that the Yugoslavs will succeed in holding their pre-arranged lines in the Bosnian and Montenegrin mountains indefinitely and that they will quickly sweep the Italians in Albania to the Adriatic, thus establishing safety in the rear and good communications with Greece.

The Yugoslav Government is stated to have left Belgrade for Vrnjci a small resort near Cacak, on the railway line between Belgrade and Sarajevo.

In view of the German contention that Belgrade is a fortress and that, therefore, it cannot be recognised as an open town, it is interesting to read what the German Encyclopaedia Meyers has to say about it:

"Belgrade was once a famous fortress, but is now hardly militarily defensible."

Belgrade's "fortress" is in a public park opposite the hotel Roiserbe and is heavily overgrown with ivy. The "fortifications" are comparable with castle ruins such as are seen in many parts of Wales.

MUSLIM LEAGUE SESSION CONCLUDES

Several Warnings To Government Of India

IF UNHEEDED EFFECTIVE MEANS TO GET WRONGS REDRESSED

A.P. Madras, April, 16
Mr. Hussain Imam, member of the Council of State, moved the resolution: This Session of All India Muslim League expresses indignation at the unfair treatment in various Government departments of Muslim employees particularly in the Railway Department in spite of the League repeatedly drawing their attention to grievances and wants that if immediate attention is not paid to them the League will be driven to devise effective means to get the wrongs redressed. The resolution was carried.

Police Firing Condemned

Maulana Abdul Hameed next moved the resolution condemning firing by police on the Mussalmans in Ujjaini, Budan District in United Provinces resulting in ten Mussalmans being killed and about seventy receiving injuries and emphatically urges upon the Government of the United Provinces to hold an independent judicial enquiry in the matter. The resolution was passed.

Indians In Indo-China

Mr. Murtuza Saheb Bahadur, Member of the Central Assembly moved the following resolution: Whereas many Indian merchants have their main assets in French Indo-China and they have to maintain themselves by means of remittances from the French Indo-China and whereas the result of the Government of India order freezing assets belonging to the Bank of Indo-China and held in the Banks in India it is absolutely impossible for Indian merchants to cash the bills of exchange drawn in their favour by the Banks of the French Indo-China and consequently Indian Muslims suffer a great hardship despite their being owners of heavy assets in Indo-China, this annual session urges upon the Government of India the necessity of relaxing the said order so far as Indians of French Indo-China are concerned. The resolution was carried.

The Following resolution was moved from the chair and passed: While appreciating the just attitude taken by H. E. the Governor of Ceylon this annual session of All India Muslim League views with deep concern the antagonistic attitude of the Ceylon Ministry towards Indians in Ceylon and the steps that are being taken by it to pass discriminatory legislation against Indians in Ceylon and urges the Government of India the necessity of taking prompt action in the matter.

The Session re-elected Nawabzada Liaquat Ali Khan as Honorary Secretary of the League for the year 1941-42.

Raja Saheb of Mahmudabad was re-elected Honorary Treasurer for the year. The session was entrusted with election of two joint secretaries to the Council of the League.

In adjourning the session sine die Nawabzada Liaquat Ali Khan said the session had been most successful and thanked the national guard and the press. In the end he asked the audience to pray for early recovery and long life of Mr. Jinnah.

The session then adjourned sine die.

A civic address will be presented to Mr. Jinnah at 5 P. M. on Thursday the 17th April at Ripon Buildings.

Nawabzada Liaquat Ali Khan, Honorary Secretary, Muslim League, is leaving for Delhi tomorrow morning.

THURSDAY—APRIL 17, 1941

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT

We have received a copy of the Administration Report of the Public Works Department for the twelve months ending with 30th June 1939, with the Government Review there on. We are now in the month of April 1941. We do not know why there should be so much delay in the publication of the report.

We find from the published report that Mr. N. Sarabhoja, Chief Engineer of Mysore, completed his report on 30th Nov. 1939. The Government in their review state that they received the Report from the Chief Engineer with his letter dated 4th March 1940. The Government have passed an order on 30th May 1940. The printed report with the Government Review has reached our hands in 1941 sometime in the month of March or April.

We have stated the facts here so that Government may do something to see that these reports are published and printed earlier. From the above dates we may surmise that the Report for the 12 months, ending with 30th June 1940 would have reached Government by about the middle of March 1941. And we cannot definitely say whether the Government have reviewed it and passed their order on it. Perhaps by the same time next year we would be getting the published report for the 12 months ending with 30th June 1940.

This is by the way. There may be some difficulties somewhere. But in the public interest it would be worth while to publish the reports earlier. There is also another suggestion that we would like to offer. These reports are now-a-days no doubt published in English. In addition to this, we think it would be more useful to publish it in Kannada also. The Government have a good and efficient translating staff and also a well-equipped Press. The Administration Reports published in Kannada would be helpful in enlightening the ryot and the common man. We hope the Government would consider this matter and do the needful.

The P.W.D. is a very important department. In the year under review the final grant under all heads was Rs. 85,54,025 and the outlay Rs. 71,77,821 including the expenditure on contribution works and works undertaken on behalf of the District Boards. The expenditure exceeded the grant by

Rs. 14,24,796 of which sum more than half—Rs. 7,84,892 was spent on communications. The aggregate grants from State Funds was Rs. 32,12,702 and the expenditure from the same Rs. 64,80,380 resulting in an excess expenditure of Rs. 11,67,686. A sum of Rs. 7,17,009 was spent on major tanks and Rs. 1,26,469 on the restoration of minor tanks and Rs. 1,74,761 on channels.

The expenditure on buildings amounted to Rs. 10,48,573 out of which a sum of Rs. 4,09,005, Rs. 1,85,444 and Rs. 1,72,466 were spent on buildings of the Medical, the Police, and the Revenue Department respectively. It is to be noted that the buildings of the Medical Department consumed the biggest portion. It is gratifying that a total sum of Rs. 1,35,390 was donated during the year by philanthropic gentlemen and bodies for the construction of public buildings such as hospitals and dispensaries. The expenditure on communications amounted to Rs. 4,55,272. Under repairs the expenditure incurred was Rs. 18,70,551 of which Rs. 18,54,384 was spent on the maintenance and special repairs of State Fund roads. A total length of 2,226 miles of State Fund roads of which 2,001 miles are metalled was maintained. The total expenditure under establishment amounted to Rs. 10,45,249, which is 13.2 percent of the total expenditure.

The report contains some interesting facts and figures. We give below the cost of some important buildings. Frontage of Exhibition buildings Mysore, the total outlay is Rs. 83,534. Central Police Station at Dodpet Mysore. (It is not called Hamilton Building in the report) the total outlay is Rs. 80,473. Improvements and extensions to Hotel Metropole Mysore, estimate is Rs. 78,810.

There are quite a number of such items. We would like the members of the legislature to go through the various items of expenditure carefully and scrutinise them. The Public Works Department is a utility Department and it spends nearly a crore of rupees. It is necessary for the people's representatives to carefully study the working of the department.

The report in hand is very nicely printed with good photographs. It is worth while for students and young men to make a tour of the State with a view to seeing the wonderful sights of Marconhally Reservoir and several such enterprises. The public buildings of Mysore are very imposing and add beauty to the town. We wish the general public take more interest in the study of the administration reports of Public Works Department, Medical Department and other such utility departments.

Prohibitory Order in Hassan Taluk

CONGRESS PRESIDENT CONDEMNES

Sri H. Siddaiah, President, Mysore Congress has issued the following statement to the Press under date, Hassan, April, 15:

An order under Section 144 Cr. P.C. has just been served upon me, Sri K. Pattabhiraman and other friends prohibiting us from addressing public meetings, using loud-speakers, from going in processions on the ground that such acts will disturb public peace. I am really surprised at this order. What surprises me more in this order is that a pre-text has been found in it for passing the same. That there have been feelings of tension between the Mysore Congress and the Rashtriya Sabha has been urged as a specious plea to interfere with normal and legitimate propaganda. I do not think there is any basis for this plea. Further more, it is neither fair nor just to any political party to hamper it in its electioneering work. That it is directed against all cannot detract from the design of this order.

I had hoped that such orders had become a matter of the past and particularly so in view of the universal dissatisfaction that these orders had caused in the past. It is unfortunate that wiser counsels have not as yet prevailed with the authorities. I am disappointed to find it so.

On our part, we shall, nevertheless, continue to exercise self-restraint and desist from disobeying the order. We will pursue our path uninfluenced by these orders. I have this hope that the electorate of Hassan Taluk will give its unmistakable answer to this curtailment of the civil rights of the people and return the Congress Candidate with a large majority.

NATIONAL HOME SCHOOL

Bangalore, April, 16

The First School Day of the National Home School, Viswewarapuram, Bangalore, was celebrated last evening at Dharmaprakash S. Sajjan Rao's Choultry under the Presidency of Rajamantrapravina K. V. Anantharaman, Second Member of Council. Mr. Sultan Mohiyudeen was also present.

After invocation a variety entertainment by the School Children was held which was very much appreciated by the audience.

Mr. G. R. Narasimha Murthy, the Head Master of the School presented the report.

Then the President distributed the prizes.

In the course of his speech, the President expressed his pleasure at the fact of public spirited men coming forward to educate their children by starting such private Schools and wished the School all success.

With the singing of National Anthem the pleasant function came to a close.

British shipping losses for the month of March amounted to 3,94,417 tons.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

NAGPUR TRAGEDY—SOME REFLECTIONS—PREMIER AND SENTRY. MR. JINNAH'S POLITICS

My readers must have, by now, read about the tragic incident in connection with Mr. V. D. Savarkar's arrival in Nagpure. There was a large crowd present at the station to accord a hearty welcome to the worthy President of the Hindu Mahasabha. When the train steamed in, Mr. R. B. Maokar, Secretary of the Provincial Hindu Sabha, tried to jump on the foot board of the compartment while the train was still in motion. He missed his hold and fell on the railway line and was run over. His garland still in his hand, he cast one last lingering look at Mr. Savarkar and expired.

In the face of death under such tragic circumstances it is natural to philosophise a bit. Death provokes strains of philosophic thought. It gives food to tragedy writers. But looking at it more realistically and objectively, such deaths could be prevented. If that gentleman had not attempted to jump on the footboard while the train was moving no tragedy would have happened. And also, if the station authorities had kept people away from the moving train this death would not have occurred. This only shows that more orderliness is necessary on the part of our people. This death ought to teach an undying lesson to our people. After all, why that particular person of all the people that had gathered there, should have jumped like that and met his death, it is more than one can say. We can call it only an accident. It is some miscalculation somewhere. It is a case of human thought and human action not reaching up to the reality. Fate comes in and a feeling of pessimism overtakes us, which in other words, is a surrender of man's thoughts and feelings to some indescribable darkness. We call it despair, pessimism and so on. Whether this state of mind has any relation to the Active Principle in Life is more than one can surmise. Here is a wall beyond which man's reason has not been able to look.

The other day I read in the newspapers an account of faithful service of a soldier sentry in England. It appears that he refused the Prime Minister to pass. When he was visiting the South East Coast, Mr. Churchill who had strayed from his party, came to a sentry, who asked: "Have you a special pass to enter the area?" The Premier replied, "No, but you know who I am." But the sentry was not satisfied. "I have orders to let no one through without a special pass," he said. The Premier had to wait. Soon afterwards officers arrived and took him through. The Premier sent a letter and reward of 10 sh. to the sentry.

This reminds me of the story of our 'dwarapalakas'. A Durgates would have cursed sentry to hell. The story of Sakuntala becomes a tragedy account of Durvasa's anger. The story of Jaya and Vijaya, the two dwarapalakas of Vishnu's Abode, reveals simply because they did swerve from the path of duty, they were punished. This is a hint in that story. Even the Dwarapalakas of Vishnu should not get conceited. Anyway the example of Winston Churchill deserves to be emulated in our country. So many big people get displeased with faithful servants of others who do not swerve from the path of their duty. When servants make no distinction between man and man, high placed people take offence. Such a type of mentality ought to be stopped. The sentry who stopped the Premier is a type of man who deserves to be honoured one and all.

Mr. Jinnah, President of the India Muslim League is generally more and more intolerable. His tirade against Congress and Gandhiji is not seemly. Two years ago Mr. Jinnah was a competent nationalist. He was a stalwart figure on the platform of Indian National Congress. None stood more staunchly for Hindu-Muslim unity and national freedom than Mr. Jinnah in those days. It is a mystery how Mr. Jinnah has grown to become an out and out communist and anti-Congressman today. He may put two and two together and arrive at some causes which made Mr. Jinnah keep out of Congress and gradually come himself into a communist. Until Mahatma Gandhi took charge of Congress affairs Mr. Jinnah was in the Congress. In December 1920 when the Congress session was held at Nagpur, Mr. Mahamadali Jinnah stoutly opposed the non-cooperation resolution. By the Maulanas Mahamadali and Shaukatali had become all important in Congress. Maulana Kalam Azad, Mr. Hakim Ali Khan, Dr. Ansari and several other Mohamadan leaders were by Mahatma Gandhi. Mr. Jinnah was naturally upset. He lost his hold and position on the Congress platform. This is the fact. If this change of position in Congress had anything to do with later developments in Mr. Jinnah's mentality it is not people to guess. After all, the conscious and the sub-conscious mind are responsible for mutations that it is sometimes difficult for a rational man to follow it. And we find Mr. Jinnah at the head of the communists speaking in a strange language. Another reason to be seen if the League politics as it is now will get any support from the minded Mohamadians with commonsense. All attempts by Mahatma Gandhi to join Jawaharlal Nehru to join him have failed. It is seen that in the present state of the Viceroy does not accept the present state of affairs.

APRIL 17, 1941 ORD MAHAVEERA RAHMDUR P. MAHADE- VAIAH'S APPRECIATION

On Tuesday 12th inst. at Sir Chetty Town Hall, under the auspices of State Humane League, Rajadharma-ji Dewan Bahadur P. Mahadeva spoke about Mahaveera as follows:—

Mahaveera was the illustrious predecessor of his teacher Parsvanatha. He is said to have lived about 2500 years ago, the influence of his preachings on the people in India is still profound. This is a convincing proof to show that the religious system organized by him consists of elements of permanence which have given to it an elevated place among various religions of India. With the Jains now numbering about 14 million in the country, they form one of the most wealthy and influential communities in the country. They occupy the front ranks in commerce, and they have a commendable spirit of enterprise. Their standard of living is higher than that of other communities except the Parsis and in the field of literature and philosophy, their achievements are second to none. Renowned Kannada poets listen to great heights and literary works are recognized to be models of perfection. Jains have in the past, exercised a profound influence on political, religious and literary history of India, and their contributions to the development of Hindu culture and civilization always entitle them to a place among the cultured communities of India.

Origin of Jain Sect

Regarding the origin of the sect, many oriental scholars are of the opinion that it was an offshoot of Buddhism. Coincidences between the lives of Buddha and Mahaveera and certain features common to both the sects had led to such a conclusion. Both applied the same titles to their prophets. Both worshipped men like Gods, and both statues to them in temples and both emphasised the importance of "Ahimsa." But investigations have proved the incorrectness of such a view, and it is established beyond all doubt that Jainism was only distinct from Buddhism in that it had an earlier existence. Hence, it has to be admitted that Jainism is one of the ancient monastic organizations of India. If so, what was the position of Mahaveera? He was perhaps a great reformer who seems to be in conformity with Jain theology according to which Mahaveera, was the thirty-fourth Tirthankara, thirty-three Tirthankaras having preceded him. His immediate predecessor was one Parsvanatha who was his teacher for some time.

The Great Hero

Mahaveera, which means the Great Hero, was born in 599 B.C.

according to Jain tradition. He was the son of King Sidhartha of Bihar, which was then a powerful State in India. Before he was born, his mother Trisala, daughter of King Chetala, is said to have dreamt fourteen dreams, revealing to her that she should bear a son who would spread the light of knowledge and become a spiritual conqueror. When he was thirty years of age he entered the order of his teacher Parsvanatha, but being dissatisfied with certain observances of that order he left it within twelve months, and wandered throughout the country for twelve years preaching universal love, attainment of spiritual peace, the sacredness of meditation, renunciation of wealth and all worldly comforts and pleasures, non-resistance to every form of evil and pain, and "Ahimsa" (harmlessness) at all times in spite of every conceivable form of provocation. His efforts were rewarded with success, and many princes became his adherents. During the next thirty years of his life, notable men and women of many countries accepted his teachings and entered his monastic order. He organised his followers into a regular community, and when he died in the small town of Pava in the Patna District in 527 B.C. in his 72nd year, his monastic order contained more than 14,000 monks. After his death, Mahaveera's disciples held aloft the torch of Jain culture and carried it far and wide. Jainism became popular, and it gradually extended over the whole of India. It is important to note that the Jain scriptures were written in the language of the common people, so as to enable them to easily understand their teachings. It is said that the canon of the scriptures was fixed in 300 B.C. by the Council of Pataliputra, and as the result of the great council of Vallabhi near Bhavnagar, which was summoned in the 5th century A.D., the sacred lore was enshrined in manuscript books.

Terrible Famine

It is said that about two centuries after Mahaveera's death a terrible famine visited Bihar, and that half of the Jain community, under the leadership of Bhadrabahu, migrated towards the South and settled at Shravana Belgola in Mysore. It is also stated that these emigrants were accompanied by Mysore by Chandragupta, the first Emperor of India, and the founder of the Maurya dynasty. Under Asoka, the Jain religion is said to have been introduced into Kashmir, and it is said to have received special marks of respect from Samprati, the grandson of Asoka. It was established in Orissa and Muthura in the first century B.C., and after the Christian era the religion spread over the whole of Western India and rose to great prominence and power in Guzerat. The Muhammadan invasions and the hostility of rival religions contributed to the gradual decline of Jainism, and it is a wonder that it survived, and was not extinguished, in the storm which completely swept Buddhism out of India.

Religious System

Mahaveera's religious system still continues to flourish on account of its great and enduring virtues. Its dynamic force consists in its ethical vitality and purity, and it has directly and indirectly influenced both the Buddhist and the Hindu religions. Its ethical conceptions are of a high order, and Mahaveera actually practised in life everything that he preached. Having renounced his Kingdom, he practised meditation for nearly twelve years, and attained divine consciousness and became a Tirthankara. The great Law of Renunciation being exemplified in his life just as in the case of Buddha, received a dignified place in his teachings. Rigorous self-discipline was, according to him, the test of spiritual wisdom. Nearly 500 years before Jesus Christ was born, Lord Mahaveera preached just as Lord Buddha also did, that evil should not be resisted by evil, that virtue consists in enduring it, and that the best way of conquering hate was by good will and friendly feeling. The ideal practised and preached by him was self-quest, and his most valuable contribution to the world consists in his famous doctrine of "Ahimsa." The greatest exponent of this great doctrine at the present day, is Mahatma Gandhi, who has held aloft its great virtues to the admiration of the world in a way in which no other religious leader, either in the East or in the West, had done before. At the hands of the Mahatma, this doctrine has received an impress and a technique hitherto unknown, and according to yesterday's "Hindu" a retired Judge is reported to have remarked that "Gandhiji commands the largest following in the world among the leaders of the present day, including the Dictators in Europe," and that "this creed of 'Ahimsa' is a marvel and a mystery, in an age in which almost every other civilised nation on earth is involved in a race of armaments." The Mahatma has unbounded faith in its immense possibilities and it is stated that the correct application of "Ahimsa" generates a mighty spiritual force which no amount of physical force can conquer. Lord Mahaveera was therefore the author of a most admirable and useful doctrine which he preached for the benefit of all humanity. There is no limit to its virtues. If its technique is properly understood and applied, it is said to act as an irresistible remedy against every form of evil in the world.

Gospel of Peace

I think, the present moment in view of a world atmosphere of war, is highly appropriate to celebrate the anniversary of a great religious teacher who preached the Gospel of Peace, Love and "Ahimsa" nearly 2500 years ago. Spiritualism has now ceased to have any attraction, and the forces of materialism are driving the world to chaos and confusion. In the World

Congress of Faiths held last year in Oxford, Dr. Alfred Hall observed in his address on "The Call to Religion," as follows:—

"There was never a time when cruelty was practised on so large a scale, never a century when innocent non-combatants were made to suffer regardless of age and sex. It seems to be a time when God has apparently withdrawn from the world and left it to the Dark Powers. The deadly fangs of fanaticism and bigotry have now to be extracted from nationalism. There can be no effective means of doing this except by 'approaching' to the better emotions of mankind and by fostering the sense of 'community of the human race' to arouse which the Congress is striving with persistence. The call of religion is a call to the belief that the power in the universe and in the heart of man is spiritual and friendly."

Elevating

The life of Lord Mahaveera is both interesting and elevating. He has helped humanity forward and his unique contributions to philosophic thought entitle him for a high place among the great religious teachers of India. The Jain Community certainly deserves to be congratulated for having produced such an outstanding religious leader, and we must be thankful to the "Mysore State Humanitarian League" for celebrating the anniversary of so great and remarkable a personality.

CASE AGAINST

Mr. M. A. PARASURAM

Bangalore, April 16

The City Police have launched a case in the City Magistrate's Court against Mr. M. A. Parasuram, Ex-General Secretary of the Bangalore Textile Labour Union under Section 34 clause 2 of the Mysore Public Security Act. It may be recalled that Mr. Parasuram who had been deported from the Mysore State had returned to Bangalore City on the 21st March violating the order, and had been arrested and remanded to Central Jail until further orders from Government in this connection.

In the charge sheet placed against Mr. Parasuram it is stated that the accused who removed himself from the Mysore State on the 31-10-1940 in obedience to the order issued in Government notification under section 32 of the Mysore Public Security Act wilfully returned to Bangalore City on 21-3-1941 without permission in writing, granted by Government and thereby committed an offence punishable under section 34 clause 2 of the Mysore Public Security Act.

This case was posted for hearing before the City Magistrate yesterday. As yesterday was a public holiday on account of the demise of His Highness the Maharaja of Cochin, the case was posted to the 22nd of this month.

Matsuoka, the Japanese Foreign Minister, is now on his way from Moscow to Tokyo.

NEW DIPLOMATIC STEPS BY AMERICA

POLICY IN EIRE, RUSSIA AND FRANCE

Axis Prepare For Breach With U. S. (By Cable) London

Walter Farr cabled to the Daily Mail from New York on April 8:

After eight days of steadily mounting tension between the United States and the Axis Powers, the U. S. A. State Department are preparing now to take new and wider diplomatic steps in conjunction with Britain.

America is playing an active part in these vital sectors of the diplomatic front. Eire during the last few days Eire and American diplomats and military experts have been in conference to define the precise circumstances under which Eire would be willing to allow anti-U-boat bases to be established on her west coast ports.

President Roosevelt has had long talks with General Frank Aiken, Eire's Minister for Defence Co-ordination, and Mr. Robert Brennan, Eire's Minister at Washington.

Eire is asking America for food and arms. State Department officials point out that under the Lend and Lease Act American aid has been pledged only to countries which—not like Eire—are actively engaged in resisting Axis aggression.

Russia—America is using all her influence to encourage a Russian stand in the Balkans.

France—The State Department has wholeheartedly joined with the British Foreign Office in carrying out a firm policy towards Vichy—a policy in which the United States can use such powerful weapons as the control of food to discourage French collaboration with Germany.

Reports reaching here from Berlin and Rome through all channels show that the Axis Governments are making every effort now to incense their public against America and are generally making preparations for the day when there will be an open break with Washington.

GREEK-YUGOSLAV RESISTANCE TO GERMANS Enthusiasm In Vichy International Circles

(By Cable) London

The Daily Mail's Geneva correspondent cabled on April 7:—

According to information from Vichy, the Greek and Yugoslav resistance to the German has aroused great enthusiasm in international circles there and also among the French population. The enthusiastic demonstration at Limoges on April 5 in favour of the United States Ambassador, Admiral Leahy, was reported on an even larger scale the following night, in Marseilles, where the crowd swarmed round the Ambassador's hotel, loudly cheering the Allies.

Henceforth, it is learned in London that the British and Allied sympathies will be published monthly in print of weekly.

AN INTERESTING CASE BEFORE FEDERAL COURT

(Associated Press of India)
 New Delhi, April 16
 Hindu Women's right to Property Act passed by the Central Legislature in 1937 was a disenfranchisement on the
 of the provincial legis-declared Dr. Asthan, U.P.
 Government Advocate General,
 among his arguments before Federal Court to-day on the memorandum-General's reference in to that Act. When the of State was considering as passed by the Assem-said it was considering the without realising that its under the new Govern-of India Act did not ex-to the Agricultural property.

A lengthy discussion followed the meaning of the terms succession, devolution and inheritance" and on the conditions under which these could apply and whether succession etc.
 and take place during the life-of the original owner of property.

Sir Maurice Gwyer asked whether there was succession to Crown when King Edward VIII abdicated.

Sir Brojendra Mitter indicated to reply that there was civil death.

Sir Alladi Krishnaswami Aiyar emphasised that the Central Legislature consisted of both houses and the Governor-General and if the Bill had been passed by both the Houses
 before the new constitution came into force and if before the Governor-General gave assent, before the new constitution came into force he could not give valid assent because the new constitution substantially curtailed the powers of the Legislature as a whole whereof the Governor-General was an integral part.
 He contended further in this case of the valid part of the Act was inextricably interwoven with invalid provisions, then the whole Act must fall.

Sir Brojendra Mitter explained that it was not for the Speakers of legislatures to pronounce on the questions of competency of Legislature and discuss any measure in this regard.

Sir Gwyer observed that the Legislature could do what it liked with the bill before it. What happened in the legislature was no concern of courts when they exercised jurisdiction in respect of acts which came into force.

A BARODA REPORT CONTRADICTED

Arya Kanya Vidyalaya Incident

Bombay, April, 17
 On the 14th April the Associated Press circulated the report from Baroda that a number of Lady Students of Arya Kanya Vidyalaya fell from horseback injured—some seriously—when the horses in procession became restive. The Associated Press is now informed that the report is entirely wrong. No girl student either fell down from horseback or injured. The Associated Press regrets that the wrong report of this nature was circulated.

nashi Goundan. The main question involved in the case before the Federal court last year was whether the Madras Agriculturists Relief Act affected the Negotiable Instruments Act which is within the exclusive competence of the Central Legislature. The Federal court by a majority held the Negotiable Instruments Act was quite irrelevant to the case because, scaling down debt under the Madras Act was for the decree obtained before the Madras Act came to force. The majority therefore held that the original debt had merged in the decree and no question of Negotiable Instruments arose.

MYSORE HIGH COURT

A Criminal Appeal

Bangalore, April 17
 In the Mysore High Court,
 Mr. Justice Singaravelu Mudaliar and Mr. Justice Subrah-manya Ayyar delivered judgment yesterday in a criminal appeal.

The prosecution alleged that Patel Veerappa and 10 others
 of Hiriyur in T. Narasipur Taluk had formed themselves on 8-4-1940 into an unlawful assembly with the common object of obstructing some persons from carting manure to their lands, had caused hurt to some persons among whom Lingappa succumbed to the injuries. The Sessions Judge of Mysore sentenced all the eleven accused for offence of rioting under section 148 I.P.C.
 to 18 months' rigorous imprisonment each; Patel Veerappa and three others each to transportation for life for offence of murder under section 302 I.P.C.; and six others to six months'
 rigorous imprisonment each for offence of causing hurt under section 324 I.P.C. Two accused were acquitted of causing hurt.
 The learned Judge also directed that sentences passed on Patel Veerappa and 5 others should run concurrently and on others to run consecutively.

All the accused appealed to the High Court. Their Honours held that there was considerable doubt as to the presence of Patel Veerappa on the scene of occurrence and therefore acquitted him of all the charges.
 Three of the accused were acquitted of murder and sentences of transportation for life passed on them were set aside. Their Honours confirmed sentence of 18 months rigorous imprisonment for rioting on the remaining ten accused and also of 6 months, rigorous imprisonment for causing hurt on eight accused. Their Honours directed that the sentences passed on the accused, for whom the learned Sessions
 Judge had directed to run consecutively, to run concurrently as he had not given reason for the same.

Mr. Nugent Grant, of the Madras Bar, assisted by Messrs.
 S. Venkatapathyaya and B. N.
 Devaratna appeared for the appellants, and Advocate General for Government.
